SEEK DIMOUT TO SAVE COAL!

POINT CHANGES ARE MADE FOR 39 FOOD ITEMS

25 Cuts, 14 Boosts on Schedule.

NEW POINT VALUES.

Dried and dehydrated soups were declared ration free and the point values of most fruit and vegetable juices were cut yesterday by the office of price administration in the May point value schedule for processed foods. The schedule becomes effective at 8 a. m. today.

1. Point values of 25 items are reduced and 14 raised.

Lower points are listed for many fruit and vegetable juices, apples, No. 2½ cans of peaches, pears, sauerkraut, spinach, tomato pulp and purée, berries, cherries, plums, and prunes.

Higher points are set for apricots, fruit cocktail, salad fruits, pineapple, tomato paste, and vacuum packed corn.

Schedule Is Simplified.

2. A long list of nonrationed items in previous charts is discarded and the schedule generally is simplified. Hereafter, any food not specifically listed is not rationed and can be bought without ration coupons.

As a result, carrot, sauerkraut, and beet juices, green turtle soup; clam juice and broth, and canned corn on the cob are no longer rationed.

The monthly revision in point values was made to affect consumer sales on the basis of the rate of movement of processed foods thru trade channels, inventories, and danger of spoilage. Points are lowered to stimulate sales of plentiful foods or foods which may spoil if stored too long. Points are raised to discourage sales of commodities selling too rapidly or becoming more scarce.

Last Minute Soup Change.

Fearing warm weather spoilage of abnormally heavy stocks of dried and dehydrated soups, the OPA in a last minute decision temporarily removed them from the rationed list. The emergency action was taken after the May point charts had gone to press and followed a joint study of latest supply statistics by OPA and the war food administration.

The statistics showed that altho sales of these soups are at a record level, production is still ahead of consumption and that wholesale stocks at the end of March stood 80 per cent larger than on Feb. 28. Because humid warm weather causes rapid spoilage of these products, the OPA decided to stimulate sales.

Likewise, the OPA found that sales of fruit and vegetable juices were lagging behind other processed foods. The 46 ounce can of tomato juice will be available today for 11 points, a 50 per cent cut from the 22 points charged last month.

Frozen Fruits Unchanged.

Frozen fruits and vegetables will continue to have the same point values established April 22. No changes are made in the point values of dried beans, peas, lentils, or baby foods.

At 12:01 this morning the revised meat-cheese-butter-canned fish ration point table with 26 reductions and 15 increases became effective.

Processed foods during May will be purchased with blue G, H, and J stamps in ration book No. 2. The stamps became valid April 24. Meats, fats, cheese, and canned fish will be purchased with red E stamps which became valid April 25, F stamps which become valid today, G stamps which become valid May 9, and H stamps which become valid May 16.

U. S. Destroyer Traded to Britain Reported Lost

LONDON, May 1 (AP).—The admiralty today announced the British destroyer Beverley, formerly the U. S. S. Branch, had been lost. No details were given. The Beverley, a 24 year old veteran of the Russian convoy route, was one of the 50 destroyers traded to Britain by the United States in 1940.

DERBY CAPTURED BY COUNT FLEET; BLUE SWORDS 2D

Count Fleet yesterday won the 69th running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs race track. A crowd of 65,000 saw the favorite win by three lengths over Blue Swords. Slide Rule was third in the 10-horse field. Count Fleet, owned by Mrs. John Hertz, former Chicagoan, returned 80 cents on each $2 win bet in the mutuels. Time for the mile and a quarter race was 2 minutes and 4 seconds, more than 2 seconds slower than the Derby record. The victory was worth $60-725 to Count Fleet's owner.

Count Fleet paid $2.80 to win, $2.40 to place, and $2.20 to show. Blue Swords paid $3.40 to place and $3 to show. Slide Rule paid $3.20 to show.

New York, May 1 [Special].—A flotilla of two score 50 foot "invasion boats" of the army's engineer amphibian command arrived today after a 2,000 mile trip by sea and intracoastal canal from a gulf port.

The convoy, which traversed 132 miles of open sea—at times nearly 50 miles from land—ran into rough weather, but every boat arrived on schedule under its own power. Army officials said that this demonstrated "the effectiveness of the craft in practical operations."

Lt. J. L. Simpson, an officer in the convoy said the seas were so rough that "sometimes the boat looked like she'd stand on end."

The army craft, similar to those used by the marines in the Guadalcanal landings, are of shallow draft and can land infantry men with light packs, as well as beach the heavy mobile equipment of an entire mechanized fighting force.

The northward voyage completed a two way operation. The convoy had made the trip down last winter in secrecy.

RUSSIAN-POLISH RUPTURE STALLS POST-WAR PLANS

Washington, D. C., May 1 (AP).—The Russian-Polish diplomatic dispute was blamed in informed quarters today for an apparent slowdown in senate subcommitte consideration of proposals for post-war international action.

A senate foreign relations subcommittee has been meeting each week to study post-war proposals, but no progress has been made. Some senators express doubt that action will be forthcoming soon.

The dispute and the rupture in relations between the two allies, has "put a chill" on the subcommittee's discussion, one member said.

Meanwhile, Sen. Claude Pepper [D., Fla.], advocate of full international coöperation, said study had convinced him that it might not be wise policy to go deeply into details in any resolution brought in at this time.

"I don't know that we want to specify now that we are willing to participate in an international force to police the world," he told reporters.

Sen. Hiram Johnson, 76, Reported Seriously Ill

Washington, D. C., May 1 (AP).—Sen. Hiram Johnson, [R., Cal.], 76 years old, was in a "serious condition" tonight, Capt. Robert E. Duncan, attending physician at the naval medical center where the veteran senator is receiving treatment for pneumonia, reported.

Dorothy Sends It Solid and Chopin Jives

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

She really has rhythm—this Dorothy Donegan who took it in her stride last night when she stepped from the Down Beat room to sold out Orchestra hall at the instigation of Impresario Joe [Kid] Sherman. Chic as a lithograph by Toulouse Lautrec, with red curls, white satin gown, and shiny jet trimmings, the 19 year old Negro pianist invaded the big time, brought her cult with her, and captured many new devotees.

A prize example of instinctive coordination in music, she sits sidesaddle at the piano and attacks it with a flair for timing as flawless as her technique is formidable. She mixes tunes impishly, churning them into persuasive violence, and does it with an almost idle nonchalance that now and then explodes into boogie woogie that sways her body in rhapsodic delight while her feet beat an undercurrent straight from the drums of the jungle.

Gay and Giddy Chopin Waltz.

She called her program a recital of variations, improvisations, modern rhythms, and treatments. It was all of those things. It began demurely enough with a nudge at Mendelssohn and a frolic thru the Moonlight Sonata, but it really got going with Chopin's Minute Waltz, which had a gleeful touch of perpetual motion.

Here Miss Donegan began to sizzle, her eyeballs showed pure white, her teeth rivaled them in gleaming mischief, and what happened to that waltz was something posterity should know about. It was gay and giddy and hilarious, and at the same time it was a spontaneous exhibition of what can happen when the piano falls delighted victim to a Negro born to play it.

Considering how Rachmaninoff loathed his C sharp minor prelude, he might have considered Miss Donegan's treatment of it no more than justice. She embroidered it with showboat melodrama, almost twisting the villain's mustache, and what is even more diabolical, she retained its character in the process. She was equally disrespectful to Liszt of the Second Hungarian Rhapsody, but there again she pulled its whiskers with skill, and when she got around to Vincent Youmans' unforgettable "Tea for Two," she played it irresistibly, with beguiling references to kittens on the keys.

Concern for Dead Composers.

There were those at the concert last night who were worried about dead composers unable to protect themselves against Miss Donegan, who was able to play them, to improvise on them and generally to harass them while seeming to count up the house or greet a friend in the gallery betimes. She can arrange her hair, wave her arms, twirl to smile at a late comer, and go into a swooning ecstasy of delight, this girl, but apparently she can't miss a note.

No matter what primrose paths she takes in music, she always comes out at what seems to be the right destination. Frankly, I think her antics would delight any composer, and maybe even give him a chuckle. Think of all the dull performances played straight.

But that reminds us of the billing which calls Miss Donegan's "the music of the future." That's entirely accurate if they are talking about her future, not music's.

EX-PRISONER TELLS HOW U. S. KEPT JAP SECRET OF YORKTOWN

Columbus, O., May 1 [Special.]—Pictures of the sinking of the aircraft carrier Yorktown which had been given to him by the Japanese while he was a prisoner of war, were confiscated by the federal bureau of investigation when he returned to the United States on the ground that they might reveal information to the enemy, a radio reporter revealed tonight at the Institute for Education by Radio.

The statement was made by W. R. Willis, former Tokio correspondent of the Columbia Broadcasting company, in the course of a debate between radio men who criticized the government's policy of delaying important war news and government representatives who defended the policy.

Willis said news of the raid on Tokio was held "much too long, as was the story of Pearl Harbor. He said their value in accelerating the war effort was diminished by this policy.

MOVE TO FORBID NON-ESSENTIAL TRAVEL BY RAIL

25 Pct. Mileage Cut Faces Nation.

Washington, D. C., May 1 (AP).—Immediate elimination of all unessential railroad travel for the duration of the coal strike was recommended tonight by Harold L. Ickes, fuel administrator.

Harold L. Ickes.

Ickes disclosed preparations are under way for a 25 per cent reduction in passenger train and locomotive mileage. It was understood a nation-wide dim-out also would be asked by Ickes to conserve coal used in generating electric power.

Ickes' recommendation for a transportation curtailment was addressed by letter to Transportation Director Joseph B. Eastman.

Pending resumption of mining activity, the letter said, the country's limited coal supply must be conserved in every way possible "lest we soon see the complete stopping of work in many plants thruout the country now turning out munitions and essential civilian products." He recommended:

"The curtailment of passenger train and passenger locomotive mileage to the degree that will in effect displace all railroad passenger travel which can be postponed or can be eliminated because it is not directly related to the prosecution of the war or essential civilian activities."

He said he understood "that the office of defense transportation is now studying ways and means of curtailing 25 per cent of the passenger train and locomotive mileage during the period of this emergency."

Reliable sources said Ickes already had prepared a letter to Chairman Donald M. Nelson of the war production board requesting a nation-wide "dim-out" in electric lighting.

Presumably the proposed order would call for the extinguishing of all ornamental illumination, theater marquees, show windows of stores and other nonessential lighting.

43 Day Supply on Hand.

Earlier today, Ickes said that preliminary figures indicate the amount of bituminous coal above ground as of April was approximately 76,627,-000 tons, or an average of 43 days' supply, based on the February rate of consumption.

Figures were immediately available concerning the supply of anthracite, but recent production was at the rate of about 1,300,000 tons a week, or about the rate necessary to meet this year's anticipated need of 65,000,000 tons.

M'NUTT DECREES 48 HOUR WEEK IN STEEL INDUSTRY

Washington, D. C., May 1 (AP).—Paul V. McNutt, war man power chairman, tonight decreed a 48 hour work week for blast furnaces, steel works, and rolling mills and set July 1 as the final date for compliance.

He ruled that the 48 hour work week must be established by June 1, if no workers are to be released in making the change, and by July 1, if it is necessary to lay off employés.

Under the order, no steel mill working less than 48 hours after June 1 may hire new workers without WMC approval. McNutt said the action assured that more than 525,-000 steel workers will be on a 48 hour basis by July 1.

McNutt, who acted under President Roosevelt's executive order giving the commission authority to order a 48 hour week wherever it deems necessary, said the steel industry is averaging only 41.5 hours, with some plants running as low as 37 hours.

Follows Long Parleys.

The action will be equivalent to adding 50,000 men to the nation's labor forces, McNutt said. He said that any workers released by the steel mills can be placed readily in other industries by the United States employment service.

Mr. McNutt's action followed extensive consideration of the special problem of the steel indutsry, including conferences during the last few days with WMC regional directors, McNutt's statement said.

"This order will assure maximum production with a minimum of workers. It will enable not only a full use of existing facilities but would release much man power necessary for the new facilities which will come into operation within the next few weeks," the statement said.

'Under the order, no blast furnace, steel mill, or rolling mill working less than 48 hours a week on and after June 1 may hire any new workers without the approval of the war manpower commission for the specific job. This 'cease hiring' order is in line with the general war man power policy which does not recognize claims for new workers until all workers on the job are fully utilized.

Holds New Jobs Available.

"At the same time, the order gives to the steel industry time [30 days] for making the technical adjustments necessary to reach the 48 hour week. By the July 1 deadline arrangements can be made for the absorption of workers by expanding facilities in steel and other industries badly in need of skilled help.

"Enough orders now are placed with the United States employment services offices to absorb all the men released. Most of them can be absorbed by the steel industry itself, and those for the most part in the district where they are now at work.

"The steel industry has operated under handicaps with respect to other war plants which have offered greater opportunity in overtime pay."

Army Has Word for Strike—

—But It's Unprintable!

AT A U. S. AIR BASE IN SOUTHERN CHINA, May 1.—After funeral services on a hill today for four members of the 14th air force who were killed Wednesday during a Japanese bombing raid, the daily mimeographed news bulletin appeared containing news that John L. Lewis has ordered a strike of nearly 500,000 soft coal miners.

Most of the comments about the strike cannot be printed owing to the laws against obscenity. But here are a few of the printable comments however:

"How would they feel if we struck?"

"Why, I thought all that strike stuff had been taken care of when the President 'froze' wages a while ago.

"And those boys get home every night!"

"It's just as much treason as giving information to the Japs!"

A suggestion that the striking miners be drafted was shouted down as reflecting on the loyalty of the army.

Ask Lewis Internment

Hot Springs, Ark., May 1 [Special].—Internment of John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, for the duration of the war was requested in telegrams sent to President Roosevelt by two organizations meeting here today.

The organizations are the United States Army Mothers' post No. 11 and the Arkansas State Junior Chamber of Commerce. Both wires denounced Lewis for his conduct leading up to the coal strike.

The army mothers emphasized that they have sons, husbands, and brothers in service and characterized the coal strike as "the most brazen, unpatriotic, and flagrant example of sabotage ever called to the attention of he people." The President was called upon to "immediately arrest and intern Lewis and all others responsible for this strike."

The chamber of commerce resolution, adopted by the annual state convention, attacked Lewis for his "unpatriotic attitude and selfish interest" in all his transactions during the present emergency, and asked his internment "so as to remove one of the most disturbing elements and serious threats to successful prosecution and early conclusion of the war."

MINES SEIZED; F. D. R. ORDERS WORK RESUMED

Threatens to Send Troops to Pits.

Texts of Roosevelt statement and executive order, and Ickes' message to mine operators will be found on page 10.

Washington, D. C., May 1.—Fuels Administrator Harold L. Ickes today took possession of mines producing 95 per cent of America's coal under orders from President Roosevelt that mining "must and shall continue" in the face of John L. Lewis' refusal to order 480,100 men now idle back to work.

Mr. Roosevelt, acting as commander in chief of the armed forces, made it clear the government will exert every effort—using troops if necessary—to see that the mines operate normally Monday, and will retain possession of the coal fields until Lewis' United Mine Workers agree to submit their wage dispute to the war labor board—the board whose every recent request Lewis has defied.

Whenever the miners submit their case to the WLB, Mr. Roosevelt said, it will be determined promptly and fairly, and any wage adjustment will be made retroactive to the expiration April 1 of the agreement under which operators and the union have been working.

Miners Walk Out.

Extension of that agreement until midnight last night had been agreed to by Lewis, while the WLB had ordered it extended indefinitely pending determination of the issues. Even before the midnight deadline set by Lewis, thousands of miners had walked out, and today many more thousands joined them in staying away from the pits.

Ickes, saying "we will not ask for help from the army unless we need it," dispatched a "call to service" to executives of 3,400 bituminous mining companies, ordering "all officials and employés forthwith to perform their usual functions and duties in connection with mine operation, sale, and distribution of products."

Flag Ordered Flown.

The fuel administrator ordered that the Stars and Stripes fly on all mining premises "to show that the property is being operated exclusively for the United States and that all employés are serving their country."

The war production board's control over coal deliveries was extended today to include anthracite as well as bituminous.

The new order, issued by Chairman Donald M. Nelson on Ickes' recommendation, provides that users may not accept anthracite deliveries if they have more than a five day supply on hand. The bituminous order forbids deliveries above a 10 day supply.

President Roosevelt had told the miners Thursday that unless work at the mines resumed by 10 a. m. today he would "use all the power vested in me as President and as commander in chief of the army and navy to protect the national interest and to prevent further interference with the successful prosecution of the war."

That 10 a. m. deadline passed today with reports pouring in of idle miners and idle mines in the nation's rich coal fields east of the Mississippi.

President on Radio Tonight.

The White House announced at 10:30 a. m. that the President would speak on all radio networks Sunday night at 9 o'clock [Chicago time] to deal "bluntly" with the coal situation.

[The President's address will be broadcast over W-G-N, Chicago.]

Then, at 11:42 a. m., with Lewis continuing to ignore the presidential request, the President announced the government was taking over "possession and operation" of the mines.

"Except in a few mines the production of coal has virtually ceased, he stated. "The national interest is in grave peril.

"I have today by appropriate executive order directed the secretary of the interior, who is the fuel administrator and in whose depart-

YANKS CAPTURE 2 AXIS HILLS AT BAYONET POINT

BY JOHN THOMPSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ALLIED HDQ. IN NORTH AFRICA, May 1.—Smashing forward under cover of all the weight of their artillery, bayonet wielding infantrymen of the American 2d corps captured two more strategic hills in northern Tunisia, it was announced today. Meanwhile, allied flyers struck at axis shipping, sinking seven vessels and hitting at least three others.

Djebel Tahent, known as Hill 609, and Hill 523 fell to the Yanks who literally cut their way up the difficult slopes against fierce opposition. They silenced machine gun nests with mortar and rifle fire and hand grenades. These heights are in the Sidi N'Sir area about 16 miles southeast of Mateur.

Mateur Under Shell Fire.

At the extreme northern end of this sector the Americans joined the troops of the French African corps in shoving their lines forward into the area of Djebel Hazemat, 14 miles northwest of Mateur and six miles from the Mateur-Bizerte road which skirts Lake Achkel. Mateur itself has come under the fire of our field guns which are dropping their heavy shells on the road junctions in and near that city. German batteries have been answering this long range shelling with their 177 millimeter guns.

There has also been more bloody fighting around Green and Bald hills in the Jefna area where the Yanks beat off two small counter-attacks. In all operations in their sector yesterday, the Americans took 200 prisoners.

British Make Slight Gain.

Troops of the British 1st army, nine miles east of Mejez El Bab on the Tebourba road, made a slight advance when Churchill tanks supporting leading infantry elements pushed just east of Sidi Bou Baker on the north side of the road. South of the road other British troops lost some ground when the enemy, trying to gain the offensive, slashed back with fresh infantry attacks to drive the allied soldiers down the slopes of Djebel Bou Aoukaz which has been the scene of bitter fighting for days.

Four miles due south around the village of Bir en Neidour, our troops repulsed three spirited counterattacks and held their lines intact. But Sidi Abdulla, a village 10 miles east of Mejez El Bab, remained in enemy hands after an all day battle.

The enemy also holds the eastern slopes of Djebel Kournine, three miles northeast of Lake Kourzia. Farther south French patrols were active southeast of Pont du Fahs. The Nazis were reported to have made slight gains against the British 8th army on the extreme south.

Two Destroyers Sunk.

The allied aerial score against axis shipping was chalked up yesterday by fighters and bombers in the Straits of Sicily. Listed as sunk in these blows were two destroyers, a corvette, a large motor launch, a motor ferry, a motor torpedo boat and a tank carrier. A light cruiser and two merchant vessels were reported hit as the axis tried desperately to get reënforcements and ammunition into Tunisia. Eight escorting enemy fighter planes also were destroyed.

In addition, German JU-52 transports took another beating when a single Beaufighter just before dawn shot down five of the big planes.

The Sicilian straits were littered with ships traveling in small groups with escorting warships when Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle's Mitchells and Marauders attacked. One flight of Mitchells got a destroyer, while another scored hits amidships and on the bow and stern of the cruiser.

Five Planes Missing.

Protected by Lightning fighters, Marauder bombardiers hit a merchant vessel steaming north from Cape El Melah, on the east coast of the Cap Bon peninsula of Tunisia.

While these attacks were going on, R. A. F. bomb carrying Kittyhawks of the desert air force supported by Spitfires smashed into a concentration of ships of all shapes and sizes from Cape El Melah to Cape Fortass on the Gulf of Tunis side of the peninsula. They accounted for the other ships sunk and damaged. Five Kittyhawks were missing.

[The German high command communique said attacks against axis positions were repelled. "In heavy fighting on the western front of the Tunisian bridgehead the enemy lost between April 24 and April 30 98 tanks" as well as several hundred prisoners and other weapons, the communique said. The Berlin radio said in a broadcast that infantry units of the British 8th army had made a new, concentrated attack in the southern sector but that it had been repulsed.]

TRAFFIC DEATHS IN BRITAIN GROW TO 529 IN MARCH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 1.—Road accidents in Britain continue to take a disturbingly high death toll. During March, it was disclosed today, 529 persons were killed on the roads, including 115 children, and 9,238 were injured, including 1,904 children. The number of traffic deaths is still above the pre-war level. The proportion of children among the victims has increased from one in six in March, 1939, to approximately one in five.

During May, unless exceptional precautions are taken, the number of accidents among children is likely to be even greater than in March, it is believed. The reason for this is said to be the attraction of the road at this time of year.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The German radio reported last night in a dispatch datelined Algeria, Spain, that a convoy of 20 allied ships, many of them carrying motor launches such as are used in landing operations, had arrived yesterday at Gibraltar, and that a fleet of 65 merchant vessels and two transports was "apparently making ready to sail."

"There was much activity on the airdrome of Gibraltar, too," the radio said. "Many bombers arrived and after refueling took off again in the direction of the Mediterranean."

The broadcast followed one Friday by the Germans asserting that 150 British landing boats protected by destroyers and an aircraft carrier had passed into the Mediterranean. The Germans earlier had said the battleships Rodney, Malaya, and Renown [the latter actually is a battle cruiser], and the aircraft carriers Furious, Illustrious, and Argus, four cruisers and eight destroyers had left Gibraltar and gone into the Mediterranean.

MARINE HURT AS JAP HURLS OWN BOMB BACK

A large palm frond rose slowly from the Guadalcanal jungle floor. From under it stepped a Japanese soldier, only to look down the rifle barrel of a marine from Massachusetts. The marine was J. J. Murphy, lying a scant 10 feet away. Murphy squeezed the trigger. There was a click as the gun misfired.

William E. Sholz.

A buddy, Pvt. William E. Scholz began to laugh. Others joined him, amused by Murphy's antics. After several minutes the Jap ran. A marine brought him down.

The episode was told yesterday by Scholz, 23 years old, who returned to his home at 4134 North Mason avenue after receiving a medical discharge. Scholz was injured when Japs, hiding in a well stocked cave, threw back a grenade Scholz had tossed into the hole in an effort to rout them.

PROPOSES PROBE OF 'CRACKPOTS' IN NEW YORK OWI

Seeks Dies Study of Big Overseas Bureau.

New York, May 1.—Rep. J. Parnell Thomas [R., N. J.] said today he would recommend that a Dies committee investigation of the office of war information be extended to include the OWI's huge propaganda factory here.

Thomas, a member of the Dies group, which investigates un-American activities, said he would make the recommendation when the committee resumes its quiet probe of OWI's Washington, D. C., headquarters. The probe will be resumed after the house reconvenes on Monday.

Thomas revealed that he has been in New York since congress recessed, acting as a one man subcommittee for the Dies group to look into conduct of the OWI effort here.

Holds Probe Is Needed.

"I have seen enough," he said. "I am convinced there is sufficient cause to investigate the whole OWI set-up. It needs a thoro going over.

"I haven't found evidence of any actual subversive activities, but I have found evidence that there are plenty of people working in the place who have subversive connections."

Asked what he meant by this, Thomas replied: "Reds, Communists, crackpots, and nitwits — the place is full of them. It's headed by the same bunch that fostered the works projects administration writer's project."

Housed in 10 Story Building.

OWI offices here are housed in a 10 story building on West 57th street where 1,300 employés, earning from $1,200 to $8,000 a year, are said to be engaged in one of the largest propaganda operations the world has ever known.

The building is guarded by federal men. According to Thomas, it send forth a daily torrent of written and spoken words, the latter beamed toward neutral and enemy countries in nearly 3,000 weekly radio broadcasts.

The staff recently overflowed into a nearby building, where workers prepare magazines and leaflets to be dropped from planes over occupied countries.

Leaflets Are Hush-Hush.

Much of the product from this section, especially the air borne leaflets, is said to be of hush-hush character and may not be inspected.

Head of this tremendous propaganda effort, known as the OWI overseas branch, is Robert F. Sherwood, the playwright. His immediate second in command is Joseph Barnes, former foreign editor of the New York Herald Tribune. According to Joseph Davies, former ambassador to Russia, Barnes is a radical.

Thomas expressed the opinion that samples indicate some of the literature the propaganda mill is disseminating is of "questionable value" in winning the war.

Offer Irrigation Booklet.

He said that, in addition to "political speeches," literature turned out to date includes a booklet on irrigation, one of the historical sights of Washington, another on social welfare, and a specially compiled list for the OWI's New Delhi, India, office, showing the political affiliations of senatos and congressmen.

"Why they had to get up a special list when the government printing office has plenty on hand is a mystery to me," Thomas said.

"Moreover, if what I have seen on the OWI's activities in New York and elsewhere to date is designed to help us win the war, then you'll have to show me."

FRENCH WORKERS GET GIRAUD'S PROMISE OF FULL VICTORY SOON

ALGIERS, Algeria, May 1 (AP).—Gen. Henri Giraud called upon French workers in a May day address tonight to put everything into war work and promised restoration of labor liberties and an early and total victory over the axis.

As the general spoke, notices were published forbidding parades or demonstrations tomorrow. The De Gaullist North African committee had called on workers to proceed to the Algiers war monument tomorrow to show their respect for fallen comrades and their support of Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

5 PLANES SHOT DOWN, IF SCORED, BRING ACE RANK

Army Requires Proof of Flyer's Deeds.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 1.—An army air force "ace" acquires this title of distinction only after he has shot down at least five enemy planes, the war department said today.

The army intelligence officers in the various theaters of war keep the score cards that produce the aces. They require definite proof that a plane was shot down before the army aviator gets credit.

The method of scoring aerial victories is little changed from the last war and is approximately the same as that employed by the British, said army air force officers.

Another Must Confirm.

For the pilot of a fighter plane to get credit for shooting down a Jap, Nazi or Italian craft, another pilot or other observer of the fight must confirm his aerial victory.

And of the 558 enemy planes shot down by American bomber crews, according to the war department, army intelligence went to great trouble to see the proper man or men got credit for the triumphs.

Army intelligence takes down a complete report from all the members of the crew of the army bomber. Every bomber in a specific formation gives a detailed report of its operation, and what it observed done by accompanying planes.

Intelligence then plots a diagram of any aerial battles that may have occurred during the bombing operations and determines which guns or which ships may have been firing on the downed enemy. The angle of fire, the time of firing, the fire power of the plane—all are computed, for determining who should get credit for the conquest.

Credit Is Determined.

When all of this data is gathered army intelligence knows pretty well who should have the credit. Sometimes it's one bomber gunner, sometimes two, sometimes gunners from two different ships. If there is some question, often the entire crew will get full credit instead of the individual gunner.

In some theaters of war intelligence doesn't try to determine who is the ace individual gunner. The entire crew rather than one man receives all the credit. But the war department said the bomber crews definitely are producing aces.

A former bank clerk of Nashville, Tenn., Pvt. William R. Cummings of the 90th bombardment group, is the ace of the bomber gunners. Of the 121 Jap planes downed in the southwest Pacific he has been given full credit for nine of them in latest war department statistics.

Reports Not Complete.

The war department said that all of the theaters do not report their air force aces. Stress is being put on teamwork rather than individual exploits among the airmen.

According to reports so far received, outstanding ace of the war is a marine, Capt. Joseph J. Foss, who is credited with shooting down 26 planes at or near Guadalcanal.

Of the army fighter pilots, Col. Robert L. Scott, 35 year old aviator from Macon, Ga., with 13 Jap planes, mostly bombers, to his credit, is about tops among the American army aces. Col. Scott is back in this country now after having led the fighter command in China under Gen. Claire Chennault.

Maj. Edward Rector, 28, of Marshall, N. C., one of the original members of the American volunteer group [Fighting Tigers], has 12 planes to his credit and rates as another of the many aces of the China theater. He is on sick leave, having been released this week from a Washington hospital. Both Scott and Rector flew P-40 Warhawks in their exploits.

In Southwest Pacific.

Capt. Andrew J. Reynolds of Seminole, Okla., took up Airacobra and Lightning fighting planes in the southwest Pacific to meet the Japs and so far has shot down at least 10 of them, according to latest statistics available.

In North Africa, Maj. Levi R. Chase of Cortland, N. Y., is believed to be the leading ace, having knocked down 10 planes with his Warhawk. Air force records show he has mostly German Messerschmitts as his victims.

The 8th air force, stationed in England, has made no formal report on its aces. This likewise is true of the heavy bombardment group stationed in the middle east.

Because of the difficulty of keeping complete and fair reports, and because some theaters of war do not report, the war department keeps no official list of the army aces.

Wounded Guadalcanal Hero Gets Purple Heart

Before his comrades, Sergt. Lawrence Blackburn of Evansville, Ind. was decorated yesterday with the order of the Purple Heart at Great Lakes Naval Training station. The citation, read by Lt. Col. Arnold C. Larsen, marine commander, stated that Sergt. Blackburn, member of the original landing party on Guadalcanal, fought continuously for two months, then was seriously wounded in the historic night battle of last Oct. 8. Blackburn has been a marine 17 years.

Joseph Medill to Be Launched

Artist's conception of the Liberty ship named for the founder of the Chicago Tribune. The ship will be launched tomorrow at Panama City, Fla.

NEW CARGO SHIP TO BEAR NAME OF JOSEPH MEDILL

Great-Grandchild to Aid at Launching.

Panama City, Fla., May 1 [Special].—A Liberty cargo ship named for Joseph Medill, founder of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be launched here Monday with a great-granddaughter of the famous editor, Miss Ellen Pearson, acting as co-sponsor.

The S. S. Joseph Medill will be the fifth Liberty ship to be launched from the Wainwright yard of the J. A. Jones Construction company, which holds a maritime commission contract for 33 Liberty ships and 57 victory ships.

Shipyard officials said the vessel's name was selected by the maritime commission in keeping with its policy of naming Liberty ships after outstanding persons who have figured in history.

Other Ships Launched.

The ships previously launched at this yard were the E. Kirby Smith, Newton D. Baker, John Bascom, and William J. Bryan.

Launching ceremonies will be simple in keeping with war time transportation and other restrictions, officials said. A concert by the yard's 50 piece band will precede and follow the ship's sliding down the ways. Harry G. Fannin, mayor of Panama City, will deliver a brief address and prayer will be offered by the Rev. Frank P. Dearing, rector of St. Andrew's Episcopal church here.

Plan to Honor Woman Worker.

Acting as co-sponsor will be a woman worker from the Wainwright yard to be selected on her record for attendance and efficiency. Her name will be announced Monday morning.

Joseph Medill came to Chicago in 1854 and with Dr. Charles Ray of Galena, Ill., bought a controlling interest in THE TRIBUNE. For 44 years his was the guiding mind of THE TRIBUNE. Thruout the Civil war he and THE TRIBUNE stanchly supported President Lincoln and the Union cause. He was mayor of Chicago from 1871 to 1873. He died March 16, 1899, in San Antonio, Tex., continuing up to his last day to have a decisive voice in matters of TRIBUNE policy.

Passes Thru Chicago

New York, May 1 [Special]. — Capt. Joseph J. Foss, the South Dakota marine pilot whose 26 aerial victories over Guadalcanal equaled Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker's World I. record, was headed tonight for Sioux Falls, S. D., his home town, and a week's visit with his mother and relatives. Accompanied by his wife, Capt. Foss will stop briefly in Chicago tomorrow morning.

Equipped with only a single uniform, the flyer was relieved to learn Saturday that his trunk—filled with valuable clothing—has arrived in Sioux Falls after being lost four months. Foss had shipped it from Guadalcanal in anticipation of going home.

Busy Schedule Ahead.

His itinerary as tentatively announced by marine headquarters will take him on this round of visits to training and war production centers:

May 10, Navy Pre-flight school, Iowa City, Ia.; May 11-12, Chicago, for appearance before marine enlisted men at Navy pier and at Union League club; May 13, en route to New York; May 14-19, tour of war plants in New York area; May 20, Chapel Hill, N. C.; May 21, Athens, Ga.; May 22, Jacksonville, Fla.; May 23-24, Pensacola, Fla.; May 25, en route to Corpus Christi, Tex.; May 26, Corpus Christi; May 27, en route to Los Angeles, Cal.; May 28-30, Los Angeles; May 31, en route to Del Monte, Cal.; June 1, Del Monte; June 2-3, San Francisco, Cal.

His visits to war plants are expected to follow the general pattern of his appearance yesterday before thousands of workers at the Bethpage, N. Y., plant of Grumman Aircraft Engineering corporation. Foss scored all his victories in a Grumman Wildcat.

"If you work night and day making 'em, we'll work night and day flying 'em," he told the cheering workers, crowded together in a great assembly plant from which planes had been removed.

The captain chuckled when told Grumman's new night fighter—counterpart of the day fighting Wildcat — had been unofficially named the "Tomcat."

Greatest Fete Waits

Your mother is preparing your favorite dishes, of course. She'd do that even if you hadn't shot down 26 planes. But, because you did shoot down all those Japs, you can expect to see almost every man, woman, and child of the nearly 41,000 here.

A Broadcast, Too.

Tuesday is to be the big day, starting with a nation-wide broadcast from 11:45 to 12 noon [Chicago time] from a street stand at the starting point of what the city fathers promise will be the biggest parade in the city's history. A public reception at Howard Wood Athletic field at 3 o'clock is certain to test your handshaking endurance.

Many dignitaries will be present, including high ranking marine and naval officers. Among them will be an old friend of yours, Comm. Douglas M. Campbell, your instructor when you were mastering your flying skill at Pensacola, Fla.

All the kids at Washington High school, where you and your wife, June, met while you both played saxophones, are going to have a holiday to see you. In the evening a big dance will mark the conclusion of the "Joe Foss war bond drive," which, you'll be glad to know, went far over the top.

An Ode in Poetry.

They are even writing poetry about you here, Joe. Mrs. C. Wheeldon came up with this one:

When our hero was only a very small boy,
Hunting weasels and skunks was his greatest joy.
Capt. Foss, the marine, went hunting you know,
Over Guadalcanal for the sly yellow foe.
With the same daring and skill he learned long ago,
He downed 26 planes, this flyer called Joe.
In the creatures he's bagged "there's a likeness," he said.
There should be a bounty on Japs at 10 cents a head.

ROBBERS CLEAN OUT MARKET.

His butcher shop at 2318 North Cicero avenue was stripped of all meat, valued at $700, $487 in cash and 12,000 red ration stamps during the night, John Hahn reported yesterday to Cragin police.

FIVE SOLOMONS BASES RAIDED BY YANK BOMBERS

Start Fires Visible Fifty Miles Away.

Washington, D. C., May 1 (AP).—Two huge fires visible 50 miles away blazed up from the big Japanese base at Kieta in the Northwestern Solomon Islands Thursday night after a force of Liberator heavy bombers had raided the place, the navy reported today.

The raid was one of five carried out Thursday night and Friday from which all American planes returned.

Kahili Bombed Again.

The other places hit were Numa Numa, on the northeast coast of Bougainville Island, on which Kieta also is located; Kahili in southwestern Bougainville; Vila in the central Solomons and Rekata bay on Santa Ysabel Island, 135 nautical miles from the American air field on Guadalcanal.

The attack on Numa Numa was the first of the raids and was made by a single Liberator. Results of this action were not reported. A group of Liberators struck Kieta, starting four fires, two of which were described in the communique as "visible for 50 miles."

Fortresses Start Fire.

Early Friday morning, a group of Flying Fortresses raided Kahili, a heavily fortified area, and started a large fire. A short time later Avenger and Dauntless bombers with Airacobra and Wildcat fighters bombed and strafed Vila, an air base in the Munda area of the Central Solomons.

Friday evening a flight of Corsair fighters strafed the enemy base at Rekata Bay, which the enemy has used as a center for seaplane operations.

Action in Pacific

Japanese bases in the Solomons bombed yesterday, according to communiques.

1 MAN AIR FORCE TAKES ON 46 JAP PLANES AT ONCE

Kansas Pilot's Warning Brings Quick Aid.

WITH THE U. S. ARMY AIR FORCE IN CHINA, April 30 [delayed]—(AP).—Lt. Bryon Gilmore of Highland, Kas., was identified today as a hero of the frustrated Japanese attack Wednesday upon the headquarters base of the 14th United States army air force.

A Warhawk fighter pilot, Gilmore made a one-man attack upon a formation of 46 Japanese aircraft which he encountered heading for the base, and radioed a warning which enabled nine other Warhawks to intercept them.

Ten Japanese planes were shot down and eight others were probably destroyed.

Gilmore spotted the flight, made up of 21 bombers and 25 fighters, while he was flying alone.

"I was flying over 25,000 feet with the Japs several thousand feet below me," said Gilmore. "Diving on the bombers, I got on one's tail and let go with the only three guns which were working. I got so close his propeller wash flopped me over on my back and I had to pull away to avoid a collision. The whole formation moved over. Altho the bomber didn't go down, it apparently jettisoned its bombs.

"A pack of Zeros then attacked me. One followed me down, but I eluded him. After the bombing I followed them and radioed their position. I climbed and attacked again, this time picking out two Zeros. As I started at the leader his wing man came at me. I shipped around and gave him a short burst, then stalled out."

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Berlin broadcast a Tokio dispatch yesterday quoting a Japanese communique as saying 46 United States planes had been destroyed by Japanese raiders on and above the Yunnanyi airdrome in China. Many Liberator bombers and P-40 type aircraft were destroyed on the ground and five were shot from the air, the Japs said.

DOIHARA PUT IN HIGH COMMAND OF JAP ARMY

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The Tokio radio broadcast yesterday a war office announcement that Gen. Kenji Doihara, known as the "Lawrence of Manchuria," had been appointed commander in chief of the eastern army zone "and concurrently to the supreme war command."

Gen. Kenji Doihara.

The eastern army zone includes most of the main islands of Japan, Honshu, and the islands to the north. Its commander is responsible for defense of Japan against attack. The meaning of Doihara's concurrent appointment "to the supreme war command" was not clear, but perhaps it means he retains a place in the supreme war council and in imperial headquarters.

CANADIAN PILOTS TORPEDOED; 16 REACH BRITAIN

A BRITISH PORT, May 1 (AP).—Survivors of a torpedoing during a snowstorm in mid-Atlantic, 16 flyers of the Canadian air force have arrived in Britain. Two torpedoes struck their freighter in the early evening and survivors took to rafts and lifeboats in 60 foot seas. After two hours they were picked up by a British corvette.

The snow was so thick they had been unable to see other ships in the convoy and when the torpedo flash came they thought it was lightning.

TAKE VOTE RIGHT FROM U. S. JAPS, TRIBUNAL URGED

Race Held Unworthy of Citizenship.

Washington, D. C., May 1 (AP).—A San Francisco, Cal., resident today asked the Supreme court to bar Japanese born in the United States from voting, contending that "dishonesty, deceit, and hypocrisy are racial characteristics" which make them unfit for American citizenship.

A petition filed by U. S. Webb, San Francisco attorney, for John T. Regan sought a review of a decision by the 9th federal Circuit court which held that Japanese born in this country are citizens and eligible to vote.

Regan instituted action against Cameron King, San Francisco registrar of voters, in an effort to strike the names of a group of American born Japanese from the voters' register.

Holds His Rights Invaded.

"Japanese wherever born are not citizens of the United States," the petition asserted, adding that voting by Japanese constituted an invasion of Regan's rights as a citizen.

[The 14th amendment to the Constitution provides that all persons born or naturalized in the United States are citizens, and the 15th amendment sets forth that the rights of citizens to vote "shall NOT be denied or abridged on account of" race or color.]

"The record of events since the adoption of the Constitution, including Pearl Harbor, Singapore, Bataan, Guadalcanal, and a hundred other fields and waters in which American citizens have been slaughtered by Japanese," the petition said, "proclaim in thunder tones that Japanese citizenship conflicts with the objectives of the Constitution, nor should the execution, the martyr of American prisoners of war, but a few days ago disclosed, be overlooked.

[This referred to a recent announcement that some of the captured American raiders of Tokio had been executed by Japan.]

Denies Act Is "Abnormal."

"Let no one conclude that this was an abnormal act of the Japanese government nor that it is unapproved by the Japanese people. These murders were but a normal happening of the Japanese government as created and as maintained for the 2,600 years of its existence."

The petition asserted that the Supreme court never had decided whether American born Japanese are citizens, but had ruled 45 years ago that citizenship was extended to Chinese born in this country.

Whether the Supreme court will review the controversy will be announced in a few weeks.

ALLIED BOMBERS SINK 5,000 TON SHIP OFF GUINEA

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, May 2 [Sunday]—(AP).—A 5,000 ton Japanese ship was bombed yesterday off Dutch New Guinea and left sinking, the high command announced. The Japanese ship, a cargo vessel, was attacked by four engined allied bombers off Manokwari. A direct hit and a near miss were scored. The ship last was seen settling by the stern in a spreading oil slick.

In another aerial action over Soembawa Island, Netherlands East Indies, three Japanese fighters were shot down.

Eight Japanese fighters sought to intercept a big allied bomber on a reconnaissance mission. The bomber sustained some damage but reached its base safely.

SHOP OWNER ROBBED OF $22.

RANGOON DOCKS HIT BY TWENTY TONS OF BOMBS

NEW DELHI, India, May 1 (AP).—Liberators of the 10th United States air force loosed more than 20 tons of bombs upon Rangoon docks Thursday and Mitchell bombers made further destructive attacks on Japanese rolling stock, machine shops, and engine sheds in the Myitnge railroad yards, a United States communique announced today.

Fires were reported left burning among enemy installations at Mohnyin by a fighter escorted medium bomber force. Warhawks destroyed four large barracks and caused other damage in an attack on a Japanese camp west of Weshl.

REDS KNOCK OUT 48 BATTERIES IN CAUCASUS CLASH

Repel Nazi Attacks; Bag 24 German Planes.

LONDON, May 2 [Sunday] (AP). — Soviet artillerymen destroyed 48 enemy artillery and mortar batteries and Russian airmen shot down 24 German planes yesterday in repulsing axis counter-attacks in the northwest Caucasus, Moscow announced early today.

Altho the Germans maintained that scores of thousands of Russian infantrymen, supported by tanks and planes, were attacking the German foothold around Novorossisk on the Black sea, the midnight Moscow bulletin recorded by the soviet monitor gave few details of the operations.

Soviet artillery wiped out German blockhouses and dugouts, but there was no suggestion to support German dispatches telling of violent fighting in that area.

Claim 6 Divisions Repelled.

A Berlin broadcast last night said six Russian infantry divisions and three tank brigades unsuccessfully attacked German and Rumanian positions Thursday, and three divisions again attacked on Friday. The German high command referring to yesterday's operations said the axis troops "again achieved great defensive success in the Kuban bridgehead."

Yesterday's Russian noon communique, which told of scattered minor fighting on the Leningrad and Ukraine fronts, did not even mention the Caucasus.

Two hundred Germans were killed on the Smolensk front west of Moscow, the midnight bulletin said, and 150 supply carts in a German supply train near Balakleya, southeast of Kharkov, were reported destroyed. On the Volkhov front, southeast of Leningrad, soviet gunners silenced several guns and demolished four dugouts.

Optimism Sweeps Russia.

A new spirit of optimism swept over Russia in response to Premier Josef Stalin's order of the day yesterday, in which he manifested his greatest optimism since the Russian war began nearly two years ago.

There was a fine feeling among the soviet people that Stalin had assured the world there would be no peacemaking with Hitler until Germany is defeated.

Stalin's praise of British and American air raids heightened their importance in the minds of the people. His studied praise of allied gains in Africa and his prediction that Tunisia would be cleared of the enemy lent added importance to this allied effort in soviet eyes.

BIG R. A. F. BLOW PRESENTS ESSEN WITH NEW TITLE

LONDON, May 1 (AP).—Royal air force bombers pounded the German industrial city of Essen last night and Berlin said American four engined heavyweights attacked an undisclosed French harbor today in a resumption of the allied aerial offensive.

While the 8th United States air force headquarters had made no announcement of the daylight operations several hours after British coastal residents reported seeing American planes roar across the channel, the Berlin radio said American bombers "attempted a raid" on a harbor in western France. It claimed eight four engined bombers were downed.

In last night's heavy raid, the R. A. F. heaped on Essen the distinction of being the most bombed city in the world.

Nazis Admit Much Damage.

The German industrial center with a normal population of 654,000, compared with greater London's 10,000,000, has been the recipient of more than 10,000 tons of bombs delivered by the R. A. F. on 55 missions.

"British bombers last night attacked several places in western Germany, among them open rural communities. Bombs dropped on residential areas, especially in Essen, causing casualties among the population and considerable damage."

As the R. A. F. closed the books on the first third of the 1943 aerial offensive, these facts were recapitulated:

Since the beginning of the year, the R. A. F. has lost 601 bombers in delivering triple the weight of bombs carried on each mission last year. Losses were 75 planes in January, 104 in February, 158 in March, and 264 in April.

10,000 Tons of Bombs Dropped.

The British are delivering as great a tonnage with 500 to 600 planes now as they did a year ago in the 1,000 bomber attacks, one of which was on Essen.

Essen has received considerably more bomb tonnage than London.

Almost 10,000 tons of bombs were dropped on Germany in 10 major raids during April.

2,261 IN BRITISH ARMY AND NAVY SEEK DIVORCES

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, May 1.—Five divorce court judges, opening their new term Tuesday, will give priority to cases involving service men and women, which number more than half the petitions.

More persons in the services are taking advantage of cheaper divorce facilities. During the six week term the judges will hear 2,261 matrimonial cases, 696 more than in the corresponding term last year. Uncontested divorce actions are 428 higher than in 1942. Contested ones increased 268.

Marriages in Britain have declined since 1941 after having risen steadily from 1932 to 1940. The sharpest increase was from 361,768 in 1938 to 439,694 in 1939, the year the war began.

HOW WE BOMBED TOKIO: FLYERS' TREK TO SAFETY

Chinese Carry Raiders to Medical Care.

BY LT. CHARLES L. M'CLURE.

[Copyright: 1943: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Sacramento, Cal., May 1.—The first stage of our trip across China ended at a large house occupied by Chinese guerrillas. They were a capable looking lot. Most of them were young and all kept their weapons handy.

They must have felt there was danger of meeting Japs somewhere along the way. When we started again it was at a trot, which made it still tougher on us: the injured crew of the B-25 bomber that had crashed the evening before after bombing Tokio. We were accompanied by a detail of young soldiers wearing shorts.

I must be vague as to actual distances and topographical features in order to protect those fine people who did so much for us. Specific names or even descriptions might bring Jap retaliation on them.

We soon came to a small town

Flyer in China

where we were put, litters and all, onto a boat resting on a tiny watercourse. The boat was about 12x5 feet and was propelled by a single man with a pole.

He must have enjoyed his prominence. As we went along people would gather on the banks or the infrequent bridges and kid him [so it seemed]. He would shout back and point to us, probably identifying us.

In the afternoon, the boat halted and we in the litters were carried again by coolies. At this point the bearers and the escort were doubly alert. The coolies marched a part of the time on top of a dike, then dodged below it to walk in rice paddies. Scouts were seen along the high places, concealing themselves from observation by a possible foe in the other direction.

Our next stop was at a small bamboo hut, where for the first time we were offered food. I couldn't eat any; Chinese food and cooking are different and I didn't seem able to swallow it. When we started again it was at a trot.

Journey on a Junk.

Nearby was more water and we were put on one of several junks. There was some talk here, which we could only partly understand, about Jap patrols and we were concealed under something like an awning on the deck.

On this craft we journeyed slowly under sail until about midnight.

We came to a town and halted. The crew cooked something on a tiny stove and offered it to us, but again I couldn't eat. We sent the corporal [Thatcher] out with a $5 bill to find something palatable, but he came back empty handed. He said our kind of money was no good locally, a surprise to us. Then he tried again and came back with some rice and egg; even that I couldn't bring myself to swallow.

The next day we proceeded to a camp first aid station that was well concealed. There was still no good interpreter and I tried to explain by sign language and the breaking of a straw the condition of my shoulders. I don't know if the Chinese understood or not; they were always so polite they would invariably agree with you any way.

Carried in Litters.

At this point, we were transferred to litters of a primitive type and the jolting kept me in misery. I couldn't persuade the coolies to halt. I finally had to drag my feet on the ground to get them to stop. They looked at me as if I were crazy, but let me down for a short rest.

Our next stop was at an aid station, where we were given some real service. We had baths, which built up our morale a little altho we, particularly Lt. Lawson [now captain] and I, were suffering terribly. The hot water helped a wound on my right ankle that had been attacked by some sort of man-eating bug and had become infected.

Treated by Chinese Doctor.

I was almost embarrassed when the nurses at the place walked in while I was having the bath. We were given some heavy blankets, which we needed. But I didn't get much rest. I still had to sit most of the time with my hands on my knees and I seemed to be forever developing new pains.

Here a Chinese doctor [name deleted] met us and helped with the dressing of our wounds. He accompanied us thru the next stage by litter, which was a long one over rugged terrain. The litters were better, but at one point they had to be taken up a steep place almost like steps. Four or five men were assigned to a litter here, but I was in deathly fear they would drop me.

It was almost an obsession. I felt that a drop might make an open break in a shoulder, and that germs would get in and cause infection. China, with its agricultural methods, is a favorable breeding ground for microbes. No American dare eat raw vegetables there or drink unboiled water.

At the top of a ridge we halted for tea and were offered—of all things!—cookies. This homelike touch was another morale builder as well as a hunger killer. I enjoyed them.

The atmosphere of caution against Jap observation was relaxed a little as we went along, but was never entirely absent. It was astonishing to me how good the Chinese grapevine communication system was. They seemed to know the next Jap move. It was great luck that directed us into their keeping.

At one place on our trip, there was a military touch that showed the close coöperation of our two nations. In the street before the courtyard entrance of the building in which we stopped, a detail of soldiers was drawn up.

As we were carried out, one by one, the detail was called sharply to attention, then to present arms. For each of us the ceremony was repeated, the soldiers being put at ease between times.

Prominent everywhere were the kids, many of them in Boy Scout attire. They watched us silently and almost motionlessly.

Run Into Real Blackout.

But to go on with the march. In the afternoon it was downhill, and so on into the night. It was nearly midnight when we reached a large village that was completely blacked out. Chinese blackouts are the real thing, and we had to be led thru it by candle lantern.

At the town's other end was a modern building with modern furnishings, the former home of a doctor. It was a hospital now—a real hospital and real medical care at last! It had iron beds with real springs. Best of all it was sanitary.

What a pleasure it was to dare to drink cold water. The Chinese doctor had gone ahead and fixed things up for us. This was to be our home for quite a while.

Amery Says Empire's Unity Benefits World

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 1.—India Secretary L. S. Amery, who recently has been the target of bitter criticism for his share in the administration of India, in an address at Birmingham today asserted: "Surely if the British empire has by its unity and spirit been able to achieve such magnificent results so pregnant for the future of the world, it is in the interests of the whole world that the unity of the empire should be maintained."

CUTTER SINKS SUB IN BATTLE; CAPTURES CREW

Skipper Tells Thrills in 30 Minute Fight.

Washington, D. C., May 1 [Special].—Sinking of a German submarine after a furious 30 minute battle off the Carolina coast and the capture of 33 members of its crew, including its commanding officer and one other officer, was credited to the 165 foot coast guard cutter Icarus in a navy announcement today.

Lt. Comm. Jester.

Date of the engagement was announced as "several months ago," and the commanding officer of the cutter was revealed as Lt. [now Lt. Comm.] Maurice D. Jester, 55 year old veteran of 28 years of life saving with the coast guard service. Jester was awarded the navy cross for the action, becoming the first coast guard officer to receive this decoration in the present war.

Jester Tells Story.

Now assistant coast guard operations officer in the 7th naval district with headquarters at Miami, Jester told the story of the successful battle today. He said the Icarus was on a customary patrol when the enemy submersible was detected by instruments.

"We maneuvered into position for the attack," the commander said. "We located the target, dropped a pattern of depth charges, and placed ourselves in position for a second attack, which was made. A torpedo was fired by the submarine at a range of 500 yards, but it missed.

"It was apparent the submarine had been damaged. It attempted to come to the surface, as was plainly discernible from air bubbles. Knowing we had made a kill, we maneuvered to finish her off.

U-Boat Driven to Surface.

"We dropped two single charges. The sub broke the surface swiftly, depth charged to the top. There was a swirl in the water and her bow came up at a 45 degree angle. At this point gunfire began. The submarine's crew attempted to man their guns. The Icarus, steaming toward the submarine at full speed, put all guns into action.

"Our aim was so accurate that the enemy abandoned the attempt to man their guns and jumped into the sea. The sub then sank slowly and disappeared. We rescued all enemy seamen who came to the surface.

All wore rescue lungs and inflated life jackets. Two were wounded, apparently by gunfire. One died before we reached shore."

Jester's citation said he was awarded the navy cross for "distinguished service." He was commended for "persistence, alertness, determination, and judgment before, during, and after the attack."

The prisoners were taken to Charleston and are presumably now held in a prison camp. The navy made public photographs of the captured U-boat men, showing many of them heavily bearded. This is the first time the navy has announced the capture of prisoners from a German submarine.

PM'S INGERSOLL, DRAFT FIGHTER, A CAPTAIN NOW

Boosted from Private in 9 Months.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 1.—Ralph Ingersoll, a former radical editor whose efforts to avoid being drafted attracted nation-wide attention last summer, has been promoted to the rank of captain altho he went into the army as a private only nine months ago, it was learned at the war department.

Ingersoll, who was editor of PM, New York publication of the radical Marshall Field press, was classified 1-A last June altho he had listed two dependents with his draft board—a former wife and an invalid former servant.

"Indispensable," Says Field.

Field stepped into the picture after Ingersoll had been ordered to report for induction by asking his deferment on the ground he was an indispensable man.

The draft board ignored the plea and Ingersoll assailed the members of the board in an open letter in his publication. He said the board wanted to draft him because it didn't like PM.

Unfavorable reaction which the letter received thruout the country and in congress forced Ingersoll to drop his fight with the draft board and to offer himself as a volunteer. He passed his mental and physical examinations and was inducted into the army last August.

Wins Quick Promotion.

Last Sept. 20 the war department announced he had been promoted from staff sergeant to first lieutenant. And, within the last two weeks, he was promoted from first lieutenant to captain. He is in the army engineers and is stationed at Camp Edwards, Massachusetts.

Ingersoll is a graduate mining engineer and began work as a miner in copper mines before he switched to newspaper reporting.

The war department said his rapid promotion was in line with the established policy of giving older men ranks compatible with their age, wherever possible. Ingersoll is 42 years old.

BRITAIN ENLISTS SECRET WEAPON IN WAR ON SUBS

Planes Also Increase Toll of German Raiders.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 1.—Following recent assurances by Minister of Aircraft Production Stafford Cripps and other government spokesmen that the offensive against U-boats will be intensified, it was reported today that a new secret anti-submarine weapon is being used by the British navy and that planes are taking an increasing toll of enemy undersea craft.

No details of the new weapon were disclosed, but successes against U-boats were said to be increasing, both in the Mediterranean and in the Atlantic.

Mediterranean "Killings."

Available statistics do not indicate any great improvement in the anti-U-boat campaign, but Prime Minister Churchill repeatedly has emphasized that the real figures are kept secret to withhold information from the enemy.

It is known, however, that 11 U-boats were destroyed by shore based planes in the Mediterranean during the 14 weeks ending April 15. Additional sinkings by naval ships and carrier borne aircraft have not been disclosed, except that 13 U-boats probably were destroyed in the first three weeks of their counter-attacks on allied shipping to North Africa.

Few Ships Being Lost.

Since November, it has been stated, only 2½ per cent of the 10,500,000 tons of allied shipping supplying the armies in Tunisia have been lost in the Mediterranean.

According to some naval observers here, this low rate is not entirely explained by the fact that the clear waters of the Mediterranean provide the most favorable conditions for submarine detectors. It is said that it must be due to new methods of combating the submarine menace.

It Takes Letter One Year to Catch Up with a Marine

On Dec. 6, 1941, Wilford C. Holland of Little Rock, Ark., wrote a letter to his brother, a marine stationed in California. But world shaking events happened next day; that's when Japan attacked Pearl Harbor. Yesterday Wilford, now a marine sergeant stationed at the Great Lakes Naval Training station, opened a letter from his brother saying he received his Dec. 6, 1941, letter on Dec. 6, 1942—exactly a year later while he was on Gaudalcanal. The letter had been following him from one side of the ocean to the other and his reply, apparently, had bounced around a while, too, Sergt. Holland said.

NAVY DISMISSES 2 MINORS—BUT SAYS COME BACK

Two Negro juveniles, who wanted to do their duty for Uncle Sam, were discharged from the navy yesterday and started on their way home with a reminder from Lt. Comm. D. W. Armstrong to come back when they're older.

They are Hudson Anderson, 13 years old, of 3A Harlem square, Greenville, S. C., and Lionel H. Brown, 14, of 247 Evergreen drive, Baton Rouge, La. They arrived at Great Lakes a week ago.

Navy officers said both enlisted by posing as 17 and presenting forged consent affidavits. Young Brown forged his mother's name; Anderson paid $5 to a schoolmate to forge his mother's name and another $5 to a notary public to authenticate it.

U.S. SEIZES COAL MINES; ORDERS WORK RESUMED

Roosevelt Threatens to Call Out Troops.

ment is the bureau of mines and the bituminous coal division, to take possession of and operate the coal mines, for the United States government.

"I now call upon all miners who may have abandoned their work to return immediately to the mines and work for their government. Their country needs their services as much as those of the members of the armed forces. I am confident that they do not wish to retard the war effort; that they are as patriotic as any other Americans; and that they will promptly answer this call to perform this essential war service."

Whenever the miners submit their case to the war labor board, it will be determined promptly, fairly, and in accordance with the procedure and law applicable to all labor disputes, he said. If any adjustment of wages is made, it will be retroactive.

"The production of coal must and shall continue," he declared.

All Mine Owners Advised.

Mr. Roosevelt's executive order directed Ickes to take immediate possession of all mines where work stoppages have occurred or are threatened. Ickes forthwith sent his order to every bituminous company mining 50 or more tons a day—a category which, his office said, normally produces about 95 per cent of the nation's coal.

Ickes' office announced telegrams were also going out instructing anthracite operators to take over their mines in the name of the federal government. About 450 hard coal companies in Pennsylvania employ 80,000 persons, many of whom had joined in the bituminous walkout.

Lewis, who has refused to let the war labor board take over consideration of his union's demands for $2 a day wage increases, portal-to-portal pay, a minimum $8 wage for all employés, and unionization of minor bosses, was attending a New York conference seeking a new contract for the anthracite coal industry, at the time of the President's announcement.

Lewis "Won't Say Anything."

The union chieftain was shown a press dispatch telling of the President's order. He crumpled up the dispatch and declared:

"I won't say anything."

At Fort Smith, Ark., spokesmen for the UMW and the mine operators said tonight the 8,000 miners in the Arkansas-Oklahoma area had been ordered to return to work Monday morning.

But at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Leonard Statkewicz, president of the Loomis colliery local of the UMW said the miners "will not go back to work until their wage demands are met," regardless of President Roosevelt's order.

There was no indication from Ickes' offices that he would make a request for troops immediately. There was belief in some quarters that President Roosevelt's radio appeal Sunday night would be heavily depended upon to get workers back to the mines Monday.

An official of the solid fuel administration for war said "little difficulty" was expected over the week-end as a result of the President's order, but added he did not care to express an opinion as to what might happen Monday. The spokesman presumed there was little effort to operate the mines this afternoon, and so far as he knew no mines operate on Sunday.

The President ordered Ickes to recognize the right of the workers to continue their membership in any labor organization and to bargain collectively, provided that such concerted activities do not interfere with the operation of the mines.

Ickes said he will "operate the coal mines on behalf of the United States for the purpose of getting the coal with which to fight the war.

"I have been given no other duty," he stated. "From this office to the lowest level of the deepest mine, all of us in the coal mining business are now working for Uncle Sam.

He said the executive order authorizes him to take whatever measures may be necessary to assure that every mine employé shall have an opportunity to do his duty by producing the coal that the United States must have.

"I shall expect every one connected with the mining of coal to do his full share at his regular job. I make no other request," he said.

Meanwhile in New York the anthracite industry offered the government its complete coöperation in the effort to reopen mines.

Every one of the anthracite mines was shut down. Joint negotiations continued here, altho the wage dispute has been certified to the war labor board, but progress in reaching a settlement, if any, was unknown.

A resolution offered by the operators at the joint session proposing continuation of hard coal mining failed to carry when the UMW representatives refused to vote on it.

Last Shift Leaves Coal Mine

DRAFT MINERS INTO ARMY, COAL OFFICIAL URGES

Philadephia, Pa., May 1.—Drafting of all striking miners into the army was suggested as a solution to the coal strike today by George N. Reeves, representative of the Payne Coal company here.

"Who is going to work the mines?" he asked. "The soldiers can't work them because it's a technical job for which they are not trained, and the miners are apparently refusing to work them no matter what happens.

"One possible solution might be the drafting of miners into the army in a body. There is a precedent for this in France when the government, during a strike, called the strikers to the colors and then put them to doing the same jobs they did prior to the strike."

Light to local heavy frosts fell in the suburban areas yesterday as the mercury registered the coldest May 1 in the history of the Chicago weather bureau. Because of tardy growths it was doubted any extensive damage resulted.

The mercury dipped to an official low of 29.8 degrees at 6 a. m. The previous low for May 1 was 31.6, recorded in 1909. The record low for any May day is 27 degrees on May 2, 1875.

After the morning low yesterday the temperature rose gradually to the low 50s. Temperatures will be warmer today, however, promised Forecaster George L. Canaday; but there'll be fresh to moderately strong winds, he added.

FORD FIRES 141 RINGLEADERS IN WILDCAT STRIKE

Work Is Resumed on Union's Order.

Detroit, Mich., May 1 [Special].—The Ford Motor company, after a conference with union officials, today fired 141 foundry employés whom it termed "ringleaders" in the unauthorized strike which had disrupted production at the firm's Rogue plant foundries since Thursday.

Production was resumed earlier in the afternoon as officers of Local 600, UAW [CIO], ordered the foundry workers to end their work stoppage.

Pledges Investigation.

The union announced it would investigate the cases of each of the dismissed men, the majority of whom were Negroes, and would "take up thru grievance procedure only those cases where we find the discipline unjustified."

In announcing the dismissals, the company said that 127 of those fired were of draft age and that 37 were between the ages of 18 and 30. An even 100 of them had been employed by the company for less than six months.

According to the union's statement, the Ford Motor company agreed to investigate union charges against supervisory and plant protection employés and to discipline any such employés shown to have been responsible in the work stoppage.

The company contended that the strike was incited largely by draft age workers who "got their jobs when man power orders forced them to get into war plants."

On the other hand, local 600 blamed the incidents on the "poor and short sighted personnel policy of the management," but said that basic causes were that most of the employés were new and that they had been separated as to race.

It was asserted by the company that the steel foundry has been the scene of several fights recently, most of which were started by young Negro employés.

SENATORS BACK PRESIDENT ON MINES SEIZURE

Nye 'Hopes' Hostilities Can Be Avoided.

Washington, D. C., May 1 (AP).—Congressional comment on President Roosevelt's coal order left little doubt tonight that he has Capitol hill support for taking over the mines.

Sen. Edwin C. Johnson [D., Colo.] said he thought the President had no other choice, but "I don't consider this a full solution."

Sen. Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.]: "I hope we can avoid any kind of hostilities that might be invited by the arbitrary action."

"Only Course Open."

Sen. Tom Connally [D., Tex.]: "If he [the President] deems the use of troops necessary the people will support and applaud him."

Sen. Ralph O. Brewster [R., Me.]: "It is an extreme measure."

Sen. William Langer [R., N. D.]: "No group of laborers has done more to win the war than the mine workers. In my opinion, the President, instead of castigating Lewis, should have placed the blame where it belongs—on the United States Steel corporation."

Strike Is Not Solution.

Sen. Dennis Chavez [D., N. M.]: "There is no question in my mind but that they [the miners] do have a justifiable complaint. However, in war time injustices and inequalities should not be and must not be settled by strikes."

Sen. Chapman Revercomb [R., W. Va.]: "The individual coal miner is not chargeable with the situation. The unions exercise such domination over the miner's bread and his life that he accepts the union's orders without question."

Sen. Joseph F. Guffey [D., Pa.]: "I urge the miners to do their part by returning to the mines and producing the coal which is so vital to our success in winning the war."

Rep. John J. Sparkman [D., Ala.]: "The strike is absolutely uncalled for and in time of war is pretty close to treasonable action."

"Tojo, Hitler, and Lewis."

Rep. L. Mendell Rivers [D., S. C.]: "I think it's a shame we have to fight Tojo, Hitler, and Lewis at the same time."

Rep. George H. Mahon [D., Tex.]: "Lewis' action is treasonable."

Rep. Harold Knutson [R., Minn.]: "In time of great national emergency no man should have the right to strike."

Rep. Charles S. Dewey [R., Ill.]: "In a time of grave emergency the interests of the country must be considered over the interest of any individual group."

Rep. A. S. Mike Monroney [D., Okla.]: "Lewis' defiance of his government has the effect of giving the axis its first major victory of the year."

DECORATED SUB HERO SPEAKS HERE TODAY AT SHIP'S LAUNCHING

Chicago's newest contribution to the war will make its bow today with the launching of a new patrol craft escort vessel by the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company in Lake Calumet, designed especially for anti-submarine warfare.

Comm. E. E. Palo.

Comm. Eugene E. Paro, decorated sub hero from Paducah, Ky., will make the principal address. Capt. Wallace E. Dowd, supervisor of shipbuilding in this area, also will talk. Other navy officers, company officials, and workers will attend.

American Troops Enjoy Oxford's May Day Sing

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 1.—A large number of American doughboys were attracted early this morning by the traditional May day singing from Magdalen college tower at Oxford. They also watched the folk dancing to a violin accompaniment in the streets of the city.

'44 VOTE FIGHT BELIEVED ISSUE BEHIND SCENES

Washington, D. C., May 1.—Behind the scenes of the coal strike, observers tonight saw a mighty struggle between President Roosevelt and John L. Lewis for the control of labor which will play a vital rôle in the 1944 election.

Involved in this battle is a bitter personal feud between the two men. An early Roosevelt supporter, Lewis parted company when he decided he had not received enough in return for the $500,000 he advanced for the President's 1936 campaign. Lewis was quoted in congress as saying that some day he would make Mr. Roosevelt "crawl to him on his belly." The President has been reported as saying he would crush Lewis.

If Lewis should win the strike he would emerge as the most powerful figure in labor and an important factor in 1944. If he is crushed it is not believed he could wield any influence in blocking a fourth term.

Rabbits Scarce; Wolves Again at Farmers' Doors

Ardmore, Okla., May 1 (AP).—Farmers blame a meat shortage for their inability to keep the wolves from their doors. The shortage is among the wolves. There's a scarcity of rabbits, normally the wolves' chief fare. So the hungry animals are sneaking into barn yards to attack calves, lambs, and poultry.

TEXT OF APPEAL BY ROOSEVELT TO END STRIKE

'National Interest Is in Grave Peril,' He Warns.

Washington, D. C., May 1 (AP).—Text of President Roosevelt's statement and the executive order on the operation of the coal mines follow:

"On Thursday, April 29, I sent a telegram to John L. Lewis, and Thomas Kennedy, president and secretary-treasurer of the United Mine workers, pointing out that the coal strikes were a direct interference with the prosecution of the war and challenged the governmental machinery set up for the orderly and peaceful settlement of labor disputes, and the power of the government to carry on the war.

"I said that the continuance and spread of the strikes would have the same effect on the course of the war as a crippling defeat in the war. I appealed to the miners to resume work immediately, and to submit their case to the national war labor board for final determination.

Production Ceases.

"I stated that if work were not resumed by 10 o'clock Saturday morning, I should use all the power vested in me as President and commander in chief to protect the national interest and to prevent further interference with the successful prosecution of the war.

"Except in a few mines the production of coal has virtually ceased. The national interest is in grave peril.

"I have today by appropriate executive order directed the secretary of the interior, who is the fuel administrator and in whose department is the bureau of mines and the bituminous coal division, to take possession of and operate coal mines for the United States government.

"I now call upon all miners who may have abandoned their work to return immediately to the mines and work for their government. Their country needs their services as much as those of the members of the armed forces. I am confident that they do not wish to retard the war effort; that they are as patriotic as any other Americans; and that they will promptly answer this call to perform this essential war service.

Living Costs Probed.

"I repeat that an investigation of the cost of living is now being made in the mining areas, and that the government will insist that the prices be held in accordance with the direction of my recent executive order, and violations of the law promptly prosecuted.

"Whenever the miners submit their case to the war labor board, it will be determined promptly, fairly, and in accordance with the procedure and law applicable to all labor disputes. If any adjustment of wages is made, it will be made retroactive.

"The production of coal must and shall continue.

"I propose to talk over the radio to the miners of the nation on Sunday at 10 p. m." [9 p. m. Chicago time].

Executive Order Issued.

The executive order follows:

"Whereas widespread stoppages have occurred in the coal industry and strikes are threatened which will obstruct the effective prosecution of the war by curtailing vitally needed production in the coal mines directly affecting the countless war industries and transportation systems dependent upon such mines; and

"Whereas the officers of the United Mine Workers of America have refused to submit to the machinery established for the peaceful settlement of labor disputes in violation of the agreement on the part of labor and industry that there shall be no strikes or lockouts for the duration of the war; and

"Whereas it has become necessary for the effective prosecution of the war that the coal mines in which stoppages or strikes have occurred or are threatened be taken over by the government of the United States in order to protect the interests of the nation at war and the rights of workers to continue at work:

Seizure Authorized.

"Now, therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in me by the Constitution and laws of the United States, as President of the United States and commander in chief of the army and navy, it is hereby ordered as follows:

"The secretary of the interior is authorized and directed to take immediate possession, so far as may be necessary or desirable, of any and all mines producing coal in which a strike or stoppage has occurred or is threatened, together with any and all real and personal property, franchises, rights, facilities, funds and other assets used in connection with the operation of such mines, and to operate or arrange for the operation of such mines in such manner as he deems necessary for the successful prosecution of the war, and to do all things necessary for or incidental to the production, sale and distribution of coal.

"In carrying out this order, the secretary of the interior shall act thru or with the aid of such public or private instrumentalities or persons as he may designate. He shall permit the management to continue its managerial function to the maximum degree possible consistent with the aims of this order;

Protection Provided.

"The secretary of interior shall make employment available and provide protection to all employés resuming work at such mines and to all persons seeking employment so far as they may be needed; and upon the request of the secretary of the interior, the secretary of war shall take such action, if any, as he may deem necessary or desirable to provide protection to all such persons and mines.

"The secretary of the interior is authorized and directed to maintain customary working conditions in the mines and customary procedure for the adjustment of workers' grievances. He shall recognize the right of workers to continue their membership in any labor organization, to bargain collectively thru representatives of their own choosing, and to engage in concerted activities for the purpose of collective bargaining or other mutual aid or protection, provided that such concerted activities do not interfere with the operations of the mines.

"Possession and operation of any mine or mines hereunder shall be terminated by the secretary of the interior as soon as he determines that possession and operation hereunder are no longer required for the furtherance of the war program."

TEXT OF ICKES' ORDER TO 3,400 MINE OWNERS

Operators Instructed to Continue Work.

Washington, D. C., May 1 (AP).—Text of Fuel Administrator Harold L. Ickes' message to each of the 3,400 bituminous coal mining companies, taking over their mines in the name of the United States, follows:

"To assure production of coal necessary to win the war, the President of the United States as commander in chief of the army and navy has directed me to take over all bituminous coal mines.

"You are being called upon as a loyal and patriotic American to serve as operating manager for the United States of the mines of your company and to continue operations at the mines for the United States. Formal instructions and appointment will issue upon your acknowledgment of this call to service by return wire in substantially following form:

["I solemnly undertake to serve the United States and devote myself to the task of producing coal so that the work of winning the war may not falter. I am flying the flag of the United States on the mining premises to show that property is being operated exclusively for the United States and that all employés, including myself, who serve the mine are serving their country. The mine I am operating for the United States is known as the [insert name of your mine or mines and sign giving your address."]

Must Perform Usual Duties.

"All officials and employés are directed forthwith to perform their usual functions and duties in connection with mine operation, sale and distribution of products. Pending receipt of formal instructions and appointment, you are authorized and directed to continue operations at the mines for the United States; fly the flag of the United States on the mining premises; do all things necessaray to assure operation of mines on Monday.

"In operation of mines use existing managerial set up so far as practicable and take all steps within your power to encourage miners to return to work under present wages and working conditions with understanding that any eventual wage adjustment will be retroactive.

Can Request Troops.

"If any act transpires requiring maintenance of order by use of military forces, communicate with regional bituminous coal manager who is manager of field office of the bituminous coal division for area in which mine is located for transmission of request to proper officials. The above named regional manager is available for further instructions if required.

"In respect to all ordinary production and distribution problems, proceed, so far as practicable, in accordance with previously prevailing policies. Set books up so as to keep separate the period of government operation. Continue personnel organization as nearly as practicable in accord with normal organization. Advise all supervisory employés of the program. Be governed by all applicable state and federal laws consistent with the order pursuant to which you are acting. In respect to any mines which you are reasonably certain will continue in normal, regular operation, you may submit a recommendation that operation of such mine on behalf of the government be terminated.

"If you are not acting as chief executive officer of the company, this telegram is to be considered as directed to the officer who is so acting."

KEENAN CONFERS WITH BOTH SIDES IN DODGE STRIKE

Joseph Keenan, secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor and associate director of the war man power commission arrived in Chicago yesterday and met with several union officials in an attempt to settle the jurisdictional dispute between steamfitters and plumbers which has halted the installation of machinery at the huge Dodge Chicago plant.

The strike began last Thursday when both unions disputed the right to install piping.

Meeting with Keenan were Thomas E. Cunningham, general organizer in Illinois for the International Association of Plumbers and Steamfitters [AFL], William Quirk, business agent of the plumbers' local 130, and Charles M. Rau and George McKinley, officials representing the steamfitters.

COAL DELIVERY IS LIMITED TO CURRENT NEEDS

Dealers Act to Conserve Fuel Supply.

To conserve Chicago's coal supply during the strike, only sufficient coal to meet current needs will be delivered to consumers by members of the Chicago Coal Merchants association, Fred J. Holdsworth, president, announced yesterday. Member companies will not make deliveries for storage for future purposes. The association has about 200 members and there are about 200 dealers with railroad yard connections.

Fred J. Holdsworth.

Holdsworth said he feels that the Chicago dealers will be able to fill all the demands of householders and of many of the smaller manufacturing enterprises for some time.

WPB Order Reduces Supply.

The recent order freezing railroad delivery of carload lots of coal will make about seven days' cut in the city's supply, Holdsworth said, because dealers generally order their coal from the mines seven days ahead of delivery. Consequently a large amount of coal in transit has been frozen.

[To protect the supply of coal for war plants, Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the war production board, ordered Friday that railroads might deliver coal only to purchasers certifying that they possessed less than a 10 day supply and that the new shipment would not increase their store to more than 10 days' requirements.]

During 1942 the railroads brought 29,666,209 tons of coal into the Chicago area and 5,000,000 tons were brought in by lake steamer, a total of 34,666,209 tons.

Steel Plants' Supplies Small.

Meantime, Chicago's great steel industry is expected to be crippled soon by a coal shortage unless the mines start producing again in the early future. Many of the big steel plants will be forced to curtail operations by as much as 25 per cent within a week if the strike continues and the rate of decline in operations will accelerate after the first week.

The steel companies use vast amounts of coal for coking purposes and for this use they prefer comparatively recently mined coal. Coal that has been long stored shows some loss of efficiency when converted into coke, it was explained.

A reduction in steel production will be reflected almost immediately in the city's many war plants, as steel is their basic raw material.

Some Lack Storage Space.

Coal men said that many plants which do not have large coal storage facilities also will be seriously crippled by the strike unless they get immediate relief.

If the strike lasts more than a week, it probably will begin to take effect on the railroads. Chicago railway office spokesmen said they had coal piles to last variously from 10 to 45 days.

Public utilities in Chicago will not be affected unless the mines are closed for a prolonged period, their officials said.

SABOTEURS RAID DANISH FACTORY, GERMANS CLAIM

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Two "terrific explosions" caused havoc in a Danish factory near Copenhagen yesterday after six saboteurs—armed with revolvers overpowered guards, planted time bombs and also set fire to the premises, the Nazi-controled Kalundborg radio said in a Danish domestic broadcast reported to the office of war information. The type of work done at this factory was not specified.

Another explosion destroyed the transformer house of a cement factory, the broadcast said.

ASKS NEW PLAN FOR REGULATION OF U. S. ECONOMY

Definite Power Urged by Sen. O'Mahoney.

Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney [Dem., Wyo.] yesterday addressed a luncheon meeting of the Chicago Bar association on the need for congressional legislation for the control of corporations, trade associations, and labor organizations operating across state boundaries.

He said that definite legislation by congress on this subject would do away with the evils of the present method of regulating interstate commerce by the appointment of boards and commissions with discretionary powers of their own.

Unforeseen Government Power.

One of these evils, he said, is that the federal government has become powerful in a way and to a degree which the framers of the constitution never intended.

He contended that it is the will of the people that interstate commerce should be regulated in the public interest and he ascribed many of the present ills of the world to the abuse by corporations and cartels of their economic power. He said that economic control largely had passed from the local to the national and international scene, from individuals to giant corporations, and that movements such as Mussolini's in Italy and Hitler's in Germany were the result of the suffering among the people which this trend had brought about.

Scheme Provided in Bill.

Sen. O'Mahoney's talk was in part an explanation of the reasons behind the bill which he introduced in the senate last Jan. 7 and which is now in the judiciary committee. It would provide for the issuance by the federal government to corporations, trade associations, and labor organizations of certificates of compliance with certain national standards of corporative procedure.

The luncheon meeting was held in the bar association's quarters at 29 South La Salle street.

200 MINES SHUT IN ILLINOIS; 135 MAY STAY OPEN

Progressive Union Acts to Ignore Lewis.

Springfield, Ill., May 1 (AP).—President Roosevelt's order directing seizure of all struck or idle coal mines placed the American flag over approximately 200 digging in Illinois tonight.

Until last night or early today these mines were operated by 25,000 members of the United Mine Workers of America. Only maintenance crews stayed on the job today as John L. Lewis refused to order his followers back to work.

The Presidential order, which will be enforced by the army if necessary, was greeted with silence by mine operators and union leaders in Illinois.

Progressives to Work.

D. W. Buchanan, acting chairman of the board of the Illinois Coal Operators association, said he had nothing to say officially, altho he remarked that he did not see how the government could get operations resumed Monday unless the men decided to return to work.

There are 135 Illinois mines worked by members of the Progressive Miners of America, and indications were that most of them would be producing coal Monday under a state PMWA policy to heed the Presidential plea and stay on the job. The PMWA, affiliated with the AFL, has about 18,000 members in the state.

Ninety Progressive miners were expected to return to the Thermal company shaft east of Galesburg Monday after a layoff today, which they said was caused by a lack of instructions from the policy group.

Vote to Resume Jobs.

Members of another Progressive local at a Dering Coal company mine in Saline county voted at Eldorado to return to work. About 1,400 PMWA men did not work in Saline county today, preferring to wait until they knew more about the union's policy. Seven locals planned a meeting at Harrisburg tonight to pass on the question of resuming digging Monday.

As miners read their newspapers and discussed the situation among themselves, 50 investigators from the regional office of price administration moved into their communities to study union charges that the cost of living had broken thru price ceilings.

Forest Afire

Leonardtown, Md., May 1 (AP).—More than 5,000 sailors, coast guardsmen, soldiers, and farmers battled a forest fire today in southern Maryland which fire fighters reported apparently out of control.

Construction workers at the Cedar Point naval base were reported moving trailer camp homes as a precautionary measure. State Trooper Murray Jackson estimated that the four day old blaze which began in the St. Andrews section of St. Mary's county had swept over more than 5,000 acres of timberland.

Pilsudski's Daughter Now Ferrying Fighter Planes

LONDON, May 1 (AP).—Jadwiga Pilsudski, youngest daughter of Poland's late Marshal Josef Pilsudski, is ferrying fighter planes for the air transport auxiliary, it was disclosed today. She is 23 years old. Fleeing from Poland just ahead of the German invasion, she came to England late in 1939 with her mother and elder sister, Wanda.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The Nippon Times, Japanese foroffice organ, declared editorially yesterday that the United States coal strike was "a direct challenge to governmental power in war time and something that is inconceivable in Japan, where everyone is putting his shoulder to the wheel."

Excerpts of the editorial were broadcast by the Tokio radio and recorded by the Associated Press.

"Roosevelt was vacillating in his negotiations with the labor leader," the Nippon Times added, attributing his action to fourth term aspirations.

"The seriousness of the situation is at once clear from the prediction already made by American steel companies that if a general strike of coal miners were called, they would have to seriously curtail steel production within two weeks," the editorial added.

"A strige of such proportions, nevertheless, is incontestible proof that there is no unity in the United States regarding the prosecution of the war. That, however, is not strange when the masses in the United States still are in the wilderness regarding the real war aims of the government."

ONE GENERATION TELLS THE NEXT

POLES TO MARK 152D BIRTHDAY OF CONSTITUTION

Gov. Green, Mayor Kelly to Speak Today.

Chicago's Polish-Americans today will celebrate—one day early—the 152d anniversary of the adoption by their ancestral country of the constitution which made Poland, in 1791, an island of republicanism amid the monarchies of eastern Europe.

The principal feature of the observance will be a giant rally starting at 2:30 near the monument to Thaddeus Kosciuszko, Polish hero of the American Revolutionary war, in Humboldt park. The speakers will include Gov. Green and Mayor Kelly.

Parade to Precede Rally.

The rally will be preceded by a parade which will start from Division and Noble streets at one o'clock.

The program at Humboldt park will begin with an invocation by Polish Roman Catholic priests of the Chicago archdiocese. Following Mayor Kelly's talk the assemblage will hear Dr. F. X. Swietlik, dean of the Marquette university law school, national president of the Polish-American council and chairman of the board of directors of the Polish National Alliance.

Gov. Green to Speak.

Gov. Green will appear next, then the following speakers in order: William D. Saltiel, special assistant to the attorney general of the United States; Alexander Moc, Polish consul in Chicago; Emily Rogalska of the WAAC; Z. Stefanowicz, president of the Polish-American news syndicate, and Maria L. Czyz, vice president of the Polish National alliance.

An estimated 100,000 persons attended the Polish Constitution Day rally last year. A crowd of similar size is expected today.

Less fortunate than the United States, whose constitution the Polish constitution in many ways resembles, Poland was not allowed to work out its destiny according to its own enlightened ideas. Wars and foreign domination delayed for 130 years the realization of the ideals embodied in the constitution of 1791.

CHICAGOAN WINS $85,000 ESTATE HE ONCE LOST

Kansas City, Mo., May 1 (AP).—Rawlins Phillips, a Chicago machinist, was named sole heir by a Probate court today to an $85,000 estate as the son of a real estate agent who at the time of his death in 1941 was believed to have been a bachelor. Probate Judge Mitchel J. Henderson set aside a previous order he made in October, 1942, in which he held the machinist was not the heir to the estate of Harry A. Phillips, who died here without leaving a will.

Rawlins Phillips made a claim on the estate on the ground he was the elder Phillips' son by a divorced wife. Henderson said since his earlier ruling new evidence, including a statement by a physician that he attended the birth of Rawlins, had been discovered. Among evidence Henderson said that had been found in the elder Phillips' belongings were divorce papers served in a suit brought by Mrs. Louise N. Phillips against Harry A. Phillips in the Cook county, Illinois, Superior court.

Rawlins Phillips filed claim to the estate shortly after a radio broadcast carried word of the estate left without immediate heirs.

Appeals Draft Sentence on War Hysteria Ground

Notice of appeal was filed yesterday in federal District court in the case of Frank R. Daily, 37 years old, of Sycamore, who was sentenced Thursday to five years' imprisonment for violation of the selective laws. The appeal, filed by Atty. Frank C. Jordan, charges that Judge William J. Campbell, the trial judge, was motivated by "prejudice and war hysteria." Daily, a member of Jehovah's Witnesses, was sentenced after rejecting a final offer from the court to free him if he would join the army. Daily claims exemption as a conscientious objector.

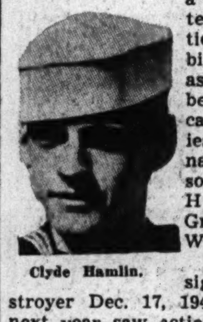
Clyde Hamlin, 19 years old, a seaman first class, returned home for a furlough yesterday after participating in four big naval battles as a crew member of what he called "the luckiest ship in the navy." He is the son of Mrs. Helen Hamlin, 802 Grand avenue, Waukegan.



Clyde Hamlin.

Hamlin was assigned to a destroyer Dec. 17, 1941, and in the next year saw action in the Coral sea, Midway, Santa Cruz, and Solomon Island battles. Bombs and torpedoes missed his ship, and its only scars are from machine gun bullets.

Not a man was wounded, the nearest escape being his own when three bullets from a Jap plane cut thru his blouse. Hamlin, a machine gunner, told how the Japs battle to death. As his ship approached a raft with two Japs on it, the two fired on him, and he was forced, he said, to machine gun them to death.

RUSH 10,000 'U. S. PROPERTY' SIGNS TO MINE FIELDS

Washington, D. C., May 1 (AP).—Described as one of the fastest color printing jobs in the history of the government printing office, 10,000 red, white, and blue posters to be displayed on mine properties seized by the government rolled off the presses today.

Topped by a replica of the American flag, the posters declare "United States Property!" and include the President's order granting Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes authority to take over the mines in the name of the government.

A spokesman for Ickes said the posters were printed "in a matter of hours" after the President's order was issued.

The posters declare that "no person shall interfere with the operation of the mine by the United States government, or the sale or distribution of the product thereof, in accordance with this order."

The posters bear Ickes' signature.

LEWIS PLAYING INTO AXIS HANDS, BRITISH ASSERT

John L. Spoiled by Riches, Says Press.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 1.—The Sunday Times in an editorial stigmatized the coal strike in America as "an unfavorable development which unfortunately has marked the turn of the tide for the united nations."

After saying the axis is now visibly losing the war, that many allied spokesmen have declared the tide has turned, that the Germans are being pushed out of Tunisia, and that April was a better month for the allies in the U-boat war, the newspaper scolded that the coal strike is "unpardonable" and that John L. Lewis and his associates are "playing right into the hands of Germany and Japan."

"Biggest Blow Struck."

The Sunday Pictorial under a banner headline, "U. S. Miners Strike Blow at Allies," said: "The biggest blow yet struck at allied arms production since the war began was dealt yesterday at American industry—not by the enemy, but by the son of a Briton—John L. Lewis, at whose instigation nearly 500,000 United States miners have gone on strike."

Calls Lewis "Spoiled."

John Walters, the Sunday Pictorial's New York correspondent, cabled:

"Having watched John L. Lewis for years I am not surprised that now thru sheer obstinacy he is threatening to smash America's war machine by calling a vast and unnecessary strike. The fact is that Lewis, who grew up in poverty, has become spoiled by adulation and luxurious living. His princely mode of life has given him illusions that he can dictate even to the President."

Walters was convinced that the best tonic for America's mine union "czar" would be a tour of British production centers to learn what total war really means, and suggested that British labor leaders invite Lewis to cross the Atlantic with his expenses guaranteed.

The child was bruised.

A LITTLE BOY STARTS A GREAT BIG CAMPAIGN

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

A little boy with scuffed shoes and a faraway look in his eyes walked into the want ad section of a newspaper office several weeks ago and slipped a grimy scrap of paper across the counter. At the same time he emptied his pockets and carefully picked out 32 cents from among a ball of twine, several marbles, and a rusty pocket knife.

"Is this enough money to put this ad in the paper?" he asked the girl gravely, his eyes peering over the top of the counter.

The girl glanced at the penciled scrawl, startled. It read: "Wanted: a home for me and my sis. I am 10. She is 2. My mom is dead and my dad is in the army."

Foster Homes Are Needed.

This little incident, which was referred immediately to one of the city's 10 large welfare agencies, tells the story of a grave situation that faces Chicago today. It is the need of foster homes to care for an increasing number of dependent children.

So acute has the problem become under war conditions that the Council of Social Agencies will conduct a united home finding campaign for 2,000 foster homes this month. Coincidental with the opening of national baby week today, the council announces the campaign with high hopes in the generosity and patriotism of the parents of Chicago. The drive will be formally launched at a luncheon for social workers and public spirited citizens Tuesday in the La Salle hotel.

Tremendous Decrease Shown.

Foster home offerings have decreased 80 per cent since the beginning of the war. Women who formerly cared for a child or two to help meet household expenses now are working for big wages in war plants. Others have rented out their spare rooms to war workers and many with sons and sons-in-law in the army or navy have given homes to their married daughters, or grandchildren, for the duration of the war. They have no room for the little strangers thrown on the community by parents who cannot or will not provide for them.

So it is on a patriotic basis that the Council of Social agencies is appealing to Chicagoans this month.

"We hope that many parents who cannot serve on the combat front will see a satisfying opportunity for service on the home front in opening their homes so that children may receive the love and security they need to get a good start in life," Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive director of the council, said yesterday.

Just Temporary Homes Wanted.

Reynolds asserted definitely that the 10 Protestant, Jewish, Catholic, and public welfare agencies were not offering these thousands of youngsters for adoption. There is no adoption problem. It is the child, having one or both parents with financial, domestic, or sociological problems, who needs temporary care. During the child's stay in the foster home, the agency endeavors to rehabilitate his own home so he may return to it eventually.

Any average American home can be a foster home. The qualifications are possessed by the normal married couple. Foster parents first must have an income adequate for themselves, so that the money paid for the child's board by the agency is spent solely on the child. Secondly, the parents must have a kindly feeling for children and some experience in caring for them. The home life must be harmonious. The surroundings must be healthful.

In return, the agency pays for the child's board, generally between $15 and $30 a month, clothing and medical and dental care.

Ten Agencies Join Hands.

The 10 agencies that have joined hands in this united effort to relieve a local, war time problem are the Catholic Home bureau, the Chicago Home for the Friendless, the Chicago Orphan asylum, the Children's Division of the Chicago Welfare administration, the Division of Child Welfare of the State of Illinois, the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society, the Jewish Children's bureau, the Temporary Care and Child Placing Division of the Juvenile court, the Lutheran Child Welfare association, and the Lutheran Home Finding Society of Illinois.

EX-ENVOY ASKS ACTION NOW ON PEACE PARLEY

Gibson Says Armistice Would Mean Chaos.

Washington, D. C., May 1 (AP).—A suggestion that a peace conference be called into being now to avoid a period of military armistice after the war was made tonight by Hugh S. Gibson, former American ambassador to Belgium and Brazil.

Hugh S. Gibson.

Owen J. Roberts.

His proposal for the elimination of any armistice period was echoed by Associate Justice Owen J. Roberts of the Supreme court, who declared the democracies should begin now to lay the framework of a post war "international government," possibly patterned after the national sovereignity of the United States.

They spoke at the 37th annual meeting of the American Society of International Law.

Raps Idea of Armistice.

"The experience of the last peace seems to dispose of the argument that the armistice provides a cooling off period," said Gibson. "Some proposals have been made for a longer armistice, perhaps of several years' duration. In view of the demoralizing effect of an armistice of seven or eight months, I tremble to think of what would happen if the world was left in uncertainty for two or three years."

Gibson said that the allies could do part of the peace work while they still "are held together by a common purpose and by interdependence."

He suggested that they begin now to draft plans for total disarmament of the enemy the instant the war ends; that they define boundaries "to discourage the land grabbing exploits of the last armistice period," and that they reach an agreement that famine, pestilence, and the resumption of production will be dealt with by the removal of the blockade and by the provision of credits.

Fears Revival of Discord.

Roberts said that when the war ceases "great populations will be left without government, without national solidarity," and declared:

"For the allied nations to endeavor, by negotiation amongst themselves, to provide a stop-gap while they jointly plan their future course with respect to other nations and other people will beget only discord, the emergence of the age-old national jealousies and claims, and result in an ultimate settlement comparable to that at Versailles [where the peace treaty was arranged after the last war].

Roberts said that a world government of the type he envisioned should have a representative assembly to implement its delegated powers, an executive to administer the laws, and an independent police.

2 POLICE VETS OF HAYMARKET RIOT TO MEET

Capt. Frank Tyrrell, 84 years old, and George Roycraft, 95, the only police veterans of the Haymarket riot, will meet this afternoon in the Desplaines street station.

Fifty-seven years ago, at 10 p. m. on May 4, 176 policemen marched out of the Desplaines street station and advanced on an anarchist rally in Haymarket square, a few hundred feet away.

Samuel Fielden, radical leader, was speaking when police ordered the crowd to disperse. A bomb was thrown from an alley across from the police station.

Its blast killed one policeman, fatally injured six others, and wounded 67 more. Four of the anarchist leaders were convicted and hanged. Tyrrell was injured. Roycraft was crushed by the mob. Roycraft lives at 3304 Schubert avenue and Tyrrell resides at 643 Clarence avenue, Oak Park.

NEGROES CONFER ON WAR GAINS AND JOB PLANS

An all-day conference on the work problems of Negroes was held yesterday in the Metropolitan Community church, 4100 South Parkway, under the auspices of the Chicago Urban league. More than 300 delegates from churches, Sunday schools and various colored oganizations attended. The conference attacked the post-war problems of the Negro race and sought suggestions as to how the gains made during the war—more jobs, higher wages, and less discrimination—could be preserved when peace comes. Plans were made for a citywide youth council on Negro problems and for an educational program on job efficiency and related subjects.

"I'M NOT PLAYING FOR MARBLES..."

This is it.

We're headed straight for the open doors of hell, and when we get inside they'll slam 'em shut and lock 'em.

Maybe I'll come out alive, and maybe I won't.

I'll take that chance. I'll take it because I know, now, what I am playing for over here. And it isn't marbles.

I'm not fighting for the right to wait in line for my daily bread.

I'm not using a bayonet and a knife to carve myself a hole where I'll hide in fear for the rest of my days.

I'm not betting my life out here so anyone can tell me where and what and how to worship.

I'm not outguessing madmen with machine guns in their hands for the privilege of being told what to say and when to say it.

I'm fighting for freedom!

I'm fighting for the things that made America the greatest place in the world to live in . . . that are going to keep America the greatest place in this world to live in!

So don't anybody tell me I'll find America changed.

Don't anybody tell me there's no future any more in America.

Don't anybody tell me there's a ceiling on my opportunity to make a million or be President.

Don't anybody tell me there's a bridle and bit waiting for me with my name on it!

That's what took the humanity out of the men I'm up against now. And I don't want any part of it!

I want to come back to the same America I left behind me . . . where our way of living has always brought us new and better things . . . and always will . . . the America where there's clean, hard work to do . . . where there's freedom, and justice, and opportunity for all . . . where, if you can think and plan and act on your own, there are no limits on how high you can rise, how far you can go.

That's what I'm fighting for.

That's America to me.

Keep it that way until I come back!

CHICAGO TO SEE LONGEST R.O.T.C. PARADE JUNE 2

Expect 11,344 Cadets to Participate.

Chicago will witness the longest high school R. O. T. C. parade in its history on June 2, Col. William F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics for the Chicago schools, announced yesterday. Col. Morrison said 11,344 military students, exceeding the number a year ago by 3,000, will march in the annual review, which will proceed north on Michigan avenue from Balbo drive to Randolph street.

The event is sponsored each spring by the board of education in coöperation with THE TRIBUNE. The 1943 parade will be the first to include as participants 3,000 freshmen students who do not wear uniforms but who are enrolled for the training, Col. Morrison pointed out. In addition, he said two schools which introduced R. O. T. C. training for their students this semester will be marching for the first time. They are the Taft and South Shore High schools.

Twenty-nine Units to Participate.

Altogether the parade will be made up of Chicago's 29 R. O. T. C. units, comprising the largest junior brigade in the nation. Ranking No. 1 and No. 2 in the line of march will be the two schools judged to be the finest in the city during the annual federal inspection which will be held from May 10 to May 28 on school campuses or in adjoining parks.

Col. Morrison disclosed that the No. 1 and No. 2 units will be presented with stands of colors donated by THE TRIBUNE at 11:40 a. m., just before the parade starts at Balbo and Michigan.

Marching in the van of the 29 schools will be the 11 members of the all-city brigade staff, chosen thru competitive examination from all the cadets in Chicago. At Congress street the parade will pass a reviewing stand in which will be seated high ranking army, navy and marine corps officers, school heads, and other dignitaries.

Tilden Has Good Record.

Because of the excellence of its training under Staff Sergt. Michael J. Moore, military instructor, Tilden Technical High school has led the parade each of the last three years and five times in the last seven years.

As usual, a number of cadets representing each school in the review will be wearing gold, silver or bronze medals presented to them by THE TRIBUNE for their outstanding military training records. The awards, together with medals from the war department, will be pinned on during the spring inspection ceremonies next month.

BRITISH SINK 10 AXIS VESSELS IN MEDITERRANEAN

LONDON, May 1 (AP).—Ten more enemy ships have been sunk in the Mediterranean by British submarines, the admiralty announced today.

Among the ships sunk, said the communique, was a large tanker torpedoed near Marittimo Island "while westbound on a course for Tunis. She was escorted by unusually large number of surface craft and aircraft."

Another tanker was sunk by gunfire off Italy's west coast and a large ammunition ship was blown up off the island of Monte Cristo, between Italy and Corsica.

Other sinkings were off the east coast of Corsica, northwest of Sicily and off the northern tip of Tunisia.

200 HANDICAPPED WORKERS GIVEN WAR JOB FLAG

Production of 1,400,000 pieces of bed material for ships of the United States maritime commission in seven months with an absentee rate of only 1.8 per cent won the commission's "M" pennant and individual merit insignia for 200 handicapped men and women of the Illinois Industries for the Blind yesterday.

The presentation was made by S. Duvall Schell of Washington, D. C., executive director of the maritime commission, at a ceremony in La Salle street, in front of City Hall, following a parade of several of the workers in State street, led by a marine corps color guard and American Legion band.

Edward S. Molineaux, president and founder of the Illinois Industries for the Blind, accepted the award. The workshop for the handicapped workers, 75 per cent of whom are blind, is at 1310 Newberry avenue.

Rescuers Seek to Reach Worker Buried in Mine

Rosiclare, Ill., May 1 (AP).—With little hope of success, rescue workers dug today into the debris of timber and rock which a few hours earlier buried James G. Rowbank of Loyola, Ky., in the Blue Diggers Fluorspar mine.

3 Months of Aid

U. S. LEND-LEASE AID NOW TOPS 10 BILLION MARK

Britain and Russia Get 69 Per Cent.

Washington, D. C., May 1 (AP).—The United States extended $688,000,000 in lend-lease aid in March, bringing to $10,319,000,000 the total expenditures since the program began March 11, 1941.

In reporting this tonight, Administrator Edward R. Stettinius Jr., said goods transferred represented $8,494,135,000 of the total. Services, such as ship repairs, shipping, and production facilities made up the remaining $1,825,383,000.

Lend-lease shipments in the last three months were divided as follows: United Kingdom, 38 per cent; Russia, 31 per cent; Africa and middle east, 16 per cent; far east [including India], 14 per cent; other areas, 1 per cent.

Russia Tops Plane List.

Without giving actual figures, Stettinius said more lend-lease planes have been sent to Russia than to any other military theater. Approximately one-third of all combat planes produced in this country have been lend-leased, and aircraft make up the largest single category of transfers, totaling $1,405,744,000 to April 1.

Because of an increasingly acute food shortage in Russia, Stettinius said, as much food will be shipped to that country this year as to Great Britain, which formerly received the bulk of lend-lease food shipments.

Stettinius said reverse lend-lease provided to the United States by the allied nations, as well as aid to each other, has "continued to mount in volume and importance," and "we know that, in proportion to the resources they have available, this lend-lease aid by our allies to us and to each other is entirely comparable to our own."

Breaks Down Figures.

Goods transferred under lend-lease by this country from March, 1941, to March 31, 1943, as reported by Stettinius were:

Munitions—Ordnance, $450,040,000; ammunition, $943,742,000; aircraft and parts, $1,405,744,000; tanks and parts, $731,376,000; motor vehicles, $467,668,000; watercraft and parts, $686,855,000.

Industrial products — Machinery, $370,655,000; metals, $607,430,000; petroleum products, $413,312,000; other industrial products, $862,212,000.

Foodstuffs, $1,268,911,000; other agricultural products, $286,110,000.

TAX BILL FLAYED AS 7TH HEAVEN FOR LOAN SHARK

G. O. P. Blasts Measure; Seeks Ruml Plan.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 1.—Opposing forces on the house ways and means committee today filed their formal reports on the pending pay as you go income tax legislation, the last preliminary before the opening of debate Monday.

Presaging the bitterness of the struggle, the minority and majority members exchanged scorching verbal blasts, each calling upon the chamber to support their measure on the ground it is the one most acceptable to the majority of the nation's 44 million taxpayers.

Republicans, fighting for the Ruml skip a year plan, assailed the Democratic proposal as a "tax lawyer's dream and a loan shark's seventh heaven."

G. O. P. Charges Discrimination.

The G. O. P. members of the committee said that in addition to adding to the present unprecedented tax burdens, the majority plan discriminates against taxpayers in the higher brackets, postpones for three more years the goal of current collections, provides a bonus for the wealthy in the form of discounts for early payment of back taxes, and imposes new complexities in the computation and payment of the federal taxes.

The Democratic committee members, who reported a bill calling for partial abatement of last year's taxes thru applying 1941 rates to 1942 incomes, had a few acid comments of their own regarding the Ruml plan. It is a "gross violation of the principle of the ability to pay," they said.

F. D. R. Request Cited.

Noting that President Roosevelt has asked congress to find 16 billion dollars in new revenue in the next fiscal year, the majority report said the committee could not be responsible for canceling all the 1942 taxes, a total of 10 billions, as provided in the Ruml proposal. The Democrats said complete forgiveness of a year's taxes would mean an increase in the present tax rates later this year, which would fall most heavily on lower or middle income groups.

Meanwhile, minority leader Joseph W. Martin [R., Mass.] asserted at a press conference that the Ruml plan has the overwhelming support of taxpayers along the nation's "main street" in big towns and small communities.

Indicating that the G. O. P. is prepared for a fight to the finish over the issue of tax forgiveness, he said reports reaching him from congressmen returning to the capital show that "bootblacks, barbers, grocers," and other citizens favor a current payment system as proposed by the skip a year plan.

First Vote Expected Tuesday.

Congressmen are coming back from a 10 day respite from their war time legislative duties, the heaviest in years, and what their constituents have told them regarding the pay as you go legislation is expected to determine the outcome of next week's battle on the floor of the house. The chamber is scheduled to spend Monday in general debate, with the first balloting coming Tuesday, when the measure is to be read for amendments.

This will mark the climax of one of the most long drawn and dramatic legislative disputes in recent congressional history. There is only one difference between the Republican and the Democratic proposals and this is on the question of the amount of taxes to be abated to bring taxpayers up to date in meeting their obligations.

Any bill that is enacted is expected to contain a provision for a withholding tax of 20 per cent, including the government's share of the present victory tax, to start July 1. This will not be an additional tax but merely a new collection device against taxable portions of wages and salaries.

Special Provisions Included.

Special provision also would be made for all other classes of taxpayers to pay off the bulk of their obligations thru instalments in the same year in which they are incurred.

Farmers would pay two-thirds of their estimated liability any time before Dec. 15 and the balance before the following March 15. Others whose income is from sources other than salaries and wages would pay quarterly on the basis of estimates of the current year's income.

Every one, including salary and wage earners whose income is not covered entirely by the withholding levy, would be required to settle by the following March 15 on the balance of their liabilities after making out final returns.

Both bills also would provide broad benefits to men and women in the army and navy thru allowing a basic $3,500 exemption against their service pay and in cancelation of back taxes for all who die during the war beginning with Pearl Harbor.

Under the administration sponsored Democratic bill, approximately 44 per cent of the 1942 taxes would be canceled by computing last year's liabilities on the basis of the 1941 tax scales. The forgiveness would range from 100 per cent for those now paying 1942 tax bills up to $60 down to 10 per cent in the highest brackets.

As in the Ruml plan, everything collected this year would be made to apply against 1943 obligations. This includes the March 15 instalment already paid and the next instalment, due June 15. But where the Ruml plan would cancel the 1942 taxes entirely, the Democratic proposal calls for payment of the unforgiven amount over a three year period, in addition to payment of the current imposts.

"This doubling up of payments is a wholly unnecessary and unjustifiable exaction from taxpayers at a time when they already are experiencing considerable difficulty in meeting their heavy tax obligations," said the G. O. P. report.

"This transition to a fully current, pay as you earn basis could be made under the Ruml plan with no added burden to taxpayers and no loss to the treasury."

Placing the levies on a current basis will enable the treasury to take advantage a year earlier of the increased national income resulting from the war, it is admitted, thus increasing the yield by 3 billion 200 million dollars. In addition, under the majority plan, the treasury will receive the first instalment on the amortized 1942 levies, approximately 1 billion 800 million—altogether 5 billion more than had been expected. This additional sum will offset the need for increased taxes this year, according to proponents of the measure.

Tables on Tax Proposals

Washington, D. C., May 1.—The pending pay as you go income tax legislation contains tables prepared by the treasury to aid employers and employés in determining the amounts to be taken out of pay envelopes in each pay roll period under the withholding tax plan. Both the Republican and Democratic versions of the bill contain 25 such tables covering daily, weekly, biweekly, semi-monthly, and monthly payments.

Each tax deduction figure is computed so as to take into account the taxpayer's personal exemption and credit for dependents, plus 10 per cent of exemptions and credits to allow for the usual deductions for such purposes as charity contributions, interest on debts, etc. All employés will be required to provide employers with the necessary information on their dependency status in a signed withholding exemption certificate.

Payment Period Stipulated.

This will enable the employers to make their calculations from the table. The employers then are required to make their payments to the government each quarter or before the last day of the month following the close of the quarter. Employers also must provide each employé with a receipt at the end of the year showing the amount of salary paid and the amount of taxes deducted. If employment is terminated before the end of the year, a similar receipt must be provided within 30 days of the last payment of wages.

The plan admittedly calls for a vast amount of preparations not only by the treasury department, including nation-wide distribution of the tax tables, but also by pay roll departments and auditors of thousands of business concerns. Officials assert final congressional action on the legislation by May 15 will allow time to get the new system into operation by July 1, however.

Among those specifically exempted from the withholding tax are soldiers and sailors, farm workers, household domestics, casual labor, and ministers of the gospel.

Minority Report Shows Increases.

The increased taxes over the present heavy load, which must be borne in addition to the current levies under the Democratic plan, are shown in tables in the Republican minority report. The following gives the amount of unforgiven taxes from last year to be paid over a three year period for net incomes beginning at $1,000:

Under the Republican plan, there would be no increased tax load at the present rates, since all the 1942 levies would be abated to bring every one up to date at once.

DEMAND STATE REPEAL TENURE LAW IN SCHOOLS

Teachers' Lobby Rapped by Taxpayers' Group.

Bloomington, Ill., May 1 [Special].—Public school costs are assailed in a bulletin prepared by the Illinois Taxpayers' association which is being sent to thousands of public officials and citizens thruout the state from the office here of E. N. Bloomer, secretary of the organization.

The bulletin attacks the state teacher tenure law as wasteful and tending to "freeze" education at a low level and asks for a curb on high pressure lobbying by teacher groups.

Special tribute is paid in the bulletin by Ezra P. Magoon of Rockford, president of the association, to Gov. Dwight H. Green for the frequency with which he has "come to the rescue of the hard pressed taxpaying home owner during his term in office."

Sent to All Cities.

Bloomer said that the bulletin is being sent to all members of the Illinois legislature, to all boards of supervisors in the state, to the mayors of all cities and villages, and to editors of daily and weekly newspapers.

Repeal of the teacher tenure law is advocated in the bulletin, which says the law provides that teachers who have held their jobs two years cannot be dismissed until they are 65 years old, at which time they must be pensioned.

"This vicious law was passed against the best interests of the children of this state who are entitled to instruction from the best teachers available," the bulletin states.

Foresees Competition.

"Teachers who cannot meet competition from the present and future output of colleges are unfit to be placed in charge of children."

Whereas most states provide at least one-third of the costs of public education thru special funds, Illinois places almost the entire burden on property, according to the bulletin, which estimates the complete annual cost of public schooling at "not far from a quarter of a billion dollars."

The bulletin charges that teacher organizations spend at least $100,000 a year in lobbying activities.

Springfield, Ill., May 1 (AP).—Arrests of operators of Illinois passenger automobiles without 1943 license plates, estimated to total 300,000, are scheduled to start Tuesday. Highway Police Superintendent Harry Yde said it will mean fines for those who have failed to purchase their tags. About 1,300,000 sets have been sold, a spokesman said, but he said last year's total of approximately 1,700,000 probably would not be reached.

MEXICO AND U. S. AGREE ON LABOR INFLUX DETAILS

Washington, D. C., May 1 (AP).—Agreement between the United States and Mexico for importation of nonagricultural workers from below the border to help meet "serious shortages of man power" was announced today by the state department.

The agreement, the department said, guarantees wage rates, living conditions and repatriation for the Mexicans and specifies they shall not replace American labor for the purpose of reducing rates of pay. The workers are to be exempted from compulsory military service in the United States.

Officials said 15,000 agricultural workers from Mexico already are in this country aiding in the production of essential war crops, that 7,000 more are expected to be contracted for during May, and that the total for the year may reach 50,000. The first nonagricultural workers to be imported are 6,000 maintenance of way employés for southwestern railroads.

MIDWEST BOND SALES GREATLY EXCEED QUOTAS

Expect Steady Buying After Drive Ends.

Midwestern states in the Chicago federal reserve district poured far more money into government securities in the 2d war loan than the treasury had asked, preliminary calculations showed last night as the campaign closed.

C. S. Young.

C. S. Young, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago and chairman of the five state district drive, announced that the quota was oversubscribed by 410 million dollars, or 39 per cent, yesterday morning, without allowance for subscriptions which arrived during the day or still were in transit. The incomplete tabulation listed sales at 1 billion 460 million dollars. The quota was 1 billion 50 millions.

Total Will Be Larger.

The treasury reported yesterday that the drive has brought in more than 16½ billion dollars and it became virtually certain that the final total will exceed 17 billion dollars, 4 billion more than the 13 billion dollars goal.

With thousands of authorized issuing agencies yet to report on the last day's sales, and with many subscriptions remaining unprocessed at the reserve bank, the final figures will show a much larger oversubscription than 410 millions, Young said. Mail orders postmarked before last midnight will be counted in the campaign total.

Young said a study of the subscriptions revealed that the banks in Chicago and the rest of the district did a "magnificent job" of selling the treasury securities to their clients and others.

Chicago Sells 560 Million.

Jay N. Whipple, chairman of the metropolitan Chicago area drive, reported that heavy last minute buying increased purchases in the area to 560 million dollars on the basis of preliminary figures. That meant a 190 million dollar oversubscription of the original quota of 370 millions. Whipple estimated that the final count will show sales in excess of 600 millions.

Whipple and Young both emphasized that the end of the drive does not mean that efforts to sell war bonds will be relaxed. Some of the issues—the E, F, and G war savings bonds and the tax savings notes—will remain on sale.

LIMIT LUGGAGE TO 7 TYPES; BAN LEATHER STYLES

Washington, D. C., May 1 (AP).—Luggage made entirely of leather is out for the duration, and only seven types of fabric and wood luggage may be made after July 1, the war production board ruled today.

It ordered production cut at approximately 40 per cent below 1941 output levels, measured in dollar volume, and restricted use of critical materials of functional purposes.

The seven types allowed are overnight bags, furlough bags, nonfitted Pullman cases, tray Pullman cases, men's wardrobe bags, men's week-end cases, and foot lockers. Banned are cosmetic cases, fitted cases, Gladstone cases, hat boxes, hat and shoe boxes, secretary cases, jacknife cases, vanity cases, women's wardrobe cases, wardrobe trunks, bottle cases, knit bags, Victoria cases, and animal carriers.

Columbia U. Plans 3 Term Year as Speedup Device

New York, May 1 [Special].—Columbia university will offer a three term academic year beginning July 5, instead of the traditional two semester program, Dean Herbert E. Hawkes announced today. The new calendar approved as a war measure, will consist of a winter, spring, and summer term of 16 weeks each. The average student is expected to require seven or eight terms for graduation, but it will be possible to finish the program in six.

Flag Captured on Guadalcanal

JAP TALISMAN FULFILLS HERO'S VOW TO FIANCEE

Yeoman Wall Sends Captured Flag.

When William J. Wall of 9017 South Loomis street became a yeoman 3d class and reached Guadalcanal last autumn with a navy construction company, his fiancée, Miss Marie Parker, 415 East 81st street, never fretted an instant. She knew "her Bill" would capture something—and yesterday her faith proved well founded. For Yeoman Wall's trophy of a "mikado flag," taken from a Jap officer, arrived in the morning's mail.

The mystic flag, 24x24 inches and of oddly woven material, bears weird Jap messages that Father William J. Gorman of St. Columbanus church, 71st and Prairie avenue, set out to interpret after reading Wall's message that the battle emblem was taken from a Jap "who isn't any more."

A Jap translation, so Father Gorman learned, defines the flag as a "campaign" banner, the inscriptions proving the flag was borne in the Russo-Japanese war of 1904-'05 by Gen. Singi. An authority on Jap customs pointed out that the flag, given the soldier by kinsmen and friends, passes from warrior to warrior.

Vessel Named for Illinois Naval Hero Is Launched

Quincy, Mass., May 1 (AP).—A navy flier killed in the battle of Midway after he scored a direct bomb hit on a Japanese aircraft carrier was honored today in the launching of the destroyer escort vessel Weber at the Bethlehem Steel company's Fore river yard. The vessel was named for Ensign Frederick T. Weber and was sponsored by his mother, Mrs. Matt R. Walsh of Galesburg, Ill. Weber attended Knox college and Drake university. He won the navy cross posthumously for his heroism in bombing the carrier and then pressing home, on another vessel, the attack in which he was killed.

2 REFORMATORY REFUGEES HELD IN CAFE HOLDUP

Robert Short, 17 years old, Owensboro, Ky., and Frank Frasher, 19, of Louisville, Ky., who escaped last month from the Kentucky reformatory, were arrested yesterday in connection with the burglary of a tavern at 736 North Clark street.

Both carried guns and two more guns were found in the flat of Short's sister, Mrs. Genevieve Dickens, 117 West Ontario street, where they had been living.

Policemen Phil Shore and Thomas McManus, who made the arrest, said that Mrs. Dickens' husband, James R. Dickens, admitted buying some loot young Short and Frasher had stolen in three Clark street burglaries. Dickens and his wife were ordered held.

RABBI CHARGES F.D.R. IS COOL TO PALESTINE PLEA

Dr. Silver Says Jews' Plight Is Ignored.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 1 [Special].—The "whole subject of a Jewish home in Palestine has suddenly become taboo in Washington," Dr. Abba Hillel Silver of Cleveland, national chairman of the United Palestine appeal, said tonight at the opening of the national conference for Palestine.

"There has set in a very definite withdrawal on the part of the official family from anything which might even remotely suggest a recognition of indorsement of the Jewish homeland," Rabbi Silver said.

Dr. Silver said that "the President of the United States, who on other occasions spoke of Palestine with the fine sympathy and encouragement, sent an official greeting to the United Jewish appeal this year which quite pointedly omitted any mention whatever of Palestine, altho the United Palestine appeal is a principal beneficiary of this fund and is not, as the President knows, a purely refugee serving agency."

He Calls for Action.

He asserted that now "our former friends in government circles content themselves with sending us prolific expressions of sympathies on Jewish persecution.

"When pressed to do something about it, to help save the race from annihilation, they regretfully remind us how difficult it is to do anything for these unfortunate people under present war conditions.

"They counsel us to have patience. The suggestion is even made that anything which may be done for these unfortunate Jews now might in some way postpone the day of their ultimate liberation. That they may all be dead when the ultimate day of liberation arrives, does not seem to arouse these friends of ours."

"Never Intended to Act."

He spoke of the recent conference in Bermuda as "offering a way out for governments who never really intended to do anything."

The national conference was called to launch the mobilization of resources of American Jewry in support of the Jewish homeland in Palestine.

Arthur Szyk, Polish Jewish artist, this afternoon declared "we have too long permitted Palestine's destiny to rest upon the desires of a single power—Great Britain."

He urged that congress make anti-Semitism a federal crime.

The conference will continue thru tomorrow with discussions of the work toward a Jewish homeland and post-war aims by speakers, including Dr. Stephen S. Wise, Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, and Frank Gannett, newspaper publisher.

PROBE OF MEAT DEALERS BY OPA BEGINS TUESDAY

An investigation of the compliance of Chicago meat retailers with ham, bacon, and pork price regulations will be started Tuesday by OPA agents, Michael F. Mulcahy metropolitan area price administrator, said yesterday.

Ceiling prices must be posted on or near each type of pork cut, and official point values must be placed conspicuously in the stores. Consumers overcharged may sue for $50 or for three times the excess charge, Mulcahy said. The OPA, he said, is prepared to serve violators with warning notices, or to file license suspension suits in federal courts and suspension order proceedings before OPA hearing commissioners.

The American Meat institute, a packers' trade organization, asked consumers to "do their part toward killing off the black market in meat" by not paying more than ceiling prices and by not making purchases without red ration stamps.

DO YOU WANT AN ESSENTIAL OCCUPATION WITH A POST-WAR FUTURE?

We need a number of men for permanent positions as "mechanical tabulating equipment mechanics"—officially defined by Selective Service headquarters as an essential occupation.

WE are a large, well-established manufacturer of office machines and equipment. Our entire production is going to war manufacturers and government bureaus. We urgently need men who are mechanically minded—not necessarily with mechanical experience—to keep these essential office machines operating at top speed in war plants and government offices. We teach you everything you need to know about the machines, and we pay you a salary while you are learning. The positions are permanent, with excellent opportunities for advancement.

YOU are a man with a knack for mechanical work, even though you may not be using that knack at present. You are a high-school graduate and U. S. citizen. The armed forces have passed you by, and will continue to do so. You are not doing war work now. You are ambitious, loyal, a good worker, eager to get ahead.

YOU AND WE should get together. Write us a brief confidential letter, telling us about yourself. Give us also your age and phone number. Write today if possible.

HELD IN ATTACK, ADMITS 20 MORE WOMEN VICTIMS

Negro Also Quizzed in South Side Killing.

A confession that he had raped or assaulted 20 women with a hammer or a knife was made last night by Howard McEwen, 20 years old, a Negro who until Friday afternoon was employed as a messenger and junior clerk by the treasury department in its Merchandise Mart office.

Howard McEwen.

Several hours after he had been dismissed for incompetence, McEwen confessed to Capt. Frank Reynolds of the Chicago avenue police he attempted to attack Miss Joan Thies, 42, of 6435 North Seeley avenue, a stenographer employed by the Home Owners' Loan corporation in the Mart.

He seized her on a stairway from the second floor of the mart and struck her twice with a hammer when she screamed.

Give Revenge Motive.

McEwen, 6 feet tall and weighing 175 pounds, said he thought Miss Thies was a woman responsible for his dismissal and wanted revenge. However, the police said they believed he intended to attack the stenographer, a theory supported by his admissions concerning similar attacks that preceded the rape of his other victims.

Most of the victims were white women living on the far south side, police said.

Questioned in Slaying.

The police also questioned him about the slaying of Roy H. Mabey, 46, chief of the ordnance inspection department of the West Pullman works of the International Harvester company. Mabey died last Nov. 22 after he was beaten and robbed and left dying on the street near his home at 11745 Wallace street.

A watch stolen from his body was pawned by a Negro ex-convict who said it had been given him by another Negro. Police said McEwen partly answers the description of the Negro who originally had Mabey's watch.

Capt. Reynolds called in James Brown, assistant state's attorney to take a detailed confession from McEwen.

Found in Washroom.

Jack Laskey, a treasury department guard found McEwen early yesterday lurking in a washroom on the 17th floor of the mart. He said he was a treasury department messenger and that he had entered the building to get "his things."

McEwen said he got the hammer from the basement of the mart.

He said he went to a loop theater after he hid the hammer in a loop drug store, remaining there until he returned to the Mart.

LIKE TO SLEEP AT 50 BELOW? JOIN THE ARMY

Soldier Volunteers Find It's Not So Bad.

Lawrence, Mass., May 1 (AP).—If you'd like to learn how to sleep peacefully with the thermometer 50 or 60 degrees below zero—you can always join the army.

While four army volunteers slumbered in a nearby cold room regulated for 54 below zero, Lt. Col. John Talbott, director of the quartermaster corp's climatic research laboratory, reported today that a 50 per cent improvement had been achieved in the army's cold weather wearing and sleeping apparel in the last year.

The laboratory has been experimenting since January with 20 army enlisted men to determine the effects of extreme cold on men and materials.

It's Not Like Home.

Newspaper men, conducted thru the laboratory for the first time, were shown that the cold chamber didn't exactly contain all the comforts of home. Col. Talbott himself had spent the previous night in the chamber to test at 35 below zero a lighter sleeping bag than the heavy weather 11 pound bag.

When reporters were taken into the chamber one of them squirmed around a bit to see what was going on.

Col. Talbott said this wasn't recommended procedure. Hoar frost gathers at the mouth of the sleeping bags and is likely to drop down the neck of bed thrashers at that temperature.

Bundlers Suffer More.

"Recently 40 men were taken into northern Canada and issued full cold weather equipment," Col. Talbott said. "They were told they could do anything they liked with it. Most of the old timers stripped down to their underwear when they went to bed. They got along all right, altho the temperature was under 30 below. Those who slept bundled up in their clothes complained of the cold after four or five days."

"Men can move around and be comfortable in the new equipment at really extreme temperatures and still be 80 per cent efficient," the colonel said.

Lack of Men Can't Stop a Widow with an Idea

Charlotte, N. C., May 1 (AP).—Mrs. F. S. Crawley, a widow, wanted a hog pen. Her son was in the army. There was no loose man power around. So she bought an ax, felled pine trees, cut the poles, notched the ends and dragged them a quarter of a mile to the site of the pen, which she finished in two days.

THE TORY MIND.

For post-war association with Great Britain and the British commonwealths a political federation, with or without other states added, has been proposed, as in Clarence Streit's "Union Now." It has been represented as an extension of the principles and procedures of the American Union of states, ignoring the fact that this Union is not monarchical, has no legislative chamber deriving its authority from heredity or patent, has no caste society, and does not have the system of rewards peculiar to that society. Into such a union the United States would enter on the level of a British dominion.

THE TRIBUNE has suggested that if the United Kingdom of Great Britain and some of the British dominions desire a political post-war association with the United States they should organize a republican form of government, qualify under the provisions of the American Constitution, and apply for statehood. Congress, after an examination of their new fundamental law, might admit them altho that could not be promised. The United Kingdom would have great changes to make, such as the disestablishment of the church, the abolition of titles of nobility, and the severance from the crown.

To some of our tory-minded citizens such a suggestion seems absurd, altho to them the appearance of the United States as a dominion in the British family would not. Many of our English friends are sure that no one could seriously suggest that they should try to qualify for statehood. The suggestion, they think, must be in a spirit of fun and in rather low American humor at that. We merely suggest that if there is to be any political association this is the only one that makes any sense. The question of having any at all is another matter. We could easily come to an agreement that none is desirable. We regard statehood in the American Union as the highest honor conferrable on any body of people forming a political organization anywhere. Immigration figures could be offered as a sort of proof of general agreement on that.

Our tory-minded people disagree and prefer recognition on terms of subordination. They prefer a retrograde movement which would acknowledge that an error was made in 1775 and 1776. Their progenitors, living in those years, knew that the attempt to form an independent nation was all wrong. In loyalty to the crown which was exceeding its prerogatives and threatening British constitutional government at home, our tories sacrificed their attachment to their real country. In this devotion many of them gave up their native land, their homes, their property, and their happiness. They became unhappy exiles in England. They were very badly repaid for all they had done.

George Otto Trevelyan has an eloquent account of the experiences of the American loyalists in exile and of their deplorable state of mind as they heard their revolutionary countrymen denounced as depraved poltroons and were themselves treated with indifference or disrespect. "It is my earnest wish," the American loyalist exile, Judge Curwen said, "that the despised Americans may convince these conceited islanders, by some knock down irrefragable argument, that, without regular standing armies, our continent can furnish brave soldiers and expert commanders; for then and not until then may we expect generous and fair treatment."

It's a curious historical note that the rebels were to win respect and fair treatment for the loyalists in England by some knock down arguments. The exile's lot was an unhappy one but the tory character as found here today does not disclose much variation from the original type. If anything it is not of as good metal. The older fellows made their choice for themselves and took its penalties, which were severe. They could not see their country as a great independent nation; only as a colony of Britain. Their present day followers have that view in spite of what they see about them.

As our relations with the British empire stand now we have no voice in British foreign policies but are supposed to take a hand in their consequences. This is undesirable, but it happens. If the thing were reversed and if the English took up arms on decisions made in Washington, they also might think it undesirable. We do not care to cement the procedure into a political structure. We think it evident that the American form of government is a better expression of man's aspirations than the English. Why should we retreat and drop a century or two of progress? If there is anything to laugh at, wouldn't this be it?

THE RICHEST AMERICAN.

There will be many guesses about the identity of the richest American. Is it Ford, Rockefeller, Field, or some little known person like Charles Hosford, the man from Cleveland, who ordered 30 million dollars' worth of bonds last week and thus outbought all other Americans in the second war bond drive? We don't know who the No. 1 millionaire is but thanks to the treasury department's pamphlet "The Statistics of Income for 1941" just out, we know considerable about his finances. He [or she] is the only person in the land with an income over 4 million dollars. He realized 5 million 281 thousand dollars in 1941. His tax amounted to 4 million 545 thousand dollars, or 86 per cent of it. For every dollar he got the treasury got six. The net of his 5 million odd was 736 thousand after the tax.

It may help to identify the individual if it be noted that he isn't married or at least didn't claim exemption as the head of a family. That is established by the figure 1 opposite his income classification under personal exemption. If he had been married his personal exemption would have been given as 2, for the figures are given in thousands and the practice is to consider one and a half as two. The married man's personal exemption was $1,500 for '41. Nor does he have any dependents, for he claimed no credit for them.

He was definitely not Clark Gable, Mickey Rooney, nor even Louis B. Mayer, whose $704,426 salary in 1941 topped all the others that have been published. In fact he drew no salary at all. This is clear because his earned income credit was less than $500. He may be a corporation director who considered that he earned his director's fees.

The treasury pamphlet contains information which will not only stimulate the curiosity but answer some important questions. The total income of all the people in the country in 1941 was 92 billion dollars. Of this amount income taxpayers received almost exactly half. The non-income tax groups got the other half.

If a millionaire be defined as a person with an income of at least $50,000, we had 18,610 millionaires in 1941 and their aggregate incomes were $1,851,000,000. Thus millionaires get 2 per cent of the income of the country and the rest of us get 98 per cent. The millionaires paid in taxes $975,000,000. Receiving 2 per cent of the income of the country, they pay 25 per cent of the income tax.

The individual income tax is the foundation of our federal revenue. There were 17,334,000 persons in the country who paid an income tax in 1942 on their 1941 incomes, a new record. Of these, 16,414,000 had incomes less than $5,000 and 920,000 had incomes over $5,000. Those with incomes over $5,000 got about 12 per cent of the income of all the people and paid 70 per cent of all the income taxes.

It is sometimes suggested that the way to improve the condition of the average man is to distribute the incomes of the millionaires among the rest of the people. If all the incomes of our millionaires after taxes in 1941 had been so distributed each person would have received about six dollars a year, or an extra four bits a month. It doesn't seem to be enough to justify upsetting the social order.

THE TRADE UNION AND ITS MEMBERS.

Without going at this time into John L. Lewis' motives in the present coal strike, the merits of the miners' case, or the possible provocation that Mr. Lewis has received from his former friend and present enemy in the White House, one prediction may be ventured. That is the strike, if it lasts any time, will fan the demand for public control of union activities.

That demand, already widespread, was an inevitable result of the administration's labor policy of the last decade, which enhanced enormously the power of unions without imposing commensurate responsibility. A number of state legislatures have passed strict measures in recent months to remedy this lack. Some of these measures, in fact, indicate a real danger that the pendulum that had swung so far in the direction of excess may even swing back too far in the direction of repression.

That danger is only increased by assertions that no need exists for control. That argument falls flat in face of the fact that at least a million unionists have been paying tribute to outright gangsters, a few of whom are already in prison or on the way. If the intelligent and honest labor leaders denounce every proposal for control of unions as a plot to destroy unionism the sole result will be to forfeit their moderating influence on unduly repressive laws.

Unions have abused their members and they have abused the public. Two types of regulation are required. One is the protection of working men in their rights in the union. The other is protection of the public against abuse of power by an organized minority.

Officers of unions, both local and international, should be required to make regular financial reports to a designated public authority and that authority have sufficient power of inspection and audit to verify the reports. This would not touch honest unions. It would help stop depredations by the Carrozzos, Caldwells, Nittis, and Scalices.

Corporation officials are forbidden to contribute company money to political campaign funds. Neither should Mr. Murray be allowed to use the contributions of Republican steel workers to back Democratic candidates. Mr. Hutcheson should not use the dues of Democratic carpenters to back Republican candidates. [He hasn't.] Mr. Lewis should not use the dues of Democratic and Republican coal miners to back Mr. Lewis for public office. [But he can, and may, some day.] The British statute that requires the consent of the individual member to the use of his contributions for political purposes could be enacted in America with profit.

The union member ought to be the boss of his officers and not their servant. In many unions he is. In others he will be denied this control until public provision is made for free nominations and for the use of secret ballots in union elections. Where members can make a showing of necessity, there should be public supervision of the balloting to prevent fraud.

The most serious thing that a union member is called upon to do is to go on strike to enforce the demands of his union. He should not be required to take this step, which almost always forces an immediate and serious economic loss on him, for trivial reasons. For the protection of union members alone, and without regard to the rightful public interest in the same matters, strikes should be prohibited except upon approval by the membership in a secret ballot.

The closed shop has its advantages, but the checkoff is not necessary to maintain it. This method of dues collection reacts to the benefit of the union boss, but rarely to that of the member. The boss can neglect the interests of the members, he can even sell them out to employer, and still the employer can deduct their dues from their wages and turn them over to the boss. The checkoff, if not prohibited entirely, should be applied only when an overwhelming majority of the union members—as many as 90 per cent, perhaps—approve it in a secret ballot.

HITLER'S PROMISES.

[Kansas City Times.]

The German foreign office promises that Germany will use poison gas "only if her enemies use it first." Which merely means that if Germany in desperation should decide to use poison gas she would simply issue a statement that her enemies had used it first.

In his recent book, "What About Germany?" Louis Lochner, for many years head of the Associated Press bureau in Berlin, prints a copy of a speech made by Hitler to German officers shortly before the invasion of Poland. He told them he was determined on war no matter what concessions the Poles might make. But if any excuse was necessary he would have a few German soldiers dress in Polish uniforms and make a phony excursion into Germany.

He added, however, that he hardly thought it worth while to go to that trouble. He did not care for world opinion, and in any event world opinion would judge him only by his success, and not by the means taken to win that success.

In the light of experience any one who trusts the promises of Hitler or of German officials ought to have his head examined.

ORIENTALIZATION OF WORLD

[Following is the address delivered last night by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, on the Chicago Theater of the Air, over W-G-N, W59C, and the Mutual Broadcasting system.]

BY COL. ROBERT R. McCORMICK.

Week before last, I reread the histories of Europe and Asia, ancient and modern, to trace the courses of conquest. I continued my reading all last week because I had surprised myself with a discovery which has undoubtedly been made elsewhere and published, but which has not come to my attention, and which is the topic of tonight's address—The Orientalization of the World.

The peoples of western Europe were all originally self-governing, with high regard for the rights of individuals. The people of Asia were always monarchal, looking upon their monarch not only as their ruler but as their god. The Greeks were so individualistic that they never could unite even a majority of their people in a common government by agreement or force. Their republican principles were subject to corrosion in contact with the orient.

The Roman republic not only developed a solidarity unknown to the Greeks, but a tolerance which permitted it to take conquered or allied peoples into citizenship.

The original Roman expansion was north to the Alps, south to the African desert, and west to the Atlantic, including Spain. Her first wars to the east were in alliance with and to protect free republics. About the year 100 B. C., Roman forces came into close, if hostile, relations with the east in the person of King Mithridates. From them Catulus and Pompey returned to Rome affecting oriental pomp.

After Caesar conquered Gaul, the civil war took him to Greece whence he went to Egypt.

In Gaul he had exterminated the leaders of his enemies, but he married bigamously the queen of Egypt, Cleopatra. As we know, when he was assassinated, he had already sent his nephew and heir, Octavian, to the east to school.

The ensuing civil war was fought largely in the east and left Octavian in command of a victorious army and navy with a thoro comprehension of oriental despotism.

Many of the old Roman families had been killed in the civil war or had been murdered in the proscription. To prevent political opposition, Octavian devised the theory of constructive treason, whereby the death penalty could be inflicted for anything any one did, or anything any one said, or even anything any one thought. With the prosecutors and courts under his control, Octavian stifled all opposition.

By the simple process of delegating all its powers to him, the senate made him in effect an oriental monarch, gave him the title of Augustus, and named a month for him.

The republic never recovered. Emperor succeeded emperor, some better, some worse—all absolute monarchs.

It became customary to erect statues to the Roman emperor. He became not only lawmaker, but the supreme court who instructed the judges how to construe the law.

This law was the law of a conqueror imposed upon the conquered—the law of the dictator imposed upon his subjects.

The oriental monarchy finally sapped the energies of the once free Roman people, and Rome fell.

The tribes that succeeded the Roman rule thruout Europe were largely self-governing. The chiefs were elected and swore to uphold the customs of the people, sometimes called folk law, sometimes called common law.

In the eighth century Charlemagne re-created the empire and since his death the idea of empire has never disappeared in Europe. There was the old empire with an elective emperor. There was the Holy Roman empire, an hereditary monarchy, Napoleon's empire, the Austrian empire, the German empire. Mussolini and Hitler are trying to form empires.

In the Crusades, the peoples of Europe again came into contact with the east and brought back ideas of pomp and monarchy leading to the theory of the divine right of kings.

The Renaissance, beginning shall we say in the 15th century, spread Italian culture thruout Europe and with it the Roman law. Trial by jury struggled in France for a while, but was defeated in the end.

In Germany the rights of citizens fell so low that, in our time, it was customary for army officers to force women to walk in the street and to dispossess citizens from restaurant tables. That is what Roman law did to continental Europe.

* *

A combination of circumstances preserved the liberties of Englishmen. England never was in any of the empires. None of her kings was ever emperor, interested in introducing the civil law. Her Norman kings were often more concerned with affairs on the continent than on the island. Then civil wars in which the crown was the stake inclined the contestants to cater to the public.

Magna Charta remained and remains a written document reciting the rights of men. The Inns of Court, being schools of the common law, upheld the common law against the assaults of the civil law.

Thruout the ages the asylums of self-government were the cities which were granted certain rights in charters. The colonies in America were established under similar instruments.

King James I. caused the charter of Virginia to be forfeited, and King Charles II. did the same with the charter of Massachusetts. The same King Charles II., controling his courts, succeeded in forfeiting all of the charters of the English cities, when, fortunately, he died before destroying the liberties of England.

In an age when the powers of the king were still great, England benefited by the constant exhaustion of the royal strain. William III., for instance, a king quite capable of establishing a complete monarchy, was childless and had no incentive to do so.

Thereafter there was no English born king until George III. This king attempted to make his office that of emperor and probably would have succeeded but for the successful revolt of the American colonies which broke down the power he had established at home.

In this country we think of the age of discovery only as the discovery of America. We ignore the fact that the east, with its despotic governments, was reached on the north by Archangel, and on the south around the Cape of Good Hope. With the opening of the Suez canal and the building of railroads, Europe and Asia came more and more in contact.

We have heard much of the occidentalizing of the orient, but we have ignored the orientalizing of the occident. With the exception of Spain, the conquering and trading nations were interested only in profit. They played ball with any oriental despot who would play ball with them.

During the years that American principles were entering Europe from the west, oriental ideas were seeping in from the east. Men who spent their lives in contact with tsars, sultans, pashas, and rajahs had little respect for the doctrines of Jefferson, Mason, Locke, or Rousseau, just as Americans who have lived much abroad, for business, pleasure, or on official missions, have lost their Americanism.

Oriental ideas prevailed over the occidental ones.

The first country in Europe to be orientalized was Portugal.

We have ignored the fact that the method which Mussolini used to become duce of Italy was the exact copy of the method used by Caesar Augustus nearly two thousand years be-

ULCER VICTIMS CHAMP AT THE BIT.

PHYSICIANS of long experience are able frequently to associate personality types with disease. Consideration is given to general build, disposition, and heredity. As we know, overweight is conducive to diabetes. In addition, we think of the stocky, vitriolic man as prone to apoplexy.

In like fashion we have pictured the sufferer from peptic ulcer as lean, nervous and jittery. He is supposed to possess a wire-edged temper, altho he may explode but rarely. In consequence, he subjects his own tissues to his pent up emotions.

While there are numerous basic organic causes for stomach trouble, the question may well be asked, "How does it happen that every one who uses irritating foods, thus increasing the acidity of the gastric juice, does not develop an ulcer?" There must be something in the high-strung person which reacts unfavorably, particularly on the delicate lining of the digestive tract.

Many of our experts insist that the first step in healing one of these lesions is to establish peace of mind. In other words, stop the impulses, occasioned by worry and fussiness, from disturbing vital organs. The vagus nerve sends branches to the diaphragm, the heart, and the gastric pouch. Its conduct can be influenced profoundly by the emotions. When irritated, it may in turn upset one or all of these important structures.

In a recent study of 33 cases of duodenal ulcer, striking psychic backgrounds were observed in all. Typical of the group were expressions of anxiety, excitability, terror, and poor nervous control. Internal strife was characteristic.

But we encounter considerable difficulty when we attempt to translate bad adult behavior or training into organic lesions. It seems clear, however, that subsequent to stimulation of certain nerve centers, areas of congestion will appear in the gastric mucous membrane. With recurring episodes, actual sloughing away and solution of the cells may take place. Here, then, is the beginning of a crater [ulcer] which may deepen and widen [because of nervousness] as the constricted blood vessels fail to supply the normal quota of nutriment. How do we explain this reaction?

We realize full well that fear can bring pallor to the face. Similarly, some other form of agitation may blanch mucous surfaces. With the cells devitalized, they are subject to the chemical action of the gastric juice and their digestion follows. If this suggestion carries a worth-while lesson, it lies in the cultivation of poise and the acquisition of a judicial temperament.

We are all familiar with the fact that frightful sights or experiences may result in fainting or nausea and vomiting. The more powerful the stimulus, the more prompt will be the response. But we must not forget that minor incidents of this sort —oft repeated—will exact a toll in disordered body functions.

Thus it is that the alimentary canal may be called upon to repel innumerable rebuffs. But there is a limit to tolerance. All of which means that equanimity and relaxation are essential if we would maintain the absorbing apparatus in good tone.

WHY TAKE?

A. D. writes: On my own I decided to take vitamin B tablets. They caused my stomach to become upset for several hours, with loss of appetite. Do you think this is because I do not need them?

REPLY.

As a rule, the stomach knows a good thing. When it rebels, take heed. You probably do not require an additional supply.

EXAMINATION NEEDED.

W. T. writes: I have a sharp pain in my shoulder. What could cause this?

REPLY.

Investigate arthritis, bursitis, trouble within the shoulder joint, or disease of the bone.

THE DICK TEST.

Mrs. H. L. writes: What is the Dick test and what is its purpose?

REPLY.

A small amount of scarlet fever toxin is injected into the skin. If the test is positive, the child is susceptible.

AN HUMILIATING ROLE

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Space for letters is obviously limited. Incoming mail far exceeds it. If a letter is not printed attribute it to lack of room. Address letters to Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

OUR MISSION.

Evanston, Ill., April 27.—In your proposal of "States Across the Sea," either you are serious, or you have attempted to show certain idealists and internationalists how the shoe fits on the other foot. It is one thing to theorize on Union Now or the United States of Europe, and quite another thing to have the tables turned and the whole plan brought to our own doorstep. If England, Scotland, and Wales do not welcome the idea of becoming states of the Union—a perfectly good Union which has proved its soundness thru a century and a half of healthy growth —how can any one imagine that a score of European countries are going to welcome union under the joint rule of the English speaking nations? In this respect your editorial might be just a "put yourself in their place" sort of an eye opener for impractical dreamers.

But if you are serious, as I believe you to be, there is much to say for the plan. It is sound because it rests on unshakable foundations.

It respects every country's freedom. Under it, union would not be forced on any nation; and the operation of the plan would not depend on the adherence of all nations. It would work for one or for 20, since it is already in existence and capable of expansion.

Second, all principles in nature and the universe stand solid, waiting for the creature to harmonize with them. They do not go out to the creature to adjust its problems and they do not compromise. If we want the benefit of the sun's rays, we must go out and expose ourselves to them; they do not come into our houses seeking to bless us against our will or out of compassion for our ignorance. The Constitution of the United States is one of the great principles of the universe. We, the states of the Union, who have chosen to live and die by the Constitution, should hold our ground, preserve this blessing for humanity against the day when it may awaken from its madness. We should keep ever wide open our gates for all individuals and nations who, thru wisdom or thru suffering, have reached the degree of maturity that qualifies them for admission to the Union. But we should not prostitute the Constitution to make it acceptable to other nations, few of which have yet risen above the narrow concepts of national selfishness. Some would turn and rend it and this government would indeed perish from the earth!

We should realize that when nations reach the point in their evolution where they might welcome the United States of Europe, they will either evolve such a government without our help or clamor for admission into our Union. Until then, our God-appointed mission is clearly to protect and preserve for future generations the framework of human freedom: the Constitution of the United States. G. V. ARAM.

"PERSECUTED MINORITY."

Chicago, April 25.—I note from the first page of this morning's TRIBUNE that the problem of our fellow-citizens, the Japanese-Americans, is coming closer to us here in the middle west. I earnestly hope that THE TRIBUNE'S policy on this matter, already indicated by several wise and able editorials, will be strengthened and pressed. The creation of another unassimilated and persecuted minority on the basis of the racial superiority of those of white skin, is a Nazi, not an American technique. For Marengo to refuse work to 16 native born, college trained master farmers, all thoroly investigated and passed by the F.B.I., would presage badly for the character of any peace we may win. MARCIA J. LYTLE.

WANTS A WORLD UNION.

Oak Park, Ill., April 26.—In your Sunday editorial you presented the kernel of a great idea but a look at the past will show it to be impractical in its present form. Look back to when our country was first being formed. At that time the situation was not unlike our present day one. The Articles of Confederation of that day, analogous to our league of nations, had been proved a failure. If Virginia, or any other state, had proposed that the other states join her as counties on equality with the other counties would her proposal have been accepted? In the same way your proposal will be found inacceptable.

As a substitute I recommend a union of all nations patterned after ours. It may even use our Constitution, with a few minor amendments to fit its broader scope. This plan should be acceptable to all the nations. R. G. GLASSER.

TAKING THE FUN OUT OF IT.

New York, N. Y., April 24.—In your capital article pointing out the great advantages England would have if incorporated into our Union, you make quite a real point against it. You say "the hand kissers should look forward pleasurably to most intimate social . . . relations with their English friends, particularly as the new relationship would be that of equals." The delight of hand kissing an equal is not in the same category as present conditions. L. G. REED.

LOVE AGAINST HATE.

Chicago, April 26.—True Christianity is the religion of love and some of those who preach Christ's teachings of love on Sunday should take a trip down to Marengo, Ill., and try to prove to the residents of that section that hatred never solved a problem, but love has never failed. It is a shame that those Japanese-Americans have to suffer because of war lords who are not satisfied until hatred and greed rule thruout the world. E. F.

THE NEGRO FLYERS.

Tuskegee, Ala., April 23.—Negroes who read THE TRIBUNE are greatly encouraged over the fact that you give recognition to our people thru the selection of Roscoe C. Simmons as feature writer.

It so happens that I was here at Tuskegee institute when Mr. Simmons came to gather material for the series of articles on the Tuskegee army flying school and as I have read these instalments, my sincere conviction is that the type of article which he has prepared will render a great service in support of our armed forces. As secretary of the National Negro Business league and for myself personally, I wish to give you this expression of my appreciation. ALHU L. HOLSEY.

FATHERS PRAY, TOO.

Chicago, April 23.—Tell me, are men in the services a special race of beings with only one parent? "Mother gives her all," is the caption this week on a full page ad, with a beautiful picture of Mother—father a mere shadow in the background. "Mothers hope sons are not included in Jap executions." Sure they do, God help them, but what about fathers? I'm a mother, and I say, and I'm sure all service men would say —don't say "mothers"—say "parents." Give poor father a break. M. CASSIDY.

FAT SAUSAGE.

Chicago, April 25.—The story from Kansas City Saturday that a loss of lard threatened because containers could not be found proved to me that the Kansas City packers are not up to date. Here in Chicago they long ago faced the shortage and overcame it. They put the lard in sausage casings and we buy it at 30 odd cents a pound as sausage; then we fry it out and sell it back to the local butcher for a few cents a pound. Ain't we patriotic! E. G. STOCKERT.

DELAYED MOVING.

Chicago, April 24 [Legal Friend of the People].—We have rented a new apartment and would like to know, if we are forced to remain in our present place a week or two after May 1 because the new apartment will not be vacant until then, [1] whether our present landlord can collect for the actual time lived in the apartment after May 1?

2. Can he collect for the full month, even tho we stay over only a week or so?

3. Would we have to pay for court expenses if he took us to court?

4. We have no lease and have given our landlord 30 days' notice. S. J.

1. Yes.

2. Yes, or he could hold you for a full year's renewal at his option, assuming that the previous tenancy was for a year.

3. Yes, as to court costs. No, as to attorney's fees.

4. If the previous tenancy was by the month, then our answer above as to a renewal for one year would not be applicable.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

HALL LIGHTS.

Chicago, April 24 [Legal Friend of the People].—We live in a two story apartment building which has 12 apartments and six halls. The hall lights are on only until 10:30 p. m., then they are turned off by the owner and the halls are very dark. We should like to know what the law is on lights in hallways and whether we have a just cause for complaint. M. D.

It was held in Soesand vs. Frank, 283 Ill. 271, that the legislature has not given the city power to compel the lighting of entrance halls and stairways. Secs. 48-68 and 66-1 of the city code, which require that "means of exit" shall be provided with "lights," are clearly invalid if construed as only requiring installation of the equipment.

There is no general principle of law imposing on landlords a duty to maintain such lights. 36 C. J. 214.

UNPAID TUITION.

Chicago, April 24 [Legal Friend of the People].—1. Last February I signed a contract to go to school.

2. I now find I do not have time for studies but the institution continues to send me bills.

3. As I paid $35 down on tuition of $150 and attended class only four hours, receiving less, therefore, than I paid for, [3] can't I ignore their request? F. G.

1. If you are of legal age, it seems probable that you are bound according to the wording of the contract.

2. The mere fact that a party changes his mind is not enough to give him a defense to liability on his contract.

3. No.

MAYFAIR MANAGEMENT CO.'S WAR POLICY

Effective May 1, 1943

The Mayfair Management Co. believes that special consideration is due tenants who are inducted or who enlist in the armed forces of the United States. To any such tenant of property managed by this company, we therefore offer up to 60 days' rent-free occupancy of the leased apartment, dating from the day of induction. Both lease and rent charges will terminate as of the induction date, if so desired, but the immediate family need not vacate the premises until an additional 60-day period (or less) has expired.

It is our belief that this rent-free period (up to 60 days) will prove a great boon to families forced to make readjustments because the head of the household is entering the services. We urge any of our tenants facing problems of this nature to communicate with us and let us help to the best of our ability.

WITH U. S. MEAT SHORT, CANADA'S ADS CRY: PLENTY

Photos Show Cases Full of Choice Cuts.

BY ROY GIBBONS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 1. — Advertisements appearing in recent issues of Canadian newspapers received here continue to carry displays of meat and other food items which still are being sold in that country without restriction, but are curtailed in the United States under rationing regulations, observers said today.

One such ad, occupying a full page in the April 19 Montreal [Que.] Daily Star, presents a message of Dominion Stores, Ltd., on "Why tens of thousands like buying Dominion meat!"

The ad features an illustration, eight columns wide and 10 inches deep, showing juicy beef carcasses of the sort this correspondent described in recent articles on Canadian rationing in THE TRIBUNE.

Show Jammed Meat Case.

The same photographs show refrigeration and buying scenes and a display case that appears so jammed with meat cuts that some have been placed atop the counter for lack of space inside.

This company advertises that it employs 300 skilled butchers in its various stores and states that all its "quality and value" meat comes "from packing house to you."

Plenty in Ontario.

Meat and other food items scarce in this country apparently are as plentiful in Ontario province as in Montreal, judging by advertisments in the St. Thomas [Ont.] Times Journal of April 15.

A firm named Loblaws employs three columns of space to advertise foods, including sirloin steaks, short rib roasts, alligator pears, and ready to serve cooked meats—and no rationing coupons required. Another food shop advertises bananas as well as meats.

Prices Remain Low.

The advertisments indicate Canadian stores have been able to maintain plentiful supplies while charging prices in most cases as low or lower than prevail in New York City, where a meat shortage threatens. A comparison of prices per pound [unless otherwise specified] follows:

	Canada.	N. Y. City.
Rib roast	30	28-45c
Short rib roast [thick]	33c	39-45c
Blade roast	27-31c	26-36c

Sirlion steak, prime	39c	31-69c
Meat loaf [Dutch style]	26c	31-45c
Liver and cheese loaf	35c	39-45c
Summer sausage	37c	63c
Salami	37c	49-75c
Spicked pork loaf [sliced]	21c	49c
Flour, 7 lb. bag	29c	32c
Flour, 24 lb. bag	84c	$1.04

CHERRY PICKING JOBS PLANNED FOR CITY YOUTHS

3,000 Boys and Girls Will Be Hired.

A month's employment picking cherries in Door county, Wis., will be offered to 3,000 young Chicagoans 14 to 17 years old under a plan announced yesterday by Carl A. Schroeder, chief law clerk in the office of the board of election commissioners.

Schroeder, who has supervised cherry picking crews in Door county during his summer vacations for a number of years, said he has been named by the Door County Fruit Growers association to organize the Chicago group of youthful workers.

10,000 Workers Needed.

The association estimates 10,000 workers will be needed in the Door county orchards from about July 4 to Aug. 10. Both boys and girls are to be sought in Chicago, and they are to be recruited thru the schools and such youth organizations as the Boy Scouts and Y. M. C. A. The organizations will be invited to send along their own youth leaders as supervisors, and these will be paid by the growers. Detailed plans for organizing the Chicago groups will be announced later, Schroeder said.

Pickers Will Make Money.

Schroeder stressed adequate supervision of the youths will be provided by growers, who are lining up such persons as educators and athletic coaches for this work. The pickers will live in barracks, cabins, and in some instances tents. Recreation programs planned for the young pickers' idle hours will include swimming, hikes, and various sports.

Earnings of the pickers will considerably more than pay expenses, Schroeder said. A youth can earn $3 a day and upward, and he estimated board and room will cost about $1 a day.

The growers, Schroeder said, are organizing the young pickers as a "Cherryland Crop corps," and many of the growers plan to provide part of their work clothing.

About 70 per cent of the cherries harvested in Door county will go to the army and navy. The county is expected to harvest about 30 million pounds this season.

NEW 2D ARMY PROBLEM GETS FINAL TOUCHES

Units on Maneuvers Draw Respite.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Field Headquarters, 2d Army, Lebanon, Tenn., May 1.—Officers and men relaxed in the field today after a week of exertions on the first problem of their dress rehearsal for war, and headquarters officers put the finishing touches on next week's problem, which will reproduce realistically another aspect of modern battle.

Liberty passes were being issued sparingly to avoid overcrowding of towns in the maneuver area, and the men lucky enough to win them were ordered to return to their units by midnight.

Governed by Strict Rules.

Strict wartime rules of conduct govern the men while they are away from camp, and sufficient military police are on hand to enforce these orders.

The third fatality of the 1943 maneuvers was announced by military headquarters today. Pvt. Richard M. Sharlow, member of a signal company in an armored division, was fatally injured yesterday when the army vehicle in which he was riding left highway 96 half a mile from Cottage Home.

He was the son of Mrs. Frances Sharlow of Albany, Cal.

Long Stay in Field.

Combat forces in the maneuvers will remain in the field thruout the current phase, which will end June 20. They will have no foreknowledge of the conditions of any problem, and may not reconnoiter each other between problems, it was said.

We also forget that just as Hitler was coming into power and long before self-government in England was abolished, an effort was made to change our republic into an empire by the acts of congress establishing the NRA and the NIRA. These acts attempted to delegate to the executive the powers of congress just as was done in Rome and has been done in the other countries I have named.

Court Decision Cited.

These abdications were restrained only by the Supreme court of the United States in a decision saying in part:

"The Constitution established a national government with powers deemed to be adequate, as they have proved to be both in war and peace, but these powers of the national government are limited by the constitutional grants.

"Such assertions of extra constitutional authority were anticipated and precluded by the explicit terms of the 10th Amendment — 'The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, or prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively or to the people.'

"The congress is authorized 'to make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution' its general powers. The congress is not permitted to abdicate or to transfer to others the essential functions with which it is thus vested . . .

"But we said that the constant recognition of the necessity and validity of such provisions, and the wide range of administrative authority which has been developed by means of them, cannot be allowed to obscure the limitations of the authority to delegate, if our constitutional system is to be maintained . . .

Quotes Justice Cardozo.

Mr. Justice Cardozo concurring, said:

"The delegated power of legislation which has found expression in this code is not canalized within banks that keep it from overflowing. It is unconfined and vagrant . . .

"The extension becomes as wide as the field of industrial regulation. If that conception shall prevail, anything that congress may do within the limits of the commerce clause may be done by the President upon the recommendation of a trade association by calling it a code. This is delegation running riot. No such plenitude of power is susceptible of transfer."

Unlike all of the other countries in the world, we still retain our liberties because we have a written Constitution and a perspicacious and courageous Supreme court. We also are continuing to have elections and registration in this country, also due to our written Constitution.

ROUT 200 BOOKIE PATRONS, JAIL 18 MEN AND WOMEN

More than 200 Derby day patrons were routed by police raids on 10 alleged handbooks in and near the loop yesterday. Eighteen men and a woman were arrested and charged as keepers. At 29 East Roosevelt road and 225 West Van Buren street, loudspeaker systems and gambling paraphernalia were confiscated.

Two men were seized at 4715 Madison street by Fillmore street police, who dispersed 35 patrons. On the fifth floor at 208 North Wells street, police routed 75 bettors and arrested 2 men. Other raids were made at 119 South Wells street, 166 West Monroe street, 1210 South Michigan avenue, 410 Sherman street, 335 West Madison street, and 434 West Cermak road. At the latter place, Mrs. Marie Rinella, 35 years old, 515 Addison street, and her husband, Joseph, 51, were arrested by Capt. Michael Naughton of the Commissioner Allman's office.

Chief Justice Edward S. Scheffler of Municipal court announced the assignment to Racket court of Judge Oscar S. Caplan, whose previous term of 15 months resulted in the conviction of more than 60 per cent of the gamblers arraigned there.

The inspecting officer was Capt. Benyuard B. Wygant of the United States navy, commanding officer of the Abbott Hall Midshipmen's school. He was assisted by Sea Scout officials. Following the inspection there was a presentation of awards to groups and individuals.

The event was sponsored by the Sea Scout committee of the Chicago Council of the Boy Scouts of America. Music was provided by the Leyden Community High School band under the direction of Fred A. Kruger.

April Fire Alarms Show Increase Over Last Year

Fire Commissioner Michael J. Corrigan reported yesterday there were 158 more fire alarms in Chicago during April than in the same month of the preceding year. April alarms totaled 2,940, compared with 2,782 a year ago. Extra alarm fires decreased from 11 to 9.

DEDICATE NEW WOMEN'S HOME; HONOR DOCTOR

Dedication of the new Sarah Hackett Stevenson memorial at 1400 Monroe street and celebration of the organization's 50th anniversary took place at the building yesterday. Judge John F. O'Connell of the Cook county Probate court delivered the dedicatory address, and the formal program was followed by a tea.

What is now called the Sarah Hackett Stevenson memorial originally was known as the Women's Model Lodging house and was established by the woman for whom it is now named.

Dr. Stevenson, a noted woman physician, first set up the lodging house in the Hull House area. After several moves, it was established in buildings on Prairie avenue in 1914 when the name was changed. Dr. Stevenson died in 1909.

PLUNGE VICTIM RULED SUICIDE.

5,000 FESTIVAL BROCHURES ARE PLACED IN MAIL

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Five thousand handsome brochures, telling of the 14th annual Chicago Music Festival, to be held Saturday night, Aug. 21, in Soldiers' field, will be found on the desks of music leaders of the middle west tomorrow morning. With the invitations went information concerning the various festival contests which highlight the summer's activities.

Again the festival is dedicated to the United States army and navy and to the thousands of Americans, both on the fighting front and at home.

Proceeds for Service Relief.

The festival is sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and the proceeds, above expenses, again will go to the army and navy relief. Last summer 85,000 people were thrilled by the program in Soldiers' field and a large part of the concert was heard on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system. During the summer preliminary festivals, held in coöperation with the Chicago Music Festival, will be conducted thruout Chicagoland. These festivals will be held as follows:

Friday, June 11—Fourth Annual Gary Music Festival, Gary Memorial auditorium, Gary.

Saturday, July 10—International Gardens Music Festival, International Gardens, near Michigan City.

Urbana Festival Slated.

Another festival will be held in Hammond. The date will be announced later.

Friday noon, Aug. 20, the seventh annual festival luncheon will be held in the grand ballroom of the Palmer House. Last year more than 1,500 people attended. Honor guests will be Dr. Edgar Stillman Kelley, dean of American composers, and Mrs. Kelley, a former president of the National Federation of Music Clubs. Admission to the festival in Soldiers' field will be 55 cents and $1.10, both seats reserved. They will be ready about July 15. The luncheon plates are $1.75 each and are available now. Festival headquarters is located on the fourth floor of Tribune Tower.

QUIETEST MAY 1 MOVING DAY IN CITY REPORTED

With federal rent authorities, movers, landlords, and tenants prepared for trouble, the annual May 1 moving day passed yesterday with less confusion and disorder than on any May 1 in the memory of veteran movers and real estate men.

Moving companies credited the lack of confusion to the cool, clear weather which enabled their employés to transport household goods without weather protection. Rent officials believed that their warnings to landlords and tenants served to iron out difficulties before moving day. Real estate men said the decrease in the number of families moving was responsible.

It was estimated by the Chicago Real Estate board that about 25,000 families moved. "With approximately 1,000,000 dwelling units in Chicago, this is a remarkably small turnover in tenancy and is the main reason for the minimum of commotion," said Leonard Downie, business manager of the board.

BANKER BRANDS POINT RATIONING PAIN IN THE HEAD

Decides Chinese Puzzle Inventor Designed It.

Bloomington, Ill., May 1 [Special]. —The point rationing system is the "biggest headache ever perpetrated upon the American people," Grover C. Helm, bank president, war loan director, and former food administrator, declared today in an interview.

"Whoever thought of this system of point rationing in its present form must have been an inventor of a Chinese puzzle," Helm asserted. "The work and worry, beginning with the housewife, then to the merchants, and finally to the bank, are causing such confusion that people don't know which way to turn."

Mr. Helm has an unusually wide background of personal experience with the distribution of food. During the last war he was food administrator in charge of a large district in this area. For 35 years he has owned a general store. He also owns a wholesale produce business and 1,400 acres of land.

Heads National Bank.

He is president of the National Bank of Bloomington, which is a clearing house, as are other banks, for ration points deposited by restaurants and various wholesale and retail businesses. He also is regional chairman of the second war loan drive for a district comprising more than 60 Illinois counties.

"I have been hearing about this thing in first hand contacts from all sides," Mr. Helm explained. "I have contact with the business people who are complaining about it. From the manager of my little general store I have heard the day by day story of 'this nonsense,' as he puts it.

"In traveling thru the state in the war bond campaign I have talked with farmers, business people, and householders. And I know it from the bank's handling of ration accounts, which in some cases are in the ratio of five ration accounts to one money account.

"With so many people upset over the terrific amount of time wasted, it just got to the point where I decided somebody ought to say something about it.

Using Up Man Power.

"Man power is very important. We certainly are not helping the situation in piling upon hundreds of thousands of people almost as much work taking care of an intricate system of rationing as the hours consumed in the ordinary conduct of business.

"I understand there are 148 ceilings on pork products alone. In the average meat market there are 198 rationed items, in the grocery store 850.

"I have asked prominent merchants for their suggestions in modification of the program. I have been told by practical business men from behind their own counters that not over 10 ration items represent 75 per cent of the total business done in a meat market and the same percentage holds good in a grocery."

Mr. Helm criticized the prices being charged for all classes of merchandise at the source.

Forced to Buy Squash.

"I am told," he continued, "by a man buying car lots of new potatoes that in order to get half a car it was necessary for him to take the balance of the car in squash and carrots at a price much higher than any market could afford. He bought the commodities, knowing he will take a loss on the squash and carrots.

"The publicity given to rationing of food and household commodities has only excited the average American and the fear of not being able to get the necessities of life has driven them into buying and hoarding some items which will spoil on their hands.

"Isn't there some man or group of men with official authority, who are willing to recognize the hundreds of men in this country who did business during the last war and are still actively engaged in the food business today?

"Our memory goes back to Harry A. Wheeler and his most efficient volunteer corps of administrators in the state of Illinois. In county after county the grocery men kept a complete record of every rationed item they sold to their trade and only in a few instances did the records disclose duplicating purchases by consumers of that county." [Rationing was on a voluntary basis in the last war.]

A large advertisment, setting forth Mr. Helm's views on the ration system, was published in the local paper here over the signature of the National Bank of Bloomington.

OBITUARIES

William K. Palmer Sr.

William K. Palmer Sr., who had lived for 50 years in the same home at 6424 Fairfield avenue, Berwyn, died yesterday at the age of 89 in the Berwyn hospital. He was born in England, and came to Chicago with his parents when he was 3 years old. The family's first home was on Madison street, in what is now downtown Chicago. Mr. Palmer served for 54 years with the Albert Dickinson Seed company, retiring as credit manager. He leaves his widow, Isabelle; a son and a daughter. Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Tuesday in the chapel at 6910 Windsor avenue, Berwyn.

Denzil A. Fitch.

Funeral services for Denzil A. Fitch, a laundry owner at Mendota, La Salle county more than 40 years, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in Mendota. His widow, Elizabeth; two sons, and two daughters survive.

VOTERS ADMIT BALLOTING IN WRONG PRECINCT

Nearly 40 witnesses testified yesterday before a state senate subcommittee investigating the election contest challenging the right of Lawrence E. Dowd to hold office as state senator from the 1st senatorial district.

Dowd, a Democrat, apparently won by a small margin over his Republican opponent, Hobart E. Neff, in the November, 1942, election. One of the principal charges is that some voters voted in precincts in which they did not live.

Yesterday's hearing, held at 160 North La Salle street, concerned that charge. Most of the witnesses were asked merely where they lived on election day and where they had voted. A number indicated they had voted out of their precincts. Senator Walker Butler is chairman of the subcommittee.

GREEN PRAISES SALVATION ARMY ON 50TH YEAR

Gov. Dwight H. Green praised the Salvation Army last night as brave soldiers in an address in the Chicago Gospel Tabernacle as the midwest area celebrated the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Lakeview corps of the Salvation Army.

The corps was established by Capt. Agusta Danielsen and Miss Lena Gustavson at 1057 Wellington street, Col. Tom Gabrielson recounted in presenting Gov. Green.

"Americans of Swedish ancestry have played a vital rôle in America," said Gov. Green, "and we will fight to the last man for this America and the America of tomorrow."

Dr. C. E. Wallenius greeted the corps as a representative of Swedish Methodists. The Swedish male chorus and the United Church chorus sang.

CLOSING OF GAS STATIONS OPENS WAY TO THIEVES

Public Asked to Assist in Protection.

Vandals and thieves have done thousands of dollars worth of damage to the 1,000 Chicago metropolitan area gasoline service stations, closed because of wartime gasoline and rubber restrictions, B. M. Provis, president of the Gasoline Retailers association of metropolitan Chicago, reported yesterday.

He gave his full support to a proposal by J. H. Maier, 3746 West 60th place, in a letter to THE TRIBUNE, that signs be placed on service stations and other properties made idle by the war, to urge coöperation of the public in protecting them. Such signs, Maier proposed, should remind the public that the owners either have gone to war or were forced out of business by the wartime economy.

Steal Motors from Pumps.

"Thruout Chicago and its suburbs," Provis said, "you can find service stations badly damaged by vandals and thieves. Windows are broken and pumps smashed. Motors and other equipment connected with the gasoline pumps have been stolen. Much of this is done by malicious youths, but some of it is just plain theft.

"In a number of cases the property owner has taken precautions and has boarded up windows, doors, and pumps," Provis said, "yet vandals and thieves have torn away the boards and gone to work on the property.

"When a service station is closed," Provis continued, "equipment should be moved when possible, and any other equipment, along with windows and doors, should be boarded up. Then it would be a good thing to place a sign along the lines suggested which would remind all who pass by of the circumstances and ask their help in protecting the property."

Police Coöperating.

Provis said that in 1941 about 2,500 service stations were operating in the Chicago metropolitan area, and estimated not more than 1,500 of them are still in business.

"I have no data on this type of vandalism," Police Commissioner Allman said. "These crimes are investigated in the districts. Police are under instructions to give full coöperation in tracing down these or any other types of crimes."

Placing the proposed signs on the vacant properties would be a matter for the property owner to handle, and not the police department, Commissioner Allman said.

500 WAR GARDEN PLANTERS NEED A MAN WITH A HOE

The man without a hoe cannot garden, and this simple fact may cause thousands of plots planted with vegetables to go to weeds during the summer, E. W. Turner, civilian defense director of victory gardens on the near north side, said yesterday. Tenants of the Mother Cabrini apartments have plowed 500 gardens, but not one of the families has a hoe, he said. He suggested that persons who own idle hoes give them to superintendents of neighborhood parks for distribution to gardeners, or donate them to the Mother Cabrini families. There is a shortage of new garden tools, Turner said.

A KNOTTY IDEA ON HOW TO KEEP A FARMER BUSY

And He Probably Will Be Fit to Be Tied.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 1 [Special].—As tho they don't have enough to do this spring, farmers in Minnesota are being schooled in how to tie a "fire underwriters" knot.

Credit for the knot tying idea goes to the United States department of agriculture's extension division at the University of Minnesota. The division adapted to farming a similar syllabus prepared by the war man power commission and entitled "Training Within Industry."

It is not claimed that the knot will directly help the farmer with the really knotty problem of getting his crops in. But by learning to interlace a piece of electrical cord in the knot chosen, it is intended that farmers will absorb a method of instruction for teaching green hands to do farm work.

Tho that may sound involved—the farmer learning to tie knots so his new help will learn to use a pitch fork—it's all supposed to work out to something in the end.

The whole system is explained in great detail in a 22 page booklet being issued to county agents who are expected to organize the knot tying bees. About 250 copies of the course of study have been distributed to county agents and extension field workers who have taken courses of instruction to learn how to instruct farmers to instruct their new help, if any.

Step by step the compendium outlines the procedure for the little rural conventions, some of which already have been held.

Any Labor Problems?

The first thing the teacher is advised to do is to gather the farmers from their fields and have them sit down in a "U." Then, for 15 minutes, the teacher explains that farm labor is scarce because there is a war on. A guide line on each page tells exactly how much time to spend with each subject.

"Do you have any labor problems?" the teacher is directed to ask these laboring men who are wondering where they will get the help to operate their farms. Apparently lest the farmers' lives are devoid of difficulties, the teacher hands out mimeographed lists of 21 problems an average farmer might have.

He goes merrily on: "Do we all agree, then, that we all have similar labor problems?" It is not expected that the farmers will dispute him.

A Chalk Talk, Too.

He gets out a piece of chalk and writes on a blackboard "How to get A man to do A job" and under this the words "correctly, quickly, conscientiously." He is leading up to the knot tying.

And now the tying begins. The booklet cautions the teacher: "Be sure you can tie the knot" and gives him detailed instructions as to how it is done. It also warns him: "Do not try to ad lib or trust to memory; follow the outline to the letter."

It is assumed that no farmer knows how to tie the knot, so the teacher glibly reels off the verbose instructions in the booklet. Then he hands a piece of two strand electrical wire to a farmer and tells him to tie it. There is no mention of priorities in getting the wire necessary for these meetings.

Thanks for Trying.

"After he tries and fails," the instruction goes confidently on. "Thank him for trying and tell him, 'The failure was not your fault nor my fault. Just telling was not enough. It was not good instruction.'"

So the next method, of showing only, is tried. Assuming that the teacher has learned to tie the knot, he does so without accompanying words. To be sure that some quick-witted farmer doesn't spoil the act by being able to tie it from this demonstration, the booklet advises: "Do it in front of him 6 to 10 feet away and be sure he sees it backward."

Again the wire is given to a farmer and, it is hoped, he will fail to tie it. Again the patronizing explanation that it was no one's fault; it was the method. At this stage, the farmers should have spent an hour and 15 minutes in the class.

But here comes the knockout blow. To teach a man to do something, the teacher says, and he demonstrates with another willing farmer, first put a man at his ease, learn his background, develop his interest, place him in the proper position, show and tell him what to do, have him do the job and explain it back, then answer his questions.

Then the teacher hands the farmer, assuming they are still there, little sheets of paper which bear the heading "Be patient with the boys" and contains suggestions for farmers employing inexperienced help.

The booklet suggests that the farmers, having learned to tie knots, spend another half hour during which the instructor will demonstrate the method on 49 farm chores that include using a manure fork, filing a hoe, building a fire, making a calf drink milk, and delousing a chicken.

County Spelling Champs

QUESTIONNAIRE'S A JINX—EVEN TO CHAMP SPELLER

Flossmoor Girl, 12, Is County Winner.

Sixty-five grade school students, their young bodies lost in the aldermen's big bucket chairs, yesterday turned in one of the best pieces of writing ever done on the aldermen's desks in the fancy city council chamber. The occasion was the annual Cook county spelling meet.

For two hours the room was full of big words. Then County Supt. Noble J. Puffer, who had read the words from four carefully prepared lists, stepped down from the rostrum and pinned a medal on the sweater of Mary Zinn, 12 years old, 1242 Braeburn road, Flossmoor, recognizing her officially as the best speller in all the county's schools.

Winner Isn't Elated.

Mary, who won the title altho she misspelled questionnaire in a run-off test, was disgusted with herself. "To think I put two r's in questionnaire," she said. "Anybody should have known better than that."

Second place went to Don Speer, 12, of 8040 Long avenue, Skokie. "Spelling just comes natural if you read good books a lot," he said.

Third place winner, Paul Baptist, 12, of Tinley Park, who also won third place last year, made two announcements: "I'm in a rut," he said. "And I'm no sissy. I'll take on anybody who says I'm a sissy. I want to be a baseball player."

Boys Stand Out Proudly.

While the title went to a girl, this year the boys could be proud of their accomplishments. Statistics showed 38 girls and 27 boys entered the meet; six girls and seven boys spelled perfectly the first list of 50 words. In the second test Mary Zinn and Don Speer both misspelled questionnaire, while four others missed two words each. In the championship runoff Mary beat Don by spelling correctly 12 of 15 difficult words against 10 out of 15 for Don.

The four who missed two words each in the second test were Paul Baptist—who won third place in a runoff among the four — Joan Boner, 13, 17906 Sayre avenue, a fellow student of Paul's at Tinley Park; Rosemary Peterson, 13, Roselle, and Edel Thies, 14, 13918 Edbrooke avenue, Riverdale.

First Test Sets Record.

The record of one out of five entrants earning a perfect grade in the first test was the best in the history of the spelling meets, Puffer said.

These record makers were the six who entered the runoffs and: Barbara Locke, 13, Chicago Heights; Harold Ahrens, 13, 8539 River Grove avenue, River Grove; Howard Busby, 14, Hinsdale; Dale Robinson, 13, 11701 South Harding, Blue Island; Lorraine Rachter, 13, Tinley Park; Harold R. Harding, 12, Palos Park; and James Davis, 13, of 401 South 22d avenue, Bellewood.

In the final test Mary Zinn missed peripatetic, peregrination, and annihilate. Young Speer missed peripatetic, peregrination, fuchsia, heinous, and sanguine.

Friend of the Yanks

H. S. writes: "I noticed the item in your column mentioning the SeaBees, and like the other man who wrote in, I too, have not had a college education. In fact, I only went as far as the eighth grade, but I've had about 20 years of heavy construction experience, the last 13 as foreman and superintendent. What is the highest rating I could get? Could I qualify for a commission?"

ANSWER: We visited the navy office and discussed your letter with their officers and this is what they said:

"The fact that this man has had only a limited education does not mean that he can't do an excellent job for the navy in the SeaBees. His construction experience, and particularly the last 13 years as foreman and superintendent, indicates he has just the experience and qualifications we need most desperately. We must have leadership, the ability to handle men, and many years of experience as foremen, pushers, sub-bosses, or superintendents will assuredly qualify men for a warrant officer rank or better.

The warrant officer is in charge of several hundreds of assorted tradesmen, men who have had many years of experience in putting up great structures of the kind the navy will have to build. We need warrant carpenters, plumbers, masons, electricians, and all sorts of skills and trades. Tell every one of these men to visit our offices for a personal interview so we may have an opportunity to see and talk personally with them and tell them the whole story."

The Friend of the Yanks has collected a number of articles containing information about the construction battalion. Send a large envelope and we'll send it to you. If you can spare the time, however, visit the Office of Naval Officer Procurement, Board of Trade, Chicago.

H. R. writes: "We have been married six years and are expecting our first baby next month. Since the 3-A classification has been abolished for all men who became fathers after Sept. 15, 1942, what will happen to me? I am a Chicago police officer. Aren't police officers considered essential and entitled to deferment?"

ANSWER: You may expect to be reclassified to 1-A and inducted according to your order number with childless fathers. Policemen and firemen cannot be considered for occupational deferment.

NOTE: Will Paul W. Jorgensen please call or write to us?

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries.]

Kidneys May Need Help to Clean Out Excess Acids

If you're feeling out o'sorts, Get Up Nights or suffer from Burning Passages, Backache, Swollen Ankles, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains, Dizziness, Circles Under Eyes and feel worn-out, the cause may be non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles.

Worry, Colds, working too hard, or overeating or drinking may create an excess of Acids and overload your Kidneys so that they need help to flush out poisonous wastes that might otherwise undermine your health.

Help Kidneys Remove Acids

Nature provides the Kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess Acids. The Kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters through which the heart pumps blood about 200 times an hour, night and day, so it's easy to see that they may get tired and slow down when overloaded.

Sixteen years ago a practicing physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles in these three simple ways: 1. Help the Kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisoning and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3. Help the Kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, which may easily make you feel years younger.

Guaranteed Trial Offer

Usually, in non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder disorders the very first dose of Cystex goes right to work helping the Kidneys flush out excess Acids, poisons and wastes. And this cleansing, purifying Kidney action, in just a day or so, may easily make you feel younger, stronger and better than in years. An iron clad guarantee insures an immediate refund of all your money unless you are completely satisfied. Get Cystex from your druggist today for only 35c.

Author's Note: Cystex is produced under the direction of a licensed physician for The Knox Co., one of the largest drug companies in the world with laboratory connections in the U.S.A., Canada, England, Australia and South America. The guarantee of money back unless satisfied is enforced 100% and is a dependable form of assurance to all users of Cystex.

REPORT JEFFERS DRAFTS DEMAND FOR SHOWDOWN

Rubber Chief Is to Face Probers Tomorrow.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 1.—Rubber Director William M. Jeffers was reported to be preparing a statement this week-end urging that either he or Robert P. Patterson, undersecretary of war, vacate Washington.

Which one would get the Presidential boot, under this proposal, would depend on the outcome of a hearing begun this week and to be concluded next week on Patterson's charge that Jeffers has weakened the allied air power by hogging for synthetic rubber plants equipment also needed for aviation gasoline refineries.

The hearings, conducted by a senate investigation committee headed by Sen. Harry S. Truman [D., Mo.], are to reopen Monday with Jeffers on the witness stand. Patterson is scheduled to testify Tuesday, possibly to be followed by rebuttal testimony by Jeffers.

Blast at Setup Reported.

Unless his temper is cooled in the meantime, Jeffers is likely to be irate when he takes the witness stand. The first draft of his statement suggesting his or Patterson's resignation was reported to assail much of the setup organized by President Roosevelt to manage the home front in war time.

Associates said Jeffers feels that the charge against him is tantamount to one of treason. As a business man and a private citizen, summoned to Washington last September for his first public job, he believes he has a right to be more sensitive to abuse than a politician might be. His intimates said he wants not only vindication but also punitive damages in the form of Patterson's resignation.

The Truman committee is to hear a complete review of the rubber situation from Jeffers. Earlier testimony by Harold L. Ickes, petroleum administrator, and James V. Forrestal, undersecretary of the navy, tended to support Patterson's charge. Ickes testified that his refinery construction was tardy in part because of Jeffers' success in obtaining equipment for rubber plants. Forrestal blamed Jeffers for delays in building escort vessels for use in combatting submarines.

Transport Held Vital.

Jeffers' contention is that all war and civilian production, including aviation gasoline and escort vessels, would collapse if motor transportation failed to receive adequate rubber, and that military operations against the enemy require a sound home front dependent upon rubber borne transportation. It is expected his testimony will deny implications that he is coddling motorists at the expense of war programs.

Jeffers, who rose from call boy to president of the Union Pacific railroad, is expected to cite his White House order to carry the rubber program thru to completion. He is expected to give a picture of the outlook today. He is said to believe that America is not going to lose this war for lack of rubber, a statement that could not have been made with assurance last September.

No predictions on Patterson's testimony have been heard. Those who know him do not think he will apologize publicly to Jeffers. There have been reports that the White House is suggesting that he try to placate Jeffers for the sake of a little less turmoil in a war and strike worried capital. From those who know Roosevelt there was no hint that Patterson's job is in jeopardy. They tell of worse rows in the official family without the President cracking down.

The Blossom festival, which in the past, sponsored the salon, has been canceled because of the war.

First place in the exhibit was warded to Ocean Ballet," by Grace M. Ballentine of Upper Montclaire, N. J., who had two prints accepted. "Rock of Ages," by Charles K. Etherington of Upper Montclair, N. J., placed second, and "Undaunted," by S. L. Hereford of Bartlesville, Okla., third.

LAUNDRY PRICES INCREASED ONLY 1½%, OPA SAYS

An increase of less than 1½ per cent in the total laundry bill of the Chicago metropolitan area will result from higher price ceilings granted yesterday to 65 power laundries, Raymond S. McKeough, regional price administrator, said last night.

The OPA denied the applications of 63 other power laundries for ceiling increases. The increases which were allowed will expire July 31, when flat dollars and cents maximum prices may be established for the Chicago area, McKeough said.

Some laundries in Chicago had been threatening to suspend business because of rising labor costs.

YOUTHFUL CRIME CHEATS NATION, SBARBARO SAYS

Warns Prison, Not Army, Takes Too Many.

BY GEORGE WRIGHT.

A warning that juvenile crime is on the increase and may reach crime wave proportions was sounded yesterday by Chief Justice John A. Sbarbaro of the Criminal court. At the same time the judge announced that the court docket is in better condition than it has been in years and speedy justice can be expected by criminals, irrespective of age.

Youthful criminals, 16 to 23 years old, occupy most of the time of the Criminal court judges and prosecutors, the judge said. Their depredations are becoming worse, he said statistics show, and unless parents, churches, schools and social agencies institute an effective crime prevention program, the city will soon be in the throes of an unprecedented crime wave.

215 Indictments Pending.

The judges will start the May term of court on Monday with 215 pending indictments, according to the report of Thomas J. Bowler, clerk of the court. This compares with 361 at the same time last year. Judge Sbarbaro and his associates have disposed of 1,306 indictments since last Sept., or 146 more than the grand juries returned in the same period.

The state's attorney's office reported the record of dispositions is unprecedented, especially since the court has operated with one less judge than usual and another, Judge George Fred Rush, has been ill for several months. Judge Sbarbaro alone has disposed of 725 cases since September. His associates are Judge Rudolph Desort, Judge Donald S. McKinlay, Judge Harold B. Ward, and Judge Stanley Klarkowski.

Should Be in Battle.

"Youth and war conditions are no excuse for crime," said Judge Sbarbaro. "Speed is the motto of the court and justice requires punishment for those who transgress the laws. It is heart breaking to have to sentence, day after day, groups of youths 16 to 23 years old, but the judges have no alternative except to enforce the laws.

"These boys should be serving their country with honor on the battlefields instead of getting themselves into the penitentiary and forever placing a stigma against their names.

"War conditions naturally aggravate the juvenile delinquency problem," continued the judge. "The most important factor in preventing delinquency is undoubtedly the home. Children should have proper home supervision even if both parents work in war industries.

Last Fling Is Fatal.

"Insecurity and uncertainty arise in the minds of the youth in war time. Many of them feel that they want one last fling before they go into the services. Too often it ends up in a life of crime. Proper home supervision would prevent this.

"In addition many youths are working and receiving salaries far beyond anything they received heretofore, and this factor, altho it may seem strange, sometimes breeds crime. Many of our criminologists are inclined to regard inflated earnings of today as a direct incentive to delinquency."

The judge said he is a great believer in competitive athletics and that his experience first as a prosecutor and later a judge shows that few youths of this type get in trouble. A "go to church" movement by both parents and their children is also a great backset to crime, he said.

Employés of Marshall Field & Co. yesterday led a long list of group contributors with a donation of $10,985 to the Red Cross war fund, bringing the total of the current campaign to $7,322,842, or 84 per cent of its goal of $8,750,000 in Chicago.

A tinkle of broken glass as the amber wine trickles down her graceful prow... crowds cheer as whistles shriek... a crackling roar of timbers... and a land-born lady of the seas glides like a gleaming dolphin into her natural element!

PRAIRIE SCHOONER—1943 MODEL

CHICAGO, home of so many of America's great industries, has given the nation many "firsts"—the first McCormick reaper—the first Pullman car—the first steel skyscraper—the first streamliner*—and numerous others. Now, Pullman-Standard launches the first ocean-going Patrol Craft built in Chicago.

* * *

The speed with which these ships will be launched, and how many of them there will be to harass the undersea wolf packs are wartime secrets. But we can tell our enemies this much—there will be enough to make them sorry that, in their thirst for world domination, they forgot to reckon with "verdammte Yankee ingenuity"; yes, ingenuity and engineering skill that found a way to fabricate and launch ocean-going fighting ships where once the sturdy pioneers explored uncharted wastes and pushed their ox-teams on to new horizons to found a great city.

Built by Pullman-Standard*

Such persistence and indomitable courage are the heritage of the American people today.

* * *

There is reason for pride in the first ship we have produced in our 84 years of service in helping to build America... 84 fruitful years that have given us production know-how, expert engineering and metallurgical knowledge, and an organization to utilize that knowledge with millions of man- and machine-hours to speed the flow of armament for our land, sea, and air forces. This co-ordinated effort of employes and management is a demonstration of the tremendous strides American industry—of which this Company is proud to be a part—has made in arming the nation. It is proof of what free enterprise can accomplish to preserve the American Way of Life.

* * *

There is reason for pride, too, in our workers for their loyal, patriotic co-operation... their versatility in adapting to shipbuilding the trades and skills they used as carbuilders. Truly, when the full story of Pullman-Standard's accomplishments as shipbuilders can be told it will make an exciting chapter in the saga of American armament production.

COUNT FLEET WINS DERBY; BLUE SWORDS 2D

ACTION AT THE FINISH OF KENTUCKY'S MOST FAMOUS HORSE RACE

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Charging under the finish wire, Count Fleet is living up to bettors' expectations in yesterday's Kentucky Derby by winning handily at the shortest price in the history of the famous race. The hopes of other owners who entered their charges in the event are strung far along the track, only Blue Swords being close enough in the stretch to have given anything like a challenge to the victor.

SOX GET 13 HITS OFF GALEHOUSE, CASTER; HAYNES STARS IN RELIEF

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The White Sox made the startling discovery yesterday that there was nothing wrong with them that couldn't be cured by a few base hits. Giving the lie to the base rumor that they knew little of the purpose for which bats are manufactured, James Dykes' ensemble exploded a total of 13 safe drives, an amount sufficient to subdue Luke Sewell's Browns in the delayed opener of the series, 5 to 4.

However, the second success of the season for the Sox wasn't achieved without a panic, in which Eddie Smith was main victim. Little Eddie was belted more soundly than usual and was taken out of circulation in the sixth, the same inning in which a pinch hitter helped to get him back on an even basis. Then Joe Haynes took charge of the enemy, being so frisky in his maiden 1943 appearance that he didn't yield a hit in his three inning stretch. As a reward, he drew credit for the victory, the result of a run fixed up for him in the seventh.

Caster Is the Victim.

While they were putting together their two tying runs in the sixth the Sox knocked Denny Galehouse out of the picture and also had some fun with George Caster, the latter being so pleasing that they picked on him some more in the decisive seventh. Joe Kuhel singled with one out. Julius Solters also singled and so did Don Kolloway, who previously had picked up a single and a triple. Kolloway's third hit sent Kuhel galloping across the plate, but it also revealed that Solters hasn't overcome his long time weakness for wandering on the base lines. The Browns caught him off second on the throw-in.

Haynes' finishing job was so near perfect that only one Brown reached base and Joe had no part in that. He fanned one of the three men who faced him in the seventh. He did the same to two of them—Harlond Clift and Chet Laabs—in the eighth. For a starter in the ninth he induced Vern Stephens to tap gently to Dick Culler, but the kid fumbled, putting a possible tying run on base. Haynes promptly dispatched the next three men, two of them pinch batters.

Double Proves Costly.

Altho Smith was skilled enough to serve a one hit dish for four innings, the one hit hurt. It was a double to left by Stephens with one out in the second. Smith immediately developed a wild streak which produced passes for George McQuinn and Mike Kreevich, filling the bases. Stephens sprinted home with the afternoon's first run when Rick Ferrell flied to Solters. The Sox recaptured this run in the same inning. Kolloway singled, stopped at third when Moses doubled, and scored while Stephens was throwing out Culler.

Kreevich instigated the move that pried two runs from the Sox left hander in the fifth inning. The one time Iron Mike led off with a single and accepted a cheap ride to second on a passed ball by Mike Tresh. Ferrell looped a low single into right to move Kreevich to third and, after Galehouse had succumbed on strikes, Don Gutteridge banged a two bagger into left. Kreevich scored on the blow and Ferrell tried to count but was cut down on Luke Appling's relay throw to Tresh. Then, Clift doubled and Gutteridge

Cubs Fold 3d Time Before Truett Sewell

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 1 (AP).—Truett [Rip] Sewell, a good pitcher but still of this world except when he faces the Cubs, today whipped the frightened Chicagoans for the third time in the 11 day old 1943 season. The score was 6 to 3, and the Cubs' total was traceable to the efforts of Peanuts Lowrey, who joined the team only recently and hasn't learned to quake in his boots at the sight of Sewell. Peanuts, replacing the ailing Phil Cavarretta, doubled to drive in two of the Cubs' runs and scored the other one after singling.

Manager Jim Wilson today joined the Sewell panic. He served notice of protest on a matter of Umpire Lee Ballanfant's judgment. Ballanfant didn't appear to know what he was doing on the questioned play, but no one, in memory, has won a protest on a matter involving umpire's judgment. The protested play was purely incidental to the Cub foldup.

Sewell Laughs and Wins.

Sewell probably will beat the Cubs for a total greatly exceeding his four of last year. He has adopted a fiendish humor in toying with the befuddled Chicagoans. Today he still was throwing dipsy doodle pitches to the Chicago sluggers, and in the seventh inning, with the score 4 to 2, he retired three Cubs without a run after the bases had

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 1.—It took an aristocrat to prove that democracy works in America even on a race track. . . . Count Fleet, the people's choice, backed down to 2 to 5 in the mutuels today, made a show of the field in winning the 69th running of the Kentucky Derby by three lengths in the ordinary time of 2 minutes and 4 seconds. . . . His daddy, Reigh Count, splashed thru the mud and rain to win the 1928 Derby in 2 minutes 10 and 2-5 seconds. . . . It was apparent that the race was as good as over after Count Fleet shook off the challenge of Burnt Cork and Gold Shower in the first half mile. . . . He took the lead at that stage and never was headed thereafter. . . . Mrs. John D. Hertz, owner of the new king of the 3 year olds, said she had a feeling Count Fleet was going to be a Derby winner since he was a spindle legged colt romping thru the blue grass of her farm near Paris, Ky. . . . As Mrs. Hertz stepped into the reviewing stand to accept the victor's awards for the second time, she was enjoying a thrill shared by only one other woman in the history of the Derby. . . . Mrs. Payne Whitney won last year with Shut Out and in 1931 with Twenty Grand. . . .

It's probably just as well that the 69th Kentucky Derby was a hometown event. . . . Hundreds of travelers from remote points who in other years came to Churchill Downs to taste a Kentucky mint julep as much as to see the thorobreds run would have met with disappointment this time. . . . Bars in Louisville and at the Downs ran out of the Derby visitors' favorite drink early in the afternoon. . . . The cold weather of early spring injured the mint crop and the supply of bourbon on hand today was less than 10 per cent of the stock a year ago. . . . And how, suh, can you toast a Derby winner without a mint julep? . . . One of the moments of sport occurs annually when a hush falls over this historic track and the band strikes up "My Old Kentucky Home" as the horses come prancing out for the Derby. . . . That moment had more of a punch today than ever before because the throng of 65,000 knew that all over the world not only Kentucky boys but thousands of other Americans were listening to that grand old tune, glad that the folks at home are keeping things going while they are away. . . . Some of them may recall that Announcer Ted Husing was fired by telegraph for telling the radio public that that was Clyde Van Dusen splashing thru the mud and rain to win the 1929 Kentucky Derby while another announcer was enthusiastically exclaiming, "Here comes that pride of the Kentucky Bluegrass, folks—Blue Larkspur!" . . . The telegram followed Ted home and by the time it caught up with him even the sponsors had found out that Clyde Van Dusen had won by two lengths while Blue Larkspur was finishing fourth. . . .

Fortunately for the women patrons there was no rationing of fashion or color for Louisville's annual spring style parade. . . . Their smartly tailored ensembles, sports suits with frilly blouses and varicolored dresses made the boxes and grandstands as vivid as the flower bedecked clubhouse lawns. . . . Hats were either infinitesimal or huge, which we submit as evidence of the elasticity of sports writing in the modern era. . . . There was enough room in the stands for the first time in many years for the gals to parade around and be seen. . . . Unlike recent Derbies, this was a test of horses, not humans, who on occasion risked life and limb fighting their way to the mutuel windows. . . . The physical dangers today were incurred before entering the Downs. . . . This was essentially as advertised, a street car Derby, and traffic on the trolleys was so heavy that policemen were called to aid motormen in getting car doors closed in downtown Louisville three hours before the horses went to the post for the first race. . . . Taxicabs unloaded their passengers a mile away from the track and no customers with B or C cards were allowed in the parking lots. . . . Col. Matt J. Winn insisted on showing the ODT that the Derby could be run successfully without violating the orders laid down by burocrats in Washington. . . . "The Derby was a big event long before automobiles were heard of," the 82 year old leader of Churchill Downs asserted. . . . There was at least one out-of-town party that traveled to Louisville without ODT scrutiny. . . . That was the 175 persons who left Cincinnati last night aboard the steamer Gordon Greene, arriving early this morning. . . . The return trip will start at noon tomorrow. . . . Special trains

Indiana	43⅓	Chicago	18
Minnesota	37⅓	Northwestern	15 5/6
Wisconsin	32	Purdue	7⅓

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Indiana and Minnesota each scored in 11 of the 14 events in yesterday's track meet in Dyche stadium in which six Western conference universities were entered. The Hoosiers, however, won five first places to three for the Gophers and took the team title, 43⅓ points to 37⅓.

Wisconsin, with three individual titles, finished third with 32, and Chicago, because Charles [Whitey] Hlad, former Michigan Normal hurdler, won three races for individual honors, was fourth with 18 points.

Hlad's victories in both hurdle races and the 100 yard dash easily made him the high point man but, on the basis of marks established, he must yield the featured spot to Don Quellor, a freshman from Indiana university. Quellor won the opening mile in the excellent time

65,000 SEE 2-5 FAVORITE RUN TO EXPECTATIONS; SLIDE RULE 3D

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Louisville, Ky., May 1.—Count Fleet, Mrs. John Hertz's lean brown colt with the swift stride and the sturdy heart, dominated the 69th running of the Kentucky Derby before a crowd of 65,000 this pleasant afternoon at tradition-hallowed Churchill Downs. The sprinters dashed with him thru the early stages, the distance runners charged at him on the last turn and the stayers tried bravely, but hopelessly to catch him in the stretch. But at the finish Count Fleet was galloping stanchly, three lengths ahead of Blue Swords while Slide Rule was coming home in third position six lengths farther back.

Far out of it finished the others who undertook to run with Count Fleet thru the mile and a quarter. Amber Light, Bankrupt, No Wrinkles, Dove Pie, Gold Shower, Modest Lad, and Burnt Cork came along in that order, Ocean Wave and Twoses having been withdrawn from the overnight field.

Count Fleet Earns $60,725.

Mr. and Mrs. Hertz watched Count Fleet win as handily as his sire, Reigh Count, had carried their colors to victory in the Derby of 1928. Out of the gross purse of $82,750 the sum of $60,725 went to the winner.

Count Fleet's prestige was so great that he was backed down to 2 to 5 odds, making him the shortest priced Derby winner since mutuel betting was established. Bimelech was at the same price in 1940, but he was beaten. Count Fleet's prices were $2.80, 2.40, and $2.20 across the board.

Many had thought that Count Fleet's demonstrated ability for blazing speed might carry him to a new Derby record. There's no telling what might have happened if he had been pressed, but as it was his time of 2:04 was quite a bit slower than the mark of 2:01 2-5 which Whirlaway set in 1941.

Longden's First Derby Victory.

Johnny Longden, who gave Count Fleet such a well judged ride, was scoring the first Derby victory of his career. It was well that Johnny handled the colt so nicely because there were a few tense moments in that first thundering charge past the stands when the favorite was in close quarters and might have been jammed as they pounded helter-skelter for position on the clubhouse turn.

The size of the crowd was a striking tribute to the popularity of the event which Matt J. Winn has built up to the proportions of a national institution. Despite the most rigorous adherence to transportation restrictions, the fans got there. The ricketly old 4th avenue street cars rattled and swayed out to Churchill Downs, with their weather beaten yellow sides ready to bulge with Winner b. c., 3, by Reigh Count-Quickly. Trained by Don Cameron. Start good. Won handily, place driving. Went to post at 5:30½. Off at 5:31½.

Count Fleet began fast, was hustled along until reaching the stretch, shook off the bid of Gold Shower and, responding to a shaking up, won handily. Blue Swords, away well, was in hand until reaching the last half mile, came determinedly when subjected to punishment, but was not good enough for the winner, tho easily best of the others.

Slide Rule saved ground while outrun to the half mile pole, was blocked when moving up approaching the stretch and, taken out for the drive, could not reach the leaders when subjected to punishment. Amber Light raced evenly under restraint until reaching the mile, made a game bid entering the stretch, but tired near the finish. Bankrupt, outrun until the final quarter, failed to respond when called upon in the stretch. No Wrinkles, on the outside thruout, could not better his position and had no excuse. Dove Pie swerved to the inside after the start and never was a serious contender. Gold Shower, much used engaging Count Fleet in the first three-quarters, gave way badly thereafter. Modest Lad, bothered slightly after the start by Dove Pie, was always far back. Burnt Cork began fast, displayed good speed in the first half mile, and then quit.

Brooklyn Hitting Power Downs Giants, 9-2, 3-1.

New York, May 1 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers combined power with high class pitching, topped off by Bobo Newsom's one hit performance, to defeat the New York Giants, 9 to 2 and 3 to 0, and continue merrily on their way as the National league leaders.

Max Macon and Les Webber combined to hurl four hit ball before Newsom gave one of his best performances in the second game. Actually Macon pitched the four hit ball, for Webber didn't allow a safe blow after coming to Max's rescue in the ninth.

Hitting Is Heavy.

The Dodgers combed three Giant hurlers for 11 blows in the first game as they unloosed their big guns for the first time this season. Arky Vaughan poled out a three run homer in the third and Dolph Camilli did the same in the fourth with the bases empty. Dixie Walker also hit for a circuit in the final game with one on to account for all but one of the three runs the Dodgers shoved across in the third frame. frame.

Cliff Melton was charged with the defeat in the opener while Tom Sunkel dropped the second game. Ace Adams, coming to Sunkel's rescue in the third, shut out the Dodgers with four hits the remainder of the distance, but it was of no avail for Bobo allowed only a single by Babe Barna in the sixth. He walked five but never was in serious danger except in the sixth when Barna's hit was preceded by a base on balls to Joe Witek with only one out. Score:

WALKER BEATS CARDS.

St. Louis, Mo., May 1 (AP).—The Cincinnati Reds, breaking up a pitchers' duel with a concentrated batting attack, defeated the St. Louis Cardinals today, 7 to 3, with chief slugging honors going to Gerald Walker, Eric Tipton and Eddie Miller.

The Cardinals, with Harry Gumbert pitching, had a 1 to 0 lead on Bucky Walters going into the seventh inning, but Walker singled and scored the tieing run on Tipton's double.

Walker came up again with the bases loaded in the eighth and doubled, driving in three runs, and he scored himself on Tipton's single. Miller hit a home run off Relief Pitcher George Munger with a man on base in the ninth.

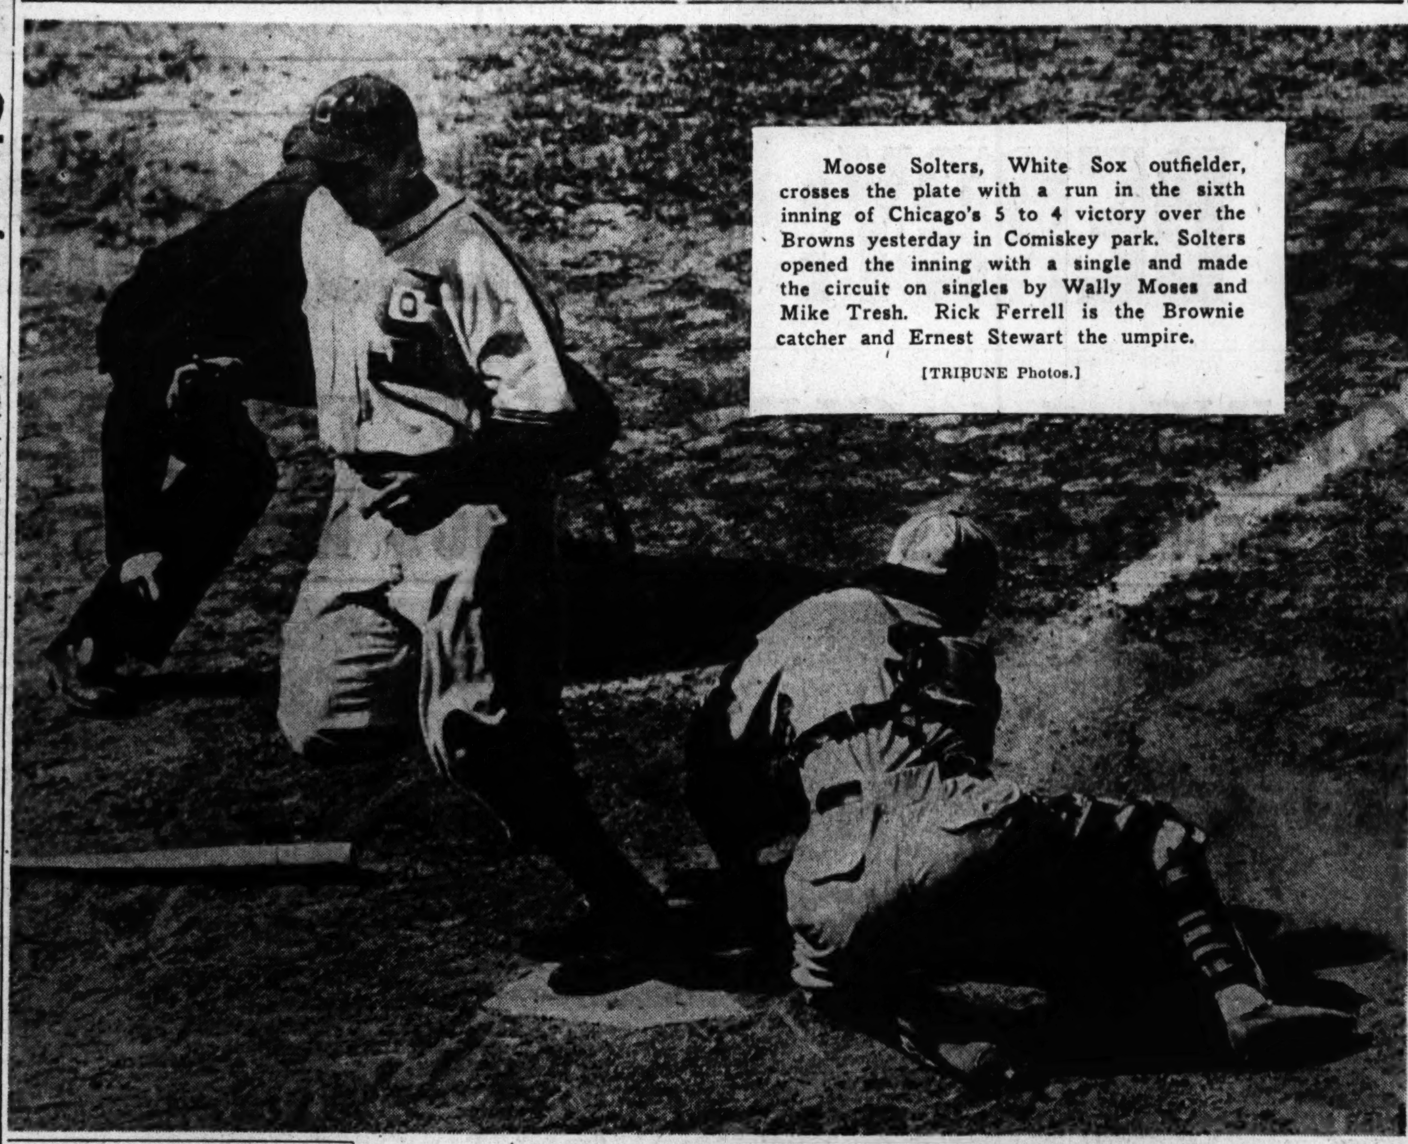
ONE SOX MAKES IT, THE OTHER DOESN'T



Moose Solters, White Sox outfielder, crosses the plate with a run in the sixth inning of Chicago's 5 to 4 victory over the Browns yesterday in Comiskey park. Solters opened the inning with a single and made the circuit on singles by Wally Moses and Mike Tresh. Rick Ferrell is the Brownie catcher and Ernest Stewart the umpire.

Don Kolloway was an easy out at the plate in the fourth inning of the White Sox-Brown game yesterday as Catcher Rick Ferrell blocks the plate and waits for him. Kolloway tripled and tried to score on Wally Moses' fly to Mike Chartak in right field.

Claude Passeau was the losing pitcher, and couldn't get past the sixth. So, after eight games, none of the Cubs' vaunted Big Four pitchers has been able to finish one of his starts, and none has won or finished a game, nor has any of the Big Four shown any big league class.

Two, Paul Derringer and Bill Lee, are in a St. Louis hospital and Passeau has been sick, too. Lon Warneke is well, but hasn't shown any pitching talent this spring. Hi Bithorn, star of the staff, and Kewpie Barrett, 35 year old rookie, will oppose Bob Klinger and Wally Hebert in tomorrow's doubleheader.

Pirates Score in Fifth.

Up until the Pittsburgh fifth, the Pirates had been even more impotent than the Cubs. Huck Geary had popped a single to short left with two out in the second and promptly was pegged out trying to steal second. With one out in the fourth Jack Barrett lined a single to center and was forced by Elbie Fletcher, after which Bob Elliott sent an easy fly to Lowrey.

The first trouble started with one down in the Pirate fifth. Geary knocked his second hit, a single to left center. Pete Coscarart singled to right, Geary stopping at second. Al Lopez singled to center, Geary scoring the first run of the game and Coscarart reaching third. Sewell tried to put on the squeeze play after one strike and one ball.

To the amazement of all the Cubs, Umpire Ballanfant ruled that Sewell hadn't struck at the ball in his attempted squeeze. A big debate followed and Passeau almost got the bounce for his feverish demonstration. It was during the debate that Manager Wilson served notice the game was being continued under formal protest.

Sewell bounced to Passeau and Coscarart was run down between third and home, Lopez advancing to third and Sewell to second. Russell walked, loading the bases. A passed ball enabled Lopez to score. Further damage was averted when Barrett flied to Lowrey.

The Cubs were surprised themselves when they tied the score in the sixth. After Sewell had thrown out Stan Hack, Eddie Stanky singled to right. Bill Nicholson drew a pass, after which Dom Dallessandro fouled to Lopez, Heinz Becker walked, loading the bases. Then Lowrey doubled to right, Stanky and Nicholson scoring and Becker stopping at third. Merullo whiffed.

The Cubs really showed their Sewell complex in the Pittsburgh sixth and the first of the seventh. Fletcher opened the home sixth with a single to left. Elliott topped one toward first. Hernandez picked up the ball and tossed it over Becker's head, Fletcher reaching third and Elliott second. Vince DiMaggio walked to load the bases. Geary forced Fletcher at the plate, Hack to Hernandez. Coscarart then came thru with the second of his three successive hits, a single to left which scored Elliott and DiMaggio. Les Fleming replaced Passeau and prevented further scoring.

Three On—No Score.

Hernandez opened the seventh with a single and Fletcher threw Stu Martin's double play grounder into left field. Hack walked and the bases were loaded with none out. Then Stanky flied to DiMaggio, Nicholson fouled to Lopez and Dallessandro tapped to Fletcher.

A pass to Fletcher and a triple by Elliott gave the Pirates a run off Paul Erickson in the seventh. Lowrey singled, took third on Barrett's error and scored on an infield out in the eighth.

After the game Sewell asked to pitch both games of tomorrow's double header, but Manager Frankie Frisch already had promised Klinger and Hebert.

Lee, Humphries Face Browns for White Sox Today

The White Sox, with the assistance of the Browns, will give the bargain lovers a break this afternoon. A double header, starting at 1:30 o'clock, will be played in Comiskey park with the Sox pitching in charge of Thornton Lee and Johnny Humphries. The Brown starters will be Steve Sundra and Johnny Niggeling.

As soon as all the clubs have been supplied, President Will Harridge of the American league will order that it be put into play.

The Sox will ride to Cleveland tonight for a four game series, opening tomorrow. They will return to Comiskey park next Friday to entertain the Tigers,

Stephens Lends a Hand.

Stephens, whose hitting helped to cause Smitty's troubles, was kind enough to give Thurman Tucker's roller a healthy boot with two out in the fifth inning and this was turned into a run by Appling's double to left. However, Stephens took back the run in the sixth. He singled to drive in Mike Chartak, who had opened the inning with a two bagger to right.

The 4 to 4 tie created by the Sox with their two run sixth inning, was touched off by Solters' single to center. Kolloway did nothing, but Moses drilled a single thru McQuinn's hands and, with two out, Tresh singled to center, Solters scoring. Ralph Hodgin, the San Francisco draftee, then batted for Smith and singled to center off Caster, who had rushed in at this point to relieve Galehouse. The pinch man's hit sent Moses acros the plate with the tying run.

BRADLEY WINS THIRD STRAIGHT TRACK CROWN

Peoria, Ill., May 1 (AP).—The hurdles records were sent into discard today as a powerful Bradley track team swept to its third straight Illinois college conference championship.

The Braves scored 76½ points to 42 for North Central, 34½ for Monmouth, 24 for Wesleyan, 23 for Augustana, 17 for Knox, and 7 for Illinois college.

Ray Ramsey of Bradley broke the seven year old 120 yard high hurdles mark when he stepped off the distance in 14.2 seconds, six-tenths of a second better than Goff of Knox did it in 1936 when he ran a 14.8.

Then, in the low hurdles, Lloyd Starck of North Central clipped a half second off Ramsey's mark of 25.3, set in 1941. Starck was clocked in 24.7.

Bradley scored points in 14 of the 15 events, being blanked only in the 100 yard dash. Ramsey led the Braves with 17½ points, scored in five of the six events in which he competed. He had led the conference in scoring the last two seasons but today relinquished the honor to Wesleyan's speedy Hal Wimberly, who totaled 19 points on firsts in the 100, 220, high jump, and a second in the broad jump.

Wimberly took the century in 10 seconds flat and came back to miss the 220 record by one-tenth of a second, running it in 21.8 seconds.

AVIATION OPPORTUNITY

We will train 17 men as specialists in Mechanical and Pressure Aircraft Instruments for Flight Engineering and Test Work • On May 17th, seventeen very fortunate men will begin a 15 week period of intensified, SPECIALIZED training for one of the most promising and exciting careers, aviation has to offer. • This intensified training is to supply Airlines, Maintenance Depots, and Manufacturers with specialists on mechanical and pressure type aircraft instruments. • Those who complete this 15 week training period will have a wide choice of positions from which to choose, since we have requests for hundreds of these specialists. • Our huge Army training program for the Army Air Forces Technical Training Command and the Air Service Command makes it necessary to limit this first specialized training group to 17 men. The course is patterned after the Army's specialized training. Civil Service positions at Aircraft Maintenance Depots are also open to those who complete this specialized training.

Who is eligible? Anyone, 17 to 55. Physical disability is no handicap if your eyesight is normal and you have full use of both hands.

Do I have to give up my present job to take this training? NO. Training classes are held at night so you can continue your present occupation until ready to take your new position.

Is the work essential? Yes, Aircraft Instrument work is vital to our war program. Specialists in pressure and mechanical instruments are necessary to flight engineering and test work.

What if I'm drafted? Since this specialized training is patterned after the same intensified courses used here by the Army Air Forces Technical Training Command, those who finish this course will be in line for technical ratings when entering the service.

Am I qualified? A personal interview, taking but a few minutes, will determine your qualifications. If you are interested in this exceptional opportunity, get full information now.

May 17th is the starting date for the first group. Only 17 men can be accommodated. So phone or write now. Telephone Longbeach 6100 and ask for Mr. Kemp—or better yet, visit this training center in person any weekday or evening and learn of the interesting type of work involved in this training and of the opportunities that await those who complete it. If you write, address your letter to Specialist Training, Chicago School of Aircraft Instruments. Dept. T-6, 2200 Lawrence Ave., Chicago.

WINNING EASIER THAN WAITING, LONGDEN SAYS

First Derby Victory for Count Fleet's Jockey.

Louisville, Ky., May 1 (AP).—The toughest part of piloting Count Fleet to victory in the 69th running of the Kentucky Derby today was waiting for the race to start, Jockey Johnny Longden said after the big race.

"I never had a bit of trouble after we got away from the gate. We went to the top somewhere around the half to the three quarters and I didn't have to work keeping him there," he said.

"Blue Swords? Sure, I saw him coming. I just gave the Count a little nudge and he gave out some more. That's all."

Longden's Son Sees Race.

Johnny's triumph was shared by his son, Vance, 12 year old cadet at the San Rafael Military academy, San Rafael, Cal. Mrs. Longden is in a New York hospital, awaiting the arrival of another member of the family. Vance watched the race with Mr. and Mrs. John D. Hertz, and accompanied them to the presentation stand where Mrs. Hertz, Count Fleet's owner, received the gold trophy from Gov. Keen Johnson.

"Did you get to see the race good?" was the first question Longden put to his son.

Native of England.

Longden, 35 years old and a native of Wakefield, England, has been around the big tracks and had some of the better mounts for quite a few years, but Count Fleet was his first Derby winner.

From the moment he knew he was going to ride the Hertz pride in the Derby, Longden said, he was confident of a victory.

The news in midafternoon that Owner Warren Wright had scratched Ocean Wave meant nothing to him, he said.

"I never was afraid of Ocean Wave or any of the others in that field. Count Fleet had 'em all outclassed. I don't know the great horses like Man O' War because I wasn't around then. But The Count is the greatest I've ever ridden. Got everything—speed, heart—just everything.

"It was a great race, I had a great horse and it's a great day," Longden told his interviewers, "but it's a relief to have it over."

Illinois Track Team Is Victor Over Michigan

Champaign, Ill., May 1 [Special].—Herb Matter, Naperville, Ill., junior, scored 19 points today to lead the Illinois track team to a 62 to 60 victory over Michigan.

With two events left and the meet tied, 54 all, Matter won the low hurdles in which Herb Bekermeier of Peru, freshman, placed second. These eight points decided the meet for the Illini. Michigan added five points by winning the relay but was still two points behind.

Wins Three Firsts.

Matter's impressive performance consisted of firsts in three events, low hurdles, 220 yard dash and broad jump, a tie for first in the high jump and a tie for second in the pole vault.

Bob Kelley, Illinois, provided the greatest upset of the individual events when he defeated Bob Ufer, Michigan's indoor Big Ten 440 yard champion and holder of the American indoor record. Kelley overtook Ufer on the backstretch and passed him as they rounded into the stretch.

Still another surprise was furnished by Bill Beile, freshman, who won the 880 yard run in which John Roxborough of Michigan finished third.

Six Michigan Firsts.

Clarence Dunn won the two mile decisively from Ernest Leonardi. Tom Fullerton, Illinois sophomore, won the discus. The Illini took seven firsts and one tie as they defeated the Wolverines in a dual meet for the first time since 1929.

Michigan won six firsts and one tie. One of the best Michigan performances was Ross Hume's 4:19.4 time in the mile after a close brush with Bob Seib.

The Michigan relay runners broke the only meet record, achieving 3:19.5, to lower the 3:19.6 of their 1938 quartet.

Count Fleet Takes Derby by 3 Lengths

Derby fans. Local motorists with gasoline ration cards were permitted in the parking lots, but no others were allowed. This was to forestall any attempts at distance driving to the Derby.

Size of Mutuel Handle Surprising.

The size of the mutuel handle also was surprising. Wagering on the Derby alone amounted to $537,392 against $631,198 for the one race last year.

The betting handle for the day totalled $1,801,899. Last year's handle, the second largest in the history of the Derby, was $1,983,011. The record is the $2,096,613 handled in 1926.

Despite the fact that this is the second Derby of the war, only the Derby days of 1941 and 1942 surpassed it in mutuel handle since 1928. In the entire history of the Derby, there have been only seven bigger betting days—those in 1924, 1925, 1926, 1927, 1928, 1941, and 1942. Today's handle was more than triple the figure of $525,648 in the second year of World War I.

All of the traditional ceremonies of Derby day were fulfilled this afternoon. The band played "My Old Kentucky Home" as the horses came prancing out on the track. The gracefully stepping thorobreds and the gaily clad jockeys made their usual brilliant picture on the parade to the post. After only a brief delay Ruby White sprang the gate and they were off.

Gold Shower Goes Into Lead.

Breaking from the No. 11 post position, far on the outside, the fleet footed Gold Shower leaped into the lead. Burnt Cork and Blue Swords also came out fast, with Count Fleet close up, too.

They thundered past the stands with Gold Shower drawing into a clear lead. Burnt Cork was drifting over toward Count Fleet, carrying the favorite in behind the leader, and for a moment it seemed as tho Jockey Longden was ready to yell at the other rider to keep off. For with Blue Swords on the other side of him he had no place to go.

Count Fleet had the speed, however, to get himself out of these tight quarters. Longden let him run and he came on to draw clear of the pack with only Gold Shower ahead of him as they went into the clubhouse turn.

Gold Shower continued to hold the lead as they went around the curve, but at the head of the backstretch Count Fleet came alongside and then raced past him. They strode on down the backstretch with Gold Shower, Burnt Cork, Blue Swords, Amber Light, and Slide Rule stringing along in pursuit of the flying Count Fleet.

Slide Rule Moves Up.

They moved down the backstretch and as they went into the far turn Gold Shower still was clinging to second place, but Slide Rule, moving up with a determined rush, had taken third place, head and head with Blue Swords.

They went onto the curve with nearly half a mile still to go and here Blue Swords, Amber Light, and Slide Rule all began running at Count Fleet. The crowd wondered whether that early duel with Gold Shower might have taken some of the finishing zip out of the favorite. They soon had their answer.

Blue Swords, conquering Amber Light and Slide Rule, earned the right thereby to fling the main challenge at the flying leader, which was two lengths in the lead as they careened around this last turn.

Gives Count Fleet His Head.

Johnny Adams called on Blue Swords for speed. Accepting the challenge, Longden gave Count Fleet his head. Then and there the fast son of Reigh Count showed the others that they'd never catch him. Try as they would, they couldn't cut that two length margin. At midstretch it was still two lengths, with Blue Swords holding an equal margin over the resolute Slide Rule.

In the last furlong Longden looked back, saw his opposition broken and beaten, and rode on confidently. Three lengths in the lead, Count Fleet swept across the line and the 69th Kentucky Derby was over.

and all extra rail equipment normally employed to transport the Derby throng were banned this year. . . .

No previous Derby attracted as many service men as turned out today. . . . Hundreds of soldiers from Fort Knox, Camp Campbell, and other military bases, few of whom ever had an opportunity to see America's most celebrated horse race, were among the early arrivals at the Downs. . . . WAACs, WAVES and SPARS, natty in summer attire, were on hand, too, as were thousands of defense workers who put in double time at Louisville plants yesterday so that they could have Derby day off. . . . Col. Winn, in midafternoon, presented a check for $60,260.68 to Red Cross executives. . . . It represented the profits of yesterday's program. . . . Bands from St. Xavier High school, Kentucky Military institute, and the University of Kentucky, all stationed in the infield across from the clubhouse, entertained alternately from noon on. . . . Eddie Anderson, known to radio audiences as Jack Benny's Rochester, whose Burnt Cork was a 100 to 1 shot, went to Camp Campbell immediately after the Derby to entertain soldiers. . . . Frank Ashley, for the eighth straight year, called the Derby over the Churchill Downs loudspeakers. . . . He will serve in the same capacity at Chicago tracks beginning with the Lincoln Fields meeting. . . . When Trainer Ben Jones was obliged to scratch Ocean Wave it was merely the law of averages taking its toll. . . . In 1937 Jones had a Derby candidate whose heel bled after nearly every workout while he was being prepared for the big race. . . . That was Lawren, which went on to win the event.

Col. Ralph Sasse, former West Point and Mississippi State football coach, now stationed at Fort Knox, was a clubhouse guest of Dennis Long, Louisville theater magnet. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Warren Wright were hosts to Otto Lehman of Chicago. . . . Tom Kelly, who for several years has had charge of the special police on Derby day, said today's throng was the most orderly he could remember. . . . The ban on special trains which in others years carried thousands of celebrants who got away from the bars scarcely long enough to see the big race probably explains today's decorum. . . .

For the first time in many years, the Derby today drew no movie or stage celebrities. . . . Sen. A. B. [Happy] Chandler, whose demand for more vigorous prosecution of the war in the Pacific has irritated Louisville editorial writers, was among the few political leaders observed in the stands. . . . Sen. Chandler, who is learning that Americans admire men who speak their mind, grew up with the Kentucky Derby and he had no apologies to make for his presence. . . . Frank Menke did a good job in handling the press box. . . . Count Fleet was first of the Derby entrants to leave the barn for the paddock. . . . He was accompanied by more handlers than escort Joe Louis down the aisle for a championship fight. . . . Sporting a yellow blanket with black circles enclosing the initials, J. D. H., the people's choice whirled almost out of his trainer's grasp and seemed to make a bow in front of the box occupied by his owners, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Hertz. . . . The electric scoreboard in the infield quoted him at 2 to 5 as he reached the paddock at 4:45 o'clock. . . . Blue Swords was second choice in the betting at 5 to 1 and Slide Rule and Gold Shower were 10 to 1.

When the bugler played "Boots and Saddles" to call the horses to the track Count Fleet had dropped to 1 to 3 in the betting. . . . Blue Swords still was second choice at 8 to 1 and three were listed at 12 to 1—Slide Rule, Amber Light, and Gold Shower. . . . By the time the horses had paraded past the stands the odds on Count Fleet shifted back to 2 to 5, which equaled the shortest price since mutuel betting was established at Churchill Downs . . . Bimelech went to the post at that figure in 1940. . . .

Big Jim Healy, trainer of Gold Shower, which finished eighth in the Derby field of 10, pokingly said last night he brought the horse to Louisville primarily as his own pacing mate in preparation for his foot race with Don Cameron, trainer of Count Fleet. . . . Both trainers are well over 200 pounds, but Healy has been rankled by Cameron's reputation of having been quite a track man in his college days. . . . Each day while their horses were getting ready for the Derby they found some reason to defer their personal test of speed. . . . Meanwhile they issued reports of their own training activities much more glibly than they would tell about the condition of their Derby candidates.

HARVARD CREW BEATS NAVY BY JUST ONE FOOT

Philadelphia, Pa., May 1 (AP).—A driving finish in the final 200 yards gave Harvard's varsity crew a one foot victory over Navy on the Schuylkill river today, enabling them to retain the Adams cup for the sixth straight year.

The crimson crew, stroked by Senior Carl Seligman of Wodburn, Mass., covered the Henley distance of a mile and five-sixteenths in 6:42. Navy was three-fifths of a second slower, but finished three lengths ahead of Cornell. Penn trailed Cornell by a foot.

In the preliminary events, all raced over the Henley distance, Navy defeated Harvard, Cornell, and Penn in the Jayvee race, and edged out Penn in the freshman contest. Cornell won the 150 pound varsity race, finishing three-quarters of a length ahead of Penn and Princeton, which rowed a dead heat for second. Massachusetts Institute of Technology was fourth and last.

VALDINA GROOM DOES IT AGAIN AT SPORTSMAN'S

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Count Fleet wasn't out at Sportsman's Park yesterday for the opening of the regular racing season at the Cicero track. The Count had business elsewhere, to which he attended quite satisfactorily. But Valdina Groom was very much around the trim premises of the little half miler, and he did his chores pretty thoroly in winning the Col. Dan Hardt handicap, feature of the day.

It was a sort of a return engagement for Valdina Groom, which ran off with the Inaugural handicap of the special meeting sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., a week ago yesterday when he encountered such parties as Latent and Sun Pharos. Yesterday the same pair turned up to give chase, and that's all they could do, running two-three back of the 5 year old son of Osculator, even as they did in the Inaugural.

The favorite players in the crowd of more than 16,000 felt much better when they saw Valdina Groom come home three lengths in front of Latent. He paid only $5.60, but he was the first public choice of the day to score, the seekers after fat mutuels having put on another uprising in the searlier races. At the finish of the mile and a sixteenth journey, the Groom and Jockey Chuck Parke of the Idaho Parkes were looking back at their rivals.

Returning to the winner's ring they were greeted by Col. Dan Hardt of the 6th transportation corps, who was celebrating his 41st birthday. The colonel and Mrs. Hardt presented the winner with a special trophy.

Valdina Groom's victory proved a real tonic to the form clients, who promptly bounced back with Remote Control, a 5 year old son of Higher, sent him to the post at odds of 6 to 5, and saw him run away from the field in the stretch after Willie Lowe had restrained him while permitting the well played Alchanc and Annie Alone to argue for the early lead. The winner paid $4.40, one of the shortest prices of the first eight days of racing.

Daily Double Hits $418.

Prior to this collaboration by Valdina Groom and Remote Control, the day had been rather sorry for the chalk league. It all began with the daily double, which saw $418, largest combination of the meeting, returned to the citizens who coupled Royal View and Drift Silver. The former rewarded his public with $19.60, and Drift Silver, which went to the post at odds of better than 20 to 1, paid $43.40. In both races, two other long shots, Discussion and Venci, took the place money, while the choices were trailing. Discussion, a 50 to 1 chance, almost caught Royal View at the wire.

Hadatime, overlooked in the wagering on the third race, brought a mutuel price of $18.80 and Epiget, victor in the fourth, returned $23.80. The National Jockey Club handicap, secondary feature of the day, saw Bring Me Home, which had raced well at Oaklawn Park, arrive in front of Bob's Dream and Marion Collins, the latter the favorite. Bring Me Home paid $9.60.

The mutuel handle for the first day of the regular meeting was off and running early, as reflected in the total of $524,131, against $443,464 for the seventh afternoon of the regular spring meeting in 1942.

Riverland Sets New Mark in Pimlico Race

Baltimore, Md., May 1 (AP).—Turning on his familiar blazing finish, Riverland carried the colors of Harold A. Clark's Louisiana farm to victory in the 39th running of the Dixie handicap before more than 17,000 at Pimlico today.

Running the mile and three-sixteenths of Maryland's oldest stake race in 1:56 2-5, the big Cold Stream gelding shaved two-fifths of a second off the former track record, held since 1938 by Pompoon and Seabiscuit.

Just back of the former plater as he hit the wire were Max Hirsch's Attention and Hal Price Headley's Anti Climax. Attention also finished second in the 1942 renewal of the Dixie, won by Whirlaway.

Riverland Is Second Choice.

Despite his smashing victory in the Excelsior handicap at Jamaica last Saturday, Riverland was held as second choice in the wagering, the Hirsch-trained entry of Attention and A. J. Saccett's Tola Rose being favored. Riverland returned $5.70, $2.60 and $2.20 across the board.

At the finish, the winner had a half length lead over Attention, which was a head in front of Anti Climax. Tola Rose finished fourth in the field of seven.

The victory was worth $17,775 and boosted Riverland's all-time winnings to $96,295.

BREEZING ALONG

REMEMBER the year Black Gold won the Kentucky Derby?...That was in 1924... The jockey who booted the colt to victory was John Mooney, the same John Mooney who now is the trainer for R. F. Hayes campaigning at Sportsman's Park...That was the year bookmakers all over the country were singing the blues—but loud—and here's why... Black Gold was held at 20 to 1 odds in the winter book and fans thruout the nation bet a chunk on him... He romped home in the big race and returned $5.50 in the mutuels... The boys with the green eye shades immediately began looking up airplane schedules... Some of them are still paying off... Ask any old timer.

Wayne Wright.

Darrell Clingman, the crack jockey who led all riders at the Fair Grounds meeting in New Orleans last winter, is taking it easy on a farm in Arizona... Clingman, who had to quit riding because of increasing weight, now weighs 136 pounds... Bernard Smith, executive director of the Hipodromo de las Americas track in Mexico City, has returned to New York...Smith says the town has gone a mile a minute for the ponies... The average daily attendance has been 21,000...

Alsab Starts Training for Summer Handicap Events.

Alsab, the Chicago express, has started training for the summer handicap and stake events... Joe Foley, publicity director of Arlington Park and Washington Park, reports that trainer August [Sarge] Swenke will ship the speedster to Chicago within three weeks... Alsab wintered in Kentucky and appears to have gained about 150 pounds.

Francisco Palacios, Puerto Rico born jockey, showed up at Jamaica the other day with an eight ounce tack... It's the lightest weight tack ever to be used on New York tracks and probably ever used anywhere in the country... One pound tacks are common, but the Puerto Rican prefers the half pound... Palacios has appeared on New England and Maryland tracks and has been riding eight years... Garden State Park will open a 50 day meeting starting July 7... Racing Secretary Charles J. McLennan has distributed the condition book to horseman thruout the nation... Gov. Hebert O'Conor of Maryland will present the Woodlawn vase to the winning owner of the Preakness Stakes.

Arlington Park, one of the finest racing plants in America, will be used as a crop farm this summer. The track will sow 40 acres of oats, 30 acres in hay, 20 acres of wheat, and plant 10 acres of corn... Wayne Wright, one of the outstanding jockeys in the business, has signed a contract to ride for Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt... Harris Brown, trainer for Mrs. Tilyou Christopher, who developed Doublrab into last year's sprint champion, has won a couple of races with the gray speedster at Jamaica, but believes the horse has not reached his peak... Brown says the horse has a little extra flesh on him but the added weight will help during the hard, steady campaign this summer. Clem McCarthy will describe the Preakness Stakes over a national network.

Entries for the six Lincoln Fields stake races, Crete, Joliet, Francis S. Peabody, Steger, LaSalle, and Lincoln, will close May 5... The races carry an added money value of $5,000 each... The Lincoln Fields meeting will be held at Hawthorne Park starting May 17 and closing June 19... The C. V. Whitney stable will campaign in Chicago this summer... L. T. Ruff, trainer of the string, has reserved stall space at Hawthorne... The stable will be shipped here following the meeting at Churchill Downs.

N. U. FOOTBALL GAME UNCOVERS FRESHMAN STAR

Vic Schwall of Schurz Makes 2 Touchdowns.

The White shirted division of Northwestern's football squad whipped their Purple jersied compatriots, 20 to 0, yesterday afternoon in Dyche stadium in the game which ended four weeks of spring practice. Altho the members of last year's varsity were distributed evenly for the intrasquad contest, the Whites had the benefit of more effective line play from their freshmen contingent.

The combination of Lynne McNutt's plunging from the full back post and the off tackle slants by Half Vic Schwall, a newcomer from Chicago's Schurz High school, produced touchdowns for the victors in the first and third periods.

Frank Clawson Scores.

The Whites finished their scoring less than two minutes before the end of the game when interference on an attempted pass into the end zone game them the ball on the Purple 1 yard line and Frank Clawson followed with a plunge for the touchdown. Schwall place kicked the point after the second score and Clawson added the point after his touchdown.

Eleven members of the 1942 Wildcat squad took part in yesterday's finale. Twenty-two players were first year men and this may be the approximate makeup of the team this fall. Almost without exception, the athletes now are enrolled in navy programs or in engineering and medical courses which will keep them on the campus.

Yesterday's demonstration, after a month's work under Coach Lynn Waldorf and assistants, points to a successful fall season in that this group is by no means inept, altho it will lack varsity experience.

Schwall was the only freshman in the Whites' starting back field. In the line were Jack Harker and Bernie Knauer, ends; Ray Justak and Jim Manzelman, tackles, and Bob Demeter, guard, who are freshmen.

Grove's fumble in the first period, which was recovered by Justak on the Purple 35 yards line, opened the way for the Whites' initial touchdown. Joe Scriba plunged for 3 yards and then McNutt passed to Scriba, who caught the ball on the Purple 15 yard line and ran to the goal, bowling over the safety man one step from the last line.

Whites Drive 68 Yards.

The Whites received the kickoff to start the second half and drove 68 yards for a second score. McNutt and Schwall were the ball carriers and they riddled the Purple line on short drives and tackle slants to gain a first down on the Purple 14. Scriba went inside defensive right tackle for 6 yards and McNutt crashed over left guard for 3 more. Altho penalized 5 yards for delay, Schwall circled left end on third down to make up the distance and then McNutt plunged for first down on the Purple 3 yard line.

In the last period, after the Whites got the ball on the Purple 23 yard line, Grove interfered with Harker in the end zone on a forward pass. The penalty placed the ball on the Purple 1 yard line and on first down Clawson plunged for the last touchdown. The lineups:

A Threat to Michigan Men.

Quellor's marks yesterday insure him places in these races in the conference meet on the same track May 15 and he will be a threat to Michigan's men who won these races in the indoor meet last March.

Quellor defeated Ralph Pohland of Minnesota to win the mile race. Floyd Foslein, also of Minnesota, who finished third more than 20 yards behind his team mate, set the pace for the first two laps. On the back stretch of the third lap, Quellor went to the front with Pohland at his heels. The pair dominated the race from this point but Pohland could not match the Hoosier's sprint in the final 200 yards and eased up to coast in for second place.

Quellor's closing sprint accounted for his triumph in the half mile. From third place on the last lap he went to the front and again defeated Pohland, who passed Charles McClure of Indiana in the last 15 yards. McClure had been the pacemaker for three-fourths of the race.

Other Indiana Victories.

Indiana's other individual victories were scored by Harry Price in the quarter mile and Lou Saban in the shot put. Price also anchored the Hoosier's victorious mile relay team which went into the lead on the second leg and never was headed.

Larry Falwell, a member of Indiana's mile relay quartet, trained Price in the individual quarter mile. Price, who was fourth in the Big Ten indoor 440 yard championship, ran the distance yesterday in 50.3.

Hlad, a student in the army's meteorology school at the University of Chicago, ran six races to get his three titles since trials were held in the sprints and hurdles. Whitey took the short dash in 10.4 seconds after a trial heat three-tenths of a second faster. Then he won the high hurdles, his specialty, from Gil Hertz of Wisconsin. Hlad had a lead of 14 yards as he breasted the line.

Final Victory in Hurdles.

His final victory was in the 220 low hurdles and took this race with a 12 yard advantage over Frank Adams of Minnesota.

Saban's mark of 49 feet 9 inches in the shot was more than a foot better than the winning performance in the 1942 conference outdoor meet, when he was fourth. Last March he won the indoor competition. Fortune Gordien, Minnesota weight man, who was second to Saban in the shotput, reversed his finish in the discus throw.

The fight for the high jump title was one of the best events of the meet with three Wisconsin men dominating the contest. Bob Hodgell, who shared the indoor conference title this year at 6 feet 2 inches, added an inch to his height yesterday to take the event. Hertz of the Badgers was second at 6 feet 2 inches and Dick Moreau was third at 6 feet 1 inch.

Wins Pole Vault at 12 Feet.

James Peterson of Minnesota won the pole vault at the mediocre height of 12 feet. One of the vagaries of current rules was presented when William Harrison, registered for the meet by Indiana, competed for Northwestern. Harrison entered Abbott hall navy school on Northwestern's downtown campus last Thursday. He won third place in the vault.

The summaries:

11th Annual Golf School Opens May 10

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Fore!

The 11th annual Free Golf school conducted by THE TRIBUNE, largest system of group instruction in the history of the game, will open Monday night, May 10, on the four courses of the Chicago Park district, with members of the Illinois section of the Professional Golfers' Association of America again making up the faculty.

In the preceding 10 years, an aggregate of 395,000 gratis instructions in the fundamentals of golf have been given by Illinois P. G. A. members to men, women, and children of Chicagoland. Last year, a total of 66,000 lessons was given.

A recent conference with Alex Cunningham of North Shore, president of the Illinois section, and his associates, revealed that the men who have donated their services to the school faculty are more eager than ever to carry on the work of teaching the game's ABC's to beginners.

First School in 1933.

In 1933, the first call to this unusual system of imparting the rudiments of golf to novices was sounded. Announcement of the plan received more than its share of criticism from skeptics who thought it impossible to conduct such an undertaking successfully. They thought it was too unwieldy, overlooking the prime purpose of the school, which was, and still is, to develop confidence at the first tee. In the 10 years since its inception, the school has convinced those doubters and has become a model for scores of similar schools thruout the country.

The Tribune school has no limitations for the duration of the regular series of lessons. It is not restricted to those who have played the game previously, nor to those tyros who never have swung a club. The golfer who has been trying for years to break 80 is as welcome to attend the classes as he or she who has yet to hit a ball. The lessons are absolutely free.

The only requirement for joining the school is your prompt presence on each of the four nights of instruction at one of the park courses nearest your home.

Second Lesson May 14.

The first lesson will be given Monday night, May 10; the second lesson on Friday night, May 14; the third on Monday night, May 17, and the fourth and last of the series on Friday night.

The four Chicago Park district locations at which the free lessons will be given by the Illinois P. G. A. members follow:

COLUMBUS — Jackson boulevard and Central avenue.

JACKSON—63d street and Stony Island avenue.

MARQUETTE — Marquette road and Kedzie avenue.

Sports in Service

NEWS FROM ARMY AND NAVY POSTS

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Navy Pier.

THE Pier track team, which will meet the Notre Dame midshipmen on Stagg field today, also is scheduled to appear in the Elmhurst Invitational meet at Elmhurst next Saturday, and in a quadrangular event on the same field May 15. . . . Opposition at the latter meet will be provided by the University of Chicago, Marquette, and Milwaukee State Teachers. . . . Lt. [j. g.] Howard Paul, in charge of the sports public relations office at this station, will return to duty today after beinggiven a week's leave. . . . Chief Petty Officer Al Addeo, director of the intramural program, will start the first of several double elimination softball tournaments for bluejackets at this station on May 10. . . . The double elimination idea, adopted at the suggestion of Lt. [j. g.] M. R. McLean, assistant to Lt. Jim McMillen, athletic officer, will give every company an opportunity to compete for the championships, regardless of graduation date.

Charles Connington, former basketball player at Manhattan college, was among recent arrivals, but is not expected to be available for the Aero-Mac quintet next winter because he is to be graduated before the 1943-'44 season starts. . . . The roster of chief specialists at the pier reads like a "Who's Who of Sports." . . . Among these men are Gerry Seidel, combat games instructor, who was assistant to Lou Little, football coach at Columbia; Armand Emanuel, boxing instructor, former National A. A. U. heavyweight champion and outstanding professional boxer; Bob Stewart, physical fitness coördinator, ex-basketball player at Syracuse; Chuck McGaffin, company commander, ex-member of the Fort Smith baseball team, New York Giants farm club; Mark Haight, wrestling coach, once captain of the football team at Eau Claire [Wis.] Teachers, and Bill Pope, calisthenics instructor, all around athlete at Manhattan college.

Fort Sheridan.

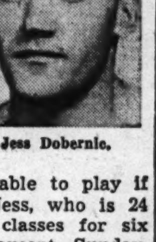
FOR the first time in this war a major league team will appear at Fort Sheridan when the Cincinnati Reds meet the soldier players on Aug. 4. . . . It is the 30th game scheduled for the Fort Sheridan aggregation, 11 of which will be against teams in the Service Men's league. . . . The camp nine will open the service circuit competition against 87th Street Naval Training school on the parade grounds here next Sunday. . . . Schedule for the khaki clad athletes, who beat the Benda Coals of Berwyn, 12 to 3, in the season opener last Sunday, includes the following:

Allen-Bradleys here, May 15; Camp Grant here, May 22; at Naval armory, May 30; at Glen Ellyn, June 5; at Camp Grant, June 12; at Great Lakes, June 20; Falk Corporation of Milwaukee here, June 23; at Benda Coals, June 27; at East Chicago Sox, June 30; Glen Ellyn here, July 10; Great Lakes here, July 17; Naval armory here, July 18; Peoria Tractors here, July 24; at Waukegan Seahorses, Aug. 15; at Peoria Tractors, Aug. 19; East Chicago Sox here, Aug. 22; Waukegan Seahorses here, Aug. 29.

Tony Matic, physical instructor for the Lake Shore Athletic club and Postl Health club, who is a former wrestler and boxer, has been inducted at this fort. . . . Matic and Ray Jones, also of Chicago, who reported for service at this establishment earlier, performed as an acrobatic team before entering the army. . . . Sergt. Y. C. Fisher's bowling team recently defeated the Military police battalion squad, 2,522 to 2,483, to capture the championship of the post. . . . Members of the winning delegation were Bruno Somenzi of nearby Highwood, St. Paul Saints pitcher; Charley Jesse, Gibson, Ill.; Al Walkowski, Rhinelander, Wis.; Les Statz, Milwaukee, and John Merton, Slinger, Wis. . . . The post-wide softball league will begin hostilities on seven diamonds tomorrow. . . . The circuit comprises 30 teams.

Chanute Field.

JESS DOBERNIC, former pitcher for the White Sox and teams in the American association and Pacific Coast leagues, is an electrical student at this army air forces technical training command school, but during his two months' course he will be unable to play ball. . . . For one thing, there isn't any organized team available for on or off the field competition. . . . Secondly, Dobernic's schedule is so intensive he likely would be unable to play if there was. . . . Jess, who is 24 years old, attends classes for six hours every day except Sunday. . . . He also participates in a daily two hour calisthenic drill. . . . Dobernic was inducted at Los Angeles last October. . . . Prior to his arrival here he was stationed at the air base in Lincoln, Neb.



Jess Dobernic.

Camp Grant.

RECEPTION center rookies dealt the Women's Army Auxiliary corps softball team a 14 to 13 defeat in the first game of the season at this camp recently. . . . Outside of saying that the WAACs need practice in all departments, Fay Langford, team captain, had no alibis to offer. . . . The men, apparently not relishing their triumph over the so-called weaker sex, gave Shortstop Pvt. Shuiling quite a razzing for being so unchivalrous as to catch more WAAC-slugged balls than necessary. . . . His critics maintained he should have missed a few for the girls. . . . It was trophy night at a recent boxing show in the Service club. . . . The 6th medical training regiment captured the Charles Bidwill and Ben Zenoff awards on the card, finals of the camp novice tournament. . . . Other cups were from Gov. Green, Sen. Finucane, and Ike Bernstein. . . . Don Lapsley, 7th regiment middleweight, defeated Al Rogoff, 6th regiment, to gain the Gov. Green prize; Joe Frucci, recruit reception center heavyweight, stopped Marlyn Hagan, 6th regiment, and Lou Fox, station complement, to earn the Sen. Finucane trophy, and Emmet O'Banion, station complement lightweight, stopped Al Lizzy, 7th regiment, to gain the Bernstein award. . . . George Kamberson, who promoted amateur shows in Sparta stadium, Chicago, about 15 years ago, was one of the fight judges. . . . The awards were decided by a committee composed of Lt. Col. Frank A. Bush, Maj. Norman H. Stoner, and Lt. Charles J. Mrazek. . . . Two battalion leagues of 10 teams each will open competition on four diamonds on the north and south drill fields tomorrow.

Great Lakes.

ENSIGN LEONARD R. RECTOR of the physical training and recreation staff has drawn up a weekly schedule of whaleboat and cutter races for recruits which will begin in the station's outer boat basin next Saturday. . . . Each regiment will enter two teams for the half mile races which proved popular last summer. . . . The Officers' Bowling league appears destined for a blanket finish since only three games separate the top five teams. . . . Thursday morning Medical H held a one game lead over Communications to hold down first place. . . . The Warrants were third, two contests behind the leader, while Outgoing Unit, and Supply were tied for fourth position three games in the rear. . . . Chief Carpenter's Mate R. O. Spengler rolled a 266 game for a new high in building three last week.

Paul Radovich, Catholic Youth organization light heavyweight, who fought in the city Golden Gloves finals in the armory three months ago, is a member of company 353 in Camp Moffett here.

Abrahams, who was 2 down with two holes to go in his singles match with Bill Ludolph, won both holes to salvage a tie. A victory for Ludolph would have swung the match in Michigan's favor.

Capt. Ben. Smith of the Wolverines, runnerup for the Big Ten individual title yast year, won the No. 1 singles match yesterday from Johnny Stoltz, Wildcat captain, 3 to 0. Smith had a medal score of 73 against a 77 for Stoltz. Abrahams and Jim Stewart of Northwestern had 74s for the next best scores of the match. The summaries:

Spotting Pins

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

THE last of the Chicago Sunday bowling sweepstakes, run for the benefit of the Auditorium Theater Service Men's center, is scheduled tonight in Bensinger's 29 West Randolph street center. Actually, tonight's sweep probably will mark the end of competition of that type on a weekly plan, inasmuch as the event has failed to draw a sufficient number of teams in late weeks. The setup may be revamped to provide fans with sweepers once a month in the Auditorium next season.

The Sunday sweepstakes are under Classic league sponsorship—which raises the question of that circuit's plan of operation next season. Withdrawal of the backing for the Budweiser and Gill teams has been announced, and the Schlitz five is broken up. More may follow, with the result that the Classic probably will be a six or eight team league and may operate within a relatively narrow geographical area, possibly in houses in or near the loop.

The Budweiser team, A.B.C. champion, must keep three of its men to retain title recognition, and it appears Capt. Joe Wilman will be able to do that—also that he will be able to announce a new sponsor shortly. George Theel will remain with Wilman and John Small is expected to stay.

Bill Hargadon will be with Meister Brau next year and the signing also of Joe Sinke of the Gills and Paul Krumske of Schlitz, may make Meister the city's most formidable outfit. Clarence Jackson will continue to direct the team.

The Bowling Proprietors' Association of America is still seeking a few more doubles teams to complete the roster for the first annual doubles match game championship tournament to be run in the Auditorium Theater service center May 14 thru 16. Most of the big names in tenpins will be found among the 29 teams already entered. They include the singles match game champion, Connie Schwoegler of Madison, who will shoot with Billy Sixty of Milwaukee; Schwoegler's predecessor, Ned Day, paired with Rudy Pugel, Milwaukee, and Day's predecessor, Hank Marino, entered with Mike Malouf, Milwaukee. The lineup—with a few openings still available:

Louis P. Petersen, 624 South Michigan avenue, who along with Eddie Linsz of Cleveland is handling entries in the doubles show, plans to close his books by tomorrow — then leave for Detroit where his 30th individual classic is to open Tuesday on the Palace recreation lanes. That eight-games-across-16-alleys event will continue thru next Sunday night when the last of the 640 entrants will shoot. The prize list totals $16,000 and first prize of 27 regular awards will be $3,000. Most of Chicago's stars will roll next week-end.

It's Vern Anderson vs. John Small Today.

Vern Anderson, south side steel worker, is to have Johnny Small of the Budweisers as his opponent on the Pla-Mor lanes, at 2 o'clock this afternoon. They will shoot ten games for $1,000. . . . Five games across 10 alleys will be the route in Goldammer's individual event at Milford, 3324 North Pulaski road, next Saturday and Sunday. Squads go on every 90 minutes beginning at 12 noon and ending at 12 midnight each of the two days. Estimated first prize is $500. George Dawson is manager. . . . There's no argument between Dudley Jones and his wife, Blanche, regarding their merits as bowlers last week Each shot 130, 152, 143 at the Faetz & Son center.

Entries close Thursday in Lawrence Bowl's Forgotten Man and Woman tournament, and the event begins two days later. Aim of the sponsors is to provide an event for men and women who haven't reached stardom. Men's class A is for bowlers averaging under 166 and class B for bowlers under 150; women's class A is for bowlers under 151 and class B for shooters under 135. . . . Anticipating more summer bowling than ever before, Madison A. C. is putting on a drive to organize summer leagues. . . . Lincoln Bottling captured the Stack & Ryan Commercial league title by sweeping its last series, while V for Victory, leader most of the season, was dropping two of its three games. Tuthill Materials did the heaviest shooting, 2,897, to win three games from Wanzer Dairy in the South Shore Major. Bill Narten's 651 was solo high. . . . Chicago Latrobe hit 2,910 to score three times in the Bowling Lanes Men's Junior. Ab Ortner posted a 655 series. . . .

Chief Justice Edward S. Scheffler of the Municipal court will serve as president of the Chicago Bar Association league next season, having been chosen to succeed Municipal Court Judge George B. Weiss.

CIVILIAN NEEDS OFFICE FORMED AS UNIT IN WPB

Jobs of Jeffers and Ickes Restricted.

Washington, D. C., May 1 [Special].—An order establishing the office of civilian requirements within the war production board and clothing it with power necessary to provide civilians with essential goods and services, except food, housing and transportation, was issued today by Chairman Donald Nelson.

The new office will supplant the office of civilian supply and will be headed by Arthur D. Whiteside, president of Dun & Bradstreet, Inc.

The OCR will have every power its predecessor enjoyed plus authority over coal, oil, rubber, and utilities. Thus it will take over from Petroleum Coördinator Harold Ickes and Rubber Administrator William M. Jeffers their power over the supply of oil, coal and rubber products to civilians.

Jeffers' Attitude Unknown.

Arrangements to that end, it was understood, already have been made with Ickes, but what Jeffers will think of this lessening of his jurisdiction remains to be seen.

Under today's order it is understood Jeffers will still have complete control of rubber production. J. A. Krug, WPB program vice chairman, will decide how much of the available supply is to go to civilians, and Whiteside will say whether the civilian allotment is to go into tires or, for instance, corsets or hot water bags.

As for civilian requirements generally they will be determined by Whiteside and represented to the requirements committee, the OCR acting as a claimant agency on the same basis as those which represent the army and navy, maritime commission, and other federal agencies.

Will Allocate Materials.

When an allocation of materials has been made OCR will distribute it among the various types of consumer goods. It will thus have complete control over the production as well as the distribution of consumer goods within the over-all civilian allocation. But it will have nothing to do with the machinery which makes those goods.

OCR will therefore be a claimant agency for all consumer goods and services whereas its predecessor, OCS was a "claimant agency for what nobody else wanted."

Endowment of OCR with such wide powers was regarded as an attempt to convince congress, which is moving toward establishment of a civilian claimant agency independent of the WPB, that such a measure will not be necessary.

Go-Between for Nelson.

Whiteside's duties will be to represent his chief, Nelson, in contacts with the office of price administration on matters relating to the effect of pricing upon the production and distribution of consumer goods and services, the coördination of rationing with production and distribution policies, and the coördination of price regulations with the standardization and simplification of consumer goods and services. He also will be responsible for the initiation of plans and programs for simplification and standardization of consumer goods and services.

The order provides for Whiteside's close coöperation with the Smaller War Plants corporation to utilize small business concerns in the production and distribution of consumer goods.

To correlate the policies of the government agencies concerned with the supply of civilian goods and services the order establishes a subcommittee of WPB composed of the secretary of agriculture, chairman of the war man power commission, the price administrator, the petroleum administrator and the director of the office of defense transportation. The war food administrator and national housing administrator will be invited to sit with the committee, of which Nelson will be chairman and Whiteside vice chairman.

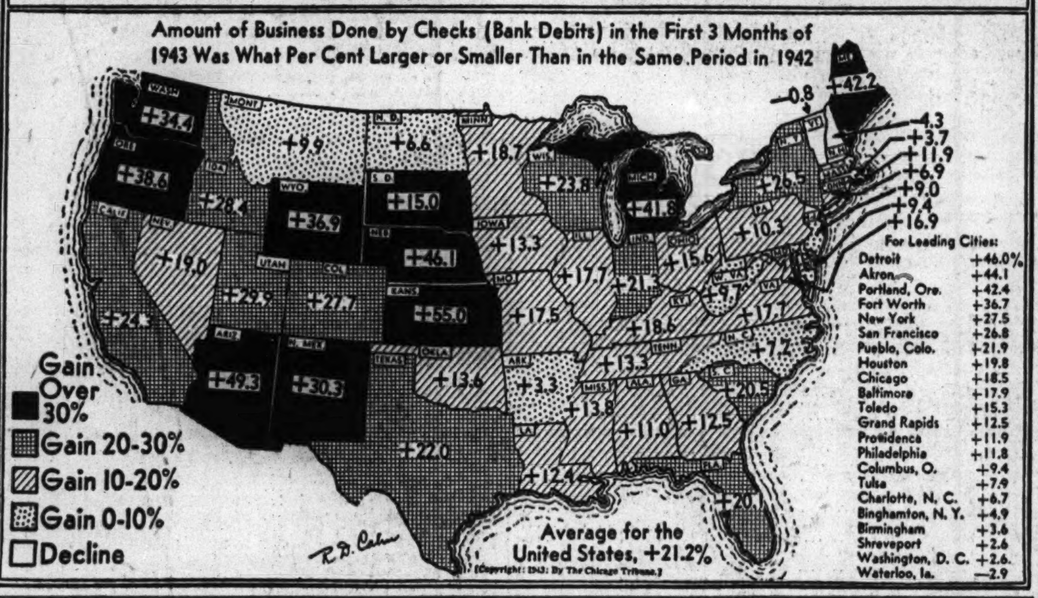
Business Changes in the First Quarter



Dealers Fight Plan for Used Car Ceilings

Announcement by the office of price administration that it plans to put price ceilings on used automobiles was strongly criticized yesterday by the Chicago Automobile Trade association. Ben T. Wright, president, said that enforcement of price ceilings will result in increased mortality among dealerships which have already been hard hit by the war.

Wright said that dealers are being asked to tell their objections to Prentiss Brown, head of the OPA, and to their congressmen.

The association listed numerous objections to the plan to fix limits that may be charged for used cars. If the ceiling is low and if individuals as well as dealers are compelled to comply with a ceiling the result will be that few persons will give up their cars, thereby restricting transfer of cars to persons who need them more than their present owners, the association said.

Fear Rapid Deterioration.

"It will result further in more cars being sold without proper reconditioning and in more direct transfers between individuals, since dealers cannot compete with individual to individual prices because of repair and guarantee costs," the association said.

"The more rapid deterioration of used cars without repairs will hasten a national crisis, due to insufficient automobiles.

"Fly-by-night operators will sell used cars at ceiling prices without reconditioning them. Legitimate dealers spend considerable sums on such repair work."

Ask Voluntary Stabilization.

The association suggested that possibly the best way to handle the situation would be thru voluntary efforts "on the part of forward looking dealers to stabilize used car prices."

It said price ceilings would be difficult to enforce on sales between individuals and difficult to establish equitable because of wide variances in mechanical condition. They would tend to put all cars on a price equality regardless of condition, dealers said.

One dealer said that a good effect of price ceilings might be to stop high price areas, such as the west coast, siphoning used cars from the low price regions.

LAKES TRANSIT FIRM DISSOLUTION ASKED BY MINORITY GROUP

Buffalo, N. Y., May 1 (AP).—A minority group of stockholders of Great Lakes Transit corporation asserts the firm should wind up its affairs, distribute its assets, and dissolve.

At a meeting yesterday, the group also voted to support the federal court action brought by Ormond F. Laird, Minneapolis, a preferred stockholder, who seeks appointment of a receiver for the company.

In the action, begun here March 25, Laird also asked a ruling that the company had undertaken "illegally" to engage in the egg dehydration business. Its fleet of lake vessels has been taken over by the war shipping administration.

Those at the meeting, called by Laird, represented a majority of the outstanding 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock and a minority of common stock. Voting power rests in both stocks.

OIL PRICE FIXING CASE CLOSES 2D WEEK OF TRIAL

Superior, Wis., May 1 (AP).—The second week of the trial of the Northwestern Oil company $750,000 damage suit against seven major oil companies ended today with plaintiff's counsel reading a mass of documentary evidence into the record.

Involved were questions and replies relating to the defendant firms' correspondence. Some of the letters were written by P. E. Lakin and C. E. Davis of the Shell Oil company to its president, Alexander Fraser. Others were those of C. E. Arnott of Socony-Vacuum.

Other defendants in the suit, which is based on allegations that losses were sustained several years ago because of price fixing, are Phillips Petroleum, Mid-Continent, Continental Oil, Sinclair Refining, and Pure Oil companies.

HOME AT $5,000 OR ABOVE HELD MOST IN DEMAND

New York, May 1 (AP).—The F. W. Dodge corporation, business research organization, predicted today that after the war the demand for homes costing $5,000 or more—not counting land—would be larger than before the conflict.

"There may be in the post-war period somewhat less emphasis on houses of the lowest cost classification than there was in the poverty decade," commented Thomas S. Holden, president of the concern.

"The deferred demand that is being built up consists to a large extent of houses to sell, with land, at $6,000 or more."

Armour Plan Held Aid for Parent Firm

Armour & Co. [Illinois] will improve its ability to borrow and its general financial condition if the newly disclosed plan of its subsidiary, Armour & Co. of Delaware, to issue 35 million dollars of debentures is carried out, it was said in financial circles yesterday. Official explanation of the financing move, disclosed by the securities and exchange commission Friday night, still was not forthcoming, company executives declining to discuss the program. They said the company will make a statement this week.

The Delaware company is the principal operating subsidiary and the chief source of income from combined operations. It had a profit of more than 16 million dollars in the 1942 fiscal year, when the parent company alone showed a loss of more than 1 million.

Plans Exchange for Stock.

The subsidiary filed a registration statement with the SEC for a proposed issue of 35 million dollars of 35 year 7 per cent cumulative income debentures, the SEC disclosed. The Delaware company proposes to offer the new debentures in exchange for part of the 523,581 shares of 7 per cent $100 par value guaranteed cumulative preferred stock at the rate of $100 principal amount of debentures for each share of the stock.

The registration statement said the debentures not used in the proposed exchange will be sold, and that the proceeds, with other funds in the company treasury, will be used to redeem guaranteed shares. They are redeemable at $110 a share.

Ever since the guaranteed preferred of the Delaware company was issued in 1922, when the subsidiary was organized, the terms of the issue have been commonly regarded as an Armour of Illinois contingent liability which potentially at least hindered the borrowing operations of the parent company and affected the Illinois company's ability to pay dividends. Packing is a business that requires heavy borrowing operations at certain seasons.

Own Preferred in Arrears.

Armour of Illinois has not paid a dividend on the present $5 par common since 70 cents a share was paid in 1937. Prior to 1937, nothing was paid on the $5 common or the old common issues after $1 was paid on the old $25 par class A in 1926. As of Jan. 2, 1943, the Illinois Armour company was $24 a share in arrears on its $6 prior preferred and $35 in arrears on its 7 per cent preferred.

Armour of Illinois owns the entire common stock of Armour of Delaware, and guarantees the latter's preferred stock as to principal, dividends and sinking fund.

Armour of Illinois never has been called upon to pay the dividends on the Delaware company's guaranteed preferred, but the contingent liability attaching to the arrangement has remained.

New Forest Park Bank Opening Set for May 15

OHIO DISPUTES TAX EXEMPTION FOR U. S. HOMES

Board Holds USHA Must Pay Way.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The steady encroachment of the federal government on the taxing powers of states is challenged by a decision made by the Ohio board of tax appeals. In a ruling that is attracting nation-wide attention of state and municipal tax authorities the board denied exemption from state and local taxation to a federally owned housing project in Cincinnati.

It is the first important case in recent years in which a state has vigorously asserted its right to tax federally owned property that is not devoted to public use. The board held that the doctrine of "implied immunity" of the federal government from state taxation cannot be stretched to cover federally owned property that is used for other than governmental purposes. The doctrine of implied immunity was first set forth by the United States Supreme court in 1819 in the famous case of McCullough vs. Maryland.

May Have Broad Effect.

Significance is attached to the Ohio decision by legal authorities because of the plight in which many municipalities find themselves as a result of the growth in recent years in federal ownership of property. Removal from the tax rolls of such property has created serious financial problems in some communities. If the Ohio ruling stands up under legal tests it will have an important bearing on post-war plans for extension of public housing. With tax immunity the federal projects have had the public housing field largely to themselves. Without such immunity private enterprise may again be able to enter the public housing field.

John S. Clark, Cook county assessor, sought unsuccessfully to put the public housing projects in Chicago on the tax rolls a few years ago but was advised by the state's attorney that the property could not be taxed. Clark's view that such projects should bear their share of local government costs is held by many tax men and attorneys. Clark's attorneys are now studying the possible applicability of the Ohio decision in Illinois.

Based on 1935 Decision.

The Ohio board based its ruling mainly on a decision made in 1935 by the United States Court of Appeals of the 6th district. In that case the appeals court held that federal condemnation of private property for low cost housing and slum clearance did not constitute a "public use."

The board cited the following statement from the court's opinion: "In the exercise of its police power, a state may do those things which benefit the health, morals, and welfare of its people, but the federal government has no such power within the states. . . . The taking of one citizen's property for the purpose of improving it and selling or leasing it to another, or for the purpose of reducing unemployment is not, in our opinion, within the scope of the powers of the federal government."

The board pointed out that the appeals court had affirmed the decision of the district court and that the solicitor general first carried

U. S. Boosts Dairy Buying, Suspends Beef Quota Hikes

Gets Half of Butter

Washington, D. C., May 1 (AP).—Seeking to avoid a drain on civilian supplies of butter and cheese next winter, the war food administration arranged today to obtain the bulk of government military and lend-lease requirements for next winter during the spring and summer peak production period.

Manufacturers were ordered, effective today, to set aside 50 per cent of their output of creamery butter and 70 per cent of their cheddar cheese during May, June, and July for present and future government requirements. Manufacturers had been required to set aside 30 per cent of their butter and 50 per cent of their cheese for the government since February.

June Is Peak Month.

WFA said that by taking a larger portion of output during the season of heavy production, the government would be in a position to make the most of the output during the low season available for civilians.

Creamery butter production is expected to reach a seasonal peak of about 200 million pounds in June, and then decline to a seasonal low level of little more than 100 million pounds next November. Production for the next 12 months is estimated at 1 billion 800 million pounds, about equal to output in recent years.

Takes Half Billion Pounds.

The government expects to take about 500 million pounds, leaving 1 billion 300 million for civilians, against average consumption of about 1¾ billion pounds in recent years.

Cheddar cheese production is expected to reach a seasonal peak of more than 100 million pounds in June and then decline to about 45 million in November, with a total of about 800 million pounds in the next 12 months. WFA said the civilian supply was expected to be about 420 million pounds, compared with 875 million in recent years.

Wants More Meat

Washington, D. C., May 1 (AP).—The war food administration moved today to route a larger supply of beef cattle thru federally inspected slaughter houses to give the government a better chance of obtaining beef for military needs.

Under slaughtering quotas in effect during April, such a large portion of the supply was handled by local butchers and slaughterers that the government was unable, the WFA said, to fill military requirements. Government purchases are limited to inspected meats.

End Temporary Quotas.

Likewise, civilian areas which depend largely upon federally inspected supplies were said to have received disproportionately small amounts.

To enlarge federally inspected supplies, the WFA suspended during May all temporary beef slaughter quotas, for those not operating before April 1, and temporary increases in quotas to local butchers and slaughterers granted last month to alleviate local beef shortages and add to quotas of those whose base slaughter quotas were considered too low.

Eased Local Shortages.

The WFA said that while the temporary measures operated to alleviate local shortages in many instances, they resulted in the diversion of beef cattle away from slaughter houses that meet government requirements.

Beef slaughter quotas for May for local slaughterers were established at 80 per cent of their May, 1941, slaughter, the same percentage as in April. The May beef quota for local butchers—those killing less than 300,000 pounds during 1941—remains at 100 per cent of their slaughter for the corresponding period in 1941.

May quotas for other types of meats, such as pork, lamb and mutton, remain the same as in April.

100 FLUORSPAR MINERS STRIKE IN PAY DISPUTE

Rosiclare, Ill., May 1 (AP).—More than 100 fluorspar miners went on strike at Rosiclare and Elizabethtown mines today in protest over what they termed delay in acting on wage increase demands.

Shut down by the strike were the Mahonning fluorspar mine here and the Crystal Fluorspar mine at Elizabethtown. The miners are affiliated with the United Mine Workers of America. They made demands for wage increases last October. The case currently is before the war labor board.

Fluorspar ore is vital to the making of aluminum and to certain types of steel.

LARD SHORTAGE NEAR 'CRISIS'; BLAME OPA LID

Excess Fat Foisted on Consumer.

BY ARNOLD ERICKSON.

A serious situation in lard production has been created by the office of price administration thru holding lard prices far below prices for most cuts of pork, Chicago stock yards authorities and spokesmen for the nation's retail butchers said yesterday. They declared thousands of tons of lard and pork fat monthly are "disappearing" thru retail channels, actually cutting meat rations.

John A. Kotal.

The acute lard shortage that has developed during the last few months, and the fact that requirements of the lend-lease have not been filled cannot be attributed to underproduction alone. These interests said almost unbelievable waste has been forced on the industry.

Seek to Reduce Losses.

In an attempt to reduce losses under OPA price control, many packers admit they are leaving as much fat as possible on the various pork cuts that go into retail trade rather than trim it off and sell at low pork fat ceiling prices.

Because of narrow profit margins, retail butcher shops pass the meat on to customers with the fat on, because they cannot do any trimming and charge prices within the law, spokesmen contended.

"Instead of going right to the source to stop the waste of such important war items as lard and other fat, the OPA depends on a roundabout method of asking housewives to save this surplus grease" said John A. Kotal, secretary of the National Retail Meat Dealers' association.

"Altho many housewives are doing a fine job of saving grease, under the circumstances the idea is silly. Only a small part of the fat leaving the shop on meat cuts ever comes back. Millions of pounds go into the garbage cans or down the kitchen sink drain when they should go into the production of explosives."

Consumer Is Gypped.

Consumers are not getting the amount of meat they are entitled to under the point rationing system, because they must use up many of their meat coupons for the fat weighed on the meat, said Kotal. Only the OPA is to blame for this situation, he asserted, because its low price on fats and grease forces packers and retailers to resort to such practices to remain in business.

Distribution authorities in the stockyards agreed with Kotal that housewives are getting many tons

STOCKS IGNORE COAL STRIKE IN BROAD ADVANCE

Utilities Average Rises to Two Year Peak.

New York, May 1 (AP).—Stocks generally rose fractions to about 2 points today, ignoring the coal crisis. Small gains were in evidence at the start. Prices turned a shade irregular later but hardened appreciably in the final hour when large scale bids appeared for leading rails, utilities, and industrials. Aside from steels, which backed down when the government announced it was taking over the coal mines, most favorites closed at or near their best levels, with many at highs for this year or longer.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 0.2 to 49.6, only 0.2 under the peak figure since May, 1940, and was up 0.7 for the week. The utility composite touched a new top since April 7, 1941.

Transfers for the two hours amounted to 843,855 shares, compared with 642,190 last Saturday.

New High Marks Set.

New highs were set by American Telephone, International Telephone, Southern Pacific, American Car and Foundry, Standard Oil [N. J.], Radio corporation, Warner brothers, Paramount Pictures, Consolidation Coal, Pennsylvania Coal, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, and United Aircraft.

Others with advances included Bethlehem, Santa Fe, Great Northern, Chrysler, Anaconda, Consolidated Edison, Public Service of New Jersey, 20th Century-Fox, Allied Chemical, and Texas company.

War news remained a supporting factor, as did many corporate earnings statements, showing better than expected results for the first quarter.

Axton-Fisher "A" jumped 4⅞ points on the Curb on news it was being called at 60 plus accumulated dividends of $20.80 a share.

CHICAGO STOCKS RISE.

Prices of stocks advanced yesterday on turnover of 18,000 shares in trading on the Chicago Stock exchange. Of the 71 issues traded 37 rose, 15 declined, and 19 were unchanged. New highs for 1943 were established by Radio corporation, Studebaker, Miller & Hart, Paramount, and Loudon Packing. In the half hour after the New York close Commercial Edison advanced ⅛ and Illinois Central was off ⅛.

BONDS ARE IRREGULAR.

New York, May 1 (AP).—Bond prices were irregular and moved in a narrow range today, but a few rail and miscellaneous issues rose a point or more. The Associated Press rail and utility averages were a shade lower, while the industrial composite was unchanged.

In the foreign division, prices averaged a little lower, altho a few South American issues scored wide advances. United States government loans were quiet and steady.

OHIO DENIES TAX EXEMPTION FOR FEDERAL HOMES

Board Rules USHA Must Pay Its Own Way.

the case to the United States Supreme court on a writ of certiorari but moved for its dismissal before it could be heard. As a result the solicitor general, by voluntary action, permitted the decision to stand unquestioned, the board said.

Leased from USHA.

The property involved in the Ohio case is the Laurel Homes housing project in Cincinnati, built largely with federal funds and owned by the United States housing authority. The property is operated under lease from the USHA by the Cincinnati metropolitan housing authority.

Certain of the early New Deal public housing projects are still owned by the USHA. Title to many of the later projects, however, has been transferred to municipal housing authorities created by state legislatures. The public housing projects in Chicago are of both types.

In an earlier decision the Ohio board denied exemption to the Columbus metropolitan housing authority on a project financed by federal funds on which title had been transferred to the state authority. The present decision, however, is the first in which the rule has been extended to property on which title is retained by the federal government.

The Cincinnati case was brought before the board on application by the USHA. The application was opposed by the attorney representing the auditor in Hamilton county, in which Cincinnati is situated, and an attorney representing an individual taxpayer.

Charitable Use Pleaded.

The case turned chiefly on the claim of the USHA that a state cannot tax "public property devoted to a public use." The USHA also claimed exemption on the grounds that the property was "used exclusively for charitable purposes," and that the state of Ohio could not constitutionally tax any property owned by the United States.

After reviewing numerous cases in which the courts have limited the application of the doctrine of immunity, the board concluded:

"Whatever difference there may be between implied immunity of a state and the corresponding immunity of the national government and its instrumentalities, this distinction ceases when the federal government exceeds its delegated powers and engages in private business. The leasing by the federal government of the property herein involved is not such an essential government function as to immunize the property from state taxation."

The board of tax appeals announced its ruling April 12. The USHA has until May 13 to appeal to the Ohio Supreme court, but so far has not indicated that such action would be taken.

LANDIS ELECTED NEW TRUSTEE OF BUILDING IN LOOP

Holders of certificates of beneficial interest of the Capitol Building company, meeting yesterday at 231 South La Salle street, elected Maxwell Landis, Chicago attorney, as a trustee. Four trustees reëlected are Joseph Solari, Harry Markheim, Robert C. Knight, and Herman Waldman.

In a proxy notice sent to holders of certificates of beneficial interest, Landis had charged that operating expenses and salaries paid officers of the company were excessive. He contended that funds on hand should be used to pay a dividend.

Gary Screw and Bolt Co. Workers Get Pay Boost

The regional war labor board announced yesterday approval of wage increases of 5½ cents an hour for 600 employés of the Gary Screw and Bolt company, Gary, with an additional differential of 2½ cents an hour for employés of the second and third shifts. The increase, bringing the minimum day wage to 78 cents an hour, equalized the company's rates with other Gary steel plants. The order is retroactive to Feb. 15, 1942.

QUARTER PROFIT OF PARKE-DAVIS MAKES BIG GAIN

12 Month Total Is Below Preceding Year

Profits of Parke, Davis & Co., drug manufacturer, increased substantially in first quarter of this year, but declined in the 12 months ended with March, the company reported yesterday.

March quarter net income was $2,204,307, equal to 45 cents a common share, against $1,614,266, or 33 cents a share, a year earlier. In the 12 months net income slumped to $6,909,268, or $1.41 a share, from $7,779,425, or $1.59 a share.

The company provided $2,510,000 for income and excess profits taxes for the quarter, compared with $2,011,450 a year ago. Provision for these taxes in the 12 month period totaled $8,398,550, against $6,864,069 in 1942.

Outboard Profits Rise.

Among other earnings reports announced yesterday were:

OUTBOARD MARINE—Net profits increased to $396,027, or $1.33 a share, in the March quarter from $275,519, or 93 cents a share, in the corresponding 1942 period. The company provided $2,547,000 for state, Canadian, and federal income and excess profits taxes for the 1943 quarter.

In the six months ended March 31 net earnings climbed to $914,369, or $3.08 a share, from $298,972, or $1.01 a share, a year earlier. This was after tax provision of $4,597,000 and $300,000 provision for contingency reserve.

R. G. LE TOURNEAU—This maker of earth moving machinery and equipment announced that renegotiation of war contracts and increased federal tax rates resulted in decreased profits of $2,097,600, or $4.37 a common share, for the year ended Dec. 31, compared with $2,886,958, or $6.26 a share, in 1941.

Agrees to Big Refund.

The company's 1942 federal tax bill totaled $3,307,000, against $3,989,313 a year earlier. The report said the refund from renegotiation agreed upon between the company and the government amounts to $4,700,000 and will be made during 1943. Final approval of the price adjustment board is still pending.

EX-CELL-O CORPORATION—Net earnings of the company which makes tools and machinery were $723,476, or $1.81 a share, in the quarter ended Feb. 28, compared with $959,584, or $2.41 a share, a year ago. The company provided $5,769,293 for federal income and excess profits taxes and possible adjustments resulting from renegotiation, compared with $3,103,752.

HOLLAND FURNACE—A net loss of $100,025 in the quarter ended March 31 was reported against a net loss of $124,696 a year ago. However, the company had a profit of $1,519,044, equal to $3.37 a share, in the 12 months ended March 31, compared with $2,080,854, or $4.62 a share, in the preceding 12 months.

SULLIVAN MACHINERY—March quarter profits declined to $177,387, or 95 cents a share, from $267,507, or $1.43 a share, a year ago.

WHEAT AND RYE RISE AS FEDERAL LOANS MATURE

Threat of Redemption for Market Sale Dies.

Freed of the threat that farmers might redeem millions of bushels of wheat and rye from government loans and sell the grain in the open market, prices turned upward yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade. The loans matured at midnight Friday and reports indicate that the Commodity Credit corporation took title to 150 million bushels or more of wheat which now cannot be sold to mills at less than parity price, or at about $1.61 a bushel for No. 2 hard, Chicago basis.

Wheat futures advanced about 1 cent and rye 1⅞ cents before week-end evening up caused a reaction. Rye sold at the highest price in over a month and closed 1 to 1¼ cents higher. Wheat closed ⅛ to ⅜ cent higher, May showing the most strength. Oats were ⅛ cent lower to ⅛ cent higher. Cash corn and futures sold at ceiling prices.

Rye Trading Volume Rises.

Reports that mills and eastern feed manufacturers had paid for large amounts of rye delivered on May contracts had a strengthening influence in that market. Rye's price discount of about 58 cents a bushel under wheat also was a factor.

Trading in rye futures last week aggregated 26,281,000 bushels, or about 40 per cent of the total business transacted on the exchange during that period.

The American and Canadian governments are reported to be negotiating for United States purchase of 30 million bushels of Canadian wheat to be used for feed in eastern and North Pacific coast states. About 7 million bushels were purchased recently. This grain can be imported only by government agencies. Winnipeg wheat futures advanced about 1 cent in the early trading on this report.

Reduces Wheat Estimate.

Unfavorable crop reports from the southwest were said by brokers to be influencing wheat futures prices. Mrs. E. H. Miller, crop statistician, estimated the probable yield of winter wheat at 603 million bushels, 9 million below her forecast of a month ago. The department of agriculture April 1 forecast was for a yield of 559 million bushels. Last year's crop was 703 million bushels.

Cash corn handlers said there was no indication of a drop in eastern demand, but said business is hampered by inability of those who need the corn to give up the May delivery in exchange because of ceiling price differentials. The May-September spread was unchanged at 1½ cents premium for the May. Brokers say that if a speculator holds May corn futures and desires to liquidate he can do so to advantage by selling the May delivery and taking the September in exchange at 1½ cents discount for the latter and then selling out his holdings in the latter delivery at the ceiling price.

LIVE STOCK DIPS TO LOW MARK SINCE JANUARY

Average 55 Cents Below March Peak.

Prices of live stock were driven down again last week, to the lowest levels since Jaunary under threats of price ceilings. Spokesmen for the office of price administration again told members of the trade that such action eventually will be taken unless packer costs get down in line with the prices at which they must sell meat under the wholesale ceilings.

Steers, hogs, and lambs averaged $15.40 a hunded pounds for the week, off 5 cents from the preceding week and 55 cents below the 1943 high in March. Slight gains in lambs were more than offset by declines in cattle and hogs. The hog average fell 20 cents to $14.75, the fourth consecutive week of declines.

Hog Marketing Expands.

In apprehension of a price ceiling, farmers moved more hogs to market, altho there was no sign of a liquidation of light, unfinished hogs. Arrivals in the Chicago stockyards aggregated 98,300, including shipments direct to packers, the biggest volume in eight weeks. This compared with 93,272 the preceding week and 79,066 two weeks ago. Average weights equaled the heaviest on record for April. The various classes finished 10 to 25 cents lower.

Cattle men also unloaded larger numbers during the week. Chicago receipts of 39,000 were the second heaviest in 11 weeks and compared with 33,357 the preceding week and 30,657 two weeks ago. Best grades of steers closed 15 to 25 cents lower, while other kinds were down 25 to 50 cents. Cows ruled steady to 25 cents lower. Heifers tumbled 25 to 50 cents. Calves held steady.

Lamb Market Rises.

The lamb market ran contrary to the general trend, rising 10 to 20 cents despite the second biggest supply in 11 weeks. The average for the week moved up 10 cents to $15.90, but this was only 10 cents above the lowest weekly average since the middle of January.

Several loads of hogs weighing 235 to 550 pounds sold steady, $14.55 and $14.60 yesterday. No cattle or sheep were sold.

Lone Star Gas Gets Delay to July 1 for Reorganizing

Philadelphia, Pa., May 1 (AP).—The securities and exchange commission today granted the Lone Star Gas corporation and subsidiaries an extension of time, until July 1, for reorganizing to comply with the holding company act of 1935. The corporation has filed a voluntary simplification plan which the SEC approved. Its petition for additional time to carry out the plan was filed some time ago.

INFORMATION.

Despite stringent regulation of the securities business and severe penalties for violations of laws relating to the sale of stocks and bonds, instances of investors being defrauded come to light occasionally. Still other investors fall victim to their own lack of caution when they make investments which turn out badly, since no amount of policing can provide protection against negligence.

The prime cause for these unfortunate experiences is actual negligence. Instead of making a careful investigation and study before parting with savings accumulated perhaps with considerable difficulty, many investors place their trust in superficial factors, hearsay, and even play hunches.

The April issue of the Exchange, monthly magazine of the New York Stock exchange, decries the failure of some securities investors, particularly those in common stocks, to obtain reliable information. "As any seasoned investors knows," the magazine states, "hit-or-miss selections of securities are unnecessary because a wealth of facts about corporations may be acquired easily—both current and in respect to past performance."

Principal sources of data on corporations whose securities are outstanding in the hands of the public are the statistical manuals and supplementary current information files compiled by several organizations specializing in this type of work. Most banks, brokerage houses, and investment dealers are subscribers to these services and are glad to have their customers use them. Many public libraries also have these volumes.

The Exchange magazine points out that "leading daily newspapers" publish a mass of statistical data derived from annual, quarterly, and special reports of corporations, and that this news "supplies a lead toward further study of the full reports which corporations are glad to make available."

The stock exchanges themselves maintain files on their listed companies, including annual reports for past years, and these files are open to public inspection.

One or more of these sources of information are available to the great majority of investors, either by personal inspection or thru correspondence. Failure to take advantage of them leaves the investor with no one but himself to blame when his holdings turn sour.

4 PHONE UNIONS ASSAIL LABOR FREEZE METHOD

Cite Failure to Provide Job Transfer Plan.

Four independent telephone workers' unions representing 15,000 workers in the Chicago area, charged yesterday that the Chicago district war man power commission had "failed, neglected, and avoided" setting up an employment stabilization plan.

Edwin R. Hackett.

By "forgetting the workers," the Chicago district WMC labor management committee has "virtually countermanded the purpose of the national war man power program," the unions charged in two petitions presented to the district WMC.

Send Telegram to McNutt.

Edwin R. Hackett, general counsel for the unions, said he had learned the district labor management committee, composed of two AFL men, two CIO men, and four management men, had met only six times since its formation in February.

The four unions sent a telegram to WMC Director Paul McNutt telling him of their protest and demands.

The unions, the Chicago Telephone Traffic union, the Commercial Telephone Workers' union, the Federation of Telephone Clerks of Illinois, and the Illinois Telephone Traffic union, demanded that labor and management men from the telephone industry be named to the committee and nominated Richard W. Long, president of the clerks' union, as telephone labor's representative.

Unions List Charges.

The unions, in demanding that the labor management committee set up an "adequate, efficient program," charged:

1. The number of skilled workers available for war industries in the Chicago area is the smallest ever.
2. The Chicago labor market is monopolized by several large concerns to the detriment of the war effort.
3. Workers spend many days idle seeking war jobs.
4. Discontent among workers frozen in jobs is decreasing production.
5. Many telephone employés are working less than 40 hours yet are not permitted to transfer into war jobs.
6. Many workers find it impossible to transfer to jobs closer to their homes.

No Transfer Machinery Set Up.

Hackett said many of these conditions arose because the committee had failed to set up machinery for transferring workers.

"I don't know why this is," Hackett said, "but I do know it helps old line employers within Chicago who are afraid, if transfers are permitted, they will lose workers to new cost-plus war industries on the edge of the city."

After a two and a half hour meeting with Eugene Brock, deputy WMC regional director, the union leaders said Brock told them the WMC cannot impose any program on its labor management committee, and suggested the unions take their complaint to the committee directly.

WORKER AWARD NOMINATION DUE NEXT SATURDAY

Closing date for acceptance of nominations for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's war workers' award for April is Saturday, May 8. Nine winners already have been presented with the diamond studded gold pin symbolic of the award.

THE TRIBUNE's award is presented monthly for the purpose of giving public recognition to the men and women serving their country on the production lines in factories producing war material.

Among the achievements which make a war worker eligible for nomination are: Development of an improved method for producing war material; speeding up of the assembly line; conserving of critical materials; saving on man power; or unusual devotion to duty.

Nominations should be sent to the war workers' award editor.

LARD SHORTAGE NEARS 'CRISIS'; BLAME OPA RULE

Consumer Meat Rations Cut by Excess Fat.

of grease they neither want nor need, but said only an OPA adjustment of prices will stop the flow. They contended it would be better to set lard and fat price ceilings at a level where it would not pay either the packer or the butcher to leave excessive amounts of fats on meat. Kotal said this would cut the cost of meat, both in money and ration stamps.

"Too Many Orders Now."

"However, there is no use trying to control the amount of fat thru new meat cutting specifications, the first thing the OPA experts will think of," he asserted. "There are too many such orders being issued from too many departments in Washington now. There must be a price incentive."

Using pork chops as an example to show how the consumer would benefit by a higher ceiling price for fats, one meat expert said that instead of getting a half pound of excess fat with a two pound purchase, there would be only a thin layer of fat. The present dressed cost of hogs exceeds $19.50 a hundred pounds, whereas the ceilings on various grades of lard range from $12.40 to $14.55 in the yards, he explained.

Packers said the OPA is basing its price program on peace conditions, under which lard consistently sells at less than the dressed cost of hogs. During war when all fats are needed in the production of explosives the value of lard frequently exceeds the dressed hog costs, they said.

Lend-Lease Buying Lags.

In 1917 the highest level for dressed hogs was $26.66, while lard sold up to $28.20. The top was $27.93 for dressed hogs and $27.30 for lard in 1918. Lard and pork fat currently is selling from $4.95 to $7.10 a hundred pounds under the dressed cost.

Lend-lease buyers are taking every bit of lard and pork fat they can find at the low prices, but they are obtaining far less that the goals set some months ago. Buying this year has fallen behind 1942 figures by almost 10,000 tons a month. Lend-lease purchases for the first two months this year were 70,872,000 pounds, a reduction of 38,294,000, or 35 per cent, from January and February of 1942. However, pork buying rose 153,325,000 pounds, or 98 per cent, from a year ago to 308,605,000 pounds in the first two months of 1943.

Live stock interests said hogs this year carry more lard per head than ever before, because of record weights, but packers are rendering less lard from each hog than they did in 1942.

Hogs Fatter, Trimmed Less.

A survey by the department of agriculture disclosed that packers under federal inspection during the first two months of 1943, the latest period for which official figures are available, cut almost two pounds less lard and pork fat from each hog than during the first two months of last year, altho the hogs averaged 252 pounds, against 238 pounds.

An average of 32.41 pounds was rendered from hogs this year, against 34.22 last year, only 12.86 per cent of the hog being sold as lard and pork fat, against 14.34 per cent.

Expert meat cutters estimated that closer trimming could have produced almost 40 pounds per hog of fat and lard, or 35 tons more than actually was rendered. Including uninspected plants the "wasted" lard totaled almost 100 million pounds for the two months, it was said.

By contrast, housewives returned less than 13 million pounds of all greases to butcher shops during the two months.

VOLUME OF NEW BUILDING FALLS AGAIN IN MARCH

Washington, D. C., May 1 [Special].—The dollar value of building construction started in March in urban areas of the United States decreased 72 per cent from a year earlier, the 13th consecutive monthly decline, the department of labor announced today.

The total decline was matched by a 72 per cent drop in the value of contracts for federally financed building projects. Other declines were: New nonresidential building, 85 per cent; new residential building, 60 per cent, and alterations and repairs, 55 per cent.

From February to March, the total value of construction fell 15 per cent. An increase in the permit valuations of private activity failed to offset the 47 per cent decrease in the value of federal contract awards.

Service Men Prove Good Home Mortgage Risks

FEW ASKING HELP FROM UNCLE SAM SURVEY REVEALS

Most Keep Up Payments on Their Loans.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

A survey of the city's largest mortgage banking concerns, with thousands of "army and navy mortgages" on their books, yesterday revealed a high financial rating for service men — few have called on the government for help in safeguarding mortgages on their homes. Only about a dozen have had principal payments on home mortgages deferred thru negotiations with their bankers. Few if any service men have found it necessary to seek aid under the soldiers' and sailors' relief act, it was disclosed.

Irvin Jacobs.

A few service men, expecting difficulty in keeping up payments on their mortgages with a war wage much smaller than their civilian salary, have rented their homes, usually at a much higher figure than their mortgage payments. Others have sold their homes, usually at a good profit.

No Material Change Expected.

Most of the mortgage bankers agree that when the draft takes older men, most of them with families and homes, the situation will not change materially.

"If the younger men keep up their payments we can expect the older men, with much more experience and stability, to do just as good a job," said Irvin Jacobs, head of Irvin Jacobs & Co.

Jacobs reported only one case of a mortgagor making neither principal nor interest payments. The mortgagee, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Mortgage company, a government organization, took no action.

Follow Banker's Advice.

"A few home owners have suggested payments be deferred while they are in the army or navy," said Jacobs. "We have pointed out that it would be wiser to make payments regularly if possible rather than have them pile up. In every instance they have followed this advice.

"We have a colonel who is making substantial pre-payments on his mortgage. A private came in with his attorney and asked if he could make interest payments only. We talked it over and now he actually is anticipating both principal and interest payments."

With thousands of borrowers on its books Jacobs said his firm seldom gets more than one inquiry a month from mortgagors in service about deferring payments.

All Make Interest Payments.

Dovenmuehle, Inc., Chicago's oldest mortgage banking concern, reported that out of several thousand accounts only eight have asked for deferred principal payments — all are making interest payments. No court action has been required. Several have sold their homes at a profit and others have rented theirs at higher rentals than their mortgage payments totaled.

The Republic Realty Mortgage corporation reported one army officer, who in civilian life had a five figure income as a physician and a luxurious suburban home, asked deferment. The insurance company holding his mortgage has waived principal payments. He is paying interest.

"We find a definite inclination among home owners to make payments, despite their lower income from army and navy pay," said Earle Vincent Johnson, vice president.

Only Two Ask Relief.

Percy Wilson Mortgage and Finance corporation said it has only two service men home owners who have asked for relief from principal and interest payments. Both are paying all tax, fire, and FHA insurance instalments. The company has 4,000 accounts and several hundred of the mortgagors are in the service.

The soldiers' and sailors' civil relief act was designed to aid service men in rent, sale, and mortgage matters.

Transportation Building Space Taken by Santa Fe

With the leasing of space by the Santa Fe railroad surgeons, the Transportation building is 94 per cent occupied, David C. Lee, manager, said yesterday. Since March 1 eight new tenants have leased 12,707 square feet.

Explains Building Priorities

Edward J. Kelly, state director of the federal housing authority, tells members of the Metropolitan Chicago Home Builders' association the intricacies of processing building priorities. Applications for more than 11,000 dwelling units priorities have been filed so far by Chicago home builders for the 3,000 quota recently given this area by the national housing agency. Left to right, front row: Kelly, Harry M. Quinn, Martin H. Braun, George F. Nixon; back row: Nathan Manilow, Joseph Lyons (FHA chief of priorities), John R. Lewis, and A. Campbell MacIsaac, executive vice president of the association.

Full Quota of Priorities for Chicago Area Is Urged

Immediate programming of Chicago's permanent and larger quota of priorities for war homes, promised the Metropolitan Chicago Home Builders' association two months ago by John B. Blandford Jr., administrator of the national housing agency, was urged yesterday by the association.

The request came after announcement by Edward J. Kelly, state director of the federal housing administration, that the first of the 3,000 "interim quota" priorities were about to be issued, and that applications for more than 11,000 already had been received.

The section adjacent to the Douglas plant on the northwest side will be the first to receive priorities, and NHA has allotted 600 for that area.

Urges Full Quota Now.

"Now, while the priorities processing machinery is functioning so efficiently, is the proper time for the NHA to program the full allotment of homes for Chicago," said Joseph E. Merrion, president of the builders' group.

"The need for housing is becoming more acute with each passing week and will be tragic before many months have passed unless NHA takes prompt action. The present 'interim quota' of 3,000 units is only one-tenth of the 30,000 homes that will be required within the next 12 months."

Merrion recalled that the latest report of the Chicago Real Estate board showed a residential occupancy of 99.9 per cent, which means that nearly every available housing unit in the city and suburbs is now occupied, even overloaded.

Kelly Explains System.

Kelly yesterday explained to a group of members of the home builders' association, the machinery used in processing priorities.

Under the "selective grid system" set up by the NHA, FHA and war production boards, he said, all applications must be classified as to areas, convenience to war plants, availability of the site, utilities, building record of the applicant and his financial responsibility, together with the critical materials to be used and the various rental brackets at which housing is to be supplied to war workers.

Merrion praised Kelly and his FHA staff for doing a remarkable and speedy job in getting the first of the priorities quota to the point of issuance.

Outline Effect of War on Real Estate Value

War and federal restrictions have helped some and hindered other Chicago real estate properties, according to Olcott's Land Values Blue Book for 1943, published yesterday. Small residential properties of all types in the metropolitan area were much in demand last year at prices from 10 to 20 per cent above pre-war figures, it said. On the other hand, prices of multiple unit residential buildings, altho slightly higher than before the war, are practically stationary as a result of the federal rent freeze.

Ralph A. Olcott.

A 10 per cent decline in values of most apartment, retail commercial, and residential sites in the higher priced brackets took place last year, it was said.

War Helps Factory Land.

Industrial property adaptable to war production purposes or storage space, however, was much in demand. Many plants found facilities inadequate and built on adjoining lands. The larger part of industrial land values, however, was unchanged.

Onerous and complicated federal red tape in the shape of constantly changing forms to be filled, and countless other governmental regulations, coupled with war's drain on men of military age, adversely affected retail properties on commercial streets, the publication said. Gas rationing closed several thousand gas stations, and many merchants, discouraged at federal interference, closed their stores.

Publishes New Value Book.

"The trend of building along the outer edges of the city will no doubt continue," said Ralph A. Olcott, publisher. "However, in recent years it has been definitely established the new homes are marketable in well kept old neighborhoods. The reason is that many people prefer the conveniences that these old neighborhoods offer over and above any possible future enhancement of property values."

Supplementary to the Blue Book, Olcott has introduced a new type of land value book, the first edition of "Cook County Zoning and Land Values." It contains 23 township zoning maps, the text of the zoning ordinance, and a summary of the 1939-'42 quadrennial land values of all unincorporated areas.

60 DAYS' FREE RENT OFFERED WAR FAMILIES

Sixty days free rent for the family of any tenant who is inducted or enlists in the military service of the United States, was announced yesterday by the Mayfair Management company, owner of several Chicago apartment buildings.

"The Mayfair Management company believes that special consideration is due tenants who enter the army, navy, or marine corps" said an official of the company. "To any such tenant of property managed by this company we therefore offer up to 60 days' rent free occupancy of the leased apartment, dating from the day of induction.

"Both lease and rent charges will terminate as of the induction date, if so desired, but the immediate family need not vacate the premises until an additional 60 day period [or less] has expired. We believe this rent free period will prove a great boon to families forced to make readjustments because the head of the household is going to war."

REALTY GROUPS TO HOLD 3 DAY WAR MEETING

Action for effective use of real estate resources thru the war period will be planned by directors of the National Association of Real Estate Boards and executive boards of seven other specialized groups representing various fields of real estate in the Drake hotel on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday.

Their discussions will include war housing and war industry effects on future city growth, suggested changes in rent control administration, and plans for post-war rebuilding. Cyrus Crane Willmore of St. Louis, Mo., president of the association, will preside at the principal meeting of the association's directors Friday.

Plastics and the Future
Business experts forecast a tremendous expansion of the Plastics Industry. New materials and new methods that had to be developed for war products will be used to make low cost homes, autos, planes, textiles, furniture, and a host of other products light in weight, yet durable and colorful.
In our world of the very near future we will be surrounded by products made from new and strange materials about which most people know very little. It goes without saying tha those who do know will be in an enviable position.

DAY BY DAY ON THE FARM

The FARM by Ben Markland

May 1, 1943.

WITH a barnyard full of domesticated mallards, White Rock chickens, Muscovy ducks, turkeys, guinea hens, and one peacock, there are certain to be nesting mixups every spring. This season is no exception, as we found during a visit to the Wheaton farm the other day.

Each spring brings its problems, with birds building nests in unusual places, ducks chasing their neighbors away and stealing nests and eggs, and chicken hens incubating "borrowed" eggs placed in their nests by the flockmaster, but this week we saw the evidence of one of the most unusual nesting mixups in the farm's history.

Mallard Loses Nest.

A mallard hen and a Muscovy hen were nesting side by side in the duck house. The mallard nest was slightly higher off the floor than that of the Muscovy. One day the Muscovy got tired of looking up to the smaller mallard, so she left her own nest and chased the mallard away. Then she calmly settled herself down on the mallard's eggs, leaving her own clutch of 20 eggs to the elements.

Now the mallard is without a nest or eggs; the Muscovy is incubating the mallard's eggs; and her own eggs have been put under a chicken hen in the poultry yard. Therefore none of the three participants in this nesting puzzle will hatch her own eggs, but all will be hatched!

Another mallard hen is having crow trouble. Crows seem to delight in destroying mallard nests and eating the eggs. One of the mallards built a nest beneath the lowest strand of the barnyard fence. One day last week a farm woman saw a crow swoop down into the lower end of the barnyard and walk toward the mallard's nest with the obvious intention of having an egg meal.

Flees Out of Range.

By the time the flockmaster could reach the spot with shotgun in hand, the crow had departed out of range. One shotgun charge was sent his way, with a warning attached to every pellet, so the flockmaster is hoping the lesson will be sufficient to keep this pest and all of his relatives away from the barnyard.

A pair of mallard ducks which have been in the barnyard since last fall now are "at home" on one of the farm ponds. The flockmaster reports that this duck and drake chose to rear their 1943 family away from barnyard society, and consequently trailed off alone to build a nest on the shoreline.

★ The GARDEN ★

GARDENERS who plan to cultivate lima beans this season should be getting ready to plant as soon as the ground warms a little more. It usually is possible to plant lima beans during the second week in May, but they should not be put in the ground if the soil is cold because of a tendency to rot under such conditions.

The gardener of the farm's sample plots will seed Burpee's Improved and McCrea varieties. Both are bush types and have proved highly productive. Burpee's Improved produces a large bean; McCrea is a smaller bean of excellent flavor. Both can be planted at the same time and only one planting is necessary because, if the pods are picked the plants will produce all summer.

If more than one row is planted, the rows should be three feet apart. Seeds should be planted two inches deep.

The farm gardener hills lima bean stalks when they reach a height of 12 inches. At that time about four inches of loose soil is hilled around the plant to keep plants upright and hold the buds off the ground. Lima beans usually are resistant to insect attack, altho rabbits are fond of destroying the young seedlings. If rabbit damage is noticed a dusting of arsenate of lead will stop the attacks.

DISTRIBUTORS AND JOBBERS ATTENTION!
There will be a bigger demand for door mats this Spring and Summer than ever before due to the fact that every one will be wading ankle-deep in mud trying to raise a Victory Garden. Help keep this dirt and mud out of the house with good door mats. The usual sources of steel, cocoa, rubber and tire-fabric mats are not available due to the war. Over 18,000 Victory and Liberty wooden link door mats have been sold in the last 60 days. Thousands will be sold in your own territory. For further sales information, write the American Mat Corporation, Toledo, Ohio.

BOWES "SEAL FAST"
Conservation of rubber has created a tremendous demand for Bowes "Seal Fast" tire repair equipment and materials. These open franchised Chicago and Oak Park areas as wholesale distributor for our line of products requires a capable merchandiser with sufficient capital to carry an inventory to supply present dealers and meet the demands in the area for our equipment. WOULD $25 HELP?
$25 FOR 30 DAYS COSTS ONLY 75c

Quite often $25 in cash is about all it takes to tide a person over until payday

As you can see from the example above the cost on our monthly rate of 3% on balance of $150 or less and 2½% on that part of the unpaid balance over $150, is extremely moderate. Of course, if you need a larger amount, just let us know. Loans $10 to $300.

Scientists Seek to Overcome Germany's Rubber Advantage

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 1.—Under way and prosecuted with vigor is research to devise a heavy duty truck tire without the use of natural rubber. Sought is a substance which can be mixed with synthetic so it can function for the heavier tires as well as it does on the rims of passenger car wheels.

The scientific hunt is for an answer to the No. 1 problem of America's No. 1 war material shortage—how to make big tires when the nation's stock pile of natural rubber is exhausted. If it is successful, it will be a technological victory for America's new synthetic industry over Germany's synthetic industry a quarter of a century old. The Germans, according to the latest available information here, still are using about a third natural rubber with two-thirds synthetic in their heavy duty tires.

Six Mixes Being Tested.

Six different pastes, plastics, and jells are being tested as a synthetic mix in experiments at tire companies being watched by staff technicians for Rubber Director William M. Jeffers. No conclusive results are ready for announcement. If a successful formula is contrived, its components will become a military secret. Little could be learned for publication about progress to date except that there were hopes.

"Each of the inventors, chemists, is enthusiastic about his product," said one of the government's experts, "but we aren't going to be optimistic until laboratory and road tests have proved the claims. We would indeed be fortunate if American science succeeded where German science has failed."

The physical aspect of the heavy duty tire problem is that internal friction develops intense heat which natural rubber can withstand but which disintegrates pure synthetic. A passenger car tire is thinner, dissipating the heat better than the heavy duty tire, and because the bearing weight is lighter there is less friction from the repeated stresses. That's why fairly satisfactory passenger car tires can be made from synthetic without using any appreciable natural rubber.

Proportions Vary.

With synthetic just coming into production in America, heavy duty tires are beginning to be made with approximately 30 per cent natural rubber. The proportions vary for different services and the prescriptions still are somewhat experimental. Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the war production board, testified before the Truman committee this week that these mixed rubber casings delivered about 80 per cent of the wear of natural rubber tires.

This rubber demand for truck tires, for both military and civilian service, is worrying officials more than is the passenger tire shortage. The stock pile of natural rubber is dwindling. Synthetics are beginning to ease, but not to halt this drain. Nelson said synthetic production in 1943 will total about 175,000 tons in plants being completed in July and August with an annual capacity of 452,000 tons.

It's the crude rubber situation, more than the synthetic, which prompted Nelson to tell the senate committee this week that there is still a danger of a calamitous rubber bankruptcy in the fourth quarter of this year. The year was started with a stock pile of 440,000 tons of natural, no synthetic, and an outlook for 35,000 tons of natural imports this year and a, 1943 production of 241,000 tons of synthetic. These figures add to 716,000 tons as the total supplies of natural and crude to Jan. 1, 1944.

612,000 Tons Needed.

The 1943 requirements, as estimated last January, totaled 612,000 tons. This would reduce the inventory to 104,000 tons on Jan. 1, 1944. Jeffers, in his Feb. 18 report, quoted the rubber industry for saying that an inventory of less than 100,000 tons would close some of the rubber manufacturing plants, disrupting the industry.

Requirements have had to be whittled as synthetic plants have been delayed in coming into production. Nelson testified that even military uses have had to be curtailed and that many industries, notably lumbering, have lagged in output owing to tire shortages.

With synthetic plants with an annual capacity of 452,000 tons slated to be in full production on Jan. 1, 1944, there still is some doubt as to how well requirements can be met next year after additional plants are completed. The doubt hinges on how much natural rubber will be indispensible regardless of synthetic supplies.

Demand May Be Reduced.

Technological advancements may reduce the demand for natural rubber as we learn to use synthetic better. Jeffers' technicians are now reviewing this outlook. The outcome of the experimental tests with new paste, jell, and plastic mixes for synthetic truck tires will be a determining factor.

In the official statement of 1943 requirements of 612,290 tons, the United States military was allowed 312,500 tons. Under present knowledge of synthetic applications, part of this must be natural rubber. The same statement applies to 65,000 tons assigned to commercial vehicles and 105,000 tons listed for export as finished goods, mainly truck tires. Canada was slated for 47,500 tons this year and 41,290 tons were ear marked to fill a British deficiency while 41,000 tons were labeled for sundry industrial, indirect military and civilian requirements.

Synthetic rubber, as it now is being made, is a substitute for nature's products with many but not all of its characteristics. Unless it can be doctored to serve as heavy duty tires, America must get much more natural rubber than is now in sight.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

WONDERS ABOUT LICENSES.

Chicago, April 20.—Isn't it good to own a car and live in Chicago. You don't have to obey the traffic laws; if you do get arrested, you get a suspended fine. And best of all you don't have to have a government stamp, city tax, or state tax for 1943. And you don't have to have a safety sticker. At least that is the way it looks from the cars being driven in Chicago. Fifty per cent have last year's licenses.

JAMES F. VONDRAK.

SAYS SPEEDING A MENACE.

Chicago, April 29.—This morning at 5:30 at 31st and Halsted streets a car drove thru a red light and nearly ran over a paper boy, and had my husband been driving fast he would have been struck and most likely killed.

My husband, a short time ago, was in the hospital as a result of a man driving thru a stop street sign. My husband was knocked unconscious and very badly hurt.

What is the city going to do about these speeders? I shudder every time he goes to work and wait in fear until he gets home. Are these laws only for special people?

I wish the police would park at 72d and South Park avenue at night and catch the speeders. We hear them all night burning up the street, tires screeching as they turn the corner at about 60 miles an hour. Do these people know there is a war on?

VISITS LICENSE BUREAU.

Chicago, April 4.—As you enter the building at Van Buren and Ashland to get your license plates, three men sit at a desk smoking cigars. They get a license blank for you to fill out and after you fill it out you enter another section of the office where there are three men calling out numbers of booths in which you are to get your license. They divide the calls so the clerks in the booths will not be overworked.

After you get your license plates you are confronted with some four or five men putting on license plates on the street. They carry a pair of pliers, a wrench, and a hammer. There are about eleven men doing nothing toward war work. Will some one tell me how these peddlers and men putting on licenses pay the victory tax, or do they?

JAY MARTIN.

WANTS SIGNS USED.

Lansing, Ill., March 27.—If the scrap shortage is as severe as they say why don't they take all the speed limit signs of 35 miles an hour or over and donate them?

MRS. DORIS DEISSLER.

EAST HOPS ON JEFFERS FOR GAS EASEMENT

Coddling the Motorists Is Senators' Charge.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 1.—A charge against Rubber Director William M. Jeffers that he is coddling motorists—one of the hot issues before the Truman investigation committee—is prompted mainly by this week's increase in gasoline allotments for necessary driving outside the seaboard states where there is a petroleum shortage. A few of the senators, from the gas starved eastern states, interpreted this liberalization as evidence that Jeffers is tolerant of avoidable tire usage.

Jeffers, since he took office last September, has had a higher regard for the importance of motor car operation than others in the administration. This is not the first time he has been attacked on this issue. As a railreader—he's president of the Union Pacific—no one has to tell him that transportation is the lifeblood of the nation, and as a westerner—his home is in Omaha, Neb.—no one has to tell him that distances are great outside the cramped eastern seaboard.

Increase for Work Driving.

The increase in maximum gasoline allotments for "work driving" were ordered by the office of price administration with the approval of Jeffers. It is the rubber director's assignment to provide tires for automobile travel within the limits of the gasoline allotments.

Jeffers had received evidence that there were many vocations useful to society which could not be limited to a previous maximum of 470 miles a month of occupational driving [a fuel allowance of slightly more than 31 gallons] without impairing their usefulness to society. The notable examples were farmers and ranchers and certain sales and service travelers.

Under the new regulations, a maximum of 720 miles of occupational driving can be authorized by local ration boards on evidence of the applicant's need. Formerly, only a few preferred classes of users, such as doctors and public employés, were allowed this much gasoline, a maximum of 48 gallons a month, to use in connection with their jobs.

Not for Pleasure Driving.

Jeffers' philosophy emphasizes the necessity of maintaining a sound home front to support combat in the field. He repeatedly has told congressional committees that unless this home front is provided with rubber for transportation, the home economy would break. He does not countenance pleasure driving.

Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the war production board, in testifying before the Truman committee this week declined, at the sessions open to the press, to be drawn into the question of whether Jeffers is furnishing motorists more rubber than is absolutely necessary. He referred the senators to the rubber director to answer this question. Jeffers is scheduled to testify on Monday.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Truck drivers employed by Keeshin Motor Express, Inc., one of the nation's largest trucking companies, are signing up as "soldiers of the road." To emphasize the importance of the job being done by truck drivers in transporting the raw materials used by war industry, the company has brought out an attractive pledge to be signed by each driver.

The truck soldiers pledge themselves to "stay on the job because I know that motor transportation is one of the essential industries of our nation; be a steady worker because I realize that absenteeism is a form of un-Americanism; will utilize every minute of every working day because by so doing I will promote the war effort to the fullest extent of my ability; will not transfer jobs because I fully realize that will waste my precious man-hours."

The document further pledges the drivers "to keep a soldier's faith to the end that every soldier fighting on our country's firing line will know that I am with him in spirit and in actual deeds."

John L. Keeshin, president, signs each pledge, promising the full cooperation of the company to help the driver carry it out.

The army is meeting success in its program to reduce driving of military automobiles, it was disclosed yesterday by Maj. Gen. H. S. Aurand, commanding officer, sixth service command. Military users of automobiles consumed 633 less gallons of gasoline in February than were used in January. On the ration basis used for civilian cars, this meant 9,493 fewer miles of driving in February than in January.

Harry J. Klingler, vice president of General Motors and general manager of Pontiac, says that aircraft torpedoes are coming off Pontiac's assembly line months ahead of contract and already are reaching naval operations. These torpedoes are said by ordnance experts to be among the most complicated and self-sufficient weapons in the history of warfare. They are launched from low-flying torpedo planes. The manufacturing skill required is comparable to that demanded for making fine watches.

An X-ray camera so powerful that its invisible rays penetrate more than 10 inches of solid aluminum has been installed in an aluminum foundry of the Dodge division of the Chrysler corporation, comments F. J. Lamborn, vice president and newly appointed general manager of the division. The new instrument will be used to expand studies and tests made of aluminum used in the manufacture of aircraft parts.

OUR FIRST WORLD'S FAIR—A MIRACLE OF CIVIC PRIDE

By DELOS AVERY

TOWARD the end of the 19th century the new world discovered by Columbus was approaching the 400th anniversary of his arrival, and Chicago was going to do something about it. So was the nation.

The nation was, measuring its age from the Declaration of Independence, a sinewy and upstanding old gentleman of a hundred and something; and Chicago was a raw and touchy youngster in her 50s, with mud on her boots, money in her purse, and a chip on her shoulder.

She had known what it felt like to be insulted by experts, including the languid, knee-panted, silk-stockinged Oscar Wilde, who had looked with disdain on the city's pet architectural gewgaw, the water tower, and called it "a castellated monstrosity with pepper boxes stuck all over it." Chicago had endured the derision of New York and Boston and Philadelphia, accepted the taunts of visiting Englishmen and Frenchmen. And she was aching for a chance to answer the whole yelping pack.

• • •

She wanted to show the world that she was as good as anybody, better than most, and that she expected to be treated like a lady—or else. She'd show 'em she could be as elegant as Paris, as "civilized" as London, as refined as Rome. And as for New York—let New York move over!

So, naturally, when a lot of congressmen in Washington began talking about how it might be a smart idea to put on a national world's fair in 1892 to celebrate the neat trick of navigation performed by Columbus and his three little ships,

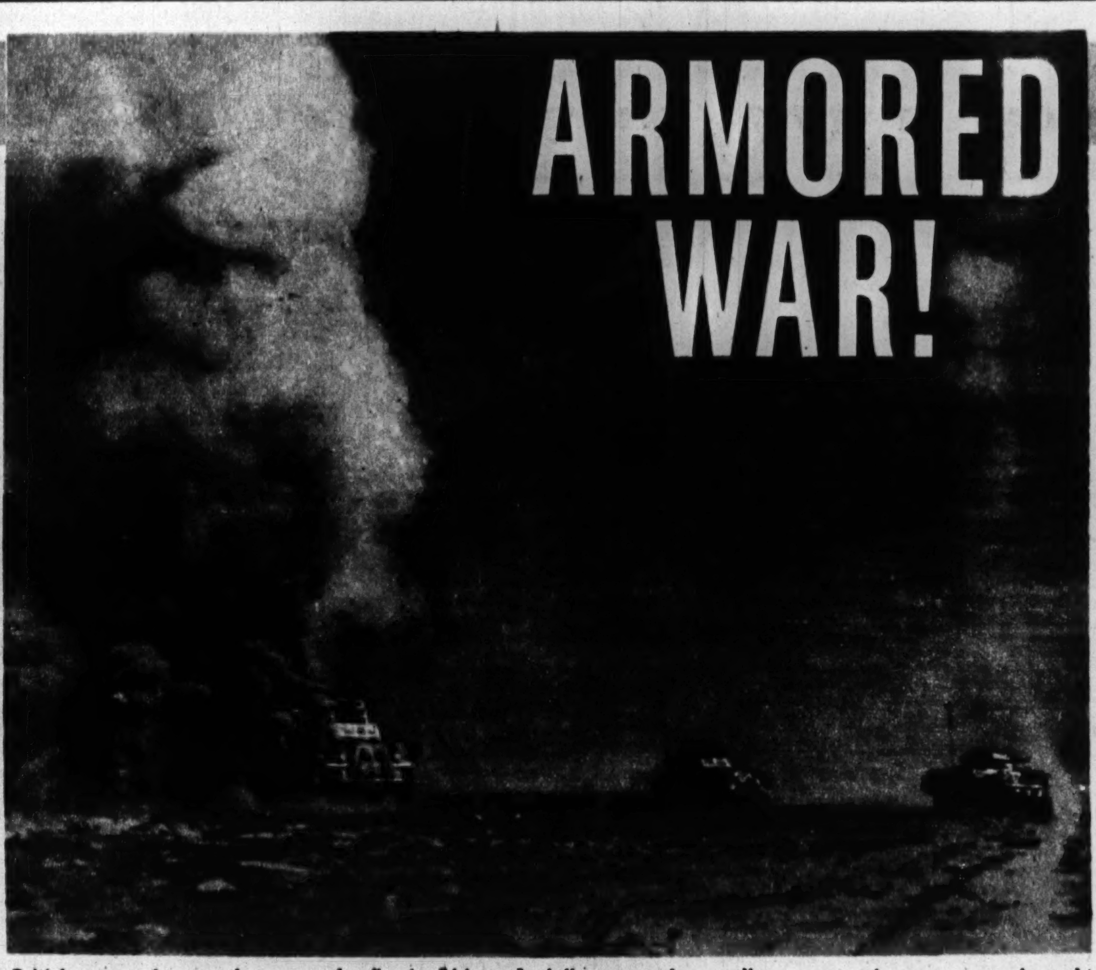
AN ANALYSIS OF ARMORED WAR!

By STANLEY JOHNSTON



British armored cars advance under fire in Africa. In fully armored war all segments of an army are brought into action by mobile units. (Acme photo.)

ONE OF THE controversial subjects of the war is the merit of a fighting force organized after the pattern of German armored divisions.

Under the Nazi plan every section of the army moves along on self-propelled vehicles. The more orthodox conception has a fighting force built around infantry, with all other arms acting as support. Which school of thought is right? Many senior military officers still widely disagree on this subject—men in positions to determine the type of arms we are to build for this war and the methods with which our fighting men will employ these weapons.

But when we examine the components of an armored division and see how this "new" type of fighting organization operates we find that the old concept of warfare has not really been scrapped. All that has changed is the method of bringing the various segments of an army into battle.

We have taken the infantryman off his feet, the cavalryman off his horse, and done away with artillery and supply wagons drawn by horse teams or tractors. Today the armored force has the advantage of rolling into battle on self-propelled vehicles with armor plate thick enough to protect the occupants at least against rifle and machine gun bullets, and flying bomb or shell fragments, which caused such heavy casualties during World War I.

There has been no substantially new weapon since 1918, but progress in the civilian engineering field has provided greatly improved weapons.

The modern tank is the same in principle as the World War I. tank, but it is faster, more thickly armored, has bigger guns or stepped-up fire power, better performance, and greater reliability.

The artillery is the same, tho usually guns are lighter for the same weight of shell fired. Instead of being mounted on a wheeled, horse-drawn carriage, the cannon of an armored force is mounted on a full or half track truck, and the crew has the protection of bulletproof armor. This enables the artillery to move at the same pace as the tanks and across terrain that any tank can traverse. Furthermore, armor protection enables the gun to fight at close quarters with the foe.

The infantry no longer has to charge across bullet-swept ground to come to grips with an enemy entrenched and defended by barbed wire. Now it rides in bulletproof infantry carriages straight to the front lines, thus reducing the heavy toll of casualties suffered from rifle and machine gun fire which made the last war history's costliest.

The problem of supply immediately prior to the opening of a battle is now much simplified, for the self-propelled vehicles that bring up men and weapons also carry greater quantities of ammunition than could be handled by troops afoot or in horse-drawn carts. The out and out use of armored supply vehicles allows necessary replenishments to be driven to the areas where most needed.

In place of cavalry for reconnaissance, and to speed troop movements for outflanking maneuvers, the armored force uses tanks, armored cars, and other vehicles.

Besides tanks, armored mobile artillery, and infantry, carriers are used to move along with the advancing forces transporting such other components of a mobile army as engineering detachments, chemical and heavy weapons troops, mortars and their crews, plus all the needed equipment. Some day we may even see the armored force fully furnished with mobile ditch-digging machines capable of keeping pace with the advancing units. These machines can be put to work immediately, once at their destination, scooping out trenches as protection against enemy bombs, and excavating pits to hide below ground all except the muzzles of mobile artillery.

To sum up, we find the armored force consists of a balanced cross section of any orthodox army, with emphasis on speed. Instead of the 3½ miles an hour of the foot soldier, it can do better than 20 miles an hour, and this pace can be maintained as long as the state of the fighting makes it politic to continue.

One of the major objections raised by the opponents of a large armored force is that such a force cannot fight in dense woods, jungle swamps, or rugged mountains. That is true—partly, and the armored force exponent will be the first to admit that armored fighting is limited by terrain. At the same time he will point out that the battle for Europe, for example, will take place in terrain generally suitable for machine warfare. He will go farther and draw attention to the special vehicles developed by the Germans and used in the Caucasus to enable troops and weapons to climb many of the mountain ranges there. In the final analysis, suppose mechanized infantry at times is forced to dismount and fight afoot in terrain over which vehicles cannot travel. Would there be any disadvantage to have been brought up to such a point in trucks rather than having marched all the way? Finally, to the question, "Can armored troops overcome orthodox armies in attack?" the answer appears to be overwhelmingly, "Yes."

Even if infantry has to dismount after reaching the battle line, it has reached the front faster and fresher. A Scots guard regiment in action at El Alamein. (Acme photo.)

An armored division carries its own artillery along with it. This is the 105 mm. cannon mounted on a tank chassis—called by British the "Priest."

On the other hand, it is frequently argued that even the Nazis do not risk too great a part of their strength in armored divisions. Only about 30 divisions out of a reported 300 to 350 are armored.

The reason for this obviously is the rather limited motor manufacturing facilities of Germany. Suddenly called upon to produce innumerable weapons ranging from aircraft to submarines, the Germans could not build enough essential vehicles to equip more divisions and at the same time replace the heavy war losses.

We need only reflect upon the time it took our own much vaster industry to build up the still insufficient stock of weapons now in the hands of our fighting men—and during a period when we were not engaged in fighting that entailed losses to be replaced such as the ones suffered on the German-Russian front.

Another point that invariably arises deals with the probability of means being eventually devised to nullify the armor protection afforded tanks at present. Of course, there is nothing new in this. From the beginning of time there has been a continual struggle for supremacy between armor and weapons. Sometimes it is armor that seems to have the top position; at other times it's the gun.

As early as World War I. tanks were destroyed by gunfire—yet they inflicted more damage on the enemy than the enemy did on the tanks. Today both the Germans and the allies have powerful anti-tank guns that will shoot thru the heaviest tank armor. There is no doubt that such weapons will destroy many tanks thruout the war. Still, with the correct use of aircraft and mobile artillery and by skilfully employing infantry, which is part of the composite whole of an armored force, sufficient anti-tank guns will be destroyed before they have a chance to get at a tank. Only in cases where the tank commander fails to utilize his weapons properly should opposing anti-tank guns dominate the battlefield.

We have had one major failure of armored forces in the defeat of the British last June-July when they were midway across Libya. Reports indicate the British had forced the Afrika Korps onto the defensive in foothills fringing the desert. The enemy had laid mine fields to avoid being rushed by Gen. Harold Alexander's tanks. Anti-tank guns and heavy tanks were hidden along roads leading up the slopes.

The British covered their infantry and engineers with artillery and aircraft while they cleared away mines to leave safe paths thru the fields. Then, before they could attack, a violent sandstorm arose, forcing the attack to be delayed.

Under cover of the sandstorm the Germans are reported to have relaid mines in the cleared gaps, then replaced their guns to cover these approaches. When the sandstorm cleared the British sallied forth, running their tanks right among the newly laid mines. Many tanks were blown up. The rest were pounded by the anti-tank guns and in a couple of hours only about 60 out of 360 survived.

This, however, in no way proved that tanks had been rendered obsolete by anti-tank mines and guns. If so, how can we explain why Rommel's tanks were able to chase the entire allied army back right across Libya to within 50 miles of Alexandria without notable interference from British anti-tank guns and mines?

Tank men will be the first to admit that tanks, used alone, are vulnerable and of only limited usefulness. That is why all branches of an army are included in the armored force. Tank advocates differ from the strictly infantry exponents, tho, in claiming the tank should not be used to support infantry, but that infantry should be used to support tanks and to protect artillery, in the same way artillery should be used to support tanks—by blasting out enemy anti-tank defenses and assisting in uprooting hostile infantry.

The bugbear of armored force enthusiasts is the fear of some time being placed under the command of an officer who fails to understand the underlying reasons for an armored force being composed of a variety of different arms. Such a commander might take away for use elsewhere some of the infantry, artillery, or even tanks, sending the force into battle bereft of the "balance" so essential for complete fighting power. They point to the German thesis, which says:

"The armored division was organized as a balanced force of the combined arms, including tanks, for use as a powerful offensive unit. The strength of the armored division is its tank units used as a concentrated striking force. This striking force must be given the support of all other arms and services of the armored division. The infantry, the artillery, the attached air force, and engineers are combined in their support of the attacking tanks."

The over-all picture of the armored force rolling into battle is not just one of tanks speeding far in advance of all other arms, but one in which all arms advance together. It might be that the infantry and engineers will be in front in the initial stage, with the artillery close behind and tanks back out of sight. This would merely be the first step in attacking a position safeguarded by mine fields.

Only after engineers, protected by artillery, have cleared roads thru the mines, would the tanks move forward. They would then be closely followed by infantry and artillery. The latter would be readily available to fire on any hidden anti-tank guns or strong points, and the infantry would be right there to protect the artillery from hostile units previously passed over by the tanks, and to mop up the battlefield.

Thus we can see detachment of individual units from the armored division would weaken its all-around fighting power and ruin the fitness of the whole division for employment in battle.

The modern armored force specialist agrees that land fighting generally is subject to the situation in the air. Unless it has fighter planes overhead in sufficient numbers to disrupt hostile air attacks, a land force can be subjected to such a pounding that its operations become limited. The wise commander follows the creed of Lt. Gen. Jacob L. Devers of our own armored force:

"See to it that enough .50 caliber machine guns are available to all sections of the force to take heavy toll of low-flying enemy planes. Let them discover that low attacks on the force always cost a high percentage of planes, even when there are no fighters present at the time to give protection."

We should all welcome the changeover from war such as we knew it in 1914-'18, and which resulted in such heavy slaughter, to mechanized warfare. Armored and air war appear to give promise of victory with the minimum of casualties. We have the industrial equipment to outbuild all of the axis countries combined, and then double and treble them.

ASSISTANT GENIUS!

LOOKING AT HOLLYWOOD WITH HEDDA HOPPER

MANY YEARS ago, when "Don Juan" opened at our Egyptian theater here, John Barrymore, the picture's star, was called upon to make the oration of the evening. It was a momentous occasion, the film being the first epic with sound. But instead of speaking about the marriage of sound and pictures Barrymore delivered a eulogy of the picture's assistant director, and summed up with: "An assistant director must have the tenacity of a bulldog, the diplomacy of a Talleyrand, and the courage of Jack Dempsey."

John was referring to Gordon Hollingshead, who's long since become the head of Warners' shorts department, and he's demonstrated all the qualities Jack attributed to him. In his present post, which he's held for six years, Hollingshead has the unique record of hitting the bull's-eye with six Academy awards.

His story is a bit of Hollywood's history, for he's been active here more than 25 years. He was assistant director back in 1925 when Fox made "Temple of Venus." The picture was being shot on location at Santa Cruz Island, the female lead being played by a young girl Winnie Sheehan had sent out from New York. After the first day's shooting the director decided the girl wouldn't do, and arranged to substitute Mary Philbin, who had just made a hit in "The Merry-Go-Round."

It was Hollingshead's job to break the bad news to the girl who had traveled 3,000 miles for the job. But before he could speak to her she'd already got wind of it. When he learned that, instead of sending her back to New York alone, he took the boat trip back with her. She was convinced that her career was over, but he encouraged her by talking about the ups and downs of our town. Her name—Jean Arthur. And with that kind of a start it's no wonder Jean is difficult to understand at times. It was a hard knock which she's never been able to completely erase from her mind.

A similar experience happened later when "Children of Dreams" was being made. The juvenile lead was to be played by a young New York actor. Some days after the picture started one of the authors called over Hollingshead and told him he didn't like the way the actor read his lines. "His diction is terrible!" the author shouted. "Get rid of him! I'll get some one else." Holly took the actor to lunch and read the bad news to him as gently as possible.

As a result of his experiences as assistant director, Holly has a talent for spotting newcomers. Joan Leslie's first appearance was in one of Hollingshead's short "Alice in Movieland." Soon after Joan was elevated to stardom. Dennis Morgan made his Warner bow in "Ride, Cowboy." He, too, has become a star. When John Payne was winding up his unspectacular career at Warners' he was put into a short called "The Royal Rodeo." Payne was anything but pleased, but he made it. He had to. A few months later the picture was being shown in Palm Springs. Darryl F. Zanuck saw it, rushed to a phone, and had John Payne's signature on a Twentieth Century contract within 24 hours.

JEAN ARTHUR found solace in Holly's words.

The first time Sonja Henie performed on skates here, and before any one but Sonja thought of her as a movie bet, Holly brought her to Warners' for a screen test. Unfortunately, even the casting director refused to see her, and Holly was stymied. When he went backstage at the rink to ask her if she was interested in pictures she replied: "Yes—but I don't vant just to do a bit with skates. I vant to be the vun who is in luff with the leading man!" And when he asked if she could act she said, "Any one who is a champion must have intelligence enough to be a good actress!" (Well, the jury's still out on that one.)

Gene Tierney is another. A few years ago Holly was sitting in his office when a Warners messenger boy phoned to say he was taking a tourist around the lot, and she claimed to be Holly's cousin. He asked her name, was told "Gene Tierney." Holly said: "Send her over. I'll take her around myself." The last time he'd seen her she was 4 years old, so he wasn't prepared to find Gene as she is today. Never having been inside a movie studio, Gene gaped at every one. And the stars who were making movies gaped at Gene! Wherever Hollingshead took her, directors and producers stopped to urge Gene to take a screen test.

When they returned to his office he spoke to her like a Dutch uncle. He told her that if she signed with a studio at that time she'd get $50 or $75 a week and never get much farther. He advised her to go on the stage first, and gave her letters to friends on Broadway. As a result of his counsel, Gene today is one of the highest paid actresses on the screen. And on his office wall hangs a photograph of Gene, autographed to "Holly—my favorite cousin."

Jack Barrymore was devoted to Holly. Barrymore insisted on having him as assistant director on most of his pictures, never traveled anywhere without him. Once Barrymore took a trip, and Holly, as usual, went along. The social set hounded the Profile with invitations, but Barrymore, who despised the snooty set and referred to them as "codfish society," attempted to steer clear of them. They finally managed to wangle an acceptance out of him, tho, and Barrymore made Holly accompany him to the swank party. On the way Barrymore told him: "You're going to get an awfully raw deal from these people. They're typical snobs, and they're going to make you feel uncomfortable. But leave everything to me and you'll be all right."

When they arrived Holly was completely ignored, while all the women made a fuss over Jack. But soon Barrymore introduced him to the hostess. Then he leaned over and whispered something in her ear. Her eyebrows went sky high, and abruptly the affair turned into a party for Holly. He found himself surrounded by fawning females who never left his side, while Barrymore slipped off and spent the rest of the evening in the kitchen with the servants.

On the way home Holly asked Barrymore what he'd whispered about him that had made him so popular. Barrymore grunted and said, "I only referred to you as the richest and most influential producer in all Hollywood!"

DENNIS MORGAN started with Holly.

Many of those patriotic shorts you've liked were done by Holly, who's a direct descendant of the Revolutionary hero Ethan Allen and of Robert E. Lee. When he first submitted his idea to the studio the sales chiefs gave it a flat veto, and Holly continued to work as an assistant director.

• • •

One day his pal, Brynie Foy, said they were shy a short and asked for ideas. So Holly handed him a script titled "Song of a Nation." It was the story of how Francis Scott Key wrote "The Star Spangled Banner." Brynie ran thru it and said: "Nobody ever went wrong with the flag! Look what it did for George M. Cohan." And told him to go ahead. When it was completed and shipped to New York, Harry Warner saw it and after one look wired Foy, "Go all out on patriotic shorts!" Since then Holly has been grinding out training films.

It was his idea to do "Knute Rockne—All American," "The Maltese Falcon," and "Santa Fe Trail."

He's a big, lumbering guy, but even at the studio, which is the last to give praise (they think salary's enough) 'tis said he's worth his weight in gold.

VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: Will you kindly print Gene Autry's address and something about him? Thank you.

NINA MAE.

Gene Autry

Dear Nina Mae: A letter addressed to Gene in care of Republic Pictures, Hollywood, will reach him. As you know, I imagine, he's a "western" singing and acting star who also composes songs. He was born in Tioga, Tex., Sept. 29, 1907. (Going to get busy on his horoscope?) He's worked on ranches, been in radio, and entered motion pictures in 1934. In case you don't get that picture you plan to send for, here's one for you this bright (I hope) Sunday morning.

Dear Miss Tinée: Will you please give me information on the following questions: Did Joan Crawford ever play in the moving picture "Rose Marie"? Did Charles Laughton ever play in the moving picture "If I Had a Million"? Thank you very much.

Yours very truly,

HELEN BEATTY.

Dear Miss Beatty: Joan Crawford played the title rôle in the screen version of "Rose Marie," produced in 1928. Charles Laughton was featured in the film "If I Had a Million."

Dear Miss Tinée: I recently saw the motion picture "Navy Blues." I thought it was swell. Could you tell me who played the part of Homer Matthews? Also can you tell me why the picture "Icecapades" hasn't had more publicity? It's very good for service men. Thanks for your answers in advance and good luck!

LOIS ANN LONG.

Dear Miss Long: Herbert Anderson played the rôle of Homer Matthews in the film "Navy Blues." I thought that "Icecapades" had the usual amount of publicity. You've very welcome, and good luck to you!

Dear Miss Tinée: I enjoy your column very much and read it every Sunday. I've just seen "Reunion in France," with John Wayne, and would like you to print his address and a bit of biography. Thanks a lot! P. S.—I'd just ignore what Bessie said about your column. She probably doesn't even know how to write.

JEANIE SCHWARTZ.

Dear Jeanie: O.K., I'll do some ignoring. John's real name is Marion Michael Morrison (purty, what?), and he's 6 feet 2 inches tall. A Winterset, Ia., lad, weighing 198 pounds and carrying about some blue eyes and brown hair. He was born May 26, 1907. You've seen him in many pictures, among them "The Long Voyage Home" and "Lady for a Night." (I'm awfully glad you like the column!)

Dear Miss Tinée: Please print a picture of Geraldine Fitzgerald and something about her in your column. I always read "Voice of the Movie Fan" and think you're doing a swell job.

BETTY HICKS.

Geraldine Fitzgerald

Dear Betty: Kind words—how I love them! Thank you! Here's a picture of Geraldine. Like it? She's an Irish girl—born in Dublin, Nov. 24, 1914. Her mother's sister is Sheilah Richards, leading lady at the Abbey theater and one of Ireland's best known actresses. She was married in 1936 to Edward Lindsay Hogg, an Englishman, and in 1940 became the mother of a son—Michael Edward. You've seen her in many pictures. "Dark Victory" was one.

A CODE OF HEALTH FOR WOMEN WHO WORK

By ELEANOR NANGLE

THE U. S. O. division of the national board of the Y. W. C. A. has issued a little booklet addressed to women who work. Called "Vitality for Victory," its purpose is to help women help themselves to be sufficiently physically fit and mentally alert to work well and happily.

Physical and "nervous" breakdowns are a luxury neither individuals nor the civilian structure can afford nowadays, and women in particular must make certain to maintain the balance between hard work and good health.

It is the novice to work who is most apt to fold up if she isn't careful. She hasn't the "know how" of doing what must be done with the least drain on her physical and emotional resources. She has lessons to learn, and it's her job to learn them painlessly. In this booklet the U. S. O. and the Y. W. C. A. are helping.

Here, verbatim, is the Y. W. C. A. health code for the working woman:

Adapt your program to your capacity.

Balance work with play, exercise with rest. Keep good health habits.

Strengthen your body; build gradually for flexibility and endurance.

Refresh yourself regularly with a hobby.

Choose your food wisely.

Learn to relax.

In the accompanying sketch, which is adapted from "Vitality for Victory," you see some simple tricks that will help you lessen your fatigue, whether you sit or stand at your work.

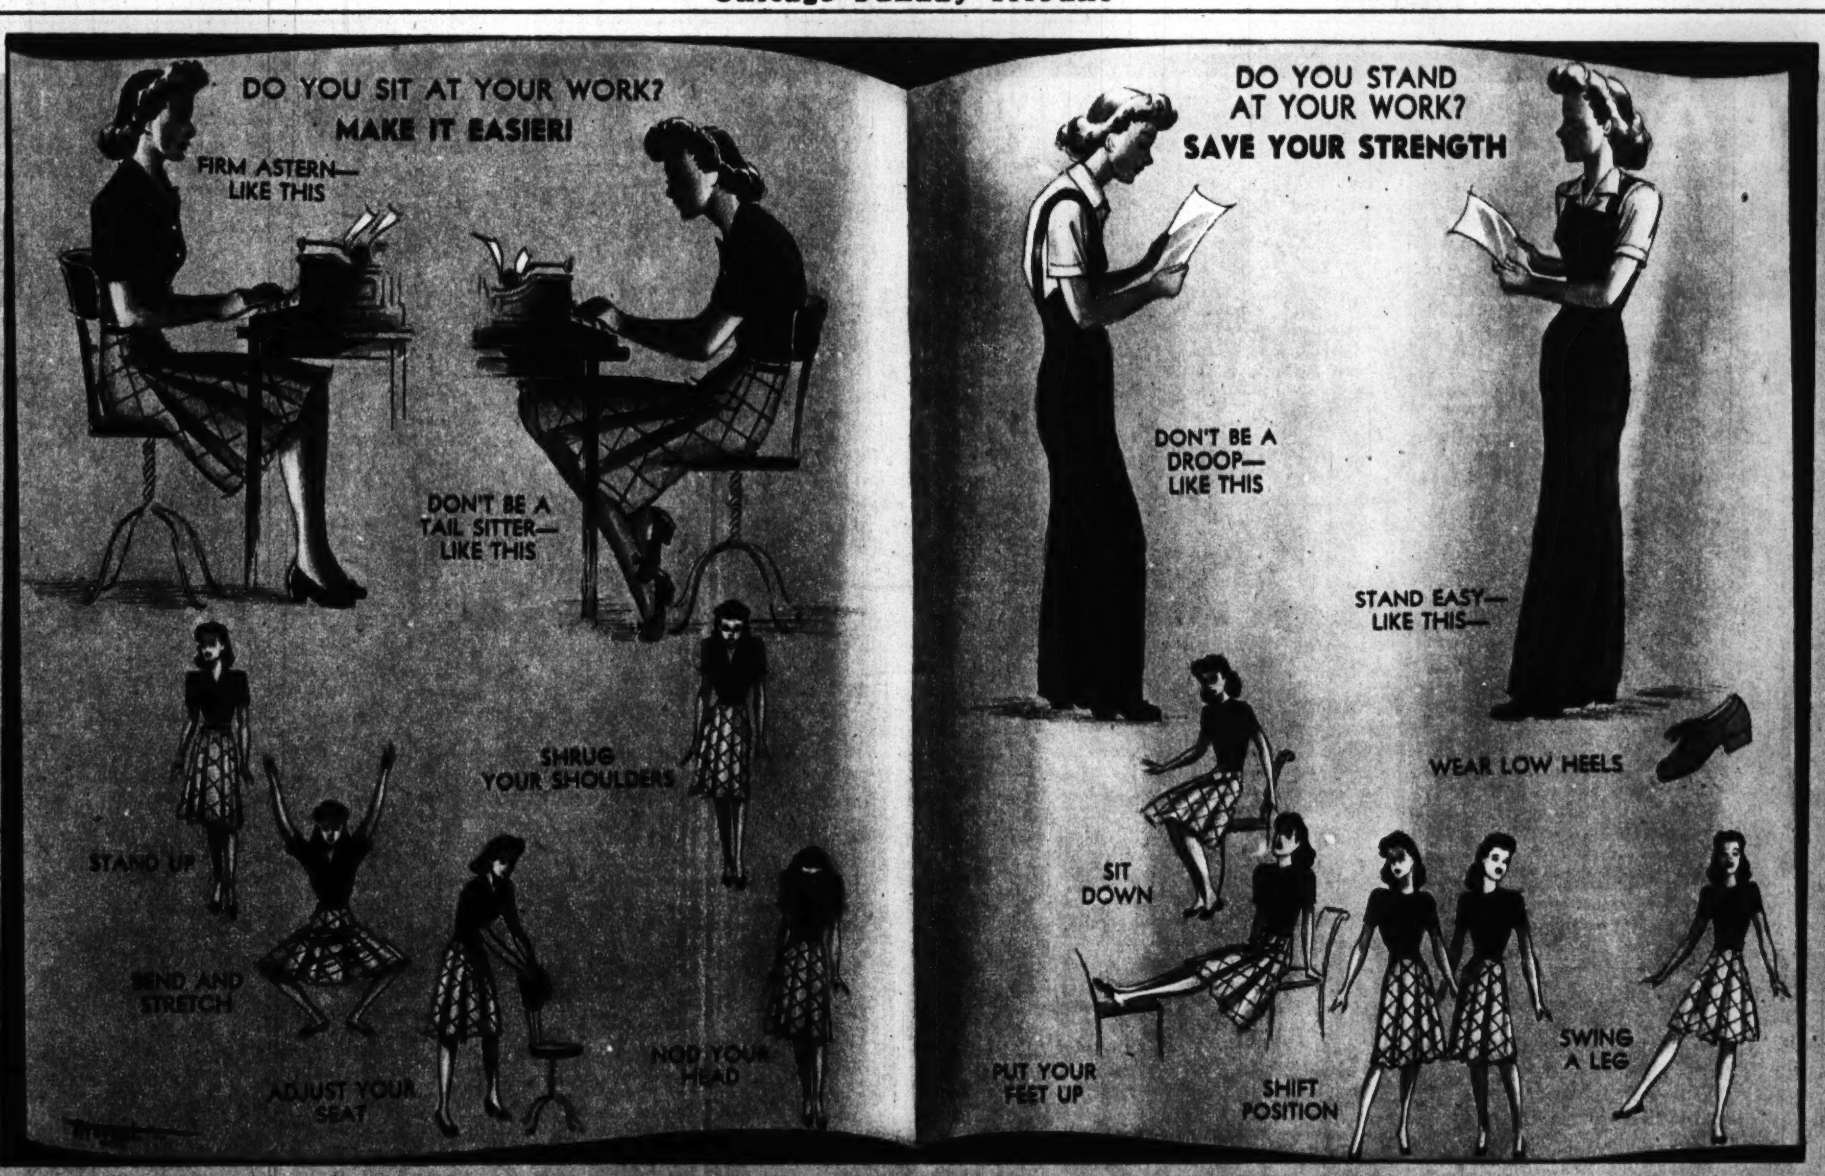
If you sit, heed well the admonition not to be a tail sitter! Sitting firm astern does help you to sit longer without aches in your spine than you can when you curl up on the end of it. What's more, it actually helps you to keep those important abdominal muscles stronger and firmer. If you sit well back in your chair, with your weight squarely on the two big bones which were intended to carry it, you'll automatically fall into the posture that helps preserve your waistline!

Whether you sit or stand, it's important that several times a day you shift position. Go outside and walk around if you can, breathing deeply. Or, if you feel jittery and worn, lie down for a few minutes, letting your mind and your muscles go utterly limp.

• • •

Learn to make your body work for you. It's constructed to stand plenty of wear and tear. But when you stand or sit improperly you throw its gears out of mesh, producing an unevenness of strain that will wear you down in a surprising hurry.

Next Sunday—Further U. S. O.-Y. W. C. A. pointers for the maintenance of good health by women at work.



BREAD AND GRAVY HAS ITS DAY

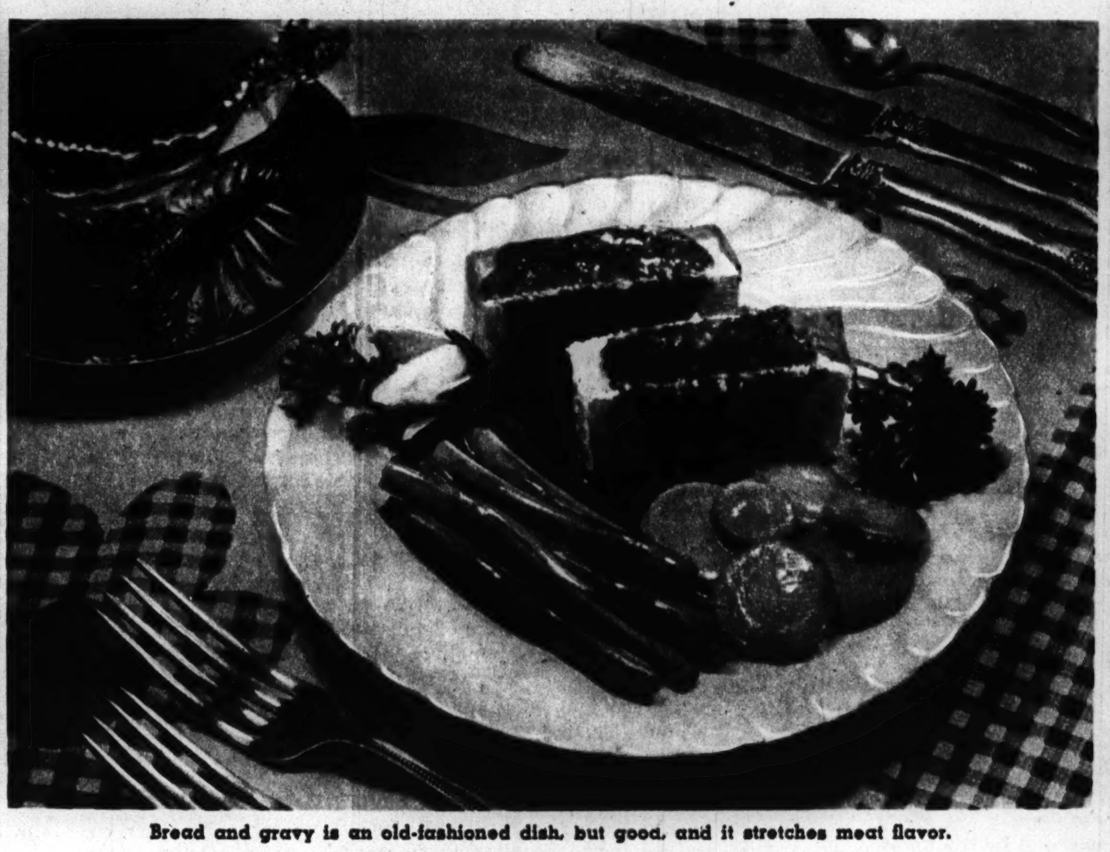
By MARY MEADE

OLD-FASHIONED bread and gravy is a good dish, and an economical one these days. Instead of going entirely meatless one day a week, it might be better to stretch the meat flavor over the "meatless" day by serving gravy made from meat drippings of the day before.

Such flavorful gravy made from the essences of pork, veal, beef, or lamb could be served over blocks of plain or toasted bread, over rice or potatoes, over noodles, macaroni, or spaghetti. The meal may be meatless, but it needn't be gravyless.

Save all the drippings from cooked meat, and when you don't use them immediately, store in the refrigerator. If there's room you can put a cover on the skillet in which meat has been cooked and store the whole thing in the refrigerator until you are ready to make gravy. That way you won't lose any drippings by transferring them to another dish.

When you are ready to make gravy, melt the drippings and measure them accurately unless you are an experienced cook who can estimate the amount of fat in a pan without actually measuring it. To make two cups of gravy you'll need ¼ cup (4 tablespoons) fat. Add to that the same amount of flour, blend it well, and let it brown over medium heat. If you like very rich looking brown gravy, add an extra 2 tablespoons of flour, for when you brown the flour deeply it loses some of its thickening power. When you've browned the flour, add 2 cups of water very gradually and cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until gravy has thickened and become smooth.



Bread and gravy is an old-fashioned dish, but good, and it stretches meat flavor.

Gravy shouldn't lump if the flour and fat are thoroly blended and if it is stirred constantly while the water is being added. If it does lump, take a rotary egg beater to it. Season the gravy well with salt and pepper and serve it very hot.

Milk gravy is very good. Usually it is made from chicken or pork fat and drippings. In order to spare the milk supply, milk gravy can be made with half milk and half water.

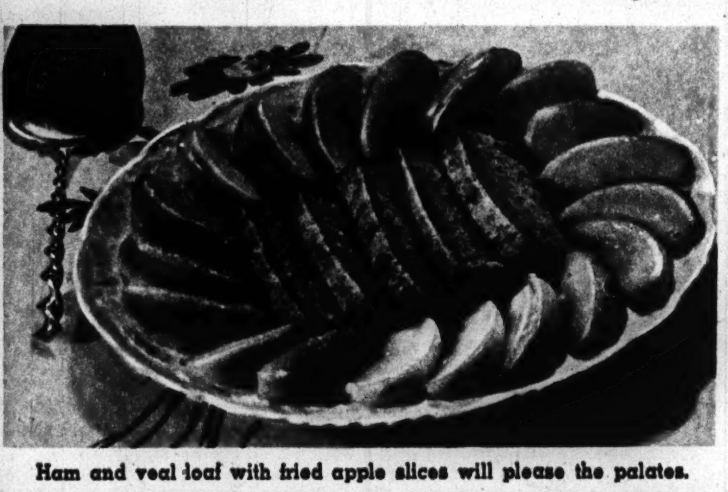
HAM AND VEAL LOAF WITH APPLES

(Twelve servings)

1 pound ground smoked ham
1 pound ground veal
¼ cup catsup
3 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper
2 beaten eggs
1 onion, finely chopped
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups bread or cracker crumbs
¼ teaspoon pepper
⅔ cup milk
Fried apples

Mix ham and veal with other ingredients, except apples, and fill a greased loaf pan. Bake 1½ hours at 325 degrees. Serve hot, sliced and surrounded by fried apples. To prepare apples, wash, core, and cut into eighths. Fry in a small amount of margarine until lightly browned, then sprinkle with sugar, add a cover to the pan, and let the apples steam just long enough to melt the sugar. Do not let them cook long enough to lose shape.

This ham loaf is delicious cold as well as hot. Slice it thinly for sandwiches, more thickly if it's to be served alone. It may be reheated and served with white sauce on the second or third day.



Ham and veal loaf with fried apple slices will please the palates.

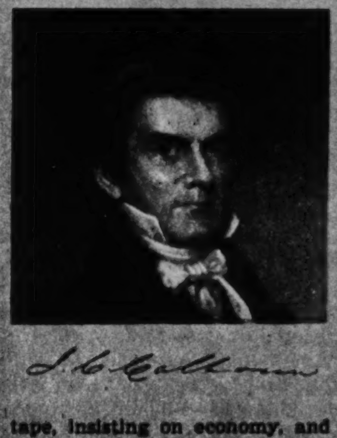
DISTINGUISHED AMERICANS

● This is another in a series of biographical sketches of America's historical celebrities appearing every week in the Graphic Section. The illustrations are taken from a famous work, "The National Portrait Gallery of Distinguished Americans," published in 1865.



JOHN C. CALHOUN, one of America's greatest orators and statesmen, was born in Abbeville district, South Carolina, March 18, 1782. Tho his parents were poor and his early education neglected, he managed to graduate from Yale in 1804 and soon was set up as a lawyer in his home town.

He entered politics at once. His ability as a speaker commanded quick attention. He was a master of extempore, not bothering to make notes either of what he himself intended to say or of what his opponent had said. He would listen calmly while a foe was talking, then rise and devastate him with perfectly ordered, excellently reasoned rebuttal.

His marriage in 1811 to a wealthy cousin raised him to the ranks of the rich landowners. The same year he was elected to the national house of representatives, where his reputation had preceded him. At once he was placed on the important foreign affairs committee. Immediately he raised the cry for war against Great Britain. It was his personal belief that Britons should be cleared from America's western precincts in order to allow plenty of room for national expansion. Together with Henry Clay, he was instrumental in bringing on the war which followed.

By 1817, when he was only 35, Calhoun was secretary of war in President Monroe's cabinet. He found the department disorganized and fond of fuss and feathers. It was a test of administrative ability which he met magnificently by shearing red tape, insisting on economy, and promoting efficiency.

In 1824 he was elected Vice President. He was reëlected in 1828. In 1832, during the famous nullification controversy, he resigned as Vice President and was sent to the senate by South Carolinians. In the upper chamber he was the leading advocate of the philosophy of states' rights.

Calhoun had often been mentioned as a Presidential possibility, but so glittering was the galaxy of statesmen in this period that he was never nominated. In 1844, however, when he was 62, he was asked to be a candidate. He refused. But he did accept a temporary appointment as secretary of state, serving until March, 1845. Then he returned to the senate.

A man of tremendous force and ability, he left his impress upon almost every national policy formed over a 40 year span. Under his leadership the Wilmot proviso, which would have kept slavery out of territory ceded by Mexico, was defeated in the senate. Thruout the bitter controversy between north and south which resulted in the Civil war he was a courageous and terrible fighter on the side of the south.

In 1850, during the great debate over admission of California into the Union as a free state, Calhoun died.

HE'S A COWBOY from Ohio, is Roy Rogers! The popular western star was born in Cincinnati, and it probably was boredom with his job in a shoe factory that led him to learn the guitar. He became so good and his singing voice was so acceptable that by 1932 he had made an opening wedge into the entertainment field via radio.

Those hours he put in on the air served him well, for they in turn smoothed his path into the movies. He made his debut in a comedy picture, but the vogue for singing cowboys soon led to his being featured in that type of rôle. His most recent picture is "King of the Cowboys."

Chicago simply lifted her voice to a pitch an octave or so above all the other candidate cities and said:

"Leave it to me!"

She said it in more words than that. She said it in orations, said it in columns of newsprint, said it with gestures, and said it with cash. And she got what she asked for, while St. Louis howled in vain, while several other cities jeered, and while New York — which had expected to win as a matter of course and without a contest—wore a look of pained surprise and consoled herself with the thought that the fair's visitors from overseas would come into her parlor twice instead of once, first on their way to Chicago and then on their way back.

Chicago had got what she asked for and she was feeling fine, not yet aware that, along with the glory, she had let herself in for as fancy an assortment of municipal headaches as any city ever lived down.

Time was short—considering the magnitude of the job. There were sites to be chosen, land to be cleared, land to be created, buildings to be erected, foreign nations to be wheedled, exhibits to be assembled from afar, politicians to be appeased, transportation problems to be solved, artists and architects to be reconciled, shelter and food and fun to be provided for countless thousands of visitors.

Fortunately, some of Chicago's lookaheaders had been toying with the notion of a fair since 1885, and some good preliminary ideas were ready for the word go. This was a great help.

T. W. Palmer, head of the "commission,"

H. N. Higinbotham, president of the exposition.

Lyman J. Gage, president of the board.

The original plan, of course, was to open the fair in 1892, the fourth Columbus centennial. They didn't quite make that deadline, but they did work fast enough to have an impressive dedication ceremony within the time limit, which was enough for the record. And in the following spring, May 1, 1893, an umbrella bearing multitude braved a chilling drizzle and moved in.

What that damp and delighted throng saw was the finished spectacle, not the drab drudgery and obscure courage which had created it.

Daniel H. Burnham, leader of the little band of architects and artists who produced the marvel, later paid tribute to his colleagues by pointing out that their task had included "reclaiming nearly 700 acres of ground, only a small part of which was improved, the remainder being in a state of nature and covered with water or wild oak ridges."

"In 20 months," he continued, "this had to be converted into a site suitable for an exposition of the industries and the entertainment of representatives of all the nations of the world. On its stately terraces a dozen palaces were to be built—all of great extent and of high architectural importance—these to be supported by 200 other structures. Great canals, basins, lagoons, and islands were to be constructed. The standard of the entire work was to be kept up to a degree of excellence which should place it on a level with the monuments of other ages."

The choice of the Jackson park site, including the broad strip called the Midway connecting with Washington park, came after much debate. Chief of the alternatives proposed was the lake front between 12th and Randolph streets, which would have lessened transportation troubles but which, it was decided, called for too much "made" land.

Financing was another of the difficulties of which the first day crowd remained blissfully unaware. But fairs always cost more than they are expected to, and the estimates on this one had risen step by step. Originally the corporation found subscribers for $5,000,000 of capital stock. This sum soon had to be doubled—and the doubling called for a city bond issue, and the bond issue necessitated an amendment to the constitution of Illinois. All right, Chicago said, amend it. And that was done.

But it was not enough. The construction department figured that the pre-opening expense would total $12,766,890. The budget committee raised the guess to $16,075,453. And a later revision was $19,437,827. (Any man who ever built himself a house knows how such reckonings fluctuate — always up, up, and up some more.)

Congress chipped in $2,500,000 in the form of "Columbian half dollars," the idea being fair visitors would be happy to swell the sum by paying a premium for the coins and keeping them for souvenirs, which many did. But congress, an Indian giver, took back $570,880 "for expenses." And the fair bridged its difficulties by issuing "exposition bonds," which were hard to sell until the railroads and banks consented to buy them.

Red tape inevitably gets tangled all around a project in which large numbers of important people with opposing views and vanities have to work together. It was so in the scheme set up for operating the fair. There was a "commission" with a roster bristling with the names of the influential from various states—because this was to be a nation's show, not merely Chicago's. There was a "board of lady managers," provided as a gesture of chivalry. In addition there was a "corporation" under Illinois state authority. The official history, filling four huge volumes, dryly observes that it was the "corporation" that "not only provided by far the greater part of the necessary funds but also did the greater part of the work."

Among the 45 directors of this corporation, men who "raised the money and did the work," we find plenty of names now etched deeply in Chicago's history—such names as Allerton, Colvin, Cregier, Farwell, Higinbotham, Kohlsaat, Kirkman, Odell, Pike, Wacker, Ryerson, Yerkes. The president of the board was Lyman J. Gage.

Thomas W. Palmer (of the Michigan Palmers) was head of the commission; Mrs. Potter Palmer, Chicago's social dictator, was president of the board of lady managers; Harlow N. Higinbotham was president of the exposition, and Daniel H. Burnham, architect, was "chief of construction and director of works."

It was Burnham, according to Henry Justin Smith's account, who "on a cold and cloudy morning in January, 1891," stood with a number of other architects "on the bleak beach about seven miles south of the heart of Chicago" and was asked by one of them, a Bostonian:

Burnham said yes and the Bostonian said it could not be done.

Burnham lured other architects, ablest in the country, to join him for the duration. Also a great landscape designer, Frederick W. Olmstead, was given a free hand "and 15 million" to transform an ugly waste into a garden of loveliness. And such famous sculptors as Augustus St. Gaudens and Frederick MacMonnies joined with Chicago's own Lorado Taft and the rest of the beauty squad in tackling the task of seeing that the separate beauties of the whole scene were so related to each other as to compose a unity of pleasure to the eye.

To accomplish this two broad decisions were made. One was that all the buildings on the Court of Honor should have a uniform cornice height. The other was that all buildings should be white, so that the fair was sometimes called "The White City." Paul Bourget gave it that name and, by way of dramatic contrast, called the rest of Chicago "The Black City," a flowering of white out of black, like a lily created and nourished by rich dark mire, something for imaginative moralists to write sermons or poems about.

Time, it must be repeated, was short and getting shorter. Just two winters and one summer were available when Burnham had his little chat with the Bostonian. And winter in Chicago always has meant trouble for builders. Smith's book tells us that "the winter of 1891-'92 was severe, that of 1892-'93 even worse." He tells also of "heroism shown as the buildings rose, were clothed with walls and roofs, were plastered with 'staff' and painted with jets of white paint blown thru hose. There were heroes fighting the cold and perils; there were men like sailors climbing among the girders; there were foremen and subordinate artists who should have had a medal apiece. . . ."

"The advance troops of the World's Fair army," he continues, "had to flounder in icy bogs, dig in earth hardened by frost, and in milder weather face virtual quicksands. Horses sank leg deep in the mud; vehicles bringing lumber . . . had to have temporary plank roads. . . ."

The accumulating weight of snow was too great for the skylights and even for some of the roofs, so that great damage was done. Thaw and rain brought leaks and threatened to wash small buildings into the lake. There were 7,000 workmen and 700 accidents, 18 of them fatal.

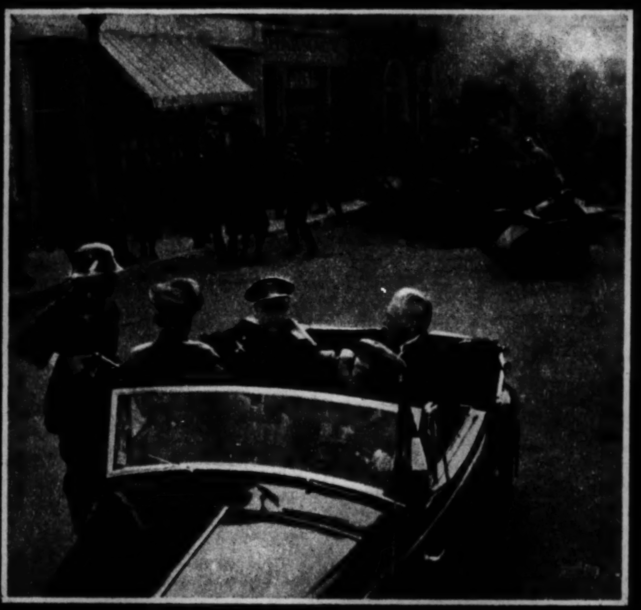
2 Louise fears that Paul is sympathetic with the Nazis. Lory is fearful and bewildered, but George Lambert (George Sanders), her fiance, is secretly happy to collaborate with Major von Keller (Walter Slezak).



3 Despite Von Keller's attempts to avoid antagonizing the people, his oppressive measures bring about an explosion—the explosion of a bomb that just misses the major and the mayor. Now Von Keller is forced to act.

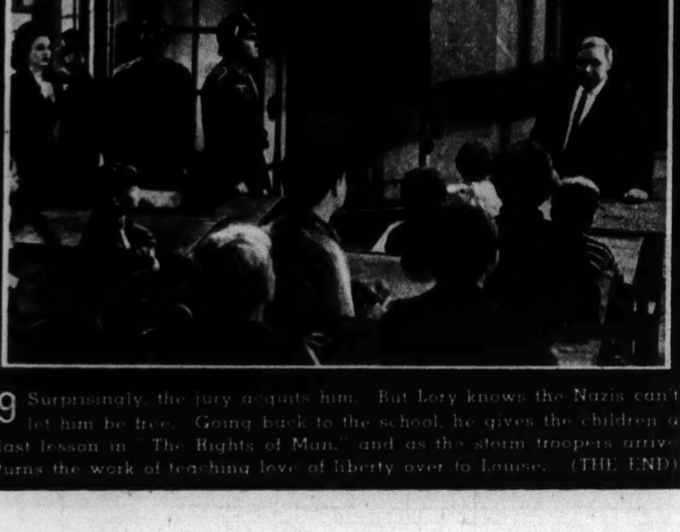
4 In the traditional way he orders 10 hostages arrested. One of them is Lory, whose aged mother (Una O'Connor) frantically tries to prevent his arrest. Lory fails to understand the desperate nature of his situation.

5 Louise discovers that her brother is the saboteur. She goes to Lambert for advice, only to discover his true character. She breaks the engagement. As Paul says good-by to his sweetheart, Julie (Nancy Gates), George delays him.

6 The delay enables the Germans to capture and kill Paul. Von Keller, satisfied at the outcome, releases the hostages, and Lory rushes home, only to find that Louise suspects him of informing the Germans. Then Lory's mother confesses that she, in an attempt to save his life, told Lambert.

7 Lambert is found dead, and Lory is accused. Von Keller offers Lory freedom if he'll forge George's name to a suicide note. The next morning, from his cell, Lory sees an old friend and other hostages slain.

8 His fear and indecision burned out of him by this tragedy, Lory pleads guilty to the forgery, delivers a stirring appeal to his people to fight on.



9 Surprisingly, the jury acquits him. But Lory knows the Nazis can't let him be free. Going back to the school, he gives the children a last lesson in "The Rights of Man," and as the storm troopers arrive turns the work of teaching love of liberty over to Louise. (THE END)

Making the "milk-bottle suds test" started Mrs. Jennie Swartley of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania on all-'round easier wash-days

"And, my, how nice my blankets turned out this time," Mrs. Swartley goes on. "So soft and fluffy. ALL THOSE RICH, HARD-WORKIN' SUDS Super Suds gives seem to soak out the dirt in a real gentle way. Doesn't take as much time or work to do my wash now. And, by bein' so EXTRA-RICH IN SUDS, Super Suds seems to get things clean and white without anything strong added. That's why everything comes out so nice, I guess."

"Another thing," says Mrs. Swartley, "work-shirts and all extra-dirty clothes are a lot easier to get clean, due to SO MUCH MORE SUDS. Stands to reason that SUDS SO THICK AND LONG-LASTIN' would make short work of greasy, grimy dirt. Doing heavy wash doesn't take near so much out of me now that I use Super Suds."

IF there's one thing women get worked up about, it's SUDS. They complain if they haven't got enough, or if the suds don't last. They shout praises when there are LOTS OF SUDS THAT LAST A LONG TIME, suds like new sudsier Super Suds gives. You'll shout praises, too, when you try Super Suds. Women keep telling us: "Those EXTRA, LONGER-LASTIN' SUDS are A-No. 1 work-savers," . . . "Wash turns out so fresh and white, things look almost like new." Ladies . . . get new Super Suds today, and learn what it means to have those SUDS WITH "SUPER-DO" in your wash!

See with your own eyes . . . make the "milk-bottle suds test"

Just drop two teaspoons of your regular wash-day soap and a glass of water into a milk-bottle. Then do the same with Super Suds in another milk-bottle. Even cold or hard water will do. Shake both bottles. See what heaps and heaps of thick, whipped-creamy, long-lasting suds you get from new sudsier Super Suds!

"My hands used to get so rough that silk would catch on 'em. But with SO MUCH MORE SUDS, Super Suds gets everything clean without having anything in it that's hard on hands. Since using Super Suds for dishes and wash, my hands feel smooth and soft."

How It Feels to Fall Five Miles!

By FRANKLIN STURDY

IN 116 SECONDS Arthur Starnes learned more about what happens to the human mind and body in a fall from a high altitude than all the scholars of medicine and physics had been able to learn in the hundreds of years since man first tried to fly.

His method could not be termed simple—he spent two years in painstaking preparation for the flashing passage of those seconds—but it was eminently direct. He stepped from an airplane 30,800 feet above the ground, loaded with nearly 100 pounds of scientific instruments, and with a cool nervelessness that is almost unimaginable watched the hands of an altimeter strapped to his right forearm until it indicated he had fallen 29,300 feet. Then he pulled the rip cord of his parachute, "blacked out" for a few seconds as the silk canopy billowed out above him, and floated to the earth with a record that seems reasonably safe from attack.

Starnes is a Chicagoan. He has made more than 300 parachute descents. His 29,300-foot free fall was preceded by five preparatory jumps from lower altitudes at Rubinkam airport, south of Chicago.

Until his carefully analyzed falls there was little accurate information about the human sensations in long-delayed parachute descents. Certain ideas prevalent among pilots in the early days of flying, that a long fall would cause unconsciousness and failure to pull the rip cord and that the body would attain a speed resulting in suffocation among them, had been pretty well dispelled, but there were still great gaps.

The whole question became immediately vital as the United States made preparations for war and air combat reached toward higher and higher altitudes. The enemy pilots were shooting down pilots forced to leave disabled aircraft during slow parachute descents. Obviously a technique of free fall to a point close to the ground was needed, so the escaping pilot would offer an easy target for as short a time as possible.

Starnes' experiments proved that the position of his body and the reduced pressure of the thin atmosphere at altitude had an astonishing effect on the speed of his falls. In the long drop he attained a velocity of 230 miles an hour. The following table shows the varying speed as he spun and tumbled thruout the drop:

Time in seconds after jump	Height in feet above sea level	Mean velocity in M.P.H. for period	Time in seconds after jump	Height in feet above sea level	Mean velocity in M.P.H. for period

(Copyright: 1942: By Arthur H. Starnes.)

The airplane was moving at 165 miles an hour when Starnes left it, imparting a forward velocity and accounting for the slow rate of descent at the start.

Preparing for his test jumps, Starnes spent a total of 24 hours in a low-pressure chamber at Northwestern university's medical school. This chamber, donated by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of The Tribune, was not only of great usefulness in tests involving aviation medicine but inspired research which brought relief to thousands of sufferers from sinus congestions. The school has since installed a chamber capable of accommodating 10 persons. With the doors sealed, air can be pumped out of the chamber until the pressure within it is reduced to simulate the thin atmospheric conditions at high altitudes, where man cannot live without a tank supply of 100 per cent oxygen.

He was "dropped" in this chamber at speeds as high as 790 miles an hour. Breathing pure oxygen, he "ascended" to 43,000 feet in 22 minutes and stayed in the chamber for 45 minutes in pressures of altitudes between 40,000 and 43,000 feet.

For a long time, and frantically at present, the aviation medicine authorities of all the warring countries have striven to devise clothing and oxygen apparatus to keep combat pilots functioning at altitudes higher than 35,000 feet. Above 35,000 feet, in the stratosphere, the temperature is almost constant at 67 degree below zero Fahrenheit.

Besides the "drop" or recompression tests in the chamber, Starnes' heart and respiratory reactions were carefully watched. There were no changes of significance in heart action or breathing, and he was ready for his trial.

The first two jumps were made from The Chicago Tribune's Grumman amphibian. In the first fall Starnes left the airplane 12,500 feet above the ground and opened his parachute at 3,000 feet. He weighed, with his instruments, 243 pounds. His velocity was computed at 131 miles an hour, which may not have been accurate, as the dependable timing system adopted later had not been perfected. Starnes carried complete equipment in the second jump, weighing 275 pounds, and started his fall at 18,500 feet. He fell at 158 miles an hour, pulling his rip cord in 71 seconds at 2,000 feet.

The third jump, from 10,250 feet, was mainly for the purpose of testing an anti-spin chute—a three-foot accessory canopy. Starnes opened it to learn whether the device could be depended upon to keep him in a feet-down, vertical position and prevent spinning and tumbling. It worked fairly well. He fell at an angle of about 70 degrees at a speed of 112 miles an hour. In the fourth jump, from 10,000 feet, the anti-spin chute fouled. The speed of his fall was 125 miles an hour. An improvement in the little chute was made for the fifth jump. He left the plane at 12,500 feet, fell feet down without spinning to 1,200 feet at 150 miles an hour.

Starnes concluded, however, that for all practical purposes the anti-spin chute would be simply excess baggage for the airman. He does not recommend its use and did not utilize it in his final jump.

With all of his equipment tested, Starnes was ready for the final long descent. An airplane capable of climbing to a high altitude was found in a Lockheed Lodestar which was loaned by an oil company for the experiment. The parachutist wore an electrically heated suit and a specially designed helmet with a built-in oxygen mask. Strapped to his body or attached to his suit he wore a barograph, a pneumograph to record breathing, a transmitter for voice broadcast and also to broadcast heartbeats to a recording device on the ground, a motion picture camera, an altimeter, a stop watch started and stopped automatically, a "bail-out" oxygen bottle, and two parachutes.

When Starnes stepped thru the door of the airplane he embarked on one of the most paralyzing, mind-shocking experiences possible to a human, deliberately to prolong it as he hurtled downward until the last moment that would permit him to open his parachute and come to a jolting but safe rest. Yet he was so sure of himself, so confident in the few square yards of silk in his parachutes, that his heart rate was 86 to the minute at the start of his jump, while it had been 103 when he was dressing on the ground.

"Thought processes seem to be very rapid during the free fall," Starnes said in a book describing his experiments. "When getting ready to jump . . . I become a bit tense and anxious. After getting set to jump I am calm, composed, alert, and my mind is unusually clear—never more so. During free fall I think and analyze situations much more rapidly and clearly than under other conditions.

"While falling I hear a low-pitched, fluttering whistle of air of variable intensity, the sort of whistle that one makes when air is blown from the partially opened mouth and the tongue moved back and forth.

"My vision is for the most part normal in a tumble or spin; when spinning rapidly there is some blur of moving objects. As I fall the ground spreads and the horizon rises; the closer I approach the ground the more rapid the spread and the more rapid the rise of the horizon. There is some illusion of increase in the rate of descent below 3,000 feet. I am frequently conscious of breathing but never conscious of my heartbeats.

"Immediately after jumping I feel that I am in an empty space without body support and experience an empty feeling. (When) . . . the terminal velocity is reached it is sensed by a steady pressure from below which crawls over the body as I turn, tumble, spin, and roll.

"After reaching terminal velocity there is no internal sensation of the free-falling body. From the external sensations and the rotation of the body I sense that I am falling and falling rapidly.

"I went thru the door on my side and then turned on my back and saw the belly of my ship. About 23,000 feet above the ground I passed thru a cloud and my goggles frosted or iced up. To keep some time record I counted slowly four or five times. During the time I fell blind I believed that I fell end over end and went into a body spin which broke up of its own accord, followed by a short rocking face-down fall, and went into a second body spin. I lifted the right lens of my goggles to read the altimeter, which read about 15,000 feet. I was in a rapid flat spin. I stopped the spin by spreading my legs apart, full length, and extending my left elbow. I came to rest on my back and rocked and wobbled. The altimeter read 8,000 feet. I turned over facing the earth, wobbled, and went into a slow end-over-end. I fell to 2,000 feet above the ground, and after passing that elevation I started to spin again. I pulled the rip cord at about 1,500 feet above the ground, and the shroud lines twisted two or three times."

There are seven positions of spinning and tumbling ordinarily encountered in a long free fall, Starnes writes, but only

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS

By BOB BECKER

OF ALL the hounds that are familiar to dog owners, the good-natured little beagle undoubtedly has the most fun outdoors, because he likes to hunt rabbits. Fortunately, in most parts of the United States there are plenty of cottontails to give the beagles considerable sport.

The position of this breed in the world of dogs undoubtedly must be something of a puzzler to the average dog fancier. You can walk up and down streets and boulevards in cities and towns and rarely see a beagle. Instead a pedestrian observes cocker spaniels, Bostons, shepherds, Scottish terriers, setters, and other well known dogs taking their exercise either on or off leash in parks or on city boulevards.

The surprise comes when you look over the registration figures on dogs. Here one finds the beagle second, with the cocker first by a wide margin. (The ever-popular Boston terrier was third in registrations last year.) On the basis of the statistics any dog owner might look for a good many beagles being walked up and down the sidewalks in cities, for the registration figures are a pretty good index of a dog's popularity as a pet.

But obviously this deduction doesn't hold in the case of the merry little beagle. He hasn't moved to cities in numbers. He's the prime favorite of the outdoor fans, who know the beagle's qualities as a dog in the home and also its ability to hunt rabbits. Thousands of men all over the United States keep a few beagles and hunt them individually. And a large number of beagle clubs keep the interest in the beagle alive and also give owners a chance to run them in trials.

So the beagle is in a unique situation. Whereas the cocker spaniel is a sporting breed that has moved into our cities in large numbers as a companionable house pet, the beagle, a sporting hound and also popular, is staying out of city homes and isn't well known to city dwellers.

The beagle is such a friendly dog that he rarely gets into trouble when he's kept as a combination companion and hunting dog or just as a pet. We have hunted over them many times, and on each hunt we've noticed that, despite the fact that we were not acquainted with the dogs, they lost no time in accepting us as a pal. Make one friendly move toward one of them and its tail begins to wag. He's truly a lovable dog, gentle, extremely affectionate, and very demonstrative, and his eyes tell you that he enjoys life and people. Because of these valuable qualities he makes a highly desirable companion dog in the home or in the field.

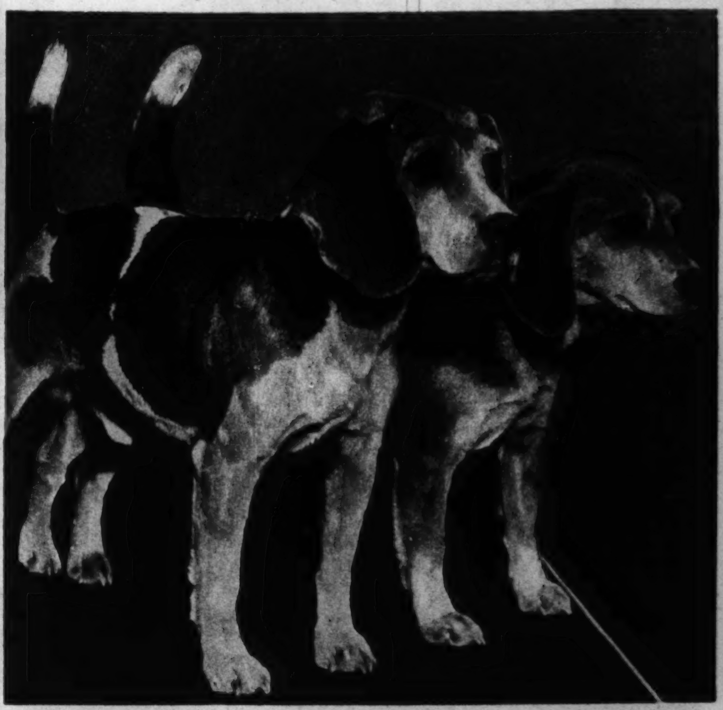
Another beagle asset is size. He's not a toy, nor is he a big dog that takes up a lot of room in the home or a car. The limit of the beagle's height is 15 inches. The colors in the breed are attractive. The standard says that they may be any typical hound color, so you find many attractive combinations of



The beagle hound is known for its friendliness, merry disposition, and hunting ability. It is one of the most popular breeds in the United States. The dog on the left is a champion named Woodview Rustler. The other is Arcadian Diana. Both are owned by H. G. Garnier of Crown Point, Ind.

If any dog ought to have the ability to get along with people, the beagle certainly should qualify, because he has been on the earth for so many hundreds of years in constant association with man that historians are baffled as to just when he first began to use his nose on furred game. The authorities have searched the earliest records on hunting hounds, to find that in England packs of small hounds were kept even before the Roman invasion. In King Arthur's time one English sportsman hunted "white hounds," and we know that in those early days there were two classes of hounds, large ones and small ones. The large variety hunted deer and the small one (called "begle") was hunted on hares.

So there isn't much doubt but what the beagle is one of the oldest breeds in history and, with the bloodhound and perhaps the otter hound, is closest to the original breed of hounds.

Our modern beagle is a trim, neat dog with a strong head and a fairly long neck. He has the sloping shoulders required for speed. His body is close-coupled and well ribbed. The feet of the beagle are what are know as catlike—in other words, they are small, round feet. When he's at work he conducts himself gayly.

All in all the beagle, the smallest of the hound family, is a sparkling breed. He is full of the joy of living. On the trail of the rabbit he truly sings about the fun he's having.

Sunset pictures can be taken with the lens pointing directly toward the sun, provided that haze or clouds subdue the light at least partially. Foreground objects will appear as silhouettes.

KNOW YOUR CAMERA

By ANDREW B. HECHT, Ph. D.

Pictures can be taken in moonlight, but they require long exposures. Most so-called moonlight shots — including Hollywood production — are taken late in the afternoon and deliberately underexposed to create the effect of darkness.

THE MOST striking pictures are not necessarily the hardest ones to get. Sunset and moonlight shots look like tough photographic assignments, but actually they are easy to take and are within the range of any camera. Here is how you can add them to your picture collection:

Wait until the sun is very low before you shoot. If it is near the horizon, and partially obscured by clouds or atmospheric dust so you can look right at it, you needn't be afraid to take pictures with your camera aimed toward the west. Flare would result if you pointed your camera into the sun earlier in the day, but this procedure is quite safe at sunset.

Keep your exposures on the lean side. If you overexpose, all the beauty of the clouds will be lost in chalky whiteness when your picture is printed. Underexposure will bring it out.

Don't plan sunset pictures which depend for interest on much detail in foreground objects. If your exposure is right for the sky, things near the camera are bound to be underexposed. The foreground objects will appear nearly as silhouettes in the finished print. This effect usually makes sunset pictures more interesting, as there is no detail to take attention away from the beauty of the sky.

You can make pictures of this sort more effective by using objects in the foreground to frame them. Find a vantage point where you see the sunset framed between two trees or beneath the arch of a rustic bridge. The foreground material will probably go almost black in your picture, but it will add depth and improve the composition.

It is only a step from sunset pictures of this sort to faked moonlight shots, which often are more convincing than the real thing. To get a moonlight effect in a sunset picture, merely underexpose your negative. About one-fourth the normal exposure for a sunset picture will turn it into a moonlight shot. The sky will go darker, and the foreground will appear almost completely black. A filter will make the effect better and will make the clouds stand out more sharply against the sky.

In a picture like this the sun takes the place of the moon—and it will look enough like it so that most of your friends will be fooled until you let them in on the secret.

Snaps of this sort are very effective when they are taken from a vantage point which makes it possible to look out over a stretch of water toward the setting sun. The path of the sunlight coming toward you over the glistening waves will look just like moonlight if you underexpose your negative properly.

Real moonlight pictures aren't impossible, and you can get good ones with any camera. All you have to do is load up with fast film, set up your camera on a tripod, and give a long time exposure. Up to half an hour's exposure will be needed even when the moon is full, so prepare yourself for a wait. Avoid setups where there are any lights in the foreground, or they will be hopelessly overexposed.

Don't show the actual image of the moon in pictures like this. If you try to, all you will get is a long white streak, for the moon moves too fast to be caught with a long time exposure. When your exposure for the scene is completed you can point the camera toward the moon and give an additional exposure to put the moon into your picture. About one minute is the maximum exposure to use.

Scenes photographed in moonlight take on a misty quality that is very pleasing. Don't print them too light, however, or they will look like ordinary daytime shots.

Star trails are another good night subject when the air is clear and there are no clouds. If you point your camera at the north star and make a time exposure of an hour or so you will film the paths of the many small stars that appear to rotate about it. By including some foreground object silhouetted against the sky you will give the observer something to help him get his bearings as he sees a shot of this sort, probably for the first time.

Don't put your camera away when the sun begins to sink. There are plenty of opportunities to snap good pictures of sunsets, and of moonlight scenes after dark.

spite of all the irritating delays and mishaps threatened to upset the time table, the triple headed organization responsible for the fair managed to meet the two fixed deadlines — Oct. 22, 1892, for the dedication and May 1, 1893, for the opening.

The Manufactures building, incomplete but usable, was chosen for the dedication service because it was the only one big enough. The official history says the audience was "the largest ever assembled under one roof." There were "25 acres of people." And since there were no microphones and loudspeakers, listeners half way back from the platform could not hear even the loudest of the orators.

This was too bad because one of the speakers was Chauncey Depew and another was Henry Watterson. Grover Cleveland had been invited to speak, but declined for reasons which might astonish some later statesmen. Cleveland was an ex-President of the United States, but he was also a candidate. He said he would be glad to attend "if I could do so solely as an ex-President. I am sure, however, that this is impossible, and I am unwilling to undertake a trip which would be regarded as a political tour made by a candidate for the Presidency." (He was elected and did appear at the fair, not as candidate but as President, six months later at the opening.)

Mrs. Potter Palmer, for the lady managers, made a speech at the dedication. And Harriet Monroe's "Columbian Ode" was given a sort of two way presentation, parts of it being read as a poem, other parts being sung by the chorus.

That chorus was something that could be heard by everybody in the "25 acre audience," for it was a chorus of 5,000 voices led by an orchestra of 200 pieces under the baton of Theodore Thomas.

All in all the dedication was not only an impressive ceremony but a valuable publicity coup to promote eagerness for the official opening. The service in the Manufactures building was preceded by a parade that "took four hours to pass." And, at the cost of the management, refreshments for 70,000 persons were served free.

As soon as the multitude had gone home the army of workmen swarmed in, and thru the rest of the autumn and all of the winter the noise of hammers and saws and throbbing engines was ceaseless.

Among the last installations was that of the button to be pressed on opening day, for who ever heard of starting a fair without pressing a button?

How It Feels to Fall Five Miles!

one is dangerous—a somersault, with the arms and legs more or less drawn in to the body. In this position it is dangerous to pull the rip cord, because the jumper has a good chance of rolling into the shroud lines or the canopy itself and so coming to grief.

Spins with the body in a more or less horizontal position can readily be stopped by extending an arm and a leg.

Starnes proved that the airman in normal health can make a long free fall without ill effects, provided he is equipped with properly fitting goggles to prevent freezing of the eyeballs, and an oxygen mask and bail-out bottle of oxygen if the jump is to be made from an altitude of 10,000 feet or more.

Even the records of military medical authorities were barren of accurate information on the subject until Starnes decided to take the necessary risks and devote the time and money necessary to prepare for and carry out his delayed jumps. His own financial resources were not great and he was forced to spend months in rallying instrument makers and other companies to assist in the project.

He refused all offers of promoters and advertisers to commercialize the experiments, which are described in detail and elaborated with other information to value to airmen in Starnes' book, "Delayed Opening Parachute Jumps and Their Life Saving Value," sold thru the Parachute Science Service, 333 North Michigan avenue.

A number of his conclusions are counter to the commonly accepted teachings of medical authorities in the field of aviation, notably on the topic of use of oxygen, of which he writes:

"It has been the theory of physiologists for many years, and still is with certain ones, that there is a certain amount of value in rebreathing. It is claimed by some physiologists that a certain amount of CO_2 (carbon dioxide) should be present in the lungs and blood stream to stimulate the breathing apparatus in order that a person will breathe. It has been instructed in some laboratories that when one is breathing pure oxygen while using a mask it is necessary to rebreathe part of one's expirations.

"I have spent approximately 24 hours in the low-pressure chamber at altitudes ranging to 47,000 feet. Frankly, I have found no value in rebreathing.

"I took on 100 per cent oxygen the moment we left the ground (on the sixth and longest jump) and continued to breathe 100 per cent oxygen thruout the flight. In fact, I was breathing it from my bail-out bottle when I contacted the ground with both parachutes. I felt fine and experienced no after effects."

The possibility of hyperventilation, the term for excess of oxygen in the blood stream, is not nearly so much to be feared as that of anoxia, the lack of the vital gas, Starnes believes. Hyperventilation signals its onset with giddiness and faulty vision and is easily corrected by reducing the oxygen intake momentarily, but anoxia warns only by a brief period of faintness, in Starnes' experience. Once this feeling of faintness and suffocation passed, he felt fine, and had he been an inexperienced airman alone aloft he would have failed to realize his need, with unconsciousness and death certain to follow from lack of oxygen.

YOUTH ON THE CAMPUS

By ELEANOR NANGLE

A GRACEFUL cast iron arch bearing a simplified version of the state seal stands at the main entrance to the campus of Georgia, oldest state-chartered university in the country. It is one of Georgia's many traditions that no freshman may pass beneath this arch except on Freshman day, when the whole town of Athens is pretty much theirs.

Beyond this arch, set in a weather-beaten iron fence so ancient its real age remains unknown, lies Franklin, Georgia's old campus, a long, somewhat narrow quadrangle dotted with buildings of mixed vintage. Among these are three of special antiquity: "Old college," completed in 1805, which was modeled after Connecticut hall at Yale; Demosthenian hall, a small, square two story structure completed in 1824, and the chapel, completed in 1832 to serve as the first permanent assembly hall of the college. At the rear, in a creaky tower, hangs a bell that rings for class assembly and athletic victories.

Franklin or "old" campus is actually only one of three which constitute the Athens campus of the University of Georgia. Adjoining the original grounds is a second one, housing the athletic facilities, including the stadium, set in a natural ravine, and the college of agriculture. Set off a bit from both these is what is known as the Coördinate campus, where freshmen men and all women students live and take some of their studies.

There are more men in uniform than civilian students on the Georgia campus now. Georgia's facilities and its climate are ideal for the rigorous training program of the thousands of naval cadets now stationed there for pre-flight training, with its tremendous emphasis on physical conditioning. One of the variations of their p. t. program this year will be the operation of a 35 acre Victory garden by the cadets to help raise at least some of the food they consume. The daily ration allotment for the men undergoing the strenuous physical training demanded by their program is 5,000 calories!

In addition to the boys in blue there are more than a thousand khaki-clad trainees of the United States army signal corps studying on the campus, some of them quartered there, some tucked into what living accommodations in town the army could commandeer.

They used to think that kissing a fellow was something pretty important and not to be done with just any one.

Beware the Pickup Letdown!

By MAUREEN DALY
(Author of "Seventeenth Summer.")

THE SEASON'S here. The air is soft, the days are warm, and the nights are like something out of an Alice Faye movie. School has begun to feel like a fill-in—just so many ways to pass the days till summer vacation is here. Class hours are long and books are dull. The sweaters and skirts you had thought so smooth all year are suddenly too heavy and drab, and you get that light and airy "I want to wear violets" feeling.

Juke box songs have a new lilt, and the words and music keep running thru your head. You've got spring inside of you and that old urge for something new and interesting to do, now that the nights are warmer. The spirit's moved you, and unless you have something special and pre-planned lined up your thoughts may slip into a "I'm getting sentimental over whom?" mood.

Times have changed. This spring it is different. The ranks of fellows have been thinned out till there is man power shortage in the dating field. An occasional furlough is just long enough to stir up old memories. There is just no one of the old crowd left. But for every boy who leaves town a new one comes in—this one in uniform. He may be studying at army school, stationed at a nearby training station, or just be in town on a three day pass.

Of course you don't know him, but you've got that feeling and you know you are going to. He doesn't know you—not yet—so it's up to you to go out to find him. At the time it may sound like a good idea. You aren't sure which sailor or soldier you are looking for, but, with so many of them around town and lonesome, you can almost have your pick—or, rather, they do the picking, but it's up to you to at least look eager and approachable.

In one way it sounds fun. It seems to be friendly and democratic, a very pleasant "welcome to our city, boys" gesture. The fellows are strangers here, so let's make them feel at home. But such open-armed hospitality has its drawbacks. And the fault usually lies with the girls. Friendships made "on the hoof" usually aren't friendships at all, but rather quick, spur-of-the-moment one-night stands.

The girls know it and the fellows expect it. The girls start out with that in mind . . . all because dates are a little hard to get these days. So they take to the hi-road and a slow walk down the boulevard, a short wait in a railroad station, or a single seat near back of a movie theater, and something is bound to turn up. The girls are lonesome, too, and it seems like a good idea, of a Saturday night, to find some one to talk to and have a little fun with.

At the time it may sound like a good idea. You don't know which one you're looking for, but you know there's some one around.

But the gals have let the glamor of it get them. The going is too easy. Too many pickings. They've become overly eager to the point of being aggressive. One boy isn't enough—not when there are so many to be had. They have gone berserk on the "this is war" and "we're only young once" angles. Two or three new boys a week is a low score. It takes a couple of navy rings or an army insigne or two to keep the girls at school impressed and goggle eyed.

With the pickup habit comes the breaking up of standards. A little necking seems like a good idea when a fellow is lonesome and hasn't had a date for a long time. To some girls it doesn't make any difference if the boy takes them home or if they ever see him again, but others like to keep them available just to be able to show them off. Besides, what is one boy more or less with so many still loose to work on?

In many cases this pickup system has almost developed into a racket. Not just on Saturday nights, but any night in the week, these girls turn out on the prowl—in pairs or singles, depending on whether or not they can find a girl friend with the same relaxed attitude.

These are the same girls who would have thought it rude to even talk to a stranger on the street this time last year—who used to demand that fellows call them up for a date at least two nights in advance and felt that they needed to be seen with a fellow who was considered fast about as much as they needed a hole in the head. They used to think that kissing a fellow was something pretty important and not to be done with just any one, but now that the fellow is in a soldier's or sailor's uniform, it is only another item that makes amusing table talk at lunch with the girls the next day.

But in the excitement of it all they don't realize that they are hurting themselves. They forget to look for that pickup letdown—that inevitable feeling of cheapness; the realization that fellows only want to know them for what they can get and don't feel that they are getting much at that. One thing they are doing for the boys—that is making them realize how wonderful are the girls back home!

Service men write in by the dozens asking how they can get to meet "nice girls"—because they feel that the girls they have run into on the loose are strictly nonessential to the war effort. These boys from out of town appreciate friendliness and hospitality, but they don't want everything in the city for free.

Sensational New Softasilk Method

...gives you
FAR BETTER CAKES
Easier, Quicker!

Betty Crocker

At last—our dream has come true! We have perfected a new way to make fluffier, higher, lighter, BETTER cakes that eliminates creaming of sugar and shortening. It's so simple and easy, you won't believe it—until you try this [illegible] SOFTASILK recipe.

READ THIS SIMPLIFIED RECIPE

Try this new "4-Minute-Mixing-Time" method that eliminates laborious creaming of sugar and shortening. Gives a cake of amazing texture and volume. Astounding results! Easy as "1-2-3"! And don't fail to try the other new recipes on the package.

Silver White Layer Cake

Tests in hundreds of homes show women overwhelmingly preferred this new SOFTASILK method to any they had ever tried before!

JUST SET OUT all ingredients 1 to 2 hours before mixing (less in hot weather) so they'll be at room temperature. Shortening and butter should be soft, but not melted. Turn on oven so it will be at right baking temperature when cake is ready for oven. Grease and flour two 8-inch round layer cake pans. Sift SOFTASILK Cake Flour before measuring. Now . . .

YOU'LL NEED: 2¼ cups sifted SOFTASILK Cake Flour . . . 4 tsp. double-action type Baking Powder (or 4¼ tsp. phosphate-type; or 5 tsp. tartrate-type) . . . 1 tsp. Salt . . . 1½ cups Sugar . . . ½ cup high grade Vegetable Shortening (use part butter for flavor) . . . 1 cup Skimmed Milk . . . 1 tsp. Vanilla . . . 4 large Egg Whites (at least ½ cup)

THEN measure sifted SOFTASILK, baking powder, salt and sugar into sifter, and sift together into mixing bowl. Measure shortening and milk. Measure vanilla into milk. Then add soft shortening and ⅝ of the milk to the dry ingredients.

So easy—this new mixing method! Perfect results are certain only when followed exactly, using SOFTASILK. Superior cake quality is brought out by the unexcelled baking characteristics of this pre-tested cake flour.

NOW mix with electric mixer at slow to medium speed (or beat with a spoon) for 2 minutes by the clock. Scrape batter from sides and bottom of bowl frequently during mixing.

Add remaining milk and egg whites (unbeaten). Continue mixing 2 more minutes by the clock (giving a total of 4 minutes mixing time*). Again, scrape batter from sides and bottom of bowl frequently. Batter will be thin enough to pour easily.

This method is such a time saver! It's taken the Betty Crocker staff years to perfect it. And how wonderfully it matches SOFTASILK'S splendid performance. Specially milled from choice soft, winter wheats, SOFTASILK contains only the most desirable, tender gluten. Has the fine quality necessary to give results with this revolutionary new method!

POUR into prepared pans. Bake in moderate oven (350°) for 30 to 35 min. Remove from oven, let layers stand in pans for a moment. Then turn onto wire cooling rack. When layers are thoroughly cool, frost as desired.

*NOTE: When you mix by hand, you can let the batter stand while you rest a moment, but be sure total mixing time is just as specified.

IMPORTANT: Betty Crocker SOFTASILK Cake Flour, a product of General Mills, will give unexcelled results with your favorite recipes. So, of course, continue to use it as in the past. Be sure to try new recipes on package . . . But don't UNDER ANY CIRCUMSTANCES use this new, 1 bowl, "4-Minute-Mix" method with your old recipes or just "any" flour.

BE SURE TO SAVE THIS RECIPE!

FAR Easier

No long, tedious creaming of shortening and sugar! No separate beating of eggs. You do all your mixing in one bowl. Have fewer utensils to get out, wash and put away. A real work saver!

FAR Quicker

Exclusive new "4-Minute-Mix" method will delight you! Cuts mixing time by MORE THAN HALF over ordinary methods. Perfect results obtained by beating either with mixer or spoon.

FAR Better

This tested plan worked on all types of skin!

Just think of it! Here at last is a new beauty method that really works—a simple, easy method of using famous Palmolive Soap that has been tested on all types of skin and proved to bring 2 out of every 3 women a definitely better complexion in just 14 days. Yes, now, at last, scientific tests conducted under the supervision of 36 doctors have proved conclusively that in only 14 days in your own home you, too, may get a brighter, clearer skin!

READ THIS TRUE STORY of what Palmolive's Proved New Beauty Plan did for Rita Maymon of New York

"My complexion had lost its come-hither. So I said 'yes' quick when I was invited to try Palmolive's New 14-Day Beauty Plan—along with 1284 other women all over the U.S.A.! My group reported to a New York skin doctor. Some of us had dry skins; some oily; some 'average.' After a careful complexion examination, we were given the Palmolive Plan to use at home for 14 days.

"Here's the plan: For 14 days, you wash your face 3 times a day with Palmolive Soap. Then—each time—massage that lovely, soft Palmolive beauty-lather into your clean face . . . just like a cream. Do this a full 60 seconds. (What I do is count to 60.) This way you extract the full beautifying effect from Palmolive lather. Then rinse and dry. That's all. But you mustn't miss even one massage!

"After 14 days, I went back to the skin doctor. He confirmed what my mirror told me. My complexion was fresher, smoother, cleaner! Later I learned these and other skin improvements had been observed by all the 36 examining doctors. In fact, the final report showed 2 out of 3 women got see-able, feel-able results. That 14-day plan is now my 365-day a year plan! Palmolive for me for life!"

- Brighter, cleaner skin
- Finer texture
- Fewer blemishes
- Less dryness
- Less oiliness
- Softer, smoother skin
- Better tone
- Fresher, clearer color

This list comes right from the reports of the 36 examining doctors! Their records show 2 out of 3 of the women who pretested the Palmolive Plan for you, got many of these improvements in 14 days! Now it's your turn! Start this new proved way of using Palmolive tonight. In 14 days, look for fresher, clearer, lovelier skin!

GREAT TRIUMPHS OF MEDICAL HISTORY...

How France — and all the world — was freed from the threat of a frightful death

A blood-curdling shriek "Mad Dog—MAD DOG!" The sudden rush of frantic feet stampeding and stumbling in panic!

Grimly gazing from a laboratory window at the frenzied mob below, no wonder the eyes of a famous fighting Frenchman were filled with horror and pity. No wonder the heart of Louis Pasteur—whose life was a ceaseless battle against microbes, disease and death—was filled with resolve to seal Hydrophobia's fate.

Not a living soul knew better than he how justified was man's mortal fear of this ghastly malady. For the only hope of a victim was that merciful Death would hurry . . . and he seldom waited in vain.

In the face of jeering skeptics, in the face of heartbreaking defeats, this dauntless hero of France fought an unflinching battle for four solid years against an army of murderous germs that outnumbered him billions to one. But written in the History of the World's Great Medical Triumphs—in ink that will never fade—is "The 6th of July 1885"—the day when a little Alsatian boy, cruelly torn by a raving beast, received from Louis Pasteur the first anti-rabies vaccine.

What a day in the life of that little boy's mother, when he trotted home—healed and happy—whistling the "Marseillaise!" What a day of VICTORY for France—and medicine—and all the world. Today, over 99% of those given the "Pasteur Treatment" totally recover!

1898 – RELIEF of pain!

1898—just 13 years after Pasteur's discovery of an anti-rabies vaccine—is famous for another triumph in the war against suffering and pain. For a group of brilliant scientists discovered a relief from headaches, painful discomforts of colds, and muscular aches and pains . . . maladies which cause humanity even more suffering and more loss of time than do all the serious diseases combined. They discovered Aspirin.

Whenever men of medicine fight suffering and pain, Bayer Aspirin is trusted not just for dependability, but for the rapid relief it brings. So for relief that's reliable and also swift, ask for Bayer Aspirin by its full name. And be sure the tablets you buy are stamped "BAYER"—the famous name in Aspirin.

FOR THE SPEEDY RELIEF OF HEADACHES

The next time that a headache comes, take 2 Bayer Aspirin Tablets with a little water. Relief starts almost instantly. Most economical to use. Try Bayer Aspirin, also, for the fast relief of neuralgic and neuritic aches and pains.

WHY BAYER ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST

In 2 to 3 seconds after a Bayer Aspirin Tablet touches water, it is disintegrated and ready to start work. That's what happens in your stomach when you take Bayer Aspirin.

Dinner at 8 - at 14th and Main!

War is grim, but even in wartime, living can be gay. The Lindsey girls laugh as they sit at dinner, their long day over. But the war job each is doing is no laughing matter. You don't see Dad . . . his shift's from four 'til midnight. You can't see Joe . . . he's somewhere in North Africa. Joe is missed but nobody broods . . . they're all too busy backing him up.

Katherine's in a war plant . . . Martha's in the WAAC. Even 13-year-old Virginia does duty as OCD Junior Messenger. Mother? She gets the meals, does the housework, keeps family morale high, and still manages to get in three days a week as Staff Assistant at Red Cross.

Yes, the Lindseys are an ideal American family. And the sooner millions of others follow their example, the sooner we'll win this war. Are you doing all you can—could you too take a full-time job? You can learn about many jobs open to you by calling at your local branch of the U. S. Employment Service.

Katherine didn't think she'd be able to swing that war plant job—but she's a great success, according to Bill, the foreman. It's "precision" work, and her careful hand and sure eye make her a match for any man. And the husky boy who held down the job before is now in the armed forces.

Before Mrs. Lindsey can leave for her Red Cross assignments, she's got the housework to do. There's sewing and mending and polishing, to make things last . . . planning nutritious meals and shopping with points as well as dollars. All these things, done cheerfully, keep the Lindsey homefires burning.

* * *

Two years ago it was a roadster, now Martha jockeys a Jeep for Uncle Sam. She's thrilled at serving in the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps and happy in her new associations. The WAAC has hundreds of different jobs for patriotic girls like Martha, with good pay and fine living conditions.

THAT MOUSE!

OUTSIDE of frog hams, which the Teenie Weenies smoked and stored in their tiny smoke house, the little people ate very little meat. They sometimes bought an egg from a neighboring hen, when the price was reasonable, but they did eat a great many vegetables which they grew in their very own Teenie Weenie garden.

The garden spot was small and it lay in a secret place quite hidden from big folks. Thick briars surrounded the garden and it was almost impossible for rabbits to reach the spot, but the sun reached it and that is most necessary for growing vegetables. Of course chipmunks and mice could wiggle between the briars but they were mostly friendly with the Teenie Weenies and they never bothered the vegetables.

There was one mouse whom the Teenie Weenies did not trust. That was Ginky and he had caused the little people a great deal of trouble from time to time. Once he had tried to break into their Teenie Weenie smoke house where the frog hams were stored, and another time he made off with a pan of maple fudge which the little people had set out to cool. He simply never lost a chance to annoy the Teenie Weenies. He had picked several fights with some of the little men and once he had forced his way into a very formal dance which the little people held in the village town hall, and it took five of the strongest Teenie Weenies to throw him out. However, the Teenie Weenies had not seen Ginky since the night he had made off with the pan of fudge. But he showed up recently—and very much to his sorrow.

A number of the Teenie Weenie men had gone to the garden one morning to plant some seed. The ground had been broken up some time before by a Teenie Weenie plow which had been pulled by a team of respectable mice but the soil had been raked and hoed a great deal before the seeds could be planted. The little men brought their Teenie Weenie hoes, rakes and shovels and also an acorn basket which held some of their best seeds. They set the basket near the side of a broken jug which lay at the edge of the garden and then set to work with their tiny tools.

The Teenie Weenies hadn't been working long when Ginky the mouse happened to pass by. He sneaked quietly thru the grass and briars until he reached the old broken jug under which he crawled quite unseen by the Teenie Weenies. Peering thru the hole he looked around to see what mischief he could cause the little men. He quickly spied the basket of seeds and his greedy little eyes fairly shone with pleasure for he was very fond of these particular seeds. Ginky reached out his paw and began pulling the basket slowly toward the hole, but at that moment the Dunce came along and saw what was happening. He let out a certain yell which is a warning to all the Teenie Weenies that trouble is near and rushed at the mouse. Ginky wiggled from beneath the jug, caught up the basket and started to run, but the Dunce overtook him, made a flying tackle and brought the mouse to the ground with a thud. Ginky hit the ground so hard it knocked the breath from him. The basket of seeds flew out of his paws, and the Teenie Weenies came running from all directions.

It is safe to say that Ginky won't bother the Teenie Weenies for some time for he received a sound thrashing. The Policeman gave the mouse's tail a mighty twist, the Cowboy beat him with a Teenie Weenie hoe and the Cook slapped his ears with a shovel while the Dunce pulled out a couple hands full of fur. Ginky finally managed to get loose and the last the Teenie Weenies saw of him he was almost flying in his haste to get away.

THAT MOUSE!

OUTSIDE of frog hams, which the Teenie Weenies smoked and stored in their tiny smoke house, the little people ate very little meat. They sometimes bought an egg from a neighboring hen, when the price was reasonable, but they did eat a great many vegetables which they grew in their very own Teenie Weenie garden.

The garden spot was small and it lay in a secret place quite hidden from big folks. Thick briars surrounded the garden and it was almost impossible for rabbits to reach the spot, but the sun reached it and that is most necessary for growing vegetables. Of course chipmunks and mice could wiggle between the briars but they were mostly friendly with the Teenie Weenies and they never bothered the vegetables.

There was one mouse whom the Teenie Weenies did not trust. That was Ginky and he had caused the little people a great deal of trouble from time to time. Once he had tried to break into their Teenie Weenie smoke house where the frog hams were stored, and another time he made off with a pan of maple fudge which the little people had set out to cool. He simply never lost a chance to annoy the Teenie Weenies. He had picked several fights with some of the little men and once he had forced his way into a very formal dance which the little people held in the village town hall, and it took five of the strongest Teenie Weenies to throw him out. However, the Teenie Weenies had not seen Ginky since the night he had made off with the pan of fudge. But he showed up recently—and very much to his sorrow.

A number of the Teenie Weenie men had gone to the garden one morning to plant some seed. The ground had been broken up some time before by a Teenie Weenie plow which had been pulled by a team of respectable mice but the soil had been raked and hoed a great deal before the seeds could be planted. The little men brought their Teenie Weenie hoes, rakes and shovels and also an acorn basket which held some of their best seeds. They set the basket near the side of a broken jug which lay at the edge of the garden and then set to work with their tiny tools.

The Teenie Weenies hadn't been working long when Ginky the mouse happened to pass by. He sneaked quietly thru the grass and briars until he reached the old broken jug under which he crawled quite unseen by the Teenie Weenies. Peering thru the hole he looked around to see what mischief he could cause the little men. He quickly spied the basket of seeds and his greedy little eyes fairly shone with pleasure for he was very fond of these particular seeds. Ginky reached out his paw and began pulling the basket slowly toward the hole, but at that moment the Dunce came along and saw what was happening. He let out a certain yell which is a warning to all the Teenie Weenies that trouble is near and rushed at the mouse. Ginky wiggled from beneath the jug, caught up the basket and started to run, but the Dunce overtook him, made a flying tackle and brought the mouse to the ground with a thud. Ginky hit the ground so hard it knocked the breath from him. The basket of seeds flew out of his paws, and the Teenie Weenies came running from all directions.

It is safe to say that Ginky won't bother the Teenie Weenies for some time for he received a sound thrashing. The Policeman gave the mouse's tail a mighty twist, the Cowboy beat him with a Teenie Weenie hoe and the Cook slapped his ears with a shovel while the Dunce pulled out a couple hands full of fur. Ginky finally managed to get loose and the last the Teenie Weenies saw of him he was almost flying in his haste to get away.

SALUTE CHICAGO YOUTH THIS WEEK

STAR SENIORS TO WIN TRIBUNE HONORS AGAIN

Interviews, Photos to Be Published.

Outstanding Catholic and public high school seniors—selected by a vote of their classmates—again will be honored this year in the Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE. Photographs and interviews with the outstanding members of the graduating classes of the some 80 high schools in the city will be published in the Metropolitan section within the next six weeks.

Officials of both Catholic and public high schools have been informed of the plan to continue the custom of honoring the seniors and both the Rev. D. F. Cunningham, head of the diocesan school board, and Dr. William H. Johnson, city superintendent of schools, voiced their approval.

Faculty to Nominate.

Seniors will select the honor graduates of their class from a list nominated by faculty members of the various high schools. The first list of nominations to be published will be that of the Catholic high schools, which is to be completed by faculty members early this week. This list will appear in the Metropolitan sections next Sunday.

Interviews with the Catholic high school honor graduates and their photographs will be published June 6. Members of the senior classes of these schools will pick their representative by ballot within two weeks.

They'll Tell Ambitions.

Interviews with the seniors will outline the plans and ambitions of the students as well as give an indication of high school life as it is today.

Lists of honor students nominated by faculties of the public high schools also will be published June 6. The following week members of the public high school senior classes will elect their representatives from these lists.

Interviews and photographs of the public schools honor graduates will appear in the Metropolitan sections June 20. Accounts of the graduation exercises of both Catholic and public schools also will be printed.

Publish Graduates' Names.

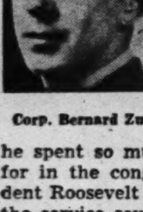
The names of the graduates of Catholic and public high schools will be published in the Metropolitan sections, as has been the custom in the past years. The graduation lists of public high schools is scheduled for publication near the end of June. Lists of graduates of Catholic high schools—which do not all hold graduation exercises at the same time—will be published as soon as possible in the Metropolitan sections.

ELECT GRINNELL ALUMNI STAFF AT TEA TODAY

The Grinnell Alumni association of Chicago will hold its annual tea and election of officers at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon in the City club in the La Salle hotel, Philip L. Burgett of Evanston has announced. Speakers will be Dr. Stuart Gerry Brown of the English department of Grinnell college, Grinnell, Ia.; John R. Heath of Riverside, president of the board of trustees; Vincent Yager of Glencoe, national president of the association, and Mrs. Ruth Winter of Oak Park, Chicago college representative. Irma Cooper, 1223 Astor street, alumna and winner of the 1940 Chicagoland Music festival, will sing.

CORP. ZUR HAPPY HIS CHOIR IN GOOD VOICE; PRESIDENT DROPS IN

For weeks Corp. Bernard Zur, formerly of 2525 North Drake avenue, had been drilling the 230 members of the combined choirs at Camp Robinson, Arkansas, on the music they were to sing Palm Sunday morning. When time for services arrived Corp. Zur and each of his 230 singers was glad he spent so much time rehearsing, for in the congregation was President Roosevelt and his party. After the service several members of the group congratulated Corp. Zur on the music.



Corp. Bernard Zur.

On Easter Sunday Corp Zur appeared for the second time this year as guest soloist with the symphony orchestra of Little Rock. He took up his duties as chaplain's assistant at Camp Robinson last July.

In Chicago Corp. Zur sang regularly in the choir of the Fourth Presbyterian church under the direction of Barret Spach. He also directed his own choir every Sunday at the Little Country Church in the City, Granville, and Lakewood avenues.

Mrs. J. Murray Crangle and Marilyn.

Flash Lights Baby Stares for Dads on War Fronts

Mothers smiled and babies jumped as the photoflash bulbs of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE photographer, taking pictures for "dads" on distant fronts, shot bright light thru their homes.

Soon the V-mail photos of babies they have never seen will be speeding overseas to their fathers on faraway fronts. Without charge, the TRIBUNE is taking the pictures, transferring them to V-mail envelopes, and giving them to the mothers to send on to their husbands. In all cases the father never has seen his offspring.

Dad Came Home.

Last week one father saved the photographer a trip to Winnetka by arriving home unexpectedly on the very day the baby's picture was to have been taken. After 15 months' service in the South Pacific, Maj. Richard T. McNown of the marine corps came home to his wife and daughter, Eleanor, just one year old.

News of Julia's arrival reached Lt. Kothe in record time. Just four days after her birth, the Red Cross field office notified him that "mother and baby were doing well." Only a few days before he had asked the same office to try to get word of his wife's progress for him. The query from North Africa arrived here the day of the baby's birth.

"I can't say enough in praise of the Red Cross," Mrs. Kothe exclaimed. "We can never repay them for their wonderful kindness and service. The two cables we sent have not yet gotten to him."

Lives with Mother.

Mrs. Kothe is making her home with her mother, Mrs. Victor Remy, 1123 Hinman avenue, Evanston, for the duration. Her husband has been overseas since last September.

A sergeant in the marines, John A. Karlson has been in the South Pacific 14 months. The son he has never seen is 7 months old John Jr., who lives with his mother at 735 Mulford street, Evanston.

The Walter C. Hieber's baby boy, Paul Christian, was born just two weeks after Corp. Hieber set sail for an undisclosed port. Luckily, the day the baby was born Mrs. Hieber received her husband's cable address, and so he knew of the baby's birth in no time at all. Mrs. Hieber and Paul, who now is 7 weeks old, live at 1010 Main street in Evanston.

Mrs. Linus L. Scott, 4737 Malden street, reports that her husband, a platoon sergeant in the marines, has been overseas since last October. He is stationed in the South Pacific. Their baby girl, Linda Lee, was born five months after he had left the states.

Nancy Sue 3 Months Old.

It took from Jan. 18, when the

Mothers to Get 1st V-Mail Photo Proofs This Week

Mailing of the first V-mail proofs to mothers who have responded to the plan for giving overseas dads a photographic glimpse of their new offspring will start the first of this week. Further mailing of the proofs will be handled as rapidly as possible.

To get a V-mail picture, write your name and the baby's name and age. State your husband's rank and how long he has been out of the country. Include your address and your telephone number, so that the photographer may make an appointment. Send this necessary information to Photos for Dads editor, Metropolitan section, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. The offer is limited to mothers within 40 miles of Chicago.

Pictures will be printed as space permits.

PLAY EQUIPMENT CALLED A PRIME CONTEST FACTOR

Play equipment made by entrants will be given special consideration in this year's annual play yard contest sponsored by the Chicago Motor club as part of its accident prevention work. Officials of the Chicago public library and its branches are coöperating in the drive to provide safe off the street play space, and the libraries are distributing entry blanks for the 1943 contest.

Charles M. Hayes, president of the motor club, explained that an official entry blank is not necessary. A postcard listing the entrant's name, address, phone number, and the location of the play yard will suffice. The competition, which is open to any resident of Cook county, will be judged on the basis of the use made of the various play yards entered. Ingenuity and novelty will be given special credit.

Town and Garden Women Give Hobby Show Today

The Woman's club of the Town and Garden apartments will hold its annual hobby show today in the auditorium of the building. There will be displays of wood carving, needlework, and various collections. Added attractions, this year, will be special booths for the Red Cross, the WAAC, and the WAVES. All residents of the building and their friends have been invited. Tea will be served.

Scales and Tales Casters Will Hear Sam Campbell

The Scales and Tales Casting club of the Ravenswood Methodist church, 4511 North Hermitage avenue, will present Sam Campbell, "philosopher of the forest," in a talk illustrated by movies at 8 o'clock Saturday evening. The organization is comprised of 40 fishing men and women.

35 LATIN DOLLS FROM LAKE VIEW CLASSES SHOWN

Thirty-five dolls, garbed in gay South American dress, are on display in the main floor halls of the Chicago Public library in the loop. The dolls and their costumes are the work of 1B art students in the Hamilton branch of the Lake View High school.

There are gauchos from Argentina, shepards from Peru, festival fashions from Bolivia in the display. They were made under the direction of Miss Edna Crowley, art teacher at Lake View. The students studied South American costumes carefully before beginning their work.

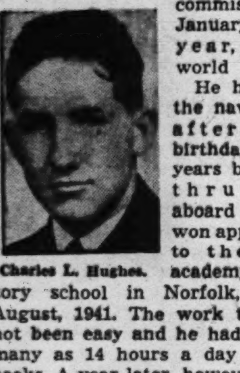
Loss of Hand Ends Three Years of Effort.

He was well on the way toward realization of his ambition—a naval commission — in January of this year, when his world blew up. He had joined the navy shortly after his 18th birthday three years before and thru study aboard ship had won appointment to the naval academy preparatory school in Norfolk, Va., in August, 1941. The work there had not been easy and he had spent as many as 14 hours a day with his books. A year later, however, he entered Annapolis, a midshipman who had worked his way up thru the ranks. Then, given the opportunity to receive his commission in shorter time in the naval air forces, he was accepted as a naval air cadet on Jan. 11, this year.



Charles L. Hughes.

Worked While Waiting.

He was working at a war plant while waiting for his summons, when, two weeks later, a small piece of steel became lodged in the steel cutting saw he operated. He turned off the machine and carefully had moved his right hand in between its several parts when his foot caught on an automatic starter device. He quickly pulled back his arm, but it was too late. He had lost his hand.

A few seconds thus brought an end to years of planned progress toward the goal of Charles Lendall Hughes of 2147 Cleveland avenue. Naturally loss of his right hand has been a great blow. But Hughes has more than the usual amount of persistence and determination to succeed, having also had more than his fair share of misfortune.

The home in which he and his family lived in De Soto, Ill., was razed by a tornado that swept southern Illinois in March, 1925. His mother, who was holding his youngest brother in her arms, was killed when a barrel stave was driven thru her body by the force of the wind. The brother escaped when his mother's fall cushioned the shock for him. Another brother, however, was killed.

Sent to Children's Home.

Then he moved back to a home with his father in Nason, Ill., and a year later to a farm in Waltonville, Ill. He was graduated from the Waltonville High school in June, 1939. Dec. 5, that year—"a date" he "can't forget"—he entered the navy.

Now with his navy life behind him, Hughes has made a fresh start in life. He is working in the Edison Park sales office of a Wisconsin manufacturing company.

Hopes for Navy Job.

He hopes—even against hope, as he will admit—that the navy will recall him for the duration, to instruct new recruits.

With memories of Annapolis still crystal clear in his mind, he looks back upon his life there as association "with the best men in the world."

Becoming reconciled to his own limitations, however, he faces the future unafraid, saying simply, "There is nothing to which I have applied myself that—with concentrated effort—I couldn't learn."

M'HENRY COUNTY WOMEN'S GROUP PICKS OFFICERS

Newly elected vice president of the McHenry County Federation of Women's Clubs is Miss Agnes Sutton of Rush Creek. Mrs. Ruth Dean of Marengo was elected treasurer, and Mrs. Nora Wright of Algonquin will be the new recording secretary. The spring meeting was held in the First Congregational church in Crystal Lake. Mrs. Irene Theobold of Cary was chairman of the nominating committee. Mrs. Claude C. Miller of Crystal Lake will continue as county president.

BLOCK CITIZENS STAGING PARTY IN LEGION HALL

Berning Academy Gives Floor Show Wednesday.

The block bounded by Lincoln, Cullum, and Berteau avenues and Leavitt street in OCD Division 6 will sponsor a block party at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening in the Lincoln Square Legion hall, 4234 Lincoln avenue. There will be cards and dancing. A floor show will be staged by the Berning academy, 1952 Irving Park road. The senior Girl Scout troop of Queen of Angels church will present the colors. C. W. Wermich, chairman, will be assisted by Gerard J. Rickert, block captain, and Ronnie Shaw.

Fifty residents of block 3, zone 14, met for the first time recently in their new headquarters at 1801 Orleans street. Following a short business meeting, Block Capt. Harry Mau presented war stamp albums, containing $2.50 in stamps, to the wives or mothers of the block's 30 service men. Money was contributed voluntarily by residents of the block, which is bounded by Wisconsin, Menominee, Lincoln Park West, and Orleans streets. Mr. Mau states that the committee hopes to add stamps from time to time and eventually purchase a war bond for each man.

Plans are under way to make the Park Gables apartment building, the only building in the 2400 block on Estes avenue, an air raid unit, complete in itself. In the recreation room a place of refuge will be constructed. A handball court will become a first aid room. Both can be blacked out, so that full lighting may be used in case of a raid. An intake fan has been installed in a duct that runs to the roof, from which point fresh air can be brought down to the rooms. Sixty folding chairs have been purchased.

Coffee, tea, and canned milk are stored in the air raid rooms, and in the event utilities are shut off, there is canned heat for heating water. Twelve electric lanterns will be placed on hooks to provide light in such an emergency.

The first aid room is equipped with eight army cots, 20 blankets, two regulation Red Cross stretchers, and a complete first aid kit. Two tenants who formerly were registered nurses are in charge.

FLASH PICTURES OF NEW BABIES TO WAR FRONTS

Dads to See Offspring by Tribune Service.

baby was born, until March 3 for word of the birth to get to Pvt. Keller. A cablegram finally caught up with him the end of March. The Keller home is at 900 Bluff street, Glencoe.

Little Mercedes Marion Condy has a father who has received not one—but three oak leaf clusters! At present he is piloting a Flying Fortress in North Africa. Before that, when he was stationed in England, his name—1st Lt. William L. Condy—appeared several times on the list of raiders over Europe.

Mrs. Condy, who is making her home for the duration with her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Condy, 1001 Oakwood avenue, Wilmette, says she, too, is deeply in debt to the Red Cross. Thru its Chicago office, word of the baby went out to the flyer, arriving at the front in two weeks time.

Daddy Still in Dark.

Barbara Ann Kearins' father may not yet know of her arrival, tho she was bor March 29. In a letter, dated April 11, received by her mother, he still was wondering and worrying, as is common with fathers.

The father, Patrick F. Kearins, stationed in North Africa, was jumped from sergeant to second lieutenant almost the same day his baby was born in Chicago. He has served in the signal corps for three years.

The Kearins have another daughter, Toni Marie, who celebrated her first birthday last Tuesday. She was only four months old the last time her father saw her. The soldier's family lives at 1621 Wallen avenue.

Pins Hopes on V-Mail.

Mrs. J. Murray Crangle, 1644 Pratt boulevard, is having difficulty getting word to her husband of Marilyn's safe entry into the world. Since last Jan. 29, the baby's birthday, she has been cabling and writing, but in the last letter she received, dated March 16, no mail had reached the fighter for three months.

"This V-mail photo may bring him his first news of our daughter," the mother said. "And I can't think of a better way for him to hear the good news!"

NORTH SIDERS HAVE ROLES IN SAFETY PARLEY

Twenty north side residents are officers or members of the conference executive committee of the Greater Chicago Safety council, which will sponsor the 21st annual midwest safety conference, starting Tuesday at the Hotel Sherman. The meeting will continue for three days.

WHEN ELLISES CALL FAMILY ROLL, FIVE IN SERVICE ANSWER

In the Cecil Ellis' window at 2636 Mildred avenue hangs a service flag with three stars. Actually, figuring in-laws, the family could display five stars!

Last of the Ellis children to leave for service was Ruth, who is in training with the WAAC at Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia. She is 26 years old, a graduate of Tuley High school.

Learn Hymns, Martial Airs at Great Lakes.

BY ANN FORD.

"Singing men are fighting men, and fighting men are singing men!" These are the words of Lt. Comm. H. F. Hanson, chaplain in charge of the 200 voice Great Lakes Naval Training station choir. History and the present war both prove him right.

Comm. Hanson.

Napoleon conquered Europe to the thunder of "La Marseillaise." At Waterloo, bagpipes were his undoing, when Wellington ordered his men to "play as you have never played before."

In this war "The Beer Barrel Polka" was the first song to sustain survivors of torpedoed ships as they bobbed in lifeboats for endless days awaiting rescue. According to Stanley Johnston, Chicago Tribune reporter on the scene, American sailors went down with the Lexington singing "The Old Rugged Cross."

Choir Trains 7,000.

At Great Lakes an extensive program is under way to spread music thru the fleet. Its nucleus is the Great Lakes choir. In the two and one-half years of the expanded program, inaugurated by Comm. Hanson, 7,000 sailors have been "graduated" from the choir. Sailing in all the ships of the navy, these boys are trained leaders of song.

"Hymns are the finest fighting songs in the world," Comm. Hanson avers. "And the ones which have proved most popular here at the Lakes are 'The Old Rugged Cross,' 'Were You There When They Crucified My Lord,' and 'Onward, Christian Soldiers.'"

He points out that singing is not confined to the choir. Every boot in training has an opportunity to "swing out" with the best of them in the frequent "Sing-Songs" held in each camp. On movie nights they gather early for the informal singfests. These are carefully planned by the choir staff to include familiar tunes—old and new.

Favorites of the boys are gay '90s songs, like "Daisy, Daisy," novelty tunes, like "Don't Sit Under the Apple Tree," and popular songs that are frankly sentimental. This 15 minute program never drags. Always it builds up to a stirring military climax. "Anchors Aweigh" is one of the best.

Opera Tenor Leads.

Members of the choir are selected from the incoming companies of recruits, with several choirs in training at all times. The average age of the boys is 18, and most have had no previous vocal training.

Choir companies enjoy no special privileges. Their military chores come first, then their choir duties. As one grinning seaman put it, never stopping his scrubbing on the barracks floor, "All this, and singing, too!"

The 200 men rehearse after hours, when training for the day is done. They work hard and fast, for oftentimes they learn as many as 24 numbers a month. On Sunday mornings divisions of the choir sing at as many as 52 church services in 9 to 15 different chapels on the station. Sunday noon finds them on the air in "The Great Lakes Choir" program over station WBBM. This is broadcast from Ross auditorium at the Lakes.

Friday evenings they join with the Great Lakes band, music, and entertainment departments to present "Meet Your Navy," fed from Ross auditorium to station WLS and the Bluc network. "The Bluejacket Seabag" is a "Sing-Song" program heard Tuesday nights over station WBBM.

Parents Praise Choir.

Revelation of the worth of the singing program is found in the hundreds of letters from parents received by Chaplain Hanson. The majority report the glowing enthusiasm of their sons for everything "navy." This, they are convinced, is due in large part to the inspiration of singing in the Great Lakes choir.

Even more letters come from the boys themselves who have gone out with the fleet.

In 1867, at the invitation of the Rev. Arnold Damen, S. J., pastor of Holy Family parish, a group of nine sisters of the Blessed Virgin Mary came from Dubuque, Ia., to open two schools in Chicago. As the need for high school education increased, both St. Aloysius and St. Stanislaus, later Sacred Heart, offered high school subjects.

It was by observing the work of the sisters in the schools of this diocese that Father Damen perceived the special fitness of the new community for teaching in the American parochial school system, which he hoped to build in Chicago. The work of the sisters not only fostered an active zeal among Catholics but also inspired hundreds of girls to enter the community. At present there are about 400 B. V. M.'s teaching in 27 parochial schools, four high schools, and one college in Chicago.

List of Schools.

Mundelein to Honor Sisters of Charity.

Mundelein college, newest of the 30 Chicago schools taught by the Sisters of Charity, B. V. M., will celebrate the 75th anniversary of the coming of the religious congregation to this city with a program Friday afternoon. Starting their work in America in Philadelphia in 1833, the Sisters of Charity is one of the largest teaching orders in the United States.

The congregation's first north side school was St. Vincent's, opened in 1883. The first roll call listed 97 pupils. Now there are 660 students in the school. Successively, the Sisters of Charity, B. V. M., opened seven more north side schools. They are Our Lady of Lourdes, St. Dominick's, Holy Name, St. Jerome's, St. Gertrude's, St. Thomas of Canterbury, and Immaculata High.

The order now teaches more than 5,000 students in grammar schools, high schools, and college on the north side alone. Mundelein college, which opened in 1930, will observe the diamond jubilee with a special program.

Claudia Pelletier, 1000 West Sheridan road, will open the program with a tribute citing the progress of the congregation's work in Chicago. The Mundelein college glee club, directed by Walter Aschenbrenner, will sing several selections.

Also on the program will be a group of dancers from the Mundelein fine arts department, directed by Miss Gladys Bezazian, 6317 Sheridan road, founder of Orchesis, a national sorority of the dance. Edith Moscardini, 6361 Sheridan road, will be soloist in the dance interpretations.

MODEL PLANE WINS BOND FOR WALLER PUPIL

John Poltera's Grumman Best of 236 Entries.

John Poltera, who started building model airplanes with a 10 cent kit he bought 10 years ago, last week put away until his 27th birthday a $100 war bond which his scale model of a Grumman "Wildcat" carrier-based fighter plane won in a city-wide contest, sponsored by a downtown store. He lives with his father at 1703 Burling street.

Altho he had competed—unsuccessfully—in at least six model airplane flying contests since 1940, this was the first scale model [nonflying] event John had entered. There were 236 entrants in the contest.

Poltera spent six weeks making his entry. It was finished only a few hours before the deadline and some of the glue hardly was dry when he turned the model over to Alvin G. Davis, contest director and an administrative officer of the Academy of Model Aeronautics.

John now is building a flying sailplane model with a 6½ foot wing spread. He is only 5½ feet tall himself. The model will be powered with a quarter horse power miniature gasoline engine.

Last year John had bad luck, losing one of his models and having two more "crack up." This one he lost was an interceptor type plane with a one-seventh horse power motor. It required a month to construct and cost $25.

A junior at Waller High school, John is looking forward to next semester when he can take the new pre-flight training course at the school. He became 17 years old a few weeks ago.

Svithiod Concert Club.

The Svithiod Singing club will present its 61st annual spring concert at 5 o'clock today at the Trinity Lutheran church, 1034 Barry avenue. Knute Hansen is director of the chorus.

Because of them our lives are altered with the thousand and one restrictions vital in maintaining a fair wartime organization. Our families are broken up, our men transformed into soldiers and sent far from home.

If this thought doesn't make you fighting mad, you're not an American, for all America is fighting mad. We're all doing all we can, every minute of every day. Now, we must do more! War Bonds must be bought in quantities greater than ever before!

MANPOWER WILL BE WOMANPOWER RADIO MEN LEARN

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

If anybody says "man power" to a broadcaster arriving home from the war conference of the National Association of Broadcasters this week-end, he is likely to scream. Some stations have lost half of their male personnel, the industry as a whole, 26 per cent to the war. Not only did the broadcasters obtain few clews as to how they are going to replace their lost men, but they were informed over and over again that they will lose a lot more.

Lawrence A. Appley of the war man power commission told them that the army and navy will have to have 3,500,000 more men by the end of the year; war industries, 2,500,000. Chairman James Lawrence Fly of the FCC reiterated these figures.

Warning from Signal Corps.

Brig. Gen. F. E. Stoner of the United States signal corps warned the broadcasters they will have to give up more technicians for officer personnel; Lt. Comm. P. H. Winston of the selective service staff told them to get busy and train more older men and women. A representative of the British Broadcasting corporation told them the same thing, stating that BBC now has over 25 per cent feminine personnel.

"The only man in the country with man power to spare," observed one cynical broadcaster, "is James C. Petrillo." He was referring to Petrillo's claim that the recording and transcription industry had left his union filled with unemployed musicians.

Deny Petrillo's Story.

The broadcasters, however, brought forth a report purporting to show that only one-third of his union members are musicians and that the rest represent some 250 other professions.

The equipment problem, too, is crucial. A few broadcasters found much needed spare parts among their friends at the conference. Representatives of the WPB reminded the broadcasters that no radio station had yet gone off the air because of lack of equipment and it was promised that this would not happen. Broadcasters, however, were inclined to credit their own resourcefulness in the past and to rely on it in the future in order to stay in business.

How to guard your Weight and Energy during food rationing

From all information we have been able to gather, America will probably eat more starchy, fattening foods this year than ever before. That's why, now, more than ever, you must guard your weight to avoid putting on pounds of ugly fat. And here's probably the easiest way to do this you ever read about. Simply mix ¾ glass* of Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ glass* of water. Drink before meals and at bedtime, and this remarkable action follows. First, you have less desire to eat starchy, fattening foods. Thus, you cut caloric intake without having to suffer a hungry moment. Second, the natural dextrose in Welch's is quickly consumed. This regime not only aids nature in consuming excess fat, but increases energy at the same time. You lose fat naturally; look and feel better. Don't take chances on gaining weight during food rationing. Get genuine Welch's Grape Juice today, and follow this verified way to lose weight. The Welch Grape Juice Company, Westfield, N.Y. *8 oz. glass.

How to Save Ration Points

Welch's Grape Juice is richer in energy value than the 4 leading fruit juices. It is so rich it can be diluted with ¼ water and still taste delicious. When served this way, it takes less ration points than any of 4 leading fruit or vegetable juices. Serve Welch's regularly and save ration points.

GERSHWIN MUSIC DEVOTEE QUITS NOTES FOR WAR

Concert Pianist Works in Ordnance Plant.

If George Gershwin were alive and could walk into a certain Chicago war plant manufacturing ordnance material, he would see one of his friends and earliest disciples. She is Helen Burnett of 1020 Lawrence avenue, a concert pianist who, in her own words, "was one of the first persons to recognize Gershwin as a great composer."

So far as Miss Burnett knows, she was the first to play Gershwin's concerto for piano with an orchestra. She used Gershwin's original manuscript, for it had not yet been published.

Played the "Rhapsody."

Miss Burnett gave Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" in St. Louis, Mo., before it was considered "anything besides jazz," she said. During her musical career, she also has accompanied such well known artists as Dorothy Maynor and Ruth St. Dennis.

But now, Miss Burnett has no time to keep up with her music. Neither does she have time to compose songs nor write radio scripts, two of her other accomplishments. She has shelved her music and writing career for the duration and taken a job as assistant resident ordnance instructor in a war plant.

"And I'm not going to return to my first love, music, until the war is won," remarked Miss Burnett. She heartily believes that, in order to win the war, women must work in war industries and give up less important jobs to do just that."

Studied at Illinois Tech.

In preparation for her war job, Miss Burnett studied ordnance inspection at the Illinois Institute of Technology. She "earned as she learned" as an enrollee in the paid ordnance inspection program.

"Now my only reminder of the music I left behind me is the soft tinkle of steel links being hung by workers in my section of the war plant," said Miss Burnett. "They make a constant jingle, jangle, jingle."

"Starlight Interlude" will tell by drama and music the thoughts of a young soldier as he lies in a shell hole on a far east battlefield. Looking around him the soldier can see only stars and he wonders what it would be like if he could play music on them. Then, in fantasy, with Mr. Thomas handling the musical rôle and supported by Henry Weber and the W-G-N Symphony orchestra, the soldier sings to accompaniment by the stars.

Soon across no-man's land crawls an army nurse who joins him in song. Miss Claire will sing the rôle of the nurse. The dramatic rôle of the soldier, Tom Blake, will be played by Marvin Mueller while Laurette Fillbrandt will be cast as Diana Llewellyn, the nurse.

Soldiers nearby hear the singing. After the battle has died down they visit the shell hole and there they see a soldier and a nurse who have both been dead many hours.

DESCRIBES HOW TO GROW YOUR OWN POTATOES

BY BEN MARKLAND.

Thousands of middle western gardeners who have concentrated their energies on the common backyard vegetables are branching out into potato culture this season. Not only are gardeners tending larger plots this year, thus giving them the necessary space for potatoes, but short supplies on grocery racks are causing housewives to prod their gardening spouses into raising potatoes for table use and winter storage.

Potatoes are most receptive to sandy loam soils with sharp drainage, but it is possible to grow this crop in almost any middle western area by artificially creating the drainage which is the key to a good yield.

Two Varieties Popular.

Two of the most popular varieties for northern Illinois are early Ohio, a red variety, and Rural New Yorker, an excellent main crop white variety. Both types can be planted now.

One of the most common questions about potato culture is that of treating the seed stock before planting to prevent scab disease. This usually is not necessary if the seed stock comes from the northern potato states, such as Michigan, Minnesota, and Maine. Neither is it necessary if the seed stock is to be planted on ground where potatoes have not previously been grown.

If scab disease has been encountered in your plot in previous years, there are several commercially made products used for treating the seed stock, most of which have bichloride of mercury or formaldehyde as the active agents. It also is easy to make a seed-treating solution by mixing one ounce of bichloride of mercury to eight gallons of water. The seed potatoes should be soaked in such a solution in a wooden barrel for four hours.

Use Small Seed Stock.

Another common question on potato culture is that of dissecting the seed stock before planting. On perfect potato ground the practice is to cut the seed potatoes into four to six section, with one "eye" in each section to be planted. Most inexperienced gardeners, particularly in Illinois, will have better success by utilizing small seed stock and planting them whole or cutting in half.

The gardener of the sample plots on the Tribune's Wheaton farm used small seed stock of the Rural New Yorker variety last season. His seed potatoes were about the size of an egg and were planted whole, and his return was 16 times the amount of seed planted. An assistant gardener used the same seed on the same type of soil and cut his seed potatoes in half before planting. His return was only 10 times the amount of seed planted.

Potato rows should be three feet apart, and plants in the row should be 14 to 16 inches apart. If the soil is mellow and well drained the seed stock may be planted to a depth of six inches, but in most areas of northern Illinois four inches is a better depth.

When to Start Drainage.

The artificial drainage so necessary in potato culture should be started when the plants are six inches above the ground. At this point the "hilling" of the stalks is started by hoeing soil over four inches of this six inch stalk. When the plants are 10 to 12 inches tall a second hilling is made, with soil again being hoed up to within two to three inches of the plant crest. By this type of culture the potatoes develop in hills 8 to 10 inches above ground level.

The major insert enemies of the potato are the potato bug and the leaf hopper. A mixture of 10 tablespoonfuls of arsenate of lead, the same amount of bordeaux mixture, and four gallons of water will eliminate both of these pests.

After the potatoes are dug in the late summer or early fall they should be stored in a cool garage or shed and covered with straw. When freezing weather arrives they should be transferred to a dry basement storage place where the temperature will be between 35 and 42 degrees.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, May 3.

The early sown crops should be well along by this time, altho it is too early for tender plants because of the danger from frost. Cultivate the garden as soon as the young plants show above ground; hoe to kill weeds and to conserve moisture.

Complete all garden operations on time. Weeds grow rapidly, but if kept under control there is little danger of them depleting the soil of food and moisture that the vegetables demand. Hand weed in the rows and thin at the same time.

Tuesday, May 4.

All preparations should be made to combat insect pests as soon as they appear. One of the most harmful pests is the cutworm; it will eat the plant close to the ground or higher up, causing the plant to fall over or to be seriously injured.

They are active at night, which is demonstrated when the ground surrounding the plants is raked, the worms being brought into view.

Wednesday, May 5.

Plant pansies, but select the short, compact, stocky plants. Keep the withered flowers removed or seed will form and the plants will cease flowering.

Well grown cannas, with their tropical foliage and large flowers, do well under city conditions, but they require abundant water and a rich soil. Buy started plants, for it takes a long time for the plants to start outdoors from the roots.

Thursday, May 6.

An effective method to kill weeds is to use the back of the rake to knock over the weeds when they are no more than an inch high. Sufficient soil is loosened to cover them.

This may be done rapidly and does away with waiting until the weeds are 6 inches or more high, necessitating hoeing to cut them down.

Friday, May 7.

Sow a little radish seed with slow germinating vegetables, such as beets, carrots, parsnips, and parsley, for the radish seed germinates quickly, maring the rows which can be cultivated immediately they are distinguishable.

To enjoy the finest lettuce, growth should be rapid and continuous, which means that plenty of moisture is applied, with an abundance of nitrogen. Rows may be 12 to 24 inches apart.

Saturday, May 8.

Ants in the lawn may be destroyed by poking a hole in the colony with a stick and dropping a little carbon bisulphide into it. Plug the hole with mud.

Fruit trees should be sprayed before the blossoms fall as a protection against attacks from codling moths and similar pests.

HEROIC RESCUES PART OF A DAY'S WORK FOR SAM

Veteran Life Guard Busy Winter and Summer.

BY EILEEN BURKE.

Making heroic rescues is just part of a day's work to Sam Leone who lives in a house by the side of the lake at 1222 Touhy avenue. Winter and summer alike, Sam and his family make their home the three story green and white crew house which stands as a vigilant guard at the water's edge.

As director of the Rogers Park bathing beach and head of the city life guard service of the 28 beaches from Foster avenue to Evanston, Sam is only required to work the conventional eight hour day. But that makes little difference. Cries for help come to Sam at all hours of the day or night and he is always ready to answer them. "Overtime" is a word he never thinks about.

18 Years on Duty.

For 18 years Sam has been on duty at the beach almost constantly. In winter he is often called upon to rescue persons who fall thru the ice. In summer, many a good night's sleep has been interrupted by cries of distress from adventurous inebriates who attempt to find out how deep the lake is. Numerous times he has rushed out to save fishermen whose boats have been upturned in early morning squalls.

During the years Sam has lived beside the lake there have been only four drownings outside of the regular working hours. And those were a result, he said, of boats being out too far in the lake or other circumstances which made life saving impossible.

As Sam's friends at the beach testify, he has made hundreds of rescues which "nobody ever hears about." But they also say that the last person in the world who would mention anything about them is Sam.

Remembers His Boys.

Sam does, however, like to talk about his "boys" and what they have done. The boys are the 150 life guards who have worked under his direction each summer. He can always remember the first name of any young man he has trained, and usually a specific instance of the boy's heroism.

"I'm a real Simon Legree in training them," Sam remarked, "but life guarding is a tough job and it's a job that has to be done right."

Qualifying for life guard duty is more difficult than some people suspect, he said. The boys must have excellent eyesight and hearing, be able to jump 4 feet, do 10 "pull ups," swim 90 feet under water and row a boat 300 yards against time. Also, they must be able to break various difficult holds, do a 40 yard dash, a 220 yard swim and recover five articles under water.

"They must be top men mentally as well as physically," the director added. In past years most of Sam's life guards have been college boys, but this season he expects a shortage.

W. W. Wright, superintendent of the bureau of parks and recreation, said recently that the 18 year old age limit for life guards has not been officially lowered as yet.

As to whether he thought girl life guards could do the work on beaches he directs, Sam was noncommittal "Sometimes young ladies can do surprising things," he said, "so perhaps they might be good life guards."

Need Strong Rowers.

He pointed out the important need of strong rowing ability as shown in the recent rescue of Ensign Arthur H. Phillip of the Naval Air station, Glenview, whose plane plunged into the lake 300 yards off Rogers Park beach. The young pilot was saved by Henry "Heinie" Schmidt, one of Sam's veteran guards.

"Heinie," who stays at the beach the year around to mend boats and take care of the equipment, heard the plane as it fell into the water. Sam was away at the time and Mrs. Leone rushed to help push the boat into the water. She waded out until she was wet to knees to give the boat a good send-off. So, with little ado and some swift rowing, the rescue was accomplished, Sam said.

He is also proud that many of his other veteran life guards are now in the service. Naturally, he said, most of them joined either the coast guard or the navy. The old gold star on the list is for Maj. Kenneth Baily who gave his life with the marines at Guadalcanal.

Two north siders have been honored for their work in engineering at the Illinois Institute of Technology. They are Milton Burkart, 1616 Bryn Mawr avenue, and James Neighbor, who were pledged to Alpha Chi Sigma, honorary chemical engineering fraternity.

TWO HUNDRED persons gathered in the Charles S. Neumanns' home at 1103 Pratt boulevard to wish them well on their 50th wedding anniversary last week. Among the guests were their son and two daughters—Margaret, Walter, and Mrs. Louis B. Hambourger. The couple has five grandchildren, two of whom are in the service. Pvt. Norman Hambourger, stationed with the medical corps at Camp Grant, was home for the celebration. His brother, Warren, is an aviation cadet at Ellington field, Texas.

MR. AND MRS. P. A. ALLES celebrated their golden wedding last week at mass in St. Gertrude's church and with a reception from 5 to 8 o'clock in their home, 6122 North Hermitage avenue. Helping them observe the event were five of their six sons and daughters—John, Nicholas, Henry, Margaret, and Marian, and their six grandchildren. The other son, Brother Clement Allee, is in Alabama. Both Mr. and Mrs. Alles were born in Chicago. They have resided in their present home since their marriage.

The War as Fighters See It

Good Fishing.

From Corp. Albert W. Robuck, stationed on the Alcan highway in British Columbia, to his mother, Mrs. Franz Robuck, 1004 Clay street, La Porte, Ind. Twenty-one years old, he was graduated from La Porte High school and was planning college when war broke out. Shortly after he wrote this letter, he received 23 letters, after having received only one in 20 days.

I am the happiest boy in the continent tonight. I received my first letter in 20 days. We had a late mail call and there were only two of us in the new bunch that got letters, our first. We would have mail call and all of us with high hopes would rush up only to return with broken hearts and another whole day to wait.

Corp. Robuck.

"They called off my name and I let out a yell that could be heard half way to——[130 miles away]. I think every boy in camp read my letter. It wasn't so much what it said, but what a letter looked like. We are hoping for more tomorrow.

"Last Thursday noon I received the fishing tackle. I thought the afternoon would never pass. Just before chow it started to rain, but like the answer to prayer, right after chow it stopped. I put the new line on my reel, got three other boys fixed up, and off we went.

First Fishing for Bane.

"Two of the boys stayed on the near side of the river while Bane and I went on the other side. Pvt. Bane is a tall skinny Irishman with big feet and red hair and quite a temper. Bane had never been fishing before so I had to do a quick job of showing him how it was done.

"It was about 10 minutes before I found where the fish hung out and then it started. It was the most fun I have ever had. In a couple of hours I had 20 fish.

Bane Has Trouble.

"Bane let out a yell. He had caught his first fish. I thought I would die laughing. He was standing there dangling the poor fish in mid-air out over the water. I rapidly instructed him to bring the fish in, and none too soon either, for just as he did the fish flopped off on the rocks.

"When we finally went home the four of us had about 75 trout. We threw a party and fed half the camp. Boy, O boy, nothing ever tasted as good as that first fish after eating army chow for four months."

Returns from Panama.

From Corp. Clarence Brooks, stationed at Fort Knox, Kentucky, to his sister, Mrs. Thomas M. Parker, 1585 Ridge avenue, Evanston. Corp. Brooks also has served in Panama, going there a year ago after training at Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

"We were on the ocean seven days and nights, then spent an extra day on the boat at New York while they got a train ready for us. I enjoyed the trip very much tho the boat was very crowded. We got on a boat that stopped in Panama on its way back from New Guinea, loaded with casualties. Some were able to be up and around and they could really tell some tales of the fighting there.

"Those Japs must really be dirty fighters. The casualties said they were not taking any more prisoners there because the Japs torture our fellows to death. There were some fellows who had some close calls.

"In Panama we were on the alert, so to speak, all the time. Anytime they thought they saw something coming we were called out, and each time, so far as we knew, it was the real thing."

A Flyer's Day.

"Work here is hard—we fly as often as weather permits and fill in extra time with Link training, school, and eating. My day starts at 7 o'clock in the morning and we fly till noon. Then we fly from 1 till dark, weather permitting.

"Usually in the morning we fly formation, and that is really work. It's no small job throwing a 50,000 pound airplane around the sky, knowing that if you relax for a second and slip 10 feet off course, you'll kill 20 men and ruin a cool million dollars' worth of Uncle Sam's finest fighting machines.

"In the afternoon, we go on a bombing and gunnery mission. We drop 10 to 12 100-pound bombs from 4,000 to 20,000 feet. Precision bombing requires the most exacting flying there is.

"Mom, you know how much I hated responsibility back home. I tried to be kind of self-sufficient in my own little way. Now, I have more responsibility than Solomon with his thousand wives. It requires just a little more work, and if done with a smile and the feeling that you'd be glad to do it, the work is more cheerful."

MAINTAIN YOUR APPLIANCES AT TOP EFFICIENCY

Makers Offer Two Kinds of Help to Owners.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Home owners who are making a systematic checkup of their houses this spring know they must start with the foundations, include the inside and outside walls, basements, windows, attics, roofs, rafters, and beams. Semi-annual repairs made while leaks and sprains are still minor save money by elimination of major, costly repair jobs.

What all home owners and apartment dwellers are not so aware of is the fact that systematic checkup of household fixtures, appliances, and equipment is quite as vital. And that there are two definite kinds of help being offered to appliance and equipment owners by the manufacturers of various household units.

Set Up Service Centers.

1. Many manufacturers of heating and plumbing equipment, and electrical and gas household appliances of all kinds, have developed, in spite of existing man power and material shortages, service centers from which their experts are working to help in the upkeep of these units. This means owners won't have to do their own tinkering on ailing machinery and that the repair on these units can still be left to trained experts. Such centers work thru various agencies; often these are dealers or distributors, local utilities or department stores.

2. The second type of help that manufacturers are offering is in the booklets, free for the asking in most cases, which are printed to inform appliance owners how to keep their equipment functioning well for the duration.

Many Booklets Offered.

There are booklets on the proper care of all types of electrical equipment, on ways to get the most out of your refrigerators, your ranges, your fuel, your heating system. Other booklets tell you how to check your wiring for war time use, give you hints on the maintenance of your washing machine and ironer, your vacuum and table appliances, and instruct you on care of your plumbing fixtures.

Even tho a heating system is topnotch, fuel is being wasted if heat seeps thru the roof or walls, and a valuable little booklet gives ways by which you can use one-third less fuel next winter. Another lists not less than 82 ways to prevent fuel waste and conserve for victory.

And very pertinent right now is a sane and sensible little booklet which has been approved by the office of civilian defense which suggests black-out and dim-out methods you can employ, using materials, shades, and drapes which you already have in your own home. The aim of these methods is to show you how to have adequate light inside your room while not allowing a single gleam to permeate the outdoors.

[We will be glad to give you a list of these free and helpful little booklets on receipt of a stamped, addressed envelope sent to this department.]

War Worker Interview.

Ruth Glaza, an employé in the Diesel Engine division at the Electro-Motive plant of General Motors, will be interviewed as a feature of the 39th consecutive broadcast of Victory Is Our Business on W-G-N today at 12:30 p. m.

Wed in Rogers Park

Miss Mary Louise Wharton, daughter of Mrs. Joseph C. Wharton, 1615 Columbia avenue, recently became the bride of Emil J. Birkenhier Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil J. Birkenhier of Skokie. The wedding took place at St. Jerome's church in Rogers Park. The young couple is now residing on their farm near Skokie.

C. E. LUNDQUIST MARKS 55 YEARS WITH LOOP FIRM

Fifty-five years with the same company is the record rolled up by Charles E. Lundquist of 1304 Rosemont avenue! The firm is Gage Brothers, wholesale milliners.

Charles E. Lundquist.

Born in Westmanland, Sweden, on Feb. 6, 1868, Mr. Lundquist came to Chicago in 1887. His first job was as clerk in a grocery store. In this practical workshop, as well as in night school, he learned to speak English fluently. On April 17, 1888, he went to work for Gage Brothers in the loop as an all-around helper. From this he graduated to more dignified tasks and finally to manager of the shipping department. Later he became city salesman, which position he still holds.

On his 75th birthday last February, Mr. Lundquist received a gold watch from fellow employés. Mr. Lundquist is married and has one son, Russell.

SALUTE CHICAGO YOUTH THIS WEEK

STAR SENIORS TO WIN TRIBUNE HONORS AGAIN

Interviews, Photos to Be Published.

Outstanding Catholic and public high school seniors—selected by a vote of their classmates—again will be honored this year in the Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE. Photographs and interviews with the outstanding members of the graduating classes of the some 80 high schools in the city will be published in the Metropolitan section within the next six weeks.

Officials of both Catholic and public high schools have been informed of the plan to continue the custom of honoring the seniors and both the Rev. D. F. Cunningham, head of the diocesan school board, and Dr. William H. Johnson, city superintendent of schools, voiced their approval.

Faculty to Nominate.

Seniors will select the honor graduates of their class from a list nominated by faculty members of the various high schools. The first list of nominations to be published will be that of the Catholic high schools, which is to be completed by faculty members early this week. This list will appear in the Metropolitan sections next Sunday.

Interviews with the Catholic high school honor graduates and their photographs will be published June 6. Members of the senior classes of these schools will pick their representative by ballot within two weeks.

They'll Tell Ambitions.

Interviews with the seniors will outline the plans and ambitions of the students as well as give an indication of high school life as it is today.

Lists of honor students nominated by faculties of the public high schools also will be published June 6. The following week members of the public high school senior classes will elect their representatives from these lists.

Interviews and photographs of the public schools honor graduates will appear in the Metropolitan sections June 20. Accounts of the graduation exercises of both Catholic and public schools also will be printed.

Publish Graduates' Names.

The names of the graduates of Catholic and public high schools will be published in the Metropolitan sections, as has been the custom in the past years. The graduation lists of public high schools is scheduled for publication near the end of June. Lists of graduates of Catholic high schools—which do not all hold graduation exercises at the same time—will be published as soon as possible in the Metropolitan sections.

PLAY EQUIPMENT CALLED A PRIME CONTEST FACTOR

Play equipment made by entrants will be given special consideration in this year's annual play yard contest sponsored by the Chicago Motor club as part of its accident prevention work. Officials of the Chicago public library and its branches are coöperating in the drive to provide safe off the street play space, and the libraries are distributing entry blanks for the 1943 contest.

Charles M. Hayes, president of the motor club, explained that an official entry blank is not necessary. A postcard listing the entrant's name, address, phone number, and the location of the play yard will suffice. The competition, which is open to any resident of Cook county, will be judged on the basis of the use made of the various play yards entered.

Prizes for the contest, which will close Sept. 15, will include a lawn swing and a slide for each section of Cook county—south, southwest, west, northwest, and north.

CHRISTIAN HIGH CHOIR CONCERT TO LAUNCH SILVER ANNIVERSARY

The third annual spring music festival of the Chicago Christian High school a cappella choir will be held Friday evening in Orchestra hall. The concert inaugurates a series of events commemorating the 25th anniversary of the opening of the private school.

James Baar is director of the choir, and solo parts will be sung by Joan Huizenga, 910 West 111th street, and Alyce Sluis, 10622 La Salle street. Helen Bickerton and Raymond Koch will be guest soloists, accompanied by William Sumner.

The school has an enrollment of 600 and features music as one of its principal activities.

Mrs. Virgil H. Landwehr and Edward Henry.

Mrs. John P. Hunt and Raymond James.

Mrs. James T. Casey and Carol Ann.

Mrs. Edward Cohen and Edward Charles.

Mrs. William B. Green and Margaretta Ruth.

Today The Tribune again prints pictures of babies whose fighting fathers have never met their young offspring. For the last two weeks Tribune photographers have been busy clicking camera shutters at babies—babies who regard the event as a gurgling happy surprise, babies obligingly awakening from naps to pose, and babies who squirm and then throw a delighted smile at the camera man. All photos will fly by V-mail to new fathers around the globe.

V-Mail Photos of Babies to Cheer Fighting Fathers

For a moment the war will recede into the background as a new father somewhere overseas opens his V-mail and finds therein a photo of his wife and the new baby. For that brief moment, the young father may feel very close to his family. Then, tucking the precious picture in his wallet, he will go on with his battle job.

The V-mail photo taken by THE TRIBUNE will have been sent to him by his wife with a personal message. In most cases, it will be his first picture of the baby.

Looks Like Father.

His baby daughter looks like him, Mrs. Green said. Her husband, Lt. [s.g.] William B. Green, is aboard a seaplane tender somewhere in the Pacific. The blue eyed towhead, named Margaretta Ruth, arrived April 9, and altho a wire was sent to Lt. Green, no reply has been received. Mrs. Green and baby live with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. David E. Gamble, 10301 Hoyne avenue. A graduate of Morgan Park High school, Mrs. Green later attended the Vogue school. Her husband is a graduate of Washington university, St. Louis, Mo., and received a master of arts degree at the Harvard school of business administration.

Mrs. James F. Considine, 6545 South Seeley avenue, also has sent word to her husband of the arrival of Loretta Catherine, now three months, but has received no confirmation from Pvt. Considine, who is somewhere in Australia. Named after her two grandmothers, the brown eyed baby lives with her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Anderson. Mrs. Considine, who is a Harper High school graduate, plans to return to her position as cashier and bookkeeper with a Chicago firm.

Same Birthday as Dad.

John P. Hunt and his three brothers, William, Thomas, and Raymond, were well known in basketball circles before the first three entered the army. With a medical corps in North Africa since last December, he learned of his little son's arrival on his own birthday, March 6. Raymond James was born Feb. 23, and was both named and looks like his uncle, Raymond, who died two years ago.

Married at Fort Benning, Ga., Mrs. Hunt lives with her mother, Mrs. Ruth Simmons, 320 West 63d street. She is a graduate of Parker High school, while her husband, who graduated from the South Wilmington High school, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Hunt, 6801 Justine street.

"I know a picture of us would do much to cheer him," Mrs. Robert Williams, 6628 South Green street, said. The little girl, Roberta Lee, 13 months, is the image of her

Mailing of the first V-mail proofs to mothers who have responded to the plan for giving overseas dads a photographic glimpse of their new offspring will start the first of this week. Further mailing of the proofs will be handled as rapidly as possible.

To get a V-mail picture, write your name and the baby's name and age. State your husband's rank and how long he has been out of the country. Include your address and your telephone number, so that the photographer may make an appointment. Send this necessary information to Photos for Dads editor, Metropolitan section, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. The offer is limited to mothers within 40 miles of Chicago.

Pictures will be printed as space permits.

CHICAGO FLYER ONGUADALCANAL WOUNDED, SAFE

WAR VETERAN'S FIVE SONS FIGHT; ONE LOSES LIFE

Wright Has Defense Job, Rank in Militia.

With four sons in service and another killed in action, the war time contribution of Mr. and Mrs. Clark E. Wright, of Manteno and Chicago, is unique among Illinois families. Lt. Col. William C. Wright is the family member killed in Guadalcanal action. He leaves the widow and three sons living in Iowa.

The father of the five fighting Wrights—who served as a sergeant with the army engineers in the last war—is again in uniform as a supply sergeant in Company A of the 2d regiment, Illinois reserve militia. Most of the time he spends as a war worker in the McCormick works of the International Harvester company of Chicago.

Ran "Branch U. S. O."

At their home on Locust street in Manteno, Mrs. Wright has operated what she calls a "branch U. S. O." for boys on week-end leaves from Chanute field. Gas rationing has cut short this volunteer work, however. Katherine, their 18 year old daughter who will be graduated from the Manteno High school, took highest honors in the recent OCD first aid course given at the school.

First of the five Wright boys to join the army was Lt. Col. Wright, who was 34 years old when he was killed last December. Col. Wright joined the R. O. T. C. unit when he entered North Dakota university at the age of 16. After graduating, he came to Chicago in 1928 and was employed until 1941 at the Cicero plant of Western Electric company, as an instructor of machine operators. He was commander of an Illinois National Guard company when the unit was inducted into army service.

He lived with his parents in Berwyn until he married in 1933, when he and his wife, Margaret, made their home in Oak Park.

Last August, when his unit was transferred to the South Pacific, Col. Wright, then a major, was made plans and training officer of a battalion, consisting of four companies.

In December, the Chicago group relieved the marines at Guadalcanal, and he was given command of the entire battalion with the rank of lieutenant colonel.

Robert Cromie, Tribune war correspondent in the South Pacific area, described the action in a dispatch dated Jan. 5 [printed Jan. 19] from Guadalcanal Island, as follows:

"Finally, all was in readiness and the push began the night of Dec. 18. The following morning, while heroically leading a patrol, a high officer [Col. Wright] of one outfit was slain, and one other man was slain and two wounded. Two others were wounded trying to recover the dead. . . . All finally were brought out by a group of 12 volunteers, led by Capt. Martin W. Kynett, of Chicago, and a Florida officer. Both officers were decorated with the silver star in the field by Maj. Gen. Alexander Patch."

Two Brothers There.

The Chicago regiment has erected a cement monument to Col. Wright, and named a road on Guadalcanal "Wright road" in his honor.

Col. Wright has been awarded the purple heart posthumously. His widow and their three sons received the award.

Capt. Howard C. Wright was employed at the McCormick works from 1934 to 1941, becoming an all-round instructor. Sergt. Don Wright, youngest of the five, was a bugler in his brothers' militia company while still a student at Oak Park High school. He was graduated from the school in 1937.

The fourth Wright boy in the army, Francis, is carrying on the work he started while at the McCormick works. He began as an assistant foreman in 1928, later was assistant safety inspector. He was made safety inspector of the entire plant before entering the army last December. He also taught safety practices at Lewis institute and Harrison High school in government defense courses.

Now a lieutenant, he is army safety officer of Wisconsin's defense plants.

Altho none of the boys had ever been across the Pacific ocean before the war, Mrs. Wright, their mother, was born in Peking, China, the daughter of a medical missionary. Her father, Dr. William Curtis, was physician for the American and British embassies.

Stays in Chicago.

During weekdays Mrs. Wright and her daughter, Katherine, keep up their home in Manteno, while Mr. Wright stays in Chicago in order to back up his fighting sons by working in the McCormick plant. He commutes to Manteno over the week-ends.

On learning of the Wrights' war record, Maj. Gen. Roy D. Keehn, formerly commander of the Illinois National Guard, wrote their parents: "This is a proud and significant record, probably not equaled by any other family in Illinois."

Proud Father, Himself in Reserves, Has 4 Sons on Active Duty, One Slain

Clark E. Wright (right), sergeant in the Illinois reserve militia, is said to be the only man in the militia with four sons in the army and navy. A fifth, Lt. Col William C. Wright, has been killed in action on Guadalcanal. The late Lt. Col. Wright is shown here at left with two of his brothers—still on duty in the South Pacific—Capt. Howard C. and Staff Sergt. Donald M. Wright.

Clark E. Wright, father of the five sons, all in the services, at his machine in the Harvester company McCormick works. He also is a sergeant in the Illinois reserve militia.

Lt. Col. William C. Wright, oldest of the five Wright boys in the service, was killed in action in the South Pacific.

ARMY SHUFFLES INSTRUCTORS IN R.O.T.C TRAINING

Col. William F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics in charge of the Chicago public schools R. O. T. C., has been ordered to supervise also the military work at Morgan Park Military academy.

The army order also named Capt. Clarence G. Tyler, who has been assistant to Col. Morrison on the city schools R. O. T. C. staff, as resident officer in charge at Morgan Park. The new assignments were made when Lt. Col. Clarence Evers was ordered to other military duties.

CHICAGO LAWN BRANCH LIBRARY ADDS FACILITIES

New Reading Rooms in Store Space.

Community service rendered by the Chicago Lawn branch library has increased with the addition of new quarters, formerly occupied by three small stores.

The Chicago Lawn civilian defense office has quarters in a corner space and reading rooms for junior and senior juveniles fill the balance of the new space. Mrs. Frank J. Richards, librarian, is office manager of the OCD office, assisted by Ursula Courtney, and Elizabeth L. King, children's librarian, is an air raid warden.

Girl Scouts Meet.

Other groups meeting in the library include the Girl Scouts of Grace Evangelical church, the Chicago Lawn Historical society, citizenship classes, the Henry George school, and the Marquette Camera club, which has its own quarters in the basement.

Youth week at the library will be observed with the annual library day for eighth grade girls Wednesday and boys Thursday, Miss King said. Pupils will report on either day to serve as reference, children's, or branch librarian, or some similar rôle between 4 and 5 o'clock.

Assigned to Posts.

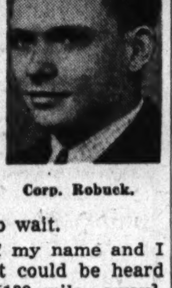
Boys and girls from the following schools have been selected to serve as student librarians this week: Patricia Hansen and Leroy Lash, Eberhart school; Betty Dawson and Eugene Friend, Marquette; Beverly Weber and Charles Lehpamer, Morrill; Joan Lenihan and Paul Bagdon, Pasteur; Betty Pautis and Donald Wielgooz, St. Gall; Marjorie Sedevic and Ray Hemzacek, Sawyer, and Josephine Abhau and Frances Rodeo, Tonti.

The War as Fighters See It

Good Fishing.

From Corp. Albert W. Robuck, stationed on the Alcan highway in British Columbia, to his mother, Mrs. Franz Robuck, 1004 Clay street, La Porte, Ind. Twenty-one years old, he was graduated from La Porte High school and was planning college when war broke out. Shortly after he wrote this letter, he received 23 letters, after having received only one in 20 days.

I am the happiest boy in the continent tonight. I received my first letter in 20 days.



Corp. Robuck.

We had a late mail call and there were only two of us in the new bunch that got letters, our first. We would have mail call and all of us with high hopes would rush up only to return with broken hearts and another whole day to wait.

"They called off my name and I let out a yell that could be heard half way to——[130 miles away]. I think every boy in camp read my letter. It wasn't so much what it said, but what a letter looked like. We are hoping for more tomorrow.

"Last Thursday noon I received the fishing tackle. I thought the afternoon would never pass. Just before chow it started to rain, but like the answer to prayer, right after chow it stopped. I put the new line on my reel, got three other boys fixed up, and off we went.

First Fishing for Bane.

"Two of the boys stayed on the near side of the river while Bane and I went on the other side. Pvt. Bane is a tall skinny Irishman with big feet and red hair and quite a temper. Bane had never been fishing before so I had to do a quick job of showing him how it was done.

"It was about 10 minutes before I found where the fish hung out and then it started. It was the most fun I have ever had. In a couple of hours I had 20 fish. About every time the fly would hit the water a couple of grayling trout would hit it, but it seemed hard to hook them.

Bane Has Trouble.

"Bane let out a yell. He had caught his first fish. I thought I would die laughing. He was standing there dangling the poor fish in mid-air out over the water. I rapidly instructed him to bring the fish in, and none too soon either, for just as he did the fish flopped off on the rocks. Then the fun started. He was so excited he didn't know what to do. He was afraid to pick it up so he tried to step on it.

"When we finally went home the four of us had about 75 trout. We threw a party and fed half the camp. Boy, O boy, nothing ever tasted as good as that first fish after eating army chow for four months."

Returns from Panama.

From Corp. Clarence Brooks, stationed at Fort Knox, Kentucky, to his sister, Mrs. Thomas M. Parker, 1585 Ridge avenue, Evanston. Corp. Brooks also has served in Panama, going there a year ago after training at Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

"We were on the ocean seven days and nights, then spent an extra day on the boat at New York while they got a train ready for us. I enjoyed the trip very much tho the boat was very crowded. We got on a boat that stopped in Panama on its way back from New Guinea, loaded with casualties. Some were able to be up and around and they could really tell some tales of the fighting there.

"Those Japs must really be dirty fighters. The casualties said they were not taking any more prisoners there because the Japs torture our fellows to death. There were some fellows who had some close calls.

"In Panama we were on the alert, so to speak, all the time. Anytime they thought they saw something coming we were called out, and each time, so far as we knew, it was the real thing."

A Flyer's Day.

"Work here is hard—we fly as often as weather permits and fill in extra time with Link training, school, and eating. My day starts at 7 o'clock in the morning and we fly till noon. Then we fly from 1 till dark, weather permitting.

"Usually in the morning we fly formation, and that is really work. It's no small job throwing a 50,000 pound airplane around the sky, knowing that if you relax for a second and slip 10 feet off course, you'll kill 20 men and ruin a cool million dollars' worth of Uncle Sam's finest fighting machines.

Finds It Exciting.

"It's exciting tho, requiring maximum coördination and effort, which cuts down on the work angle, and is really fun.

"In the afternoon, we go on a bombing and gunnery mission. We drop 10 to 12 100-pound bombs from 4,000 to 20,000 feet. Precision bombing requires the most exacting flying there is.

"Mom, you know how much I hated responsibility back home. I tried to be kind of self-sufficient in my own little way. Now, I have more responsibility than Solomon with his thousand wives. It requires just a little more work, and if done with a smile and the feeling that you'd be glad to do it, the work is more cheerful."

16 Members Devote Time to 10 Organizations.

Sixteen women of the Roseland Woman's club, under the leadership of Mrs. Jack I. Kitch and Mrs. Grant Chessman, have contributed their time and talent—in recent months—to 10 war service organizations.

Mrs. Kitch, retiring president of the club, has contributed five times to the blood donor service of the Red Cross; has served as hostess at various recreation centers, has sewed for the Salvation Army and Bundles for Britain, and has given a half day every Wednesday to work for the office of civilian defense at the Pullman branch library.

Plans Another Garden.

As tho these duties were not enough, Mrs. Kitch, who lives at 952 West 11th street, is looking forward to another summer of war gardening. Last year she planted enough garden to furnish 90 quarts of canned vegetables for use of her family during the winter.

Mrs. Chessman, 11346 Lowe avenue, who is chairman of the war service activities of the club, has twice donated blood to the Red Cross and gives regular service each week to her local OCD office.

Mrs. John Vanderbok Jr., 11610 Stewart avenue; Mrs. Herbert Helstrom, 11225 Parnell avenue; Mrs. B. H. Battenberg, 12711 Throop street, and Mrs. William Reich, 11141 Union avenue, have all given blood to the Red Cross. Mrs. Vanderbok also takes part in community OCD work. Mrs. Helstrom is an active member of the Red Cross.

Mrs. J. B. Simson, 418 West 118th street, is a qualified supervisor of finger printing, a member of the advisory committee of the Roseland Y. M. C. A., and a trained representative of the Traveler's Aid society.

Two club members divide their time in war work between the United Service organizations and the OCD. They are: Mrs. Rudolph Bohor, 10920 Normal avenue, and Miss Blanche Bedford, 11624 Normal avenue.

Among the women working for the Red Cross are: Mrs. William Seefeldt, 75 East 102d street; Miss Lillian Farman, 50 West 110th place; Mrs. Thomas Waller 11346 Union avenue; Mrs. John Smith, 38 West 109th street, and Mrs. C. H. Vanderlinden, 10848 Indiana avenue. All knit and make surgical dressings.

Also a Raid Warden.

Another member who works for the Salvation Army is Mrs. Edgar Hamelen, 11042 Parnell avenue. She also serves as an OCD air raid warden. Mrs. Harry Reynolds, 12722 Wallace street, a trained nurse, has returned to nursing work at a local hospital.

Other members engaged in war activities are: Mrs. William Lewin, 11243 Normal avenue; Mrs. Albert Bouma, 11104 Normal avenue; Mrs. Nimrod Lind, 11121 Normal avenue; Mrs. Paul Breen, 11101 State street; Mrs. R. REPAVING OF 103D STREET STARTS IN MIDSUMMER

Repaving of 103d street between Michigan avenue and Halsted street is scheduled to start in midsummer, Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th] reported following recent city council action authorizing expenditure of state motor fuel tax money for the project.

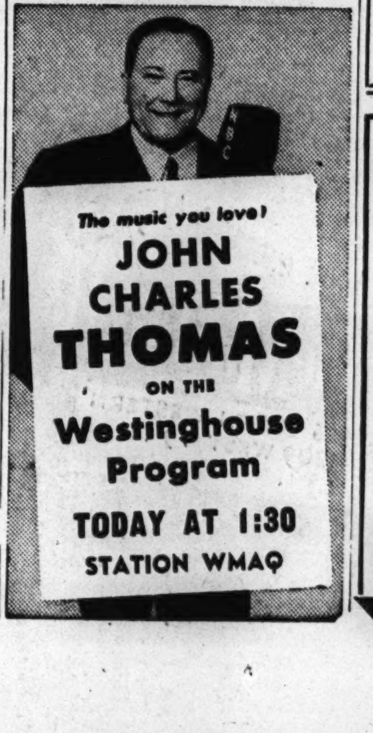
'America After the War' to Be Review Stand Topic

To focus attention on the necessity for post-war planning and on the present activities of the national resources planning board, the Northwestern Reviewing Stand has chosen as the subject, "America After the War," for today at 11 a. m. over W-G-N and Mutual. The speakers will be Socialist Norman Thomas; R. R. Lowdermilk, educational radio division, United States office of education, and Prof. H. Gordon Hullfish of Ohio State university.



MANPOWER WILL BE WOMANPOWER RADIO MEN LEARN

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

If anybody says "man power" to a broadcaster arriving home from the war conference of the National Association of Broadcasters this week-end, he is likely to scream. Some stations have lost half of their male personnel, the industry as a whole, 26 per cent to the war. Not only did the broadcasters obtain few clews as to how they are going to replace their lost men, but they were informed over and over again that they will lose a lot more.

Lawrence A. Appley of the war man power commission told them that the army and navy will have to have 3,500,000 more men by the end of the year; war industries, 2,500,000. Chairman James Lawrence Fly of the FCC reiterated these figures.

Warning from Signal Corps.

Brig. Gen. F. E. Stoner of the United States signal corps warned the broadcasters they will have to give up more technicians for officer personnel; Lt. Comm. P. H. Winston of the selective service staff told them to get busy and train more older men and women. A representative of the British Broadcasting corporation told them the same thing, stating that BBC now has over 25 per cent feminine personnel.

"The only man in the country with man power to spare," observed one cynical broadcaster, "is James C. Petrillo." He was referring to Petrillo's claim that the recording and transcription industry had left his union filled with unemployed musicians.

Deny Petrillo's Story.

The broadcasters, however, brought forth a report purporting to show that only one-third of his union members are musicians and that the rest represent some 250 other professions.

The equipment problem, too, is crucial. A few broadcasters found much needed spare parts among their friends at the conference. Representatives of the WPB reminded the broadcasters that no radio station had yet gone off the air because of lack of equipment and it was promised that this would not happen. Broadcasters, however, were inclined to credit their own resourcefulness in the past and to rely on it in the future in order to stay in business.

How to guard your Weight and Energy during food rationing

From all information we have been able to gather, America will probably eat more starchy, fattening foods this year than ever before. That's why, now, more than ever, you must guard your weight to avoid putting on pounds of ugly fat. And here's probably the easiest way to do this you ever read about. Simply mix ¾ glass* of Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ glass* of water. Drink before meals and at bedtime, and this remarkable action follows. First, you have less desire to eat starchy, fattening foods. Thus, you cut caloric intake without having to suffer a hungry moment. Second, the natural dextrose in Welch's is quickly consumed. This regime not only aids nature in consuming excess fat, but increases energy at the same time. You lose fat naturally; look and feel better. Don't take chances on gaining weight during food rationing. Get genuine Welch's Grape Juice today, and follow this verified way to lose weight. The Welch Grape Juice Company, Westfield, N.Y. *8 oz. glass.

How to Save Ration Points

Welch's Grape Juice is richer in energy value than the 4 leading fruit juices. It is so rich it can be diluted with ⅓ water and still taste delicious. When served this way, it takes less ration points than any of 4 leading fruit or vegetable juices. Serve Welch's regularly and save ration points.

PLAN JUBILEE FOR SISTERS OF CHARITY MAY 10

A diamond jubilee party for the Sisters of Charity, B. V. M., will be held at 8 o'clock Monday evening, May 10, in the Morrison hotel. Miss Margaret O'Connor, 6726 Glenwood avenue, the general chairman of arrangements, will be assisted by Mrs. Charles Thiery, 4729 North Paulina street, north side chairman; Mrs. Leo Conlon, 7914 Vernon avenue, south side chairman, and Mrs. Blanche O'Brien, 900 North Leclaire avenue, west side chairman.

In 1867, at the invitation of the Rev. Arnold Damen, S. J., pastor of Holy Family parish, a group of nine sisters of the Blessed Virgin Mary came from Dubuque, Ia., to open two schools in Chicago. As the need for high school education increased, both St. Aloysius and St. Stanislaus, later Sacred Heart, offered high school subjects.

It was by observing the work of the sisters in the schools of this diocese that Father Damen perceived the special fitness of the new community for teaching in the American parochial school system, which he hoped to build in Chicago. The work of the sisters not only fostered an active zeal among Catholics but also inspired hundreds of girls to enter the community. At present there are about 400 B. V. M.'s teaching in 27 parochial schools, four high schools, and one college in Chicago.

List of Schools.

The parochial schools in which the sisters teach include: Holy Name Cathedral school, 747 North State street; St. Agatha's, 3143 Douglas boulevard; Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary, 1747 Wabansia avenue; Blessed Sacrament, 2138 Central Park avenue; St. Bridget's, 2954 Archer avenue; St. Callistus, 2185 De Kalb street.

St. Charles Borromeo's, 1100 South Hoyne avenue; St. Cornelius, 5252 North Long avenue; St. Dominic, 819 Sedgwick avenue; St. Dorothy, 7735 Vernon avenue; St. Ferdinand, 3100 North Mason avenue; St. Gertrude's, 6214 Glenwood avenue; Holy Cross, 6535 Maryland avenue; Holy Family, 1019 South May street; St. Jerome's, 1700 Morse avenue; Our Lady of the Angels, 859 North Avers avenue; Our Lady Help of Christians, 851 North Leamington avenue; Our Lady of Lourdes, 4637 North Ashland avenue.

St. Pius Is Included.

St. Pius, 1919 South Ashland avenue; Presentation, 734 South Springfield avenue; Sacred Heart, 832 West 18th street; St. Tarcissus, 5738 North Meade avenue; St. Thomas of Canterbury, 4809 Kenmore avenue; St. Vincent De Paul, 2135 Kenmore avenue; St. Odilo, 2306 East avenue, Berwyn; Mary, Queen of Heaven, 5314 West 24th place, Cicero; St. Eulalia, 1824 South 8th avenue, Maywood.

The four high schools include two co-educational parochial schools, Mundelein Cathedral High school and Sacred Heart High school, and two high schools for girls, St. Mary's, opened in 1899, and the Immaculata, 640 Irving Park road, which opened in 1921. In 1930 Mundelein college, the first Catholic college for women on the north side, was opened at 6363 Sheridan road.

Certificates of competence in electronics and micro waves were awarded yesterday to seven southwest side residents at the graduation of students in the high frequency radio course given by the University of Chicago for the army signal corps. One southwest resident, Ralph Lovell of 8816 Parnell avenue, was awarded a certificate in electronics. Those receiving certificates in electronics and micro waves are: Curtis Melnick, 6616 Yale avenue; James Clark, Hinsdale; Blake Smith, 2234 West 107th street; Robert McConnachie, 311 West 111th place; Albert McElroy, 5641 South Wolcott avenue; George Zillis, 10731 Wabash avenue, and Fred Weston, 3506 West 64th street. GIVE WAR STORY ON THEATER OF AIR SATURDAY

A war story, "Starlight Interlude" will be presented from 8 to 9 p. m. next Saturday on W-G-N, W59C, and Mutual's Chicago Theater of the Air. Marion Claire, soprano, and Thomas L. Thomas, baritone, will be co-starred.

"Starlight Interlude" will tell by drama and music the thoughts of a young soldier as he lies in a shell hole on a far east battlefield. Looking around him the soldier can see only stars and he wonders what it would be like if he could play music on them. Then, in fantasy, with Mr. Thomas handling the musical rôle and supported by Henry Weber and the W-G-N Symphony orchestra, the soldier sings to accompaniment by the stars.

Soon across no-man's land crawls an army nurse who joins him in song. Miss Claire will sing the rôle of the nurse. The dramatic rôle of the soldier, Tom Blake, will be played by Marvin Mueller while Laurette Fillbrandt will be cast as Diana Llewellyn, the nurse.

Soldiers nearby hear the singing. After the battle has died down they visit the shell hole and there they see a soldier and a nurse who have both been dead many hours.

Musical selections to be heard during the program will include three solos by Miss Claire. They will be: "Twilight in Barakiesh" by Victor Herbert, Lehar's "Melody of Love" from "Gypsy Love," and Romberg's "Only One Love." She also will be heard singing in a duet of "La Ci Daremo La Mano" from Mozart's "Don Giovanni" with Mr. Thomas and a duet of Romberg's "Tell Me, Daisy."

Mr. Thomas will offer a solo selection of Finden's "Kashmiri Song." The chorus, directed by Robert Trendler, will be heard with the orchestra singing Malloy's "The Kerry Dance," "Siboney," by Lecuona, and the "Marche Militaire," by Romberg. Henry Weber will conduct the orchestra in Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Song of India," Cui's "Orientale," Dvorak's "Carnival Overture," and "Let Me Awake," by Romberg.

HELPS ASPIRING FLYERS TO BEAT COLOR AILMENT

Psychologist Brings Eyes Up to Specifications.

Men, anxious to serve with the air forces, who last year would have been rejected because of color blindness, are flying today because of Mrs. Anna Orcutt, 1352 East 47th place, a clinical psychologist at the Illinois Institute of Technology.

Mrs. Anna Orcutt.

A series of tests and correction exercises which she formulated have enabled men, once rejected, to correct their weakness and to return and pass the rigid color blindness tests of the air services.

She became interested in the problem shortly before Christmas, 1942 when one of "her boys"—one among the 1,800 at the institute whose problems she handles—came to her after his rejection.

Determines Type of Trouble.

First step was to give him a series of tests to determine the type of his color blindness. She then devised a plan to correct it—and at the end of a month he was able to pass the tests he had failed a month before.

Mrs. Orcutt determines the type of color blindness — whether the more common red-green type or the less common blue-yellow variety—with a group of cards which use dots of one color to form numbers against a background of dots of another color. The cards are held two or three feet from the eyes at first and then at a distance of 10 feet, for some people can distinguish colors near to them that they cannot distinguish at a distance. This test establishes the problem to be treated.

In Mrs. Orcutt's first exrecise of correction the student wears glasses with red lenses and sits about three feet from a bright light. The light is flashed off and on at three minute intervals. This is continued for 20 minutes.

"The theory behind this," she explains, "is muscular exercise. The cones in the eyes cause people to see colors. In most cases of color blindness certain cones do not function properly.

Exercises Aid Muscles.

"The muscles of these cones extend, when the light is turned on and contract when the light is turned on. Gradually the cones become strong until in most cases it is possible for the student to recognize colors he was unable to see before."

Another exercise consists of matching colors. Large squares of each color in three different intensities or shades are given to the student along with many smaller cards of the same tones. The problem is to match the small squares with the larger ones. The student Mrs. Orcutt reports, usually has great difficulty in matching the squares at the outset.

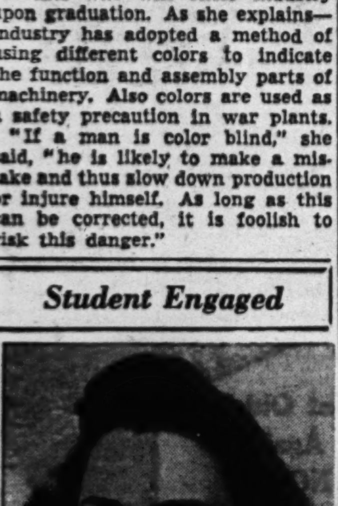
Prescribes Vitamin A.

In treatment of some of her charges, Mrs. Orcutt prescribes vitamin A, the vitamin found in carrots. Well known for its assistance in the treatment of visual difficulties, the vitamin strengthens the eyes and speeds correction.

The success which Mrs. Orcutt has enjoyed has encouraged her to make a survey of those at the institute who were in need of her treatment and she already has expanded her interests to care for students who will enter industry upon graduation. As she explains—industry has adopted a method of using different colors to indicate the function and assembly parts of machinery. Also colors are used as a safety precaution in war plants.

"If a man is color blind," she said, "he is likely to make a mistake and thus slow down production or injure himself. As long as this can be corrected, it is foolish to risk this danger."

Student Engaged



Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Blanchard, 2212 West 107th place, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Gertrude, a senior at Lake Forest college, to William A. Aldrin, cadet in the naval air corps reserve at Marquette university, Milwaukee, Wis. Cadet Aldrin is a graduate of Hirsch High school.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, May 3.

The early sown crops should be well along by this time, altho it is too early for tender plants because of the danger from frost. Cultivate the garden as soon as the young plants show above ground; hoe to kill weeds and to conserve moisture.

Complete all garden operations on time. Weeds grow rapidly, but if kept under control there is little danger of them depleting the soil of food and moisture that the vegetables demand. Hand weed in the rows and thin at the same time.

Tuesday, May 4.

All preparations should be made to combat insect pests as soon as they appear. One of the most harmful pests is the cutworm; it will eat the plant close to the ground or higher up, causing the plant to fall over or to be seriously injured.

They are active at night, which is demonstrated when the ground surrounding the plants is raked, the worms being brought into view. Placing a cylinder of heavy cardboard around the base of the plants will prevent the worms from getting near the stems, but control is best effected by scattering poison bait near the plants.

Wednesday, May 5.

Plant pansies, but select the short, compact, stocky plants. Keep the withered flowers removed or seed will form and the plants will cease flowering.

Well grown cannas, with their tropical foliage and large flowers, do well under city conditions, but they require abundant water and a rich soil. Buy started plants, for it takes a long time for the plants to start outdoors from the roots.

Thursday, May 6.

An effective method to kill weeds is to use the back of the rake to knock over the weeds when they are no more than an inch high. Sufficient soil is loosened to cover them.

This may be done rapidly and does away with waiting until the weeds are 6 inches or more high, necessitating hoeing to cut them down.

Friday, May 7.

Sow a little radish seed with slow germinating vegetables, such as beets, carrots, parsnips, and parsley, for the radish seed germinates quickly, maring the rows which can be cultivated immediately they are distinguishable.

To enjoy the finest lettuce, growth should be rapid and continuous, which means that plenty of moisture is applied, with an abundance of nitrogen. Rows may be 12 to 24 inches apart.

Saturday, May 8.

Ants in the lawn may be destroyed by poking a hole in the colony with a stick and dropping a little carbon bisulphide into it. Plug the hole with mud.

Fruit trees should be sprayed before the blossoms fall as a protection against attacks from codling moths and similar pests. Spray calendars should be followed so good fruit will be enjoyed.

DESCRIBES HOW TO GROW YOUR OWN POTATOES

BY BEN MARKLAND.

Thousands of middle western gardeners who have concentrated their energies on the common backyard vegetables are branching out into potato culture this season. Not only are gardeners tending larger plots this year, thus giving them the necessary space for potatoes, but short supplies on grocery racks are causing housewives to prod their gardening spouses into raising potatoes for table use and winter storage.

Potatoes are most receptive to sandy loam soils with sharp drainage, but it is possible to grow this crop in almost any middle western area by artificially creating the drainage which is the key to a good yield.

Two Varieties Popular.

Two of the most popular varieties for northern Illinois are early Ohio, a red variety, and Rural New Yorker, an excellent main crop white variety. Both types can be planted now.

One of the most common questions about potato culture is that of treating the seed stock before planting to prevent scab disease. This usually is not necessary if the seed stock comes from the northern potato states, such as Michigan, Minnesota, and Maine. Neither is it necessary if the seed stock is to be planted on ground where potatoes have not previously been grown.

If scab disease has been encountered in your plot in previous years, there are several commercially made products used for treating the seed stock, most of which have bichloride of mercury or formaldehyde as the active agents. It also is easy to make a seed-treating solution by mixing one ounce of bichloride of mercury to eight gallons of water. The seed potatoes should be soaked in such a solution in a wooden barrel for four hours.

Use Small Seed Stock.

Another common question on potato culture is that of dissecting the seed stock before planting. On perfect potato ground the practice is to cut the seed potatoes into four to six section, with one "eye" in each section to be planted. Most inexperienced gardeners, particularly in Illinois, will have better success by utilizing small seed stock and planting them whole or cutting in half.

The gardener of the sample plots on the Tribune's Wheaton farm used small seed stock of the Rural New Yorker variety last season. His seed potatoes were about the size of an egg and were planted whole, and his return was 16 times the amount of seed planted. An assistant gardener used the same seed on the same type of soil and cut his seed potatoes in half before planting. His return was only 10 times the amount of seed planted.

Potato rows should be three feet apart, and plants in the row should be 14 to 16 inches apart. If the soil is mellow and well drained the seed stock may be planted to a depth of six inches, but in most areas of northern Illinois four inches is a better depth.

When to Start Drainage.

The artificial drainage so necessary in potato culture should be started when the plants are six inches above the ground. At this point the "hilling" of the stalks is started by hoeing soil over four inches of this six inch stalk. When the plants are 10 to 12 inches tall a second hilling is made, with soil again being hoed up to within two to three inches of the plant crest. By this type of culture the potatoes develop in hills 8 to 10 inches above ground level.

The major insert enemies of the potato are the potato bug and the leaf hopper. A mixture of 10 tablespoonfuls of arsenate of lead, the same amount of bordeaux mixture, and four gallons of water will eliminate both of these pests.

After the potatoes are dug in the late summer or early fall they should be stored in a cool garage or shed and covered with straw. When freezing weather arrives they should be transferred to a dry basement storage place where the temperature will be between 35 and 42 degrees.

MAINTAIN YOUR APPLIANCES AT TOP EFFICIENCY

Makers Offering Two Kinds of Help.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Home owners who are making a systematic checkup of their houses this spring know they must start with the foundations, include the inside and outside walls, basements, windows, attics, roofs, rafters, and beams. Semi-annual repairs made while leaks and sprains are still minor save money by elimination of major, costly repair jobs.

What all home owners and apartment dwellers are not so aware of is the fact that systematic checkup of household fixtures, appliances, and equipment is quite as vital. And that there are two definite kinds of help being offered to appliance and equipment owners by the manufacturers of various household units.

Set Up Service Centers.

1. Many manufacturers of heating and plumbing equipment, and electrical and gas household appliances of all kinds, have developed, in spite of existing man power and material shortages, service centers from which their experts are working to help in the upkeep of these units. This means owners won't have to do their own tinkering on ailing machinery and that the repair on these units can still be left to trained experts. Such centers work thru various agencies; often these are dealers or distributors, local utilities or department stores.

2. The second type of help that manufacturers are offering is in the booklets, free for the asking in most cases, which are printed to inform appliance owners how to keep their equipment functioning well for the duration.

Many Booklets Offered.

There are booklets on the proper care of all types of electrical equipment, on ways to get the most out of your refrigerators, your ranges, your fuel, your heating system. Other booklets tell you how to check your wiring for war time use, give you hints on the maintenance of your washing machine and ironer, your vacuum and table appliances, and instruct you on care of your plumbing fixtures.

Even tho a heating system is topnotch, fuel is being wasted if heat seeps thru the roof or walls, and a valuable little booklet gives ways by which you can use one-third less fuel next winter. Another lists not less than 82 ways to prevent fuel waste and conserve for victory.

And very pertinent right now is a sane and sensible little booklet which has been approved by the office of civilian defense which suggests black-out and dim-out methods you can employ, using materials, shades, and drapes which you already have in your own home. The aim of these methods is to show you how to have adequate light inside your room while not allowing a single gleam to permeate the outdoors.

[We will be glad to give you a list of these free and helpful little booklets on receipt of a stamped, addressed envelope sent to this department.]

No admission will be charged for the concert which is open to the public. Marian Carlisle, soprano; Irene Priessman, contralto; Maxwell Wilson, tenor; and John Mcdonald, bass, have solo rôles. BLUE ISLAND HIGH WAR BOND DRIVE TOTALS $134,670

The first war bond drive at Blue Island Community High school rolled up the impressive total of $134,670.50, and instead of purchasing one jeep, students may credit their efforts with the purchase of 135 jeeps for Uncle Sam. A jeep band concert recently climaxed the drive. Sheldon C. Westman, head of the music department which sponsored the bond drive, was both concert director and campaign chairman. He was assisted by William Inman, president of the band; Grayce Stucker, president, senior girls' chorus, and Hilda Brawley, president, freshman chorus.

YOUTHFUL DOLL COLLECTOR HAS MANY VARIETIES

West Pullman Girl, 13, Tells of Hobby.

Carol Halverson, fifth grade student at West Pullman school, is a member of the National Doll Collectors' association and probably is its youngest Chicago member. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Halverson, 12120 Harvard avenue, has 451 dolls, one from almost every state in the union and many from abroad.

Carol has bought her dolls or received them as gifts. She has traveled with her family to Florida seven times, to Panama, to Hot Springs, Ark., and to northern Michigan and Wisconsin.

Wants Churchill Doll.

She is trying to get a miniature Winston Churchill, Carol said. Carol thinks the doll rabbi from Palestine in his black robes and carrying prayer book is a unique item, and another doll of which she is proud is the corn husk doll from an old mill in Gatlinburg, Tenn.

The mud face doll from Arizona represents an Indian superstition that man is made from clay and has no distinguishable features. A brush skirted novelty doll is the one fashioned from the long fibers of the California redwood tree. A Chicago friend dressed twin dolls for Carol to represent the Stroud twins, of radio, and "Thursday's Child" is a Storybook doll from another friend. Huckleberry Finn and Tom Sawyer also were gifts.

There is a New Orleans mammy, Mexican water carrier, a peasant, a Minnesota Indian, and a Czechoslovakian doll.

Musical Family.

Carol's family is attracted by her swing band, constructed of felt, for the Halverson family is musical. Norman, 20, who won a 1940 tuba contest and a scholarship to Coe college, Iowa, sees himself in the tuba player, while Howard, a Tilden Technical High school senior, is represented by the baritone horn player. Norman, who is with the army signal corps at the Burr school, plays a trumpet. Mrs. Halverson plays the piano.

Mr. Halverson, Carol says, paints oil portraits for a hobby and plays with the fife and drum corps of the Continental bank, while her mother is vice president for the third time of the Chicago High School council of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers.

St. Helena Party.

St. Helena's Woman's sodality will hold a card party Friday evening in St. Margaret's hall, 9835 Throop street, and proceeds will go to the building fund of St. Helena of the Cross church. Mrs. Henry T. Eland, 10151 Parnell avenue, is president.

Bettye Evans Weds

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Kennedy, Streator, announce the recent marriage of their daughter, Bettye Jeanne Evans, to Cedric E. Hoffman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cedric E. Hoffman, Kansas City, Mo. Mr. Hoffman is with the army air forces.

Longwood Mothers Club.

Freshmen and grade school mothers of the Longwood Mothers' club will sponsor a dessert bridge party Tuesday afternoon in the school gymnasium, Mrs. D. J. Carroll, president, announced.

SALUTE CHICAGO YOUTH THIS WEEK

STAR SENIORS TO WIN TRIBUNE HONORS AGAIN

Interviews, Photos to Be Published.

Outstanding Catholic and public high school seniors—selected by a vote of their classmates—again will be honored this year in the Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE. Photographs and interviews with the outstanding members of the graduating classes of the some 80 high schools in the city will be published in the Metropolitan section within the next six weeks.

Officials of both Catholic and public high schools have been informed of the plan to continue the custom of honoring the seniors and both the Rev. D. F. Cunningham, head of the diocesan school board, and Dr. William H. Johnson, city superintendent of schools, voiced their approval.

Faculty to Nominate.

Seniors will select the honor graduates of their class from a list nominated by faculty members of the various high schools. The first list of nominations to be published will be that of the Catholic high schools, which is to be completed by faculty members early this week. This list will appear in the Metropolitan sections next Sunday.

Interviews with the Catholic high school honor graduates and their photographs will be published June 6. Members of the senior classes of these schools will pick their representative by ballot within two weeks.

They'll Tell Ambitions.

Interviews with the seniors will outline the plans and ambitions of the students as well as give an indication of high school life as it is today.

Lists of honor students nominated by faculties of the public high schools also will be published June 6. The following week members of the public high school senior classes will elect their representatives from these lists.

Interviews and photographs of the public schools honor graduates will appear in the Metropolitan sections June 20. Accounts of the graduation exercises of both Catholic and public schools also will be printed.

Publish Graduates' Names.

The names of the graduates of Catholic and public high schools will be published in the Metropolitan sections, as has been the custom in the past years. The graduation lists of public high schools is scheduled for publication near the end of June. Lists of graduates of Catholic high schools—which do not all hold graduation exercises at the same time—will be published as soon as possible in the Metropolitan sections.

PVT. ARTHUR KELDER OF NORWOOD PARK IS A PRISONER OF JAPS

Pvt. Arthur H. Kelder of 6151 Newburg avenue, reported missing in action since May, 1942, is a prisoner of war interned in the Philippines, his parents were informed by the war department last week. It is believed that Pvt. Kelder was captured by the Japanese either at Corregidor or at Bataan.

Arthur H. Kelder.

Pvt. Kelder was among the first from Norwood Park to enter the services after the outbreak of war with Japan. He received his basic training at Camp Grant, and was later transferred to Hamilton field, California, where he was assigned to the medical department of the air corps.

The last letter received from Pvt. Kelder by his parents Mr. and Mrs. Herman P. Kelder, was post-marked Manila and was dated October, 1942. Before enlisting in the air corps Kelder had his own business in Park Ridge. He was graduated from Carl Schurz High school in 1935. His brother, Dr. Herman P. Kelder Jr. went last week to Great Lakes to serve as a lieutenant [j. g.] in the navy's dental corps.

Mrs. Leo Penkala and Kenneth.

Infant sons and daughters of fighting fathers smiled into Tribune cameras last week. They were long distance smiles destined to be reproduced on V-mail for swift delivery overseas to fathers who were fighting for the security of all American children at the time their own babies were born.

The babies and their mothers were among the second group of northwest side residents whose pictures were taken by a Tribune photographer as a special service for the benefit of fathers who were transferred overseas before the birth of their babies. THE TRIBUNE will print the pictures on V-mail stationery, thus putting the newest microfilm techniques at the disposal of the mothers, who will send the pictures on to their husbands.

Stories of Courage.

Behind each of the pictures there is a story of courage and patriotism. Typical of the mothers who are carrying on with a smile until their husbands return is Mrs. Roy Buckley of 5262 North La Crosse avenue. Last August, before her baby was born, she had expected that her husband would be able to come home on furlough for the event. As it happened, however, Sergt. Buckley, who is a radio operator in the army, sailed for England on Jane Marian's birthday.

Now he is stationed "somewhere in Africa" but Mrs. Buckley isn't going to let the fact that he is so far away deprive her husband of the pleasure of seeing little Jane grow up. Every month she takes moving pictures of the baby so that he will not miss any of the stages of her development.

Mother Is Nurse.

Small Peter Niziolek is one baby who is assured of the best possible care. This is because his mother, Mrs. Dorothy Niziolek of 3656 West Grand avenue, is a trained nurse. The baby's father, Seaman Peter Niziolek, who is stationed in North Africa, has never seen his month old son. Before enlisting in the navy Seaman Niziolek worked for a printing company. Mrs. Niziolek received her nurse's training at Cook County hospital and at the Garfield Park hospital, from which she was graduated.

Marine Sergt. Herman E. Larson embarked for the Solomons three months before his son William was born. The baby and its mother are now living with her parents at 5517 North Sawyer avenue. Sergt. Larson has been in the marine corps for eight years. Before his transfer overseas in June of last year he was stationed at New River, N. C.

Altho Sergt. Larson has not yet seen the baby's picture, his wife has kept him informed of the baby's progress thro frequent letters. Correspondence with her husband is one thing that has not yet been rationed for Mrs. Larson as she has received an average of three letters a week from him since he was stationed in the Solomons.

Mrs. Raymond Valentini and Illa-

Dedicate Honor Roll in Albany Park Today

PLAY EQUIPMENT CALLED A PRIME CONTEST FACTOR

Play equipment made by entrants will be given special consideration in this year's annual play yard contest sponsored by the Chicago Motor club as part of its accident prevention work. Officials of the Chicago public library and its branches are coöperating in the drive to provide safe off the street play space, and the libraries are distributing entry blanks for the 1943 contest.

Charles M. Hayes, president of the motor club, explained that an official entry blank is not necessary. A postcard listing the entrant's name, address, phone number, and the location of the play yard will suffice. The competition, which is open to any resident of Cook county, will be judged on the basis of the use made of the various play yards entered. Ingenuity and novelty will be given special credit.

Prizes for the contest, which will close Sept. 15, will include a lawn swing and a slide for each section of Cook county—south, southwest, west, northwest, and north—and a complete stunt gym for the grand prize for the entire county.

A card party and buffet dinner will be held this afternoon and evening at the Albany Park Masonic temple, 4660 North Kedzie avenue, by the Albany Park chapter of the American O. R. T. federation. Max Natkin is president of the chapter.

Walther League Play.

The Junior Walther league of Immanuel Lutheran church of Des Plaines will present a comedy next Sunday in the school auditorium. Included in the cast will be Edgar Meyer, Dolores Scheer, Clarence Grewe, and Howard Kehe.

Learn Hymns, Martial Airs at Great Lakes.

BY ANN FORD.

"Singing men are fighting men, and fighting men are singing men!" These are the words of Lt. Comm. H. F. Hanson, chaplain in charge of the 200 voice Great Lakes Naval Training station choir. History and the present war both prove him right.

Comm. Hanson.

Napoleon conquered Europe to the thunder of "La Marseillaise." At Waterloo, bagpipes were his undoing, when Wellington ordered his men to "play as you have never played before."

In this war "The Beer Barrel Polka" was the first song to sustain survivors of torpedoed ships as they bobbed in lifeboats for endless days awaiting rescue. According to Stanley Johnston, Chicago Tribune reporter on the scene, American sailors went down with the Lexington singing "The Old Rugged Cross."

Choir Trains 7,000.

At Great Lakes an extensive program is under way to spread music thru the fleet. Its nucleus is the Great Lakes choir. In the two and one-half years of the expanded program, inaugurated by Comm. Hanson, 7,000 sailors have been "graduated" from the choir. Sailing in all the ships of the navy, these boys are trained leaders of song.

"Hymns are the finest fighting songs in the world," Comm. Hanson avers. "And the ones which have proved most popular here at the Lakes are 'The Old Rugged Cross,' 'Were You There When They Crucified My Lord,' and 'Onward, Christian Soldiers.'"

He points out that singing is not confined to the choir. Every boot in training has an opportunity to "swing out" with the best of them in the frequent "Sing-Songs" held in each camp. On movie nights they gather early for the informal singfests. These are carefully planned by the choir staff to include familiar tunes—old and new.

Favorites of the boys are gay '90s songs, like "Daisy, Daisy," novelty tunes, like "Don't Sit Under the Apple Tree," and popular songs that are frankly sentimental. This 15 minute program never drags. Always it builds up to a stirring military climax. "Anchors Aweigh" is one of the best.

Opera Tenor Leads.

Members of the choir are selected from the incoming companies of recruits, with several choirs in training at all times. The average age of the boys is 18, and most have had no previous vocal training.

Choir companies enjoy no special privileges. Their military chores come first, then their choir duties. As one grinning seaman put it, never stopping his scrubbing on the barracks floor, "All this, and singing, too!"

The 200 men rehearse after hours, when training for the day is done. They work hard and fast, for oftentimes they learn as many as 24 numbers a month. On Sunday mornings divisions of the choir sing at as many as 52 church services in 9 to 15 different chapels on the station. Sunday noon finds them on the air in "The Great Lakes Choir" program over station WBBM. This is broadcast from Ross auditorium at the Lakes.

Friday evenings they join with the Great Lakes band, music, and entertainment departments to present "Meet Your Navy," fed from Ross auditorium to station WLS and the Blue network. "The Bluejacket Seabag" is a "Sing-Song" program heard Tuesday nights over station WBBM.

Parents Praise Choir.

Revelation of the worth of the singing program is found in the hundreds of letters from parents received by Chaplain Hanson. The majority report the glowing enthusiasm of their sons for everything "navy." This, they are convinced, is due in large part to the inspiration of singing in the Great Lakes choir.

Even more letters come from the boys themselves who have gone out with the fleet. They express appreciation and gratitude. They report they are "singing their way to victory."

The officer more responsible for the success of the program than any one else is Lt. Comm. Hanson, who works under Capt. Frank H. Lash, senior chaplain at Great Lakes. Hanson received his musical education at St. Olaf college, Northfield, Minn., where he was a member as well as student manager of the famous St. Olaf choir.

In his words, "The men of our navy are chanting a funeral dirge for the enemy."

Methodists to Hear Rabbi.

Rabbi S. Felix Mendelsohn of Temple Beth Israel will address the young people of the Albany Park Methodist church, Albany and Wilson avenues, at 6:45 o'clock this evening.

Arlington Heights Play.

The Arlington Heights OCD and Merle Guild post of the American Legion will present a comedy, "The Yanks Came Back," Friday evening in the high school auditorium.

The War as Fighters See It

Good Fishing.

From Corp. Albert W. Robuck, stationed on the Alcan highway in British Columbia, to his mother, Mrs. Franz Robuck, 1004 Clay street, La Porte, Ind. Twenty-one years old, he was graduated from La Porte High school and was planning college when war broke out. Shortly after he wrote this letter, he received 23 letters, after having received only one in 20 days.

I am the happiest boy in the continent tonight. I received my first letter in 20 days.

Corp. Robuck.

We had a late mail call and there were only two of us in the new bunch that got letters, our first. We would have mail call and all of us with high hopes would rush up only to return with broken hearts and another whole day to wait.

"They called off my name and I let out a yell that could be heard half way to——[130 miles away]. I think every boy in camp read my letter. It wasn't so much what it said, but what a letter looked like. We are hoping for more tomorrow.

"Last Thursday noon I received the fishing tackle. I thought the afternoon would never pass. Just before chow it started to rain, but like the answer to prayer, right after chow it stopped. I put the new line on my reel, got three other boys fixed up, and off we went.

First Fishing for Bane.

"Two of the boys stayed on the near side of the river while Bane and I went on the other side. Pvt. Bane is a tall skinny Irishman with big feet and red hair and quite a temper. Bane had never been fishing before so I had to do a quick job of showing him how it was done.

"It was about 10 minutes before I found where the fish hung out and then it started. It was the most fun I have ever had. In a couple of hours I had 20 fish. About every time the fly would hit the water a couple of grayling trout would 'hit it, but it seemed hard to hook them.

Bane Has Trouble.

"Bane let out a yell. He had caught his first fish. I thought I would die laughing. He was standing there dangling the poor fish in mid-air out over the water. I rapidly instructed him to bring the fish in, and none too soon either, for just as he did the fish flopped off on the rocks. Then the fun started. He was so excited he didn't know what to do. He was afraid to pick it up so he tried to step on it. Well, I came to the rescue and saved the fish and also Bane from falling into the water.

"When we finally went home the four of us had about 75 trout. We threw a party and fed half the camp. Boy, O boy, nothing ever tasted as good as that first fish after eating army chow for four months."

Returns from Panama.

From Corp. Clarence Brooks, stationed at Fort Knox, Kentucky, to his sister, Mrs. Thomas M. Parker, 1585 Ridge avenue, Evanston. Corp. Brooks also has served in Panama, going there a year ago after training at Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

"We were on the ocean seven days and nights, then spent an extra day on the boat at New York while they got a train ready for us. I enjoyed the trip very much tho the boat was very crowded. We got on a boat that stopped in Panama on its way back from New Guinea, loaded with casualties. Some were able to be up and around and they could really tell some tales of the fighting there.

"Those Japs must really be dirty fighters. The casualties said they were not taking any more prisoners there because the Japs torture our fellows to death. There were some fellows who had some close calls. One major in particular; he was nicked all the way down one side by over 20 machine gun bullets. The Japs are using wooden bullets, too, and when one of them hits a bone it just slivers thru the flesh.

"In Panama we were on the alert, so to speak, all the time. Anytime they thought they saw something coming we were called out, and each time, so far as we knew, it was the real thing."

A Flyer's Day.

"Today is my day off. It's the first one I've had outside of Christmas and New Year's [24 hours each] since Sept. 6, 1942.

"Work here is hard—we fly as often as weather permits and fill in extra time with Link training, school, and eating. My day starts at 7 o'clock in the morning and we fly till noon. Then we fly from 1 till dark, weather permitting.

"Usually in the morning we fly formation, and that is really work. It's no small job throwing a 50,000 pound airplane around the sky, knowing that if you relax for a second and slip 10 feet off course, you'll kill 20 men and ruin a cool million dollars' worth of Uncle Sam's finest fighting machines.

Finds It Exciting.

"It's exciting tho, requiring maximum coördination and effort, which cuts down on the work angle, and is really fun.

"In the afternoon, we go on a bombing and gunnery mission. We drop 10 to 12 100-pound bombs from 4,000 to 20,000 feet. Precision bombing requires the most exacting flying there is.

"After all our bombs are gone, we let down to within 200 or 300 feet of the ground for gunnery practice. The targets are replicas of Jap Zeros. As we bank slowly around the targets, the gunners cut loose with the machine guns. I'm really going to feel safe in combat with my gunners. They're good.

"Mom, you know how much I hated responsibility back home. I tried to be kind of self-sufficient in my own little way. Now, I have more responsibility than Solomon with his thousand wives. It requires just a little more work, and if done with a smile and the feeling that you'd be glad to do it, the work is more cheerful."

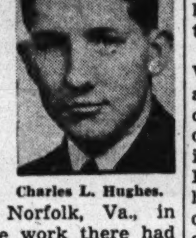
WAR WORK SAW RIPS BOY'S AIM AT NAVAL RANK

Loss of Hand Ends Three Years of Effort.

He was well on the way toward realization of his ambition—a naval commission — in January of this year, when his world blew up.



Charles L. Hughes.

He had joined the navy shortly after his 18th birthday three years before and thru study aboard ship had won appointment to the naval academy preparatory school in Norfolk, Va., in August, 1941. The work there had not been easy and he had spent as many as 14 hours a day with his books. A year later, however, he entered Annapolis, a midshipman who had worked his way up thru the ranks. Then, given the opportunity to receive his commission in shorter time in the naval air forces, he was accepted as a naval air cadet on Jan. 11, this year.

Worked While Waiting.

He was working at a war plant while waiting for his summons, when, two weeks later, a small piece of steel became lodged in the steel cutting saw he operated. He turned off the machine and carefully had moved his right hand in between its several parts when his foot caught on an automatic starter device. He quickly pulled back his arm, but it was too late. He had lost his hand.

A few seconds thus brought an end to years of planned progress toward the goal of Charles Lendall Hughes of 2147 Cleveland avenue. Naturally loss of his right hand has been a great blow. But Hughes has more than the usual amount of persistence and determination to succeed, having also had more than his fair share of misfortune.

The home in which he and his family lived in De Soto, Ill., was razed by a tornado that swept southern Illinois in March, 1925. His mother, who was holding his youngest brother in her arms, was killed when a barrel stave was driven thru her body by the force of the wind. The brother escaped when his mother's fall cushioned the shock for him. Another brother, however, was killed.

Sent to Children's Home.

Then he moved back to a home with his father in Nason, Ill., and a year later to a farm in Waltonville, Ill. He was graduated from the Waltonville High school in June, 1939. Dec. 5, that year—"a date" he "can't forget"—he entered the navy.

Now with his navy life behind him, Hughes has made a fresh start in life. He is working in the Edison Park sales office of a Wisconsin manufacturing company.

Hopes for Navy Job.

He hopes—even against hope, as he will admit—that the navy will recall him for the duration, to instruct new recruits.

With memories of Annapolis still crystal clear in his mind, he looks back upon his life there as association "with the best men in the world."

Becoming reconciled to his own limitations, however, he faces the future unafraid, saying simply, "There is nothing to which I have applied myself that—with concentrated effort—I couldn't learn."

REGISTER YOUTH OF PARK RIDGE IN WAR AID CORPS

3,000 from 8 to 18 Sign for Defense Duty.

BY AGNES AHERN.

Park Ridge young people, 3,000 strong, are mobilizing for service on the home front. Youths from 8 to 18 years are being registered for the Junior Service corps, a new organization designed to broaden the scope of defense activities that have already been undertaken by the boys and girls of the neighborhood and to integrate them into a more efficient working unit.

"Personal contacts with a representative cross section of children in the community revealed that large numbers of young people felt that they were not being given an adequate chance to make the special contributions which they felt capable of giving to the defense program. The Junior Service corps is an answer to that need," William E. North, director of youth activities in Park Ridge said in discussing plans for the new program.

Chance for All Children.

"There is no doubt that children can make a serious contribution to the war," he said. "On the home front we are fighting not only a war of production but a war of conservation and of salvage. To fulfill the demands of total war we must utilize all of our national resources including youth. Any child old enough to take the pledge of allegiance and grasp its meaning should not be denied the privilege of contributing his share to the final victory."

Boys and girls of Park Ridge already have shown they can perform highly essential duties in the fields of conservation and salvage. Under direction of Mrs. F. S. Hayles, chairman of the department of war relief, unity, and morale they have been participating since last October in a number of activities.

Using equipment purchased by the local OCD, students in Maine High school are now attending two classes weekly in home nursing. One of these courses has been made a part of the regular school curriculum. The other is a voluntary course with 50 girls enrolled.

Make Afghans for Veterans.

To help meet the demand for afghans for men in the veterans' hospitals another group of students from Maine High are working under direction of Mrs. C. A. Zeigler. All the afghans are made from salvaged yarns that have been unraveled from old sweaters, scarves, or discarded woolen clothing.

Members of the committee are making a special drive at the present time for worn out snow suits, knit dresses, and other garments that might otherwise be thrown away during spring housecleaning.

Children in the seventh and eighth grades also are plying their needles for defense by making pneumonia jackets for patients in the Edward Hines, the Children's Memorial, the Cook County, and the Women's and Children's hospitals. Another group, under direction of Mrs. John B. Duncan, makes baby quilts out of scraps left from the cutting of the pneumonia jackets.

Busy Making Dressings.

Still another committee, under the leadership of Mrs. Phillip Arnold, is making gauze dressings, cotton balls, bandages, and other materials helpful for war relief. The committee is subdivided into units which meet at community churches to carry on their work. The group which meets at St. Paul of the Cross church on the second and fourth Tuesdays of every month have already made 36 dozen gauze dressings and 2,250 cotton balls out of material which they themselves have supplied.

Another unit meeting at the Community church on the first and third Mondays of the month have contributed 1,500 cotton balls to the Red Cross. The group which meets bimonthly at the Methodist church has made eight dozen dressings and 288 cotton balls; while the St. Mary's unit have a record of 11 dozen dressings and 490 cotton balls to date.

New Units for Juniors.

The excellent work which already has been done by committees now in operation will be greatly amplified by the wider program planned for the Junior Service corps, Mr. North said.

Among the new units being planned is a department of consumer information, to be directed by Miss Helen Secreton. It is the purpose of this department to educate the young people of the community in phases of rationing, so they may understand why it is necessary in a war time economy and may buy rationed goods more intelligently.

Another new department being planned is that of protection services under which 300 junior block wardens will be enrolled. They will assist the senior wardens by acting as couriers or messengers in cases of emergency.

Junior salvage wardens, numbering about 300 in addition to the 300 block wardens, also are planned for each block. Their duties will include seeing that salvage material such as tin cans, newspapers, and other material are actually on the curb at times when the collection is made.

Under the new program there also will be a department of health and social service; a department of war bonds and stamp sales; a department of gardening and farm equipment; and a department of administration and personnel.

To round out the program of the Junior Service corps into a well balanced whole, a committee on recreation will help the children of Park Ridge to make the best possible use of such entertainment facilities as their own community offers. Under the leadership of Otto Hare, a sandlot softball program is being planned for the summer, as well as hikes, camping trips, and picnics. Such a schedule, community leaders believe, will draw the young people of the neighborhood into a closer unity, and will build morale by offering a wholesome recreational program that will help to offset the tensions of war.

For weeks Corp. Bernard Zur, formerly of 2525 North Drake avenue, had been drilling the 230 members of the combined choirs at Camp Robinson, Arkansas, on the music they were to sing Palm Sunday morning. INFANTS SMILE FOR FATHERS IN FIGHT OVERSEAS

Mae, who was born Feb. 26, are living with her husband's parents at 2500 Armitage avenue for the duration. Corp. Valentini, an aviation engineer, has been in the Australian theater of war since February. A graduate of Lane Technical High school, Corp. Valentini worked as a printer until he was called into the armed services in October, 1940. He was sent first to Camp Grant and was in New Mexico and California before going overseas.

Mrs. Valentini believes that the V-mail picture will be especially welcome to him because she has not been able to get word to her husband of the baby's birth.

Mrs. Ruth Wilke of 3350 West Pierce avenue is another young wife who is making her home with her parents until her husband returns from overseas. Four month old Chester Louis Jr. has not met his father, a sergeant in the army signal corps, who was sent to England four months before the baby's birth.

In Army Three Years.

Sergt. Wilke, who has been in the army for more than three years, attended Chase Grammar school and Lane Technical High school. He received his signal corps training in Providence, R. I., where his wife was able to join him for the 10 months he was stationed at that post. He visited Chicago last June before going abroad.

Irene Carolyn Niewierowski was 6 months old on April 21. The V-mail photo which will soon be flying across the Pacific is the first picture that her daddy, who has been overseas since February, 1942, has ever received of her. Irene's mother, Mrs. Raymond Niewierowski, is now living at 3428 North Rutherford avenue. Her husband is in the army medical corps.

Mrs. Frank Olesuk of 2027 North Hermitage avenue, mother of Frank Daniel, 7 months old, last Sunday received what was probably her most treasured Easter present. It was a letter, the first she had received from her husband in five months, telling her that he was safe in New Caledonia.

In Medical Corps.

Pvt. Olesuk, a member of the army medical corps, is a graduate of Tuley High school. Before his enlistment in October, 1940, he worked for the Economy Blueprint company. He received his basic army training in Camp Forrest, Tennessee, later spending several months in maneuvers in Louisiana, Alabama, the Carolinas, and other southern states.

Looks Like His Daddy.

Mrs. Leo Penkala, whose husband is a corporal technician in the army, has been living with his parents at 3052 North Monticello avenue since Corp. Penkala was sent overseas last September. Their baby, Kenneth Leo, who was born on Feb. 4 of this year, looks more like his daddy every day, Mrs. Penkala says.

Corp. Penkala is now serving in the South Pacific. He is a graduate of Kelvyn Park High school and left his trade as a printer to join the army last June. Before his enlistment Corp. Penkala was a sports enthusiast.

MANPOWER WILL BE WOMANPOWER RADIO MEN LEARN

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

If anybody says "man power" to a broadcaster arriving home from the war conference of the National Association of Broadcasters this week-end, he is likely to scream. Some stations have lost half of their male personnel, the industry as a whole, 26 per cent to the war. Not only did the broadcasters obtain few clews as to how they are going to replace their lost men, but they were informed over and over again that they will lose a lot more.

Lawrence A. Appley of the war man power commission told them that the army and navy will have to have 3,500,000 more men by the end of the year; war industries, 2,500,000. Chairman James Lawrence Fly of the FCC reiterated these figures.

Warning from Signal Corps.

Brig. Gen. F. E. Stoner of the United States signal corps warned the broadcasters they will have to give up more technicians for officer personnel; Lt. Comm. P. H. Winston of the selective service staff told them to get busy and train more older men and women. A representative of the British Broadcasting corporation told them the same thing, stating that BBC now has over 25 per cent feminine personnel.

"The only man in the country with man power to spare," observed one cynical broadcaster, "is James C. Petrillo." He was referring to Petrillo's claim that the recording and transcription industry had left his union filled with unemployed musicians.

Deny Petrillo's Story.

The broadcasters, however, brought forth a report purporting to show that only one-third of his union members are musicians and that the rest represent some 250 other professions.

The equipment problem, too, is crucial. A few broadcasters found much needed spare parts among their friends at the conference. Representatives of the WPB reminded the broadcasters that no radio station had yet gone off the air because of lack of equipment and it was promised that this would not happen. Broadcasters, however, were inclined to credit their own resourcefulness in the past and to rely on it in the future in order to stay in business.

HORACE MANN HIGH SCHOOL ON CITIZENS HOUR

The Horace Mann High school of Gary, Ind., will be saluted on the "Citizens of Tomorrow" program to be broadcast on W-G-N today from 1 to 1:30 p. m. The program will be the 99th in this series of broadcasts which started in the spring of 1940.

J. Lloyd Trump, principal, will speak on war time activities at Horace Mann. He will be introduced by Philip Maxwell, a member of the editorial staff of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

The school's choir, directed by Miss Eulah Winter, will sing "Good Night Thou Glorious Sun," by Henry Smart, and "To Thee O Country," by Eichberg.

Two more names will be added to the honor roll. The students are Evan Hultman, 17, of the East Waterloo, Ia., High school, and Donald Griffith Brown, 17, of the Horace Mann school. Brown will be interviewed during the program.

'Prohibition for Duration' to Be Subject of Forum

The topic, "Prohibition for the Duration," will be debated on the American Forum of the Air from 7 to 7:45 tonight over W-G-N, W59C, and Mutual. The speakers for the affirmative will be Representatives Joseph R. Bryson of South Carolina and Edward H. Rees of Kansas. Representatives Emanuel Celler of New York and James P. McGranery of Pennsylvania will speak in opposition. Theodore Granik will act as moderator.

How to guard your Weight and Energy during food rationing

From all information we have been able to gather, America will probably eat more starchy, fattening foods this year than ever before. That's why, now, more than ever, you must guard your weight to avoid putting on pounds of ugly fat. And here's probably the easiest way to do this you ever read about. Simply mix ¾ glass* of Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ glass* of water. Drink before meals and at bedtime, and this remarkable action follows. First, you have less desire to eat starchy, fattening foods. Thus, you cut caloric intake without having to suffer a hungry moment. Second, the natural dextrose in Welch's is quickly consumed. This regime not only aids nature in consuming excess fat, but increases energy at the same time. You lose fat naturally; look and feel better. Don't take chances on gaining weight during food rationing. Get genuine Welch's Grape Juice today, and follow this verified way to lose weight. The Welch Grape Juice Company, Westfield, N.Y. *8 oz. glass.

How to Save Ration Points

Welch's Grape Juice is richer in energy value than the 4 leading fruit juices. It is so rich it can be diluted with ⅓ water and still taste delicious. When served this way, it takes less ration points than any of 4 leading fruit or vegetable juices. Serve Welch's regularly and save ration points.

DESCRIBES HOW TO GROW YOUR OWN POTATOES

BY BEN MARKLAND.

Thousands of middle western gardeners who have concentrated their energies on the common backyard vegetables are branching out into potato culture this season. Not only are gardeners tending larger plots this year, thus giving them the necessary space for potatoes, but short supplies on grocery racks are causing housewives to prod their gardening spouses into raising potatoes for table use and winter storage.

Potatoes are most receptive to sandy loam soils with sharp drainage, but it is possible to grow this crop in almost any middle western area by artificially creating the drainage which is the key to a good yield.

Two Varieties Popular.

Two of the most popular varieties for northern Illinois are early Ohio, a red variety, and Rural New Yorker, an excellent main crop white variety. Both types can be planted now.

One of the most common questions about potato culture is that of treating the seed stock before planting to prevent scab disease. This usually is not necessary if the seed stock comes from the northern potato states, such as Michigan, Minnesota, and Maine. Neither is it necessary if the seed stock is to be planted on ground where potatoes have not previously been grown.

If scab disease has been encountered in your plot in previous years, there are several commercially made products used for treating the seed stock, most of which have bichloride of mercury or formaldehyde as the active agents. It also is easy to make a seed-treating solution by mixing one ounce of bichloride of mercury to eight gallons of water. The seed potatoes should be soaked in such a solution in a wooden barrel for four hours.

Use Small Seed Stock.

Another common question on potato culture is that of dissecting the seed stock before planting. On perfect potato ground the practice is to cut the seed potatoes into four to six section, with one "eye" in each section to be planted. Most inexperienced gardeners, particularly in Illinois, will have better success by utilizing small seed stock and planting them whole or cutting in half.

The gardener of the sample plots on the Tribune's Wheaton farm used small seed stock of the Rural New Yorker variety last season. His seed potatoes were about the size of an egg and were planted whole, and his return was 16 times the amount of seed planted. An assistant gardener used the same seed on the same type of soil and cut his seed potatoes in half before planting. His return was only 10 times the amount of seed planted.

Potato rows should be three feet apart, and plants in the row should be 14 to 16 inches apart. If the soil is mellow and well drained the seed stock may be planted to a depth of six inches, but in most areas of northern Illinois four inches is a better depth.

When to Start Drainage.

The artificial drainage so necessary in potato culture should be started when the plants are six inches above the ground. At this point the "hilling" of the stalks is started by hoeing soil over four inches of this six inch stalk. When the plants are 10 to 12 inches tall a second hilling is made, with soil again being hoed up to within two to three inches of the plant crest. By this type of culture the potatoes develop in hills 8 to 10 inches above ground level.

The major insert enemies of the potato are the potato bug and the leaf hopper. A mixture of 10 tablespoonfuls of arsenate of lead, the same amount of bordeaux mixture, and four gallons of water will eliminate both of these pests. It is advisable to use this spray mixture after very heavy rain.

After the potatoes are dug in the late summer or early fall they should be stored in a cool garage or shed and covered with straw. When freezing weather arrives they should be transferred to a dry basement storage place where the temperature will be between 35 and 42 degrees. Stored potatoes will not withstand freezing.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, May 3.

The early sown crops should be well along by this time, altho it is too early for tender plants because of the danger from frost. Cultivate the garden as soon as the young plants show above ground; hoe to kill weeds and to conserve moisture.

Complete all garden operations on time. Weeds grow rapidly, but if kept under control there is little danger of them depleting the soil of food and moisture that the vegetables demand. Hand weed in the rows and thin at the same time.

Tuesday, May 4.

All preparations should be made to combat insect pests as soon as they appear. One of the most harmful pests is the cutworm; it will eat the plant close to the ground or higher up, causing the plant to fall over or to be seriously injured.

They are active at night, which is demonstrated when the ground surrounding the plants is raked, the worms being brought into view. Placing a cylinder of heavy cardboard around the base of the plants will prevent the worms from getting near the stems, but control is best effected by scattering poison bait near the plants.

Wednesday, May 5.

Plant pansies, but select the short, compact, stocky plants. Keep the withered flowers removed or seed will form and the plants will cease flowering.

Well grown cannas, with their tropical foliage and large flowers, do well under city conditions, but they require abundant water and a rich soil. Buy started plants, for it takes a long time for the plants to start outdoors from the roots. Plant after all danger from frost is passed.

Thursday, May 6.

An effective method to kill weeds is to use the back of the rake to knock over the weeds when they are no more than an inch high. Sufficient soil is loosened to cover them.

This may be done rapidly and does away with waiting until the weeds are 6 inches or more high, necessitating hoeing to cut them down.

Friday, May 7.

Sow a little radish seed with slow germinating vegetables, such as beets, carrots, parsnips, and parsley, for the radish seed germinates quickly, maring the rows which can be cultivated immediately they are distinguishable.

To enjoy the finest lettuce, growth should be rapid and continuous, which means that plenty of moisture is applied, with an abundance of nitrogen. Rows may be 12 to 24 inches apart.

Saturday, May 8.

Ants in the lawn may be destroyed by poking a hole in the colony with a stick and dropping a little carbon bisulphide into it. Plug the hole with mud.

Fruit trees should be sprayed before the blossoms fall as a protection against attacks from codling moths and similar pests. Spray calendars should be followed so good fruit will be enjoyed. Arsenate of lead may be used as a spray against the attacks of currant worms, but use rotenone or pyrethrum after fruit forms.

MAINTAIN YOUR APPLIANCES AT TOP EFFICIENCY

Makers Offer Two Kinds of Help to Owners.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Home owners who are making a systematic checkup of their houses this spring know they must start with the foundations, include the inside and outside walls, basements, windows, attics, roofs, rafters, and beams. Semi-annual repairs made while leaks and sprains are still minor save money by elimination of major, costly repair jobs.

What all home owners and apartment dwellers are not so aware of is the fact that systematic checkup of household fixtures, appliances, and equipment is quite as vital. And that there are two definite kinds of help being offered to appliance and equipment owners by the manufacturers of various household units.

Set Up Service Centers.

1. Many manufacturers of heating and plumbing equipment, and electrical and gas household appliances of all kinds, have developed, in spite of existing man power and material shortages, service centers from which their experts are working to help in the upkeep of these units. This means owners won't have to do their own tinkering on ailing machinery and that the repair on these units can still be left to trained experts. Such centers work thru various agencies; often these are dealers or distributors, local utilities or department stores.

2. The second type of help that manufacturers are offering is in the booklets, free for the asking in most cases, which are printed to inform appliance owners how to keep their equipment functioning well for the duration.

Many Booklets Offered.

There are booklets on the proper care of all types of electrical equipment, on ways to get the most out of your refrigerators, your ranges, your fuel, your heating system. Other booklets tell you how to check your wiring for war time use, give you hints on the maintenance of your washing machine and ironer, your vacuum and table appliances, and instruct you on care of your plumbing fixtures.

Even tho a heating system is topnotch, fuel is being wasted if heat seeps thru the roof or walls, and a valuable little booklet gives ways by which you can use one-third less fuel next winter. Another lists not less than 82 ways to prevent fuel waste and conserve for victory.

And very pertinent right now is a sane and sensible little booklet which has been approved by the office of civilian defense which suggests black-out and dim-out methods you can employ, using materials, shades, and drapes which you already have in your own home. The aim of these methods is to show you how to have adequate light inside your room while not allowing a single gleam to permeate the outdoors.

[We will be glad to give you a list of these free and helpful little booklets on receipt of a stamped, addressed envelope sent to this department.]

A war story, "Starlight Interlude" will be presented from 8 to 9 p. m. next Saturday on W-G-N, W59C, and Mutual's Chicago Theater of the Air. Marion Claire, soprano, and Thomas L. Thomas, baritone, will be co-starred.

"Starlight Interlude" will tell by drama and music the thoughts of a young soldier as he lies in a shell hole on a far east battlefield. Looking around him the soldier can see only stars and he wonders what it would be like if he could play music on them. Then, in fantasy, with Mr. Thomas handling the musical rôle and supported by Henry Weber and the W-G-N Symphony orchestra, the soldier sings to accompaniment by the stars.

Soon across no-man's land crawls an army nurse who joins him in song. Miss Claire will sing the rôle of the nurse. The dramatic rôle of the soldier, Tom Blake, will be played by Marvin Mueller while Laurette Fillbrandt will be cast as Diana Llewellyn, the nurse.

Soldiers nearby hear the singing. After the battle has died down they visit the shell hole and there they see a soldier and a nurse who have both been dead many hours.

Red Cross Drama.

Miriam Hopkins, screen actress, will appear on the Red Cross show, That They Might Live, at 11:30 a. m. today over WMAQ-NBC. She will be heard in a script written by Kenneth White.

NORTHWEST SIDE BLOCK IS PROUD OF PART IN WAR

Bond Selling, Collection of Fats Boosted.

Sale of more than $100,000 worth of war bonds, organization of a first aid unit, and the reclamation of an average of 30 pounds of fats and greases a month are accomplishments boasted by one northwest side block. The block—No. 6, zone 39 of division 5—is bounded by Cullom and Berteau avenues, Albany avenue and Troy street. It is in the Irving Park community.

John E. Moberly is captain of the block and has supervised the organization. Block headquarters are maintained in the basement at 4225 North Troy street where regular office hours are held from 7:30 to 10 o'clock Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings. All equipment and supplies are kept at headquarters and residents are encouraged to visit the post.

Mrs. Blanche Moberly, wife of the block leader, is block service lieutenant. She completed the treasury department course and is accredited bond salesman. It is thru her efforts that the large bond sale was made.

System of Fat Collection.

Mrs. Moberly also developed the system of collecting grease and fats. Salvage Warden William Thurnes handles the collection of metals and rubber in the block. Waste paper collection is maintained on a permanent basis.

An advanced Red Cross first aid class was first conducted in the block office. After the completion of the course by residents of the block a permanent first aid unit was formed. This unit meets once a month to review and extend the knowledge of first aid. Mrs. Mary Davidson is secretary.

Mrs. Fern Thorstenson, consumer information warden, plans a series of meetings on information concerning point rationing. In preparing for her duties she attended lectures on point rationing, completed the Red Cross nutrition course, and the Red Cross home nursing course.

Planning Block Garden.

Another phase of the activities of this block is the service men's club which has as its objective maintenance of contact with the 26 men in military service from the block. Mrs. Anna Woolsey is president; Mrs. Helen Waldbilling, secretary, and Mrs. Anna Meyer, treasurer. Funds obtained at a recent benefit will be used to send Easter gifts to the service men.

Residents of the block also recently held a practice blackout. All lights were extinguished in four minutes. Air raid wardens are: Leon Bunch, Alf Anderson, Francis Brady, and Oscar Shaffer. Fire watchers are: John Garlin, Joseph Navin, and Charles Thorstenson.

PLAN JUBILEE FOR SISTERS OF CHARITY MAY 10

Party Marks Diamond Year of Order.

A diamond jubilee party for the Sisters of Charity, B. V. M., will be held at 8 o'clock Monday evening, May 10, in the Morrison hotel. Miss Margaret O'Connor, 6726 Glenwood avenue, the general chairman of arrangements, will be assisted by Mrs. Charles Thiery, 4729 North Paulina street, north side chairman; Mrs. Leo Conlon, 7914 Vernon avenue, south side chairman, and Mrs. Blanche O'Brien, 900 North Leclaire avenue, west side chairman. General chairman of publicity is Mrs. Lloyd W. Miles, 4524 North Meade avenue.

In 1867, at the invitation of the Rev. Arnold Damen, S. J., pastor of Holy Family parish, a group of nine sisters of the Blessed Virgin Mary came from Dubuque, Ia., to open two schools in Chicago. As the need for high school education increased, both St. Aloysius and St. Stanislaus, later Sacred Heart, offered high school subjects.

Began in Ireland.

This community, generally called the B. V. M.'s, sprang from humble beginnings in Dublin, Ireland, in 1831. Under the leadership of Mary Frances Clarke, the sisters began preparations for the religious life and at the same time conducted a school. Two years later they came to Philadelphia to continue the work of Catholic education. Here they became acquainted with the Rev. T. J. Donaghoe, who had such faith in the ability and destiny of these women that he devoted his life to the direction of the community.

It was by observing the work of the sisters in the schools of this diocese that Father Damen perceived the special fitness of the new community for teaching in the American parochial school system, which he hoped to build in Chicago. The work of the sisters not only fostered an active zeal among Catholics but also inspired hundreds of girls to enter the community. At present there are about 400 B. V. M.'s teaching in 27 parochial schools, four high schools, and one college in Chicago.

List of Schools.

The parochial schools in which the sisters teach include: Holy Name Cathedral school, 747 North State street; St. Agatha's, 3143 Douglas boulevard; Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary, 1747 Wabansia avenue; Blessed Sacrament, 2138 Central Park avenue; St. Bridget's, 2954 Archer avenue; St. Callistus, 2185 De Kalb street.

St. Charles Borromeo's, 1100 South Hoyne avenue; St. Cornelius, 5252 North Long avenue; St. Dominic, 819 Sedgwick avenue; St. Dorothy, 7735 Vernon avenue; St. Ferdinand, 3100 North Mason avenue; St. Gertrude's, 6214 Glenwood avenue; Holy Cross, 6535 Maryland avenue; Holy Family, 1019 South May street; St. Jerome's, 1700 Morse avenue; Our Lady of the Angels, 859 North Avers avenue; Our Lady Help of Christians, 851 North Leamington avenue; Our Lady of Lourdes, 4637 North Ashland avenue.

St. Pius Is Included.

St. Pius, 1919 South Ashland avenue; Presentation, 734 South Springfield avenue; Sacred Heart, 832 West 18th street; St. Tarcissus, 5738 North Meade avenue; St. Thomas of Canterbury, 4809 Kenmore avenue; St. Vincent De Paul, 2135 Kenmore avenue; St. Odilo, 2306 East avenue, Berwyn; Mary, Queen of Heaven, 5314 West 24th place, Cicero; St. Eulalia, 1824 South 8th avenue, Maywood.

The four high schools include two co-educational parochial schools, Mundelein Cathedral High school and Sacred Heart High school, and two high schools for girls, St. Mary's, opened in 1899, and the Immaculata, 640 Irving Park road, which opened in 1921. In 1930 Mundelein college, the first Catholic college for women on the north side, was opened at 6363 Sheridan road.

Westfield Manor Group to Hold War Garden Rally

A community meeting on war gardens will be sponsored by the Westfield Manor Improvement association at 5945 Belmont avenue at 8:30 o'clock Friday evening. Rudolph J. Mohr, horticultural specialist in the war garden department of the OCD, will speak. Arvid A. Larson, 6042 Nelson street, zone captain, is program chairman.

Designs WAAC Murals

Second Officer Lorraine R. Marshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Marshall, 1436 North Lotus avenue, has designed and executed the murals for Service club No. 1 at the WAAC training center in Fort Des Moines, Iowa.

WAAC ARTISTS PAINT MURAL OF WOMAN'S ARMY

Picture Functions of Auxiliary Corps.

Against the panoramic background of the varied activities of the women's army auxiliary corps, two young women soldier artists perch on scaffolding, busy with oils and brushes. They are completing a mural which depicts the work of the first women's army of the United States.

The theme of the 20x40 foot mural is shown in the central figures of a WAAC handing a gun to a soldier, symbolizing the function of the organization, to train women to release men for combat by assuming non-combatant war jobs. Scenes surrounding the central figures portray various occupations whereby women are fulfilling this purpose.

Second Officer Marshall designed the wall mural and drew the original plan to scale. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Marshall, 1436 North Lotus avenue; earned her degree in fine arts at the University of Illinois; and later studied at the American Academy of Fine Arts, the Art Institute, Chicago Academy of Fine Arts, and at night school of Northwestern university. Before she enrolled in the first officer candidate class of the WAAC last July 20, she did free lance work for the Emmett J. Newman Art studio, and advertising work for Chicago department stores.

She has won the title of "official soldier artist of the WAAC" for she designed the first WAAC recruiting posters, a series of WAAC Christmas cards, and a WAAC calendar. She is the art and educational officer of special services at Fort Des Moines. This work includes the planning of art, current events, and Red Cross courses, and editing the weekly WAAC news bulletin.

PARK RIDGE MAN TO TAKE PART IN SAFETY PARLEY

Oliver E. Mount of Park Ridge is one of the officials of the Greater Chicago Safety council under whose auspices the 21st annual Midwest Safety conference will be held at the Sherman hotel on May 4, 5, and 6.

More than 3,000 delegates are expected to attend the conference which will stress the conservation of man power for war power thru the observance of safety rules in homes, in industry, and on the streets and highways.

"I got the job!"

"The boss found out I was studying in my spare time!"

These are the days of opportunity for trained men. If you are not in the position to cash in on the offers of big pay, a short course of training can qualify you. For offers of schools teaching subjects which can help you get ahead, read the Instruction and Trade Schools columns in the Tribune want ad section today.

OLDER MEN CAN HELP!

Can you go to work? Age no longer is a barrier to employment. Your services are badly needed in stores, shops, factories, offices and other establishments. To find the largest number of offers of jobs you can do, consult the Tribune, which prints far more Help Wanted and Employment want advertising than all other Chicago newspapers combined.

"Bring the gang!"

"My new room is large enough for everybody!"

Are your present quarters too small or lacking in accommodations? It will be worth your while to consult the offers of rooms, furnished apartments, hotel rooms and apartments and housekeeping rooms in the Tribune want ad section. Regardless of the location you prefer or the rent you want to pay, you can be practically certain of finding what you want in the Tribune's selection of attractive places to live.

"MY NEW HOUSE WAS A BARGAIN!"

"It sure pays to read the real estate want ads in the Tribune."

No matter what type of home you want to buy, the location you prefer, or the price you want to pay, you will be far more certain of finding what you want thru the real estate want ads in the Tribune. The selection in the Tribune is larger because the Tribune prints more real estate want advertising than any two other Chicago newspapers combined.

Because advertisers get better results from their want ads in the Tribune they place more want advertising in the Tribune than they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

MAY 2, 1943.

SALUTE CHICAGO YOUTH THIS WEEK

STAR SENIORS TO WIN TRIBUNE HONORS AGAIN

Interviews, Photos to Be Published.

Outstanding Catholic and public high school seniors—selected by a vote of their classmates—again will be honored this year in the Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE. Photographs and interviews with the outstanding members of the graduating classes of the some 80 high schools in the city will be published in the Metropolitan section within the next six weeks.

Officials of both Catholic and public high schools have been informed of the plan to continue the custom of honoring the seniors and both the Rev. D. F. Cunningham, head of the diocesan school board, and Dr. William H. Johnson, city superintendent of schools, voiced their approval.

Faculty to Nominate.

Seniors will select the honor graduates of their class from a list nominated by faculty members of the various high schools. The first list of nominations to be published will be that of the Catholic high schools, which is to be completed by faculty members early this week. This list will appear in the Metropolitan sections next Sunday.

Interviews with the Catholic high school honor graduates and their photographs will be published June 6. Members of the senior classes of these schools will pick their representative by ballot within two weeks.

They'll Tell Ambitions.

Interviews with the seniors will outline the plans and ambitions of the students as well as give an indication of high school life as it is today.

Lists of honor students nominated by faculties of the public high schools also will be published June 6. The following week members of the public high school senior classes will elect their representatives from these lists.

Interviews and photographs of the public schools honor graduates will appear in the Metropolitan sections June 20. Accounts of the graduation exercises of both Catholic and public schools also will be printed.

Publish Graduates' Names.

The names of the graduates of Catholic and public high schools will be published in the Metropolitan sections, as has been the custom in the past years. The graduation lists of public high schools is scheduled for publication near the end of June. Lists of graduates of Catholic high schools—which do not all hold graduation exercises at the same time—will be published as soon as possible in the Metropolitan sections.

PLAY EQUIPMENT CALLED A PRIME CONTEST FACTOR

Play equipment made by entrants will be given special consideration in this year's annual play yard contest sponsored by the Chicago Motor club as part of its accident prevention work. Officials of the Chicago public library and its branches are coöperating in the drive to provide safe off the street play space, and the libraries are distributing entry blanks for the 1943 contest.

Charles M. Hayes, president of the motor club, explained that an official entry blank is not necessary. A postcard listing the entrant's name, address, phone number, and the location of the play yard will suffice. The competition, which is open to any resident of Cook county, will be judged on the basis of the use made of the various play yards entered. Ingenuity and novelty will be given special credit.

Prizes for the contest, which will close Sept. 15, will include a lawn swing and a slide for each section of Cook county—south, southwest, west, northwest, and north—and a complete stunt gym for the grand prize for the entire county.

7 WEST SIDERS IN PACIFIC ZONE SEND GREETINGS

Altho they come a week late, seven American service men now stationed in the South and Southwest Pacific have sent Easter greetings to their west side friends and families thru Robert Cromie, Tribune war correspondent. Those extending greetings to the folks back home thru the pages of THE TRIBUNE are Lt. E. R. Erehardt, 3211 Lake street; Staff Sergt. Philip E. Holmgren, 754 North Cicero avenue; Pvt. Milton Kukac, 2540 South Drake avenue; Lt. Herbert Green of Elgin; Sergt. H. W. Gahant of Aurora, Joseph H. Alentine Horejs of Cicero, Le Roy W. Hazel of Cicero, and J. P. Lanigan, 5645 Washington boulevard.

St. Mel Club.

The Fathers and Friends club of St. Mel High school, Kildare avenue and Madison street, will sponsor its annual Military night Tuesday in the gymnasium of the freshman building.

Mrs. G. C. Ternand and Sue Ellen.

Mrs. P. R. Griffith and Carolyn Jane and Richard Paul.

Mrs. Robert L. Dahme and Michael.

Mrs. Louis M. Zimlich and Carol Michael.

Mrs. Thomas W. Abbott and Jacqueline Claire.

Mrs. W. R. Blizek and William Jr.

Eight more west side dads now serving with the army and navy overseas will receive their first glimpses of new sons and daughters by V-mail photographs. Pictures of the mothers and their babies, born since their fathers left the country, are being taken by the metropolitan section of The Sunday Tribune. They will be printed on V-mail and sent to the mothers to be forwarded to the anxious dads.

Mrs. Martin A. Hoffman and Martin Jr.

Mrs. James C. Wickbom and Donna Jeanne.

It Will Be Dad's Day When Fighters Get Baby V-Photos

With Dad's day still a month and a half away, it will be an early celebration for many army and navy fathers in distant parts of the world when they receive pictures of their new sons and daughters, born since they were sent overseas.

For all, it will be their first glimpse of their offspring. Pictures of the babies and their mothers are being taken by Tribune photographers to be printed on V-mail stationery. These will be sent to the mothers who may forward them to their husbands.

Double Thrill—Twins.

Capt. P. R. Griffith of North Africa will get a double thrill when he receives V-mail pictures of his 5½ week old twins, Richard Paul and Carolyn Jane Griffith. Capt. Griffith formerly was with the medical staff at Berwyn and St. Luke's hospitals and has been overseas four months. Mrs. Griffith is living with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. O. McCoy of Berwyn.

It was a year ago last month that Sergt. Martin A. Hoffman left the country and his son, Martin Jr., is now 4 months old. Sergt. Hoffman and his wife were married at Fort Lewis, Washington, where they lived until he left for New Guinea. Mrs. Hoffman and the baby are now making their home with the baby's grandmother, Mrs. R. A. Murphy of River Forest.

Pvt. W. R. Blizek has a real field day in store for him. A few weeks after getting his V-mail picture of 5 month old William Richard Jr., Pvt. Blizek expects to see his son in person. The anxious father has been stationed in New Caledonia and just last week learned he was being sent back to the United States for officers' training. Mrs. Blizek is living in Berwyn.

First from Oak Park.

Maj. Thomas W. Abbott, who left early last July for work with the army signal corps in England, will more than welcome a picture of his 6 month old daughter, Jacqueline Claire. Maj. Abbott was the first reserve officer in Oak Park to be called to duty in August, 1940. Until he was sent overseas he and his wife lived in Washington, D. C., where he was attached to the office of secretary of war. Mrs. Abbott and the baby are living with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Bell of Oak Park.

Capt. Louis M. Zimlich went from college into war and has been overseas since last June. He is stationed in Africa with the army air force. His baby, Carol Michael, was born last September. Mrs. Zimlich, who is living with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawson Talbert of Oak Park, met her husband at the University of Louisville [Kentucky].

WAR VETERAN'S FIVE SONS FIGHT; ONE LOSES LIFE

Wright Has Defense Job, Rank in Militia.

With four sons in service and another killed in action, the war time contribution of Mr. and Mrs. Clark E. Wright, of Manteno and Chicago, is unique among Illinois families. Lt. Col. William C. Wright is the family member killed in Guadalcanal action. He leaves the widow and three sons living in Iowa.

The father of the five fighting Wrights—who served as a sergeant with the army engineers in the last war—is again in uniform as a supply sergeant in Company A of the 2d regiment, Illinois reserve militia. Most of the time he spends as a war worker in the McCormick works of the International Harvester company of Chicago.

At their home on Locust street in Manteno, Mrs. Wright has operated what she calls a "branch U. S. O." for boys on week-end leaves from Chanute field. Gas rationing has cut short this volunteer work, however. Katherine, their 18 year old daughter who will be graduated from the Manteno High school, took highest honors in the recent OCD first aid course given at the school.

First of the five Wright boys to join the army was Lt. Col. Wright, who was 34 years old when he was killed last December. Col. Wright joined the R. O. T. C. unit when he entered North Dakota university at the age of 16. After graduating, he came to Chicago in 1928 and was employed until 1941 at the Cicero plant of Western Electric company, as an instructor of machine operators. He was commander of an Illinois National Guard company when the unit was inducted into army service.

He lived with his parents in Berwyn until he married in 1933, when he and his wife, Margaret, made their home in Oak Park.

Last August, when his unit was transferred to the South Pacific, Col. Wright, then a major, was made plans and training officer of a battalion, consisting of four companies.

In December, the Chicago group relieved the marines at Guadalcanal, and he was given command of the entire battalion with the rank of lieutenant colonel.

Tribune Man Tells Story.

Robert Cromie, Tribune war correspondent in the South Pacific area, described the action in a dispatch dated Jan. 5 [printed Jan. 19] from Guadalcanal Island, as follows:

"Finally, all was in readiness and the push began the night of Dec. 18. The following morning, while heroically leading a patrol, a high officer [Col. Wright] of one outfit was slain, and one other man was slain and two wounded. Two others were wounded trying to recover the dead. . . . All finally were brought out by a group of 12 volunteers, led by Capt. Martin W. Kynett, of Chicago, and a Florida officer. Both officers were decorated with the silver star in the field by Maj. Gen. Alexander Patch."

Two Brothers There.

The Chicago regiment has erected a cement monument to Col. Wright, and named a road on Guadalcanal "Wright road" in his honor.

Col. Wright has been awarded the purple heart posthumously. His widow and their three sons received the award.

Youngest Was Bugler.

Capt. Howard C. Wright was employed at the McCormick works from 1934 to 1941, becoming an all-round instructor. Sergt. Don Wright, youngest of the five, was a bugler in his brothers' militia company while still a student at Oak Park High school. He was graduated from the school in 1937.

The fourth Wright boy in the army, Francis, is carrying on the work he started while at the McCormick works. He began as an assistant foreman in 1928, later was assistant safety inspector. He was made safety inspector of the entire plant before entering the army last December. He also taught safety practices at Lewis institute and Harrison High school in government defense courses.

Holds Wisconsin Post.

Now a lieutenant, he is army safety officer of Wisconsin's defense plants.

Altho none of the boys had ever been across the Pacific ocean before the war, Mrs. Wright, their mother, was born in Peking, China, the daughter of a medical missionary. Her father, Dr. William Curtis, was physician for the American and British embassies.

Stays in Chicago.

During weekdays Mrs. Wright and her daughter, Katherine, keep up their home in Manteno, while Mr. Wright stays in Chicago in order to back up his fighting sons by working in the McCormick plant. He commutes to Manteno over the week-ends.

On learning of the Wrights' war record, Maj. Gen. Roy D. Keehn, formerly commander of the Illinois National Guard, wrote their parents: "This is a proud and significant record, probably not equaled by any other family in Illinois."

Proud Father, Himself in Reserves, Has 4 Sons on Active Duty, One Slain

Clark E. Wright (right), sergeant in the Illinois reserve militia, is said to be the only man in the militia with four sons in the army and navy. A fifth, Lt. Col William C. Wright, has been killed in action on Guadalcanal. The late Lt. Col. Wright is shown here at left with two of his brothers—still on duty in the South Pacific—Capt. Howard C. and Staff Sergt. Donald M. Wright.

Clark E. Wright, father of the five sons, all in the services, at his machine in the Harvester company McCormick works. He also is a sergeant in the Illinois reserve militia.

Lt. Col. William C. Wright, oldest of the five Wright boys in the service, was killed in action in the South Pacific.

Like Christmas.

It will be about like Christmas again to Pvt. James C. Wickbom of North Africa when he receives his picture of 5 month old Donna Jean and Mrs. Wickbom of Oak Park, for it was Christmas day that he first heard about the baby's birth. Pvt. Wickbom is a radio operator with the army air corps. His wife and baby are living with her mother, Mrs. Lola Spencer.

CANS HELP WIN WAR, MAYWOOD EXHIBIT SHOWS

Plant Workers See What They're Doing.

An exhibit demonstrating the extent to which the can manufacturing industry is directly contributing to the war is said to have proved highly successful in increasing production in plants in the Maywood rea of the American Can company.

The exhibit, planned to give employés a better conception of the finished products for which they are producing parts, included war items manufactured by the company ranging from hand grenades to chemical land mines. This week the exhibit has been shifted to the company's Joliet plant.

Variety of Containers.

Among items in the exhibit which interested plant employés were T. N. T. containers, fiber containers for incendiary hand grenades, machine gun ammunition boxes, a variety of cans to hold supplies for the army, containers for field rations, and cratering explosive cans.

J. D. Collins, superintendent of the plant at 7th avenue and St. Charles road, Maywood, said much of the machinery on which the items are manufacured is the regular can making machinery of the American Can company. All new machinery required was made in the company's machine shops.

Cans for Blood Plasma.

One group of containers highlights the part canned blood plasma is playing in saving lives of wounded men.

"The development of canned blood plasma has reduced the time required for a transfusion from 45 to 5 minutes," explained Mr. Collins. "The development of canned plasma also has made it possible to administer transfusions immediately behind the lines, whereas in World War I. the evacuation hospitals were the nearest point at which transfusions could be given."

The War as Fighters See It

Good Fishing.

From Corp. Albert W. Robuck, stationed on the Alcan highway in British Columbia, to his mother, Mrs. Franz Robuck, 1004 Clay street, La Porte, Ind. Twenty-one years old, he was graduated from La Porte High school and was planning college when war broke out. Shortly after he wrote this letter, he received 23 letters, after having received only one in 20 days.

I am the happiest boy in the continent tonight. I received my first letter in 20 days. We had a late mail call and there were only two of us in the new bunch that got letters, our first. We would have mail call and all of us with high hopes would rush up only to return with broken hearts and another whole day to wait.

Corp. Robuck.

"They called off my name and I let out a yell that could be heard half way to——[130 miles away]. I think every boy in camp read my letter. It wasn't so much what it said, but what a letter looked like. We are hoping for more tomorrow.

"Last Thursday noon I received the fishing tackle. I thought the afternoon would never pass. Just before chow it started to rain, but like the answer to prayer, right after chow it stopped. I put the new line on my reel, got three other boys fixed up, and off we went.

First Fishing for Bane.

"Two of the boys stayed on the near side of the river while Bane and I went on the other side. Pvt. Bane is a tall skinny Irishman with big feet and red hair and quite a temper. Bane had never been fishing before so I had to do a quick job of showing him how it was done.

"It was about 10 minutes before I found where the fish hung out and then it started. It was the most fun I have ever had. In a couple of hours I had 20 fish. About every time the fly would hit the water a couple of grayling trout would hit it, but it seemed hard to hook them.

Bane Has Trouble.

"Bane let out a yell. He had caught his first fish. I thought I would die laughing. He was standing there dangling the poor fish in mid-air out over the water. I rapidly instructed him to bring the fish in, and none too soon either, for just as he did the fish flopped off on the rocks. Then the fun started. He was so excited he didn't know what to do. He was afraid to pick it up so he tried to step on it. Well, I came to the rescue and saved the fish and also Bane from falling into the water.

"When we finally went home the four of us had about 75 trout. We threw a party and fed half the camp. Boy, O boy, nothing ever tasted as good as that first fish after eating army chow for four months."

Returns from Panama.

From Corp. Clarence Brooks, stationed at Fort Knox, Kentucky, to his sister, Mrs. Thomas M. Parker, 1585 Ridge avenue, Evanston. Corp. Brooks also has served in Panama, going there a year ago after training at Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

"We were on the ocean seven days and nights, then spent an extra day on the boat at New York while they got a train ready for us. I enjoyed the trip very much tho the boat was very crowded. We got on a boat that stopped in Panama on its way back from New Guinea, loaded with casualties. Some were able to be up and around and they could really tell some tales of the fighting there.

"Those Japs must really be dirty fighters. The casualties said they were not taking any more prisoners there because the Japs torture our fellows to death. There were some fellows who had some close calls.

"In Panama we were on the alert, so to speak, all the time. Anytime they thought they saw something coming we were called out, and each time, so far as we knew, it was the real thing."

A Flyer's Day.

"Work here is hard—we fly as often as weather permits and fill in extra time with Link training, school, and eating. My day starts at 7 o'clock in the morning and we fly till noon. Then we fly from 1 till dark, weather permitting.

"Usually in the morning we fly formation, and that is really work. It's no small job throwing a 50,000 pound airplane around the sky, knowing that if you relax for a second and slip 10 feet off course, you'll kill 20 men and ruin a cool million dollars' worth of Uncle Sam's finest fighting machines.

Finds It Exciting.

"It's exciting tho, requiring maximum coördination and effort, which cuts down on the work angle, and is really fun.

"In the afternoon, we go on a bombing and gunnery mission. We drop 10 to 12 100-pound bombs from 4,000 to 20,000 feet. Precision bombing requires the most exacting flying there is.

"After all our bombs are gone, we let down to within 200 or 300 feet of the ground for gunnery practice. The targets are replicas of Jap Zeros. As we bank slowly around the targets, the gunners cut loose with the machine guns. I'm really going to feel safe in combat with my gunners. They're good.

"Mom, you know how much I hated responsibility back home. I tried to be kind of self-sufficient in my own little way. Now, I have more responsibility than Solomon with his thousand wives. It requires just a little more work, and if done with a smile and the feeling that you'd be glad to do it, the work is more cheerful."

LEADERS OF RED CROSS ON WEST SIDE TO GATHER

Meet with Other Chapter Chairmen Wednesday.

West side Red Cross chairmen will meet with other metropolitan and suburban community chairmen Wednesday night at a 6 o'clock dinner and round table discussion in the Chicago chapter's canteen, 529 South Wabash avenue, James B. Forgan, chairman of the Chicago chapter, announced.

All heads of the Red Cross departments and volunteer services in the chapter, as well as Forgan and Russell Winslow, chapter manager, will be present to participate in the discussions of community Red Cross work.

Act as Coördinators.

General chairmen act as Red Cross coördinators in their communities and are the contact between their community and Red Cross headquarters, Forgan explained. Working with them as members of the local committee are service chairmen whose responsibility it is to organize and recruit for first aid, home nursing, nutrition, blood donor service, fund raising, and nurses' aids.

There are 265 communities included in the Chicago chapter area and 42 of these are on the west side.

West Side Leaders.

EMPLOY DUMMY INSTRUMENTS IN BAND PRACTICE

Dummy band instruments in which only the mouthpiece is genuine have been constructed for beginners in the band of the St. Paul Lutheran school, Melrose Park. The innovation permits new pupils to acquaint themselves with the handling of a wind instrument without the outlay of funds either by the school or the pupils before regular band work is undertaken.

Ralph Wetzstein, director of music at the school, has obtained the assistance of a patron of the school in providing hollow tubes, turned on a lathe, to which instrument mouthpieces are attached. Prospective players of brass instruments also practice on various sized bottles from which the bottoms have been removed. When they become sufficiently adept they are advanced to handling real instruments.

In percussion work, before a boy or girl is permitted to practice on a costly drum, he is taught the proper use of drum sticks by means of a small wooden board to which a piece of rubber has been fastened. Forty pupils already have declared their eagerness to engage in practice under the new arrangement which prepares them for actual band work.

PLAN JUBILEE FOR SISTERS OF CHARITY MAY 10

A diamond jubilee party for the Sisters of Charity, B. V. M., will be held at 8 o'clock Monday evening, May 10, in the Morrison hotel. Miss Margaret O'Connor, 6726 Glenwood avenue, the general chairman of arrangements, will be assisted by Mrs. Charles Thiery, 4729 North Paulina street, north side chairman; Mrs. Leo Conlon, 7914 Vernon avenue, south side chairman, and Mrs. Blanche O'Brien, 900 North Leclaire avenue, west side chairman. In 1867, at the invitation of the Rev. Arnold Damen, S. J., pastor of Holy Family parish, a group of nine sisters of the Blessed Virgin Mary came from Dubuque, Ia., to open two schools in Chicago. As the need for high school education increased, both St. Aloysius and St. Stanislaus, later Sacred Heart, offered high school subjects.

Began in Ireland.

This community, generally called the B. V. M.'s, sprang from humble beginnings in Dublin, Ireland, in 1831. Under the leadership of Mary Frances Clarke, the sisters began preparations for the religious life and at the same time conducted a school. Two years later they came to Philadelphia to continue the work of Catholic education. Here they became acquainted with the Rev. T. J. Donaghoe, who had such faith in the ability and destiny of these women that he devoted his life to the direction of the community.

It was by observing the work of the sisters in the schools of this diocese that Father Damen perceived the special fitness of the new community for teaching in the American parochial school system, which he hoped to build in Chicago. The work of the sisters not only fostered an active zeal among Catholics but also inspired hundreds of girls to enter the community. At present there are about 400 B. V. M.'s teaching in 27 parochial schools, four high schools, and one college in Chicago.

List of Schools.

The parochial schools in which the sisters teach include: Holy Name Cathedral school, 747 North State street; St. Agatha's, 3143 Douglas boulevard; Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary, 1747 Wabansia avenue; Blessed Sacrament, 2138 Central Park avenue; St. Bridget's, 2954 Archer avenue; St. Callistus, 2185 De Kalb street.

500 FARRAGUT STUDENTS PLAN SPRING MUSICAL

Program to Have Allied Nations Theme.

Featuring the music of the allied nations, more than 500 pupils of Farragut High school are preparing a program of the works of old and new masters for May 18 and 19. The musical will be the school's 19th biannual program of this kind.

Before a background of flags of the allied nations, the school band, orchestra, and boys and girls chorus will sing and play the music of Tschaikowsky, Moussorgsky, Victor Herbert, Stephen Foster, and modern composers. The national anthems of the United States, England, Russia, Czecho-Slovakia, and Free France will be played. Several of Irving Berlin's new songs from "This Is the Army" as well as song hits from World War I. will be sung.

Program a Biannual Tradition.

The musical, which has been presented by the school every spring and fall for the last 10 years, has become a tradition in the neighborhood, predominantly music loving Czecho-Slovakians. The audiences have grown so large that the programs no longer can be given in the school's own auditorium but are presented instead in the larger Harrison High school auditorium.

Almost a fourth of the school's total enrollment will take part in this spring's program. The participants are members of the band, orchestra, or one of the two choruses, all extra-curricular activities.

Charles Kolar, an honor student, will be featured in a trumpet solo and Helen Tabor will sing "Kiss Me Again." There will be a selection by five cellists, Marion Tebbetts, Mildred Slopak, Helen Cuba, Georgiana Kasparek, and Bella Finkel, for which the orchestra accompaniment is being written by Sylvan D. Ward, orchestra leader.

Melodists Hit Parade.

The Farragut Melodists, a group of 90 boys and girls, will sing a group of songs, "The Victory Tune Hit Parade," including "Till We Meet Again," "Over There," and "O, How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning." Marcel Ackerman, band director, is composing a special war march for the band.

The musical will have its comedy numbers, too. Among the songs to be sung by the girls chorus will be "Little Bo Peep Has Lost Her Jeep" and "There's Something About a Soldier." The boys chorus is preparing a medley of Pan-American songs. Another singing group will be the Farraguteers, a chorus of 24 boys' voices.

Plan Flag Dedication.

A service flag in honor of 498 Farragut alumni in service will be dedicated during the program. The flag will contain four gold stars in memory of four Farragut service men who have lost their lives. Three of the boys, John Joseph Hofrichter, Edward Gasienica, and Jerome French were killed in action. The fourth star is in memory of Joseph Schlehofer, who died in camp.

Farragut High school, altho it ranks among the smaller city schools, has had a superior rating in the city-wide musical contests for several years. Miss Marie Ehrenwerth is in charge of the girls chorus and Miss Marie Johnson directs the boys chorus.

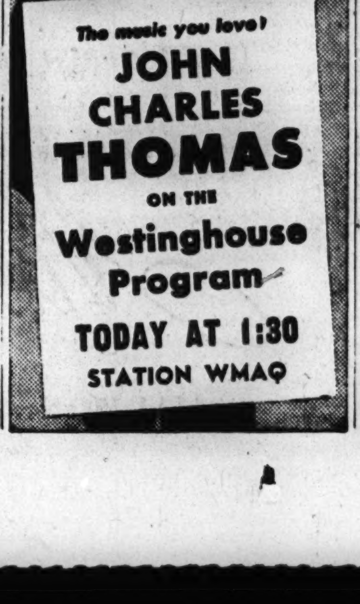
The program will include Berlioz's "Benvenuto Cellini" overture, Griffes' "The Pleasure Dome of Kubla Khan," and Brahms' Fourth Symphony in E minor. Goddard Lieberson will be the program annotator.



MANPOWER WILL BE WOMANPOWER RADIO MEN LEARN

Broadcasters Are Told to Train More Girls.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

If anybody says "man power" to a broadcaster arriving home from the war conference of the National Association of Broadcasters this week-end, he is likely to scream. Some stations have lost half of their male personnel, the industry as a whole, 26 per cent to the war. Not only did the broadcasters obtain few clews as to how they are going to replace their lost men, but they were informed over and over again that they will lose a lot more.

Lawrence A. Appley of the war man power commission told them that the army and navy will have to have 3,500,000 more men by the end of the year; war industries, 2,500,000. Chairman James Lawrence Fly of the FCC reiterated these figures.

Warning from Signal Corps.

Brig. Gen. F. E. Stoner of the United States signal corps warned the broadcasters they will have to give up more technicians for officer personnel; Lt. Comm. P. H. Winston of the selective service staff told them to get busy and train more older men and women. A representative of the British Broadcasting corporation told them the same thing, stating that BBC now has over 25 per cent feminine personnel.

"The only man in the country with man power to spare," observed one cynical broadcaster, "is James C. Petrillo." He was referring to Petrillo's claim that the recording and transcription industry had left his union filled with unemployed musicians.

Deny Petrillo's Story.

The broadcasters, however, brought forth a report purporting to show that only one-third of his union members are musicians and that the rest represent some 250 other professions.

The equipment problem, too, is crucial. A few broadcasters found much needed spare parts among their friends at the conference. Representatives of the WPB reminded the broadcasters that no radio station had yet gone off the air because of lack of equipment and it was promised that this would not happen. Broadcasters, however, were inclined to credit their own resourcefulness in the past and to rely on it in the future in order to stay in business.

HORACE MANN HIGH SCHOOL ON CITIZENS HOUR

The Horace Mann High school of Gary, Ind., will be saluted on the "Citizens of Tomorrow" program to be broadcast on W-G-N today from 1 to 1:30 p. m. The program will be the 99th in this series of broadcasts which started in the spring of 1940.

J. Lloyd Trump, principal, will speak on war time activities at Horace Mann. He will be introduced by Philip Maxwell, a member of the editorial staff of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

The school's choir, directed by Miss Eulah Winter, will sing "Good Night Thou Glorious Sun," by Henry Smart, and "To Tee O Country," by Eichberg.

Two more names will be added to the honor roll. The students are Evan Hultman, 17, of the East Waterloo, Ia., High school, and Donald Griffith Brown, 17, of the Horace Mann school. Brown will be interviewed during the program.

W-G-N Actor in Navy.

Charles Penman, W-G-N produceractor, has been commissioned a lieutenant [s. g] in the navy and leaves this week to take up his duties at Fort Schuyler, New York City.

How to guard your Weight and Energy during food rationing

From all information we have been able to gather, America will probably eat more starchy, fattening foods this year than ever before. That's why, now, more than ever, you must guard your weight to avoid putting on pounds of ugly fat. And here's probably the easiest way to do this you ever read about. Simply mix ¾ glass* of Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ glass* of water. Drink before meals and at bedtime, and this remarkable action follows. First, you have less desire to eat starchy, fattening foods. Thus, you cut caloric intake without having to suffer a hungry moment. Second, the natural dextrose in Welch's is quickly consumed. This regime not only aids nature in consuming excess fat, but increases energy at the same time. You lose fat naturally; look and feel better. Don't take chances on gaining weight during food rationing. Get genuine Welch's Grape Juice today, and follow this verified way to lose weight. The Welch Grape Juice Company, Westfield, N.Y. *8 oz. glass.

How to Save Ration Points

Welch's Grape Juice is richer in energy value than the 4 leading fruit juices. It is so rich it can be diluted with ⅓ water and still taste delicious. When served this way, it takes less ration points than any of 4 leading fruit or vegetable juices. Serve Welch's regularly and save ration points.

COLUMBUS PARK PLANS FANTASIA INTERPRETATION

Four Classics in Dance, Ballet Program.

Using Walt Disney's "Fantasia" as its inspiration, the physical education department of Columbus park will present its own interpretation of four of the classic works depicted on the screen at the annual gym show Thursday and Friday in the girls' gymnasium, Central avenue and Congress street.

Approximately 150 children and adults will take part in the show. Dances, ballets, and tumbling acts will be used to interpret the music. The four selections from "Fantasia" to be interpreted are "The Nutcracker Suite," "The Sorcerer's Apprentice," "Pastoral Symphony" and "Dance of the Hour."

Planned by Gym Instructor.

A narrator will describe the music and coördinate each of the four moods. The exhibition was planned by Miss Frances Kaplan, gym instructor at Columbus park. She is assisted by James Kelly, boys' instructor. The music is being prepared by Miss Camille Iarussi, pianist.

Seven dances will be used to depict the many fantasies in "The Nutcracker Suite." There will be the "Waltz of the Flowers" with small dancers dressed as snowflakes, milkweed, oak leaves, frost and autumn fairies. The mushroom dance will be a Chinese specialty. Other numbers will include a Russian dance, an Arabian dance, and a "Dance of the Reed Flutes."

An elfish figure will take the place of Mickey Mouse in "The Sorcerer's Apprentice" and the effect of the endless broomstick bucket brigade will be created by the waving of more and more reed flutes. As in "Fantasia" each group will appear separately to interpret its time of day and then reappear together for the final hour. Boys and girls dressed as ostriches will represent early morning; the hippopotamus group, daytime; the elephants, twilight, and the alligators, night.

A war story, "Starlight Interlude" will be presented from 8 to 9 p. m. next Saturday on W-G-N, W59C, and Mutual's Chicago Theater of the Air. Marion Claire, soprano, and Thomas L. Thomas, baritone, will be co-starred.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

"Starlight Interlude" will tell by drama and music the thoughts of a young soldier as he lies in a shell hole on a far east battlefield. Looking around him the soldier can see only stars and he wonders what it would be like if he could play music on them. Then, in fantasy, with Mr. Thomas handling the musical rôle and supported by Henry Weber and the W-G-N Symphony orchestra, the soldier sings to accompaniment by the stars.

Soon across no-man's land crawls an army nurse who joins him in song. Miss Claire will sing the rôle of the nurse. The dramatic rôle of the soldier, Tom Blake, will be played by Marvin Mueller while Laurette Fillbrandt will be cast as Diana Llewellyn, the nurse.

Soldiers nearby hear the singing. After the battle has died down they visit the shell hole and there they see a soldier and a nurse who have both been dead many hours.

Musical selections to be heard during the program will include three solos by Miss Claire. They will be: "Twilight in Barakiesh" by Victor Herbert, Lehar's "Melody of Love" from "Gypsy Love," and Romberg's "Only One Love." She also will be heard singing in a duet of "La Ci Daremo La Mano" from Mozart's "Don Giovanni" with Mr. Thomas and a duet of Romberg's "Tell Me, Daisy."

DESCRIBES HOW TO GROW YOUR OWN POTATOES

BY BEN MARKLAND.

Thousands of middle western gardeners who have concentrated their energies on the common backyard vegetables are branching out into potato culture this season. Not only are gardeners tending larger plots this year, thus giving them the necessary space for potatoes, but short supplies on grocery racks are causing housewives to prod their gardening spouses into raising potatoes for table use and winter storage.

Potatoes are most receptive to sandy loam soils with sharp drainage, but it is possible to grow this crop in almost any middle western area by artificially creating the drainage which is the key to a good yield.

Two Varieties Popular.

Two of the most popular varieties for northern Illinois are early Ohio, a red variety, and Rural New Yorker, an excellent main crop white variety. Both types can be planted now.

One of the most common questions about potato culture is that of treating the seed stock before planting to prevent scab disease. This usually is not necessary if the seed stock comes from the northern potato states, such as Michigan, Minnesota, and Maine. Neither is it necessary if the seed stock is to be planted on ground where potatoes have not previously been grown.

If scab disease has been encountered in your plot in previous years, there are several commercially made products used for treating the seed stock, most of which have bichloride of mercury or formaldehyde as the active agents. It also is easy to make a seed-treating solution by mixing one ounce of bichloride of mercury to eight gallons of water. The seed potatoes should be soaked in such a solution in a wooden barrel for four hours.

Use Small Seed Stock.

Another common question on potato culture is that of dissecting the seed stock before planting. On perfect potato ground the practice is to cut the seed potatoes into four to six section, with one "eye" in each section to be planted. Most inexperienced gardeners, particularly in Illinois, will have better success by utilizing small seed stock and planting them whole or cutting in half.

The gardener of the sample plots on the Tribune's Wheaton farm used small seed stock of the Rural New Yorker variety last season. His seed potatoes were about the size of an egg and were planted whole, and his return was 16 times the amount of seed planted. An assistant gardener used the same seed on the same type of soil and cut his seed potatoes in half before planting. His return was only 10 times the amount of seed planted.

Potato rows should be three feet apart, and plants in the row should be 14 to 16 inches apart. If the soil is mellow and well drained the seed stock may be planted to a depth of six inches, but in most areas of northern Illinois four inches is a better depth.

When to Start Drainage.

The artificial drainage so necessary in potato culture should be started when the plants are six inches above the ground. At this point the "hilling" of the stalks is started by hoeing soil over four inches of this six inch stalk. When the plants are 10 to 12 inches tall a second hilling is made, with soil again being hoed up to within two to three inches of the plant crest. By this type of culture the potatoes develop in hills 8 to 10 inches above ground level.

The major insert enemies of the potato are the potato bug and the leaf hopper. A mixture of 10 tablespoonfuls of arsenate of lead, the same amount of bordeaux mixture, and four gallons of water will eliminate both of these pests. It is advisable to use this spray mixture after very heavy rain.

After the potatoes are dug in the late summer or early fall they should be stored in a cool garage or shed and covered with straw. When freezing weather arrives they should be transferred to a dry basement storage place where the temperature will be between 35 and 42 degrees. Stored potatoes will not withstand freezing.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, May 3.

The early sown crops should be well along by this time, altho it is too early for tender plants because of the danger from frost. Cultivate the garden as soon as the young plants show above ground; hoe to kill weeds and to conserve moisture.

Complete all garden operations on time. Weeds grow rapidly, but if kept under control there is little danger of them depleting the soil of food and moisture that the vegetables demand. Hand weed in the rows and thin at the same time. Thinning is important to give each plant its full share of sun and space to develop. This early when plants will be little disturbed.

Tuesday, May 4.

All preparations should be made to combat insect pests as soon as they appear. One of the most harmful pests is the cutworm; it will eat the plant close to the ground or higher up, causing the plant to fall over or to be seriously injured.

They are active at night, which is demonstrated when the ground surrounding the plants is raked, the worms being brought into view. Placing a cylinder of heavy cardboard around the base of the plants will prevent the worms from getting near the stems, but control is best effected by scattering poison bait near the plants.

Wednesday, May 5.

Plant pansies, but select the short, compact, stocky plants. Keep the withered flowers removed or seed will form and the plants will cease flowering.

Well grown cannas, with their tropical foliage and large flowers, do well under city conditions, but they require abundant water and a rich soil. Buy started plants, for it takes a long time for the plants to start outdoors from the roots. Plant after all danger from frost is passed.

Thursday, May 6.

An effective method to kill weeds is to use the back of the rake to knock over the weeds when they are no more than an inch high. Sufficient soil is loosened to cover them.

This may be done rapidly and does away with waiting until the weeds are 6 inches or more high, necessitating hoeing to cut them down.

Many plants can be mulched sufficiently to conserve moisture. This is the case with pole beans, tomatoes, and others. Spread a good application of soft weeds, grass clippings, sawdust, dry hay, straw, or other materials over the ground around the plants and the weeds will have no chance to start into growth.

Friday, May 7.

Sow a little radish seed with slow germinating vegetables, such as beets, carrots, paranips, and parsley, for the radish seed germinates quickly, maring the rows which can be cultivated immediately they are distinguishable.

To enjoy the finest lettuce, growth should be rapid and continuous, which means that plenty of moisture is applied, with an abundance of nitrogen. Rows may be 12 to 24 inches apart.

Saturday, May 8.

Ants in the lawn may be destroyed by poking a hole in the colony with a stick and dropping a little carbon bisulphide into it. Plug the hole with mud.

Fruit trees should be sprayed before the blossoms fall as a protection against attacks from codling moths and similar pests. Spray calendars should be followed so good fruit will be enjoyed. Arsenate of lead may be used as a spray against the attacks of currant worms, but use rotenone or pyrethrum after fruit forms.

MAINTAIN YOUR APPLIANCES AT TOP EFFICIENCY

Makers Offering Two Kinds of Help.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Home owners who are making a systematic checkup of their houses this spring know they must start with the foundations, include the inside and outside walls, basements, windows, attics, roofs, rafters, and beams. Semi-annual repairs made while leaks and sprains are still minor save money by elimination of major, costly repair jobs.

What all home owners and apartment dwellers are not so aware of is the fact that systematic checkup of household fixtures, appliances, and equipment is quite as vital. And that there are two definite knids of help being offered to appliance and equipment owners by the manufacturers of various household units.

1. Many manufacturers of heating and plumbing equipment, and electrical and gas household appliances of all kinds, have developed, in spite of existing man power and material shortages, service centers from which their experts are working to help in the upkeep of these units. This means owners won't have to do their own tinkering on ailing machinery and that the repair on these units can still be left to trained experts. Such centers work thru various agencies; often these are dealers or distributors, local utilities or department stores.

2. The second type of help that manufacturers are offering is in the booklets, free for the asking in most cases, which are printed to inform appliance owners how to keep their equipment functioning well for the duration.

There are booklets on the proper care of all types of electrical equipment, on ways to get the most out of your refrigerators, your ranges, your fuel, your heating system. Other booklets tell you how to check your wiring for war time use, give you hints on the maintenance of your washing machine and ironer, your vacuum and table appliances, and instruct you on care of your plumbing fixtures.

Even tho a heating system is topnotch, fuel is being wasted if heat seeps thru the roof or walls, and a valuable little booklet gives ways by which you can use one-third less fuel next winter. Another lists not less than 82 ways to prevent fuel waste and conserve for victory.

And very pertinent right now is a sane and sensible little booklet which has been approved by the office of civilian defense which suggests black-out and dim-out methods you can employ, using materials, shades, and drapes which you already have in your own home. The aim of these methods is to show you how to have adequate light inside your room while not allowing a single gleam to permeate the outdoors.

[We will be glad to give you a list of these free and helpful little booklets on receipt of a stamped, addressed envelope sent to this department.]

DOWNERS GROVE HAS BIG COLONY OF ART WORKERS

Guild to Hold May Exhibit in Library.

That Downers Grove has been chosen as a place of residence by an unusual number of artists is revealed in the list of members of the Downers Grove Artists' guild which is planning to hold its second annual exhibit during May. The exhibition will open in the junior room of the Downers Grove library with a tea today.

Ben Albert Benson, president of the guild, was awarded first prize in the national poster contest of the American Legion. He is an advertising artist, illustrator, and wood engraver with his own studio in Chicago. He was born in Sweden.

Win Many Awards.

Tressa Emerson Benson was awarded a fellowship at Syracuse university, a medal at the Kansas City Art institute, and won the Armstrong prize for the best pointing by a woman at the Art institute of Chicago.

Mrs. Robert Bennett has made a wide study of hand weaving and gives lectures on the subject. She is on the board of directors of the Colonial Coverlet Guild of America.

Miss Marion Broberg studied with Miss Margaret Gardner.

Dexter M. Cooper, commercial artist, is art director of the Sherman K. Ellis studio in Chicago.

Marie E. Cooper has worked as a theatrical designer and has exhibited water colors at the Art institute of Chicago and the University of Illinois.

Ruby Vary Donaldson studied at the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts and has exhibited in the All-Illinois society show. She makes music, not painting, her life work.

Attended Three Academies.

Versa Jacobs Gollan, a pupil of Tressa Benson, Charles Schroeder, and Richard Shook, attended the Art institute of Chicago, the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts, and the American academy.

Emile Jacques Grumieaux has pictures in the present collection at Northwestern university and the state collection at Springfield. He is past president of the Chicago Society of Artists. He studied in his native Belgium and at the Art institute of Chicago.

Frank Lyness, born in Middleborough, England, has exhibited at the Laing Art gallery, New Castle on Thyme. Music is his vocation, art his avocation.

Lane K. Newberry has exhibited at the Art institute of Chicago, the San Francisco and New York fairs, and has had a number of one-man exhibits. He was represented at the guild show last year with "Vermont Sugar Camp" and "Gloucester."

Designs Many Homes.

Oscar F. Reinhold specializes in architectural perspectives and has designed many homes in Chicago and the west suburbs.

Armold Rhodes, landscape and figure painter, studied and worked at the Royal Doulton pottery. He was born in the pottery district of Staffordshire, England.

Mrs. Robert Troxell, interior decorator, studied art at the University of Wisconsin, the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts, the American Academy of Art, and the New York School of Interior Decorating.

Dea Trygt was awarded a scholarship by the Trephagen School of Design in New York City. Her major interest is costume design.

Aim of the guild is to create, to educate, and to stimulate interest in art in Downers Grove. The guild and the public library sponsor public school art exhibitions thruout the year and the guild awards an art scholarship to the pupil whose work shows the most promise.

For mutual encouragement, meetings of the guild are held once a month. During the summer members go sketching and later line up their paintings for criticism and comment of fellow members. Eventually, the guild hopes to have its own studio where members may work and hold meetings.

Heads Art Group

B. A. Benson is president of the Downers Grove Artists' guild which will hold its second annual exhibit in the Downers Grove public library during May.

SALUTE CHICAGO YOUTH THIS WEEK

STAR SENIORS TO WIN TRIBUNE HONORS AGAIN

Interviews, Photos to Be Published.

Outstanding Catholic and public high school seniors—selected by a vote of their classmates—again will be honored this year in the Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE. Photographs and interviews with the outstanding members of the graduating classes of the some 80 high schools in the city will be published in the Metropolitan section within the next six weeks.

Officials of both Catholic and public high schools have been informed of the plan to continue the custom of honoring the seniors and both the Rev. D. F. Cunningham, head of the diocesan school board, and Dr. William H. Johnson, city superintendent of schools, voiced their approval.

Faculty to Nominate.

Seniors will select the honor graduates of their class from a list nominated by faculty members of the various high schools. The first list of nominations to be published will be that of the Catholic high schools, which is to be completed by faculty members early this week. This list will appear in the Metropolitan sections next Sunday.

Interviews with the Catholic high school honor graduates and their photographs will be published June 6. Members of the senior classes of these schools will pick their representative by ballot within two weeks.

They'll Tell Ambitions.

Interviews with the seniors will outline the plans and ambitions of the students as well as give an indication of high school life as it is today.

Lists of honor students nominated by faculties of the public high schools also will be published June 6. The following week members of the public high school senior classes will elect their representatives from these lists.

Interviews and photographs of the public schools honor graduates will appear in the Metropolitan sections June 20. Accounts of the graduation exercises of both Catholic and public schools also will be printed.

Publish Graduates' Names.

The names of the graduates of Catholic and public high schools will be published in the Metropolitan sections, as has been the custom in the past years. The graduation lists of public high schools is scheduled for publication near the end of June. Lists of graduates of Catholic high schools—which do not all hold graduation exercises at the same time—will be published as soon as possible in the Metropolitan sections.

First year, second year and third year awards were given, in that order, to the following: Emerson High school, Wayne Allen Andrews, Aaron Reames, and David Robert Babagan. Tolleston High school, Theodore Reynolds, John Fengya, and Carl Melburn Flaherty. Horace Mann High school, John Clyde Haworth, Charles William Schneider, and Norman Morris Hasch. Lew Wallace High school, Lawrence Harry Larson, Andrew John Bartfai, and Raymond Lawrence Costello.

South Side Mothers Pose with Babies for V-Mail Pictures Going to Dads

Mrs. William J. Fox and William Herbert.

Mrs. John J. Gallagher and Mary Catherine.

Mrs. William Gleason and Carolann Virginia.

Mrs. Gene O'Brien and James Eugene.

Mrs. Knox C. Hill and Maureen Joan.

Mrs. Lawrence Francis Lee and James Thomas.

Mrs. William P. Kane and Marcia Alice.

Mrs. Hugh H. Buffington and Bonnie Ann.

Overseas Dads to Receive V-Mail Photos of Babies

Eight south side mothers, whose newly born babies have not yet seen their fighter fathers, are contemplating Mother's day this year by planning the happiness of their husbands on Father's day. They accepted the offer of THE TRIBUNE to take their pictures, together with their children, for V-mailing overseas, and, with good luck, the father should have the picture and letter for Dad's day—wherever he might be, Africa, Australia, Hawaii, or England.

Mrs. John J. Gallagher, 1053 East 47th street, is the mother of Mary Catherine Gallagher, born Sept. 9, 1942. Her husband, a private in the army coast artillery, has been in Hawaii since June of last year. She lives with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. James Dwyer, and works in the circulation department of the Chicago Public library.

Action in Solomons.

The husband of Mrs. William Gleason, 6548 Maryland avenue, is a first class petty officer in the navy and recently saw action in the Solomon islands area. When last heard from, he was in Auckland, New Zealand. Their daughter, Carolann Virginia, was born Dec. 7, 1942, five months after he had left the United States for foreign service. Gleason is a former student of Hyde Park High school. He was a carpenter before entering the navy and was, while in Chicago, a member of the naval reserve. Mrs. Gleason, a former student at St. Clara's school, maintains their home for Carolann and their three other children, John, 10; Patrick, 8, and Mary Lou, 6.

Mrs. Gene O'Brien, 6936 Indiana avenue, has not seen her husband, a private in the army, since early last September. Their son, James Eugene, was born April 12 of this year. Pvt. O'Brien, a former student of St. Leo's High school, has been in the army since Jan. 9, 1942. He is "somewhere in England." Mrs. O'Brien, who attended Mercy High school, lives with her mother, Mrs. Frank Norton.

Mrs. Knox C. Hill, 6516 University avenue, said good-by to her husband, a first lieutenant in the army, last July. He now is in North Africa. Their daughter, Maureen Joan, was born Feb. 20. Lt. Hill, a graduate of the University of Chicago, was an instructor in music at the university until he was inducted into the army in April of last year. Mrs. Hill, a 1938 graduate of the university, lives with the baby and another daughter, Virginia, 2½ years old.

Dad a West Pointer.

Mrs. Lawrence Francis Lee, 6453 Drexel avenue, is the mother of four children, Lawrence Francis, 8; Mary Therese, 6; Louise Carol, 2, and James, 7 months old. Her husband, Capt. Lee, has been with the army quartermaster corps in Australia since March last year, several months before the baby, James, was born. A graduate of St. Ignatius High school and Northwestern university, the captain attended the United States Military academy at West Point and for 12 years was a civil service employé of the war department in Chicago. He returned to the army in February, 1941, received his training at Camp Haan and Fort Ord, California, and early last year was assigned to a Negro regiment which he took to Australia. It was the first Negro regiment to land in the Pacific area of operations. Mrs. Lee, a graduate of St. Bernard's Training School for Nurses, married the captain in 1933. She is the former Florence McCafferty.

Mrs. William P. Kane, 7109 Michigan avenue, has been without her husband for six months. Their

Mailing of the first V-mail proofs to mothers who have responded to the plan for giving overseas dads a photographic glimpse of their new offspring will start the first of this week. Further mailing of the proofs will be handled as rapidly as possible.

To get a V-mail picture, write your name and the baby's name and age. State your husband's rank and how long he has been out of the country. Include your address and your telephone number, so that the photographer may make an appointment. Send this necessary information to Photos for Dads editor, Metropolitan section, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. The offer is limited to mothers within 40 miles of Chicago.

Pictures will be printed as space permits.

PLAY EQUIPMENT CALLED A PRIME CONTEST FACTOR

Play equipment made by entrants will be given special consideration in this year's annual play yard contest sponsored by the Chicago Motor club as part of its accident prevention work. Officials of the Chicago public library and its branches are coöperating in the drive to provide safe off the street play space, and the libraries are distributing entry blanks for the 1943 contest.

Charles M. Hayes, president of the motor club, explained that an official entry blank is not necessary. A postcard listing the entrant's name, address, phone number, and the location of the play yard will suffice. The competition, which is open to any resident of Cook county, will be judged on the basis of the use made of the various play yards entered.

Prizes for the contest, which will close Sept. 15, will include a lawn swing and a slide for each section of Cook county—south, southwest, west, northwest, and north.

Yanks in Pacific Send Belated Easter Greetings

Corp. Thomas Dowdalls, 816 East 67th street; Sergt. C. E. Linkewicz, of Calumet City, and Marine Pvt. Roy Sreboth, 6346 Greenwood avenue, gave their names to Robert Cromie, Tribune correspondent, too late for transmission of Easter greetings from the south Pacific to their families on the south side, in time for Easter. They, therefore, take this opportunity to extend best wishes to their families.

Adult Education Council Director Will Give Talk

Ralph McAllister, director of the Chicago Adult Education council and director of the educational program of the Chicago office of civilian defense, will speak on "The American Spirit" at 8 o'clock Wednesday night at International House, 1414 East 59th street. Many churches will devote Sunday programs to youth.

Some school programs will be open to parents and friends, especially gymnastic programs Tuesday. Plays, pageants, and other demonstrations have been arranged for various times in the schools.

The week will be climaxed with a civic assembly luncheon Friday at the Morrison hotel, sponsored by the Chicago Executives club. Two students selected from each high school and city college on the basis of scholarship and leadership will be guests. The luncheon will be climaxed with announcement of winners of scholarships among the students present.

Another highlight of the week will be a vocational convention for high school students Tuesday at the Morrison, sponsored by the Union League club, the Chicago chapter of Altrusa International, and the vocational division of the Chicago board of education. Outstanding students will take part.

HELPS ASPIRING FLYERS TO BEAT COLOR AILMENT

Psychologist Brings Eyes Up to Specifications.

Men, anxious to serve with the air forces, who last year would have been rejected because of color blindness, are flying today because of Mrs. Anna Orcutt, 1352 East 47th place, a clinical psychologist at the Illinois Institute of Technology.

Mrs. Anna Orcutt.

A series of tests and correction exercises which she formulated have enabled men, once rejected, to correct their weakness and to return and pass the rigid color blindness tests of the air services.

She became interested in the problem shortly before Christmas, 1942 when one of "her boys"—one among the 1,800 at the institute whose problems she handles—came to her after his rejection.

Determines Type of Trouble.

First step was to give him a series of tests to determine the type of his color blindness. She then devised a plan to correct it—and at the end of a month he was able to pass the tests he had failed a month before.

Mrs. Orcutt determines the type of color blindness — whether the more common red-green type or the less common blue-yellow variety—with a group of cards which use dots of one color to form numbers against a background of dots of another color. The cards are held two or three feet from the eyes at first and then at a distance of 10 feet, for some people can distinguish colors near to them that they cannot distinguish at a distance. This test establishes the problem to be treated.

In Mrs. Orcutt's first exrecise of correction the student wears glasses with red lenses and sits about three feet from a bright light. The light is flashed off and on at three minute intervals. This is continued for 20 minutes.

"The theory behind this," she explains, "is muscular exercise. The cones in the eyes cause people to see colors. In most cases of color blindness certain cones do not function properly.

Exercises Aid Muscles.

"The muscles of these cones extend, when the light is turned on and contract when the light is turned on. Gradually the cones become strong until in most cases it is possible for the student to recognize colors he was unable to see before."

Another exercise consists of matching colors. Large squares of each color in three different intensities or shades are given to the student along with many smaller cards of the same tones. The problem is to match the small squares with the larger ones. The student Mrs. Orcutt reports, usually has great difficulty in matching the squares at the outset.

Prescribes Vitamin A.

In treatment of some of her charges, Mrs. Orcutt prescribes vitamin A, the vitamin found in carrots. Well known for its assistance in the treatment of visual difficulties, the vitamin strengthens the eyes and speeds correction.

The success which Mrs. Orcutt has enjoyed has encouraged her to make a survey of those at the institute who were in need of her treatment and she already has expanded her interests to care for students who will enter industry upon graduation. As she explains—industry has adopted a method of using different colors to indicate the function and assembly parts of machinery. Also colors are used as a safety precaution in war plants.

"If a man is color blind," she said, "he is likely to make a mistake and thus slow down production or injure himself. As long as this can be corrected, it is foolish to risk this danger."

Treatment of such visual disabilities should, however, be placed in the hands of some competent authority, Mrs. Orcutt believes. "Maltreatment can be as dangerous as malfunction," she warns.

130 STUDY NEW WAR COURSE AT DUNBAR SCHOOL

One hundred thirty students are enrolled in a recently opened war training program at the Dunbar Vocational school, 4401 S. Lawrence avenue, according to Clifford J. Campbell, head of Dunbar school who also has charge of the new program. It is the only war training school in the area.

PLAN JUBILEE FOR SISTERS OF CHARITY MAY 10

A diamond jubilee party for the Sisters of Charity, B. V. M., will be held at 8 o'clock Monday evening, May 10, in the Morrison hotel. Miss Margaret O'Connor, 6726 Glenwood avenue, the general chairman of arrangements, will be assisted by Mrs. Charles Thiery, 4729 North Paulina street, north side chairman; Mrs. Leo Conlon, 7914 Vernon avenue, south side chairman, and Mrs. Blanche O'Brien, 900 North Leclaire avenue, west side chairman.

In 1867, at the invitation of the Rev. Arnold Damen, S. J., pastor of Holy Family parish, a group of nine sisters of the Blessed Virgin Mary came from Dubuque, Ia., to open two schools in Chicago. As the need for high school education increased, both St. Aloysius and St. Stanislaus, later Sacred Heart, offered high school subjects.

It was by observing the work of the sisters in the schools of this diocese that Father Damen perceived the special fitness of the new community for teaching in the American parochial school system, which he hoped to build in Chicago. The work of the sisters not only fostered an active zeal among Catholics but also inspired hundreds of girls to enter the community. At present there are about 400 B. V. M.'s teaching in 27 parochial schools, four high schools, and one college in Chicago.

List of Schools.

The parochial schools in which the sisters teach include: Holy Name Cathedral school, 747 North State street; St. Agatha's, 3143 Douglas boulevard; Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary, 1747 Wabansia avenue; Blessed Sacrament, 2138 Central Park avenue; St. Bridget's, 2954 Archer avenue; St. Callistus, 2185 De Kalb street.

St. Charles Borromeo's, 1100 South Hoyne avenue; St. Cornelius, 5252 North Long avenue; St. Dominic, 819 Sedgwick avenue; St. Dorothy, 7735 Vernon avenue; St. Ferdinand, 3100 North Mason avenue; St. Gertrude's, 6214 Glenwood avenue; Holy Cross, 6535 Maryland avenue; Holy Family, 1019 South May street; St. Jerome's, 1700 Morse avenue; Our Lady of the Angels, 859 North Avers avenue; Our Lady Help of Christians, 851 North Leamington avenue; Our Lady of Lourdes, 4637 North Ashland avenue.

St. Pius Is Included.

St. Pius, 1919 South Ashland avenue; Presentation, 734 South Springfield avenue; Sacred Heart, 832 West 18th street; St. Tarcissus, 5738 North Meade avenue; St. Thomas of Canterbury, 4809 Kenmore avenue; St. Vincent De Paul, 2135 Kenmore avenue; St. Odilo, 2306 East avenue, Berwyn; Mary, Queen of Heaven, 5314 West 24th place, Cicero; St. Eulalia, 1824 South 8th avenue, Maywood.

The four high schools include two co-educational parochial schools, Mundelein Cathedral High school and Sacred Heart High school, and two high schools for girls, St. Mary's, opened in 1899, and the Immaculata, 640 Irving Park road, which opened in 1921. In 1930 Mundelein college, the first Catholic college for women on the north side, was opened at 6363 Sheridan road.

Aids Party Plans.

Mrs. Leo Conlon, 7914 Vernon avenue, has been named south side chairman for the diamond jubilee party to honor the Sisters of Charity, B. V. M., at 8 o'clock Monday evening, May 10, in the Morrison hotel.

MANPOWER WILL BE WOMANPOWER RADIO MEN LEARN

Broadcasters Are Told to Train More Girls.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

If anybody says "man power" to a broadcaster arriving home from the war conference of the National Association of Broadcasters this week-end, he is likely to scream. Some stations have lost half of their male personnel, the industry as a whole, 26 per cent to the war. Not only did the broadcasters obtain few clews as to how they are going to replace their lost men, but they were informed over and over again that they will lose a lot more.

Lawrence A. Appley of the war man power commission told them that the army and navy will have to have 3,500,000 more men by the end of the year; war industries, 2,500,000. Chairman James Lawrence Fly of the FCC reiterated these figures.

Warning from Signal Corps.

Brig. Gen. F. E. Stoner of the United States signal corps warned the broadcasters they will have to give up more technicians for officer personnel; Lt. Comm. P. H. Winston of the selective service staff told them to get busy and train more older men and women. A representative of the British Broadcasting corporation told them the same thing, stating that BBC now has over 25 per cent feminine personnel.

"The only man in the country with man power to spare," observed one cynical broadcaster, "is James C. Petrillo." He was referring to Petrillo's claim that the recording and transcription industry had left his union filled with unemployed musicians.

Deny Petrillo's Story.

The broadcasters, however, brought forth a report purporting to show that only one-third of his union members are musicians and that the rest represent some 250 other professions.

The equipment problem, too, is crucial. A few broadcasters found much needed spare parts among their friends at the conference. Representatives of the WPB reminded the broadcasters that no radio station had yet gone off the air because of lack of equipment and it was promised that this would not happen. Broadcasters, however, were inclined to credit their own resourcefulness in the past and to rely on it in the future in order to stay in business.

W-G-N Actor in Navy.

Charles Penman, W-G-N producer-actor, has been commissioned a lieutenant [s. g] in the navy and leaves this week to take up his duties at Fort Schuyler, New York City.

Howard Barlow to Lead Orchestra in a New Series

The Columbia Broadcasting symphony, under the direction of Howard Barlow, will return to the air to open another summer season on WBBM-CBS at 2 p. m. today. The program will include Berlioz's "Benvenuto Cellini" overture, Griffes' "The Pleasure Dome of Kubla Khan," and Brahms' Fourth Symphony in E minor. Goddard Lieberson will be the program annotator.

How to guard your Weight and Energy during food-rationing

From all information we have been able to gather, America will probably eat more starchy, fattening foods this year than ever before. That's why, now, more than ever, you must guard your weight to avoid putting on pounds of ugly fat. And here's probably the easiest way to do this you ever read about. Simply mix ¼ glass* of Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ glass* of water. Drink before meals and at bedtime, and this remarkable action follows. First, you have less desire to eat starchy, fattening foods. Thus, you cut caloric intake without having to suffer a hungry moment. Second, the natural dextrose in Welch's is quickly consumed. This regime not only aids nature in consuming excess fat, but increases energy at the same time. You lose fat naturally; look and feel better. Don't take chances on gaining weight during food rationing. Get genuine Welch's Grape Juice today, and follow this verified way to lose weight. The Welch Grape Juice Company, Westfield, N.Y. *8 oz. glass.

How to Save Ration Points

Welch's Grape Juice is richer in energy value than the 4 leading fruit juices. It is so rich it can be diluted with ⅓ water and still taste delicious. When served this way, it takes less ration points than any of 4 leading fruit or vegetable juices. Serve Welch's regularly and save ration points.

On the other hand, many homes do not possess any, and because of the growing scarcity (all radio manufacture ceased last year) are finding it difficult to get any. To equalize this situation and help put a radio in every Chicago home for receiving war, rationing and other vital information—we will buy all your extra, unused, discarded or broken radios for CASH. Get busy this week. Bring your extra sets FOR FAMILIES WHO HAVE NO RADIOS. You'll be doing a patriotic service for every one. We'll see that your sets get back into circulation.

A war story, "Starlight Interlude" will be presented from 8 to 9 p. m. next Saturday on W-G-N, W59C, and Mutual's Chicago Theater of the Air. Marion Claire, soprano, and Thomas L. Thomas, baritone, will be co-starred.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak.

"Starlight Interlude" will tell by drama and music the thoughts of a young soldier as he lies in a shell hole on a far east battlefield. Looking around him the soldier can see only stars and he wonders what it would be like if he could play music on them. Then, in fantasy, with Mr. Thomas handling the musical rôle and supported by Henry Weber and the W-G-N Symphony orchestra, the soldier sings to accompaniment by the stars.

Soon across no-man's land crawls an army nurse who joins him in song. Miss Claire will sing the rôle of the nurse. The dramatic rôle of the soldier, Tom Blake, will be played by Marvin Mueller while Laurette Fillbrandt will be cast as Diana Llewellyn, the nurse.

Soldiers nearby hear the singing. After the battle has died down they visit the shell hole and there they see a soldier and a nurse who have both been dead many hours.

U. OF C. GIVING SIGNAL CORPS TRAINING COURSE

Training salaries ranging from $1,800 to $2,000 a year will be paid to students accepted for the work, which involves a 48 hour week of lectures, recitations, discussion, laboratory and shop work, and supervised study.

Persons successfully completing the course will be assigned as civilians to signal corps installations in the United States or as instructors to 6th service command signal schools in Chicago. The course is sponsored by the engineering, science, and management war training program of the United States Office of Education.

The War as Fighters See It

Good Fishing.

From Corp. Albert W. Robuck, stationed on the Alcan highway in British Columbia, to his mother, Mrs. Franz Robuck, 1004 Clay street, La Porte, Ind. Twenty-one years old, he was graduated from La Porte High school and was planning college when war broke out. Shortly after he wrote this letter, he received 23 letters, after having received only one in 20 days.

I am the happiest boy in the continent tonight. I received my first letter in 20 days. We had a late mail call and there were only two of us in the new bunch that got letters, our first. We would have mail call and all of us with high hopes would rush up only to return with broken hearts and another whole day to wait.

Corp. Robuck.

"They called off my name and I let out a yell that could be heard half way to——[130 miles away]. I think every boy in camp read my letter. It wasn't so much what it said, but what a letter looked like. We are hoping for more tomorrow.

"Last Thursday noon I received the fishing tackle. I thought the afternoon would never pass. Just before chow it started to rain, but like the answer to prayer, right after chow it stopped. I put the new line on my reel, got three other boys fixed up, and off we went.

First Fishing for Bane.

"Two of the boys stayed on the near side of the river while Bane and I went on the other side. Pvt. Bane is a tall skinny Irishman with big feet and red hair and quite a temper. Bane had never been fishing before so I had to do a quick job of showing him how it was done.

"It was about 10 minutes before I found where the fish hung out and then it started. It was the most fun I have ever had. In a couple of hours I had 20 fish. About every time the fly would hit the water a couple of grayling trout would hit it, but it seemed hard to hook them.

Bane Has Trouble.

"Bane let out a yell. He had caught his first fish. I thought I would die laughing. He was standing there dangling the poor fish in mid-air out over the water. I rapidly instructed him to bring the fish in, and none too soon either, for just as he did the fish flopped off on the rocks. Then the fun started. He was so excited he didn't know what to do. He was afraid to pick it up so he tried to step on it. Well, I came to the rescue and saved the fish and also Bane from falling into the water.

"When we finally went home the four of us had about 75 trout. We threw a party and fed half the camp. Boy, O boy, nothing ever tasted as good as that first fish after eating army chow for four months."

Returns from Panama.

From Corp. Clarence Brooks, stationed at Fort Knox, Kentucky, to his sister, Mrs. Thomas M. Parker, 1585 Ridge avenue, Evanston. Corp. Brooks also has served in Panama, going there a year ago after training at Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

"We were on the ocean seven days and nights, then spent an extra day on the boat at New York while they got a train ready for us. I enjoyed the trip very much tho the boat was very crowded. We got on a boat that stopped in Panama on its way back from New Guinea, loaded with casualties. Some were able to be up and around and they could really tell some tales of the fighting there.

"Those Japs must really be dirty fighters. The casualties said they were not taking any more prisoners there because the Japs torture our fellows to death. There were some fellows who had some close calls. One major in particular; he was nicked all the way down one side by over 20 machine gun bullets. The Japs are using wooden bullets, too, and when one of them hits a bone it just slivers thru the flesh.

"In Panama we were on the alert, so to speak, all the time. Anytime they thought they saw something coming we were called out, and each time, so far as we knew, it was the real thing."

A Flyer's Day.

"Today is my day off. It's the first one I've had outside of Christmas and New Year's [24 hours each] since Sept. 6, 1942.

"Work here is hard—we fly as often as weather permits and fill in extra time with Link training, school, and eating. My day starts at 7 o'clock in the morning and we fly till noon. Then we fly from 1 till dark, weather permitting.

"Usually in the morning we fly formation, and that is really work. It's no small job throwing a 50,000 pound airplane around the sky, knowing that if you relax for a second and slip 10 feet off course, you'll kill 20 men and ruin a cool million dollars' worth of Uncle Sam's finest fighting machines.

Finds It Exciting.

"It's exciting tho, requiring maximum coördination and effort, which cuts down on the work angle, and is really fun.

"In the afternoon, we go on a bombing and gunnery mission. We drop 10 to 12 100-pound bombs from 4,000 to 20,000 feet. Precision bombing requires the most exacting flying there is.

"After all our bombs are gone, we let down to within 200 or 300 feet of the ground for gunnery practice. The targets are replicas of Jap Zeros. As we bank slowly around the targets, the gunners cut loose with the machine guns. I'm really going to feel safe in combat with my gunners. They're good.

"Mom, you know how much I hated responsibility back home. I tried to be kind of self-sufficient in my own little way. Now, I have more responsibility than Solomon with his thousand wives. It requires just a little more work, and if done with a smile and the feeling that you'd be glad to do it, the work is more cheerful."

Eleven R. O. T. C. Officers Advance at Bowen High

One captain, four first lieutenants, and six second lieutenants have been named in advancements recently in the Bowen High school R. O. T. C., according to Capt. Albert Hecht Jr., district R. O. T. C. supervisor. Edward S. Palasik was advanced to captain; Sylvester P. Nemcek, Donald Roy Kern, Irving Meyer Hyman, and Ralph J. Ross were named first lieutenants, and second lieutenancies went to Alvin W. Kersten, George S. Werner, Ernest O. Pittenger, Benjamin Avales, James R. Cooksey, and Charles W. Lawler.

DESCRIBES HOW TO GROW YOUR OWN POTATOES

BY BEN MARKLAND.

Thousands of middle western gardeners who have concentrated their energies on the common backyard vegetables are branching out into potato culture this season. Not only are gardeners tending larger plots this year, thus giving them the necessary space for potatoes, but short supplies on grocery racks are causing housewives to prod their gardening spouses into raising potatoes for table use and winter storage.

Potatoes are most receptive to sandy loam soils with sharp drainage, but it is possible to grow this crop in almost any middle western area by artificially creating the drainage which is the key to a good yield.

Two Varieties Popular.

Two of the most popular varieties for northern Illinois are early Ohio, a red variety, and Rural New Yorker, an excellent main crop white variety. Both types can be planted now.

One of the most common questions about potato culture is that of treating the seed stock before planting to prevent scab disease. This usually is not necessary if the seed stock comes from the northern potato states, such as Michigan, Minnesota, and Maine. Neither is it necessary if the seed stock is to be planted on ground where potatoes have not previously been grown.

If scab disease has been encountered in your plot in previous years, there are several commercially made products used for treating the seed stock, most of which have bichloride of mercury or formaldehyde as the active agents. It also is easy to make a seed-treating solution by mixing one ounce of bichloride of mercury to eight gallons of water. The seed potatoes should be soaked in such a solution in a wooden barrel for four hours.

Use Small Seed Stock.

Another common question on potato culture is that of dissecting the seed stock before planting. On perfect potato ground the practice is to cut the seed potatoes into four to six section, with one "eye" in each section to be planted. Most inexperienced gardeners, particularly in Illinois, will have better success by utilizing small seed stock and planting them whole or cutting in half.

The gardener of the sample plots on the Tribune's Wheaton farm used small seed stock of the Rural New Yorker variety last season. His seed potatoes were about the size of an egg and were planted whole, and his return was 16 times the amount of seed planted. An assistant gardener used the same seed on the same type of soil and cut his seed potatoes in half before planting. His return was only 10 times the amount of seed planted.

Potato rows should be three feet apart, and plants in the row should be 14 to 16 inches apart. If the soil is mellow and well drained the seed stock may be planted to a depth of six inches, but in most areas of northern Illinois four inches is a better depth.

When to Start Drainage.

The artificial drainage so necessary in potato culture should be started when the plants are six inches above the ground. At this point the "hilling" of the stalks is started by hoeing soil over four inches of this six inch stalk. When the plants are 10 to 12 inches tall a second hilling is made, with soil again being hoed up to within two to three inches of the plant crest. By this type of culture the potatoes develop in hills 8 to 10 inches above ground level.

The major insert enemies of the potato are the potato bug and the leaf hopper. A mixture of 10 tablespoonfuls of arsenate of lead, the same amount of bordeaux mixture, and four gallons of water will eliminate both of these pests.

After the potatoes are dug in the late summer or early fall they should be stored in a cool garage or shed and covered with straw. When freezing weather arrives they should be transferred to a dry basement storage place where the temperature will be between 35 and 42 degrees.

Hyde Park R. O. T. C. Studies Tactics

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, May 3.

The early sown crops should be well along by this time, altho it is too early for tender plants because of the danger from frost. Cultivate the garden as soon as the young plants show above ground; hoe to kill weeds and to conserve moisture.

Complete all garden operations on time. Weeds grow rapidly, but if kept under control there is little danger of them depleting the soil of food and moisture that the vegetables demand. Hand weed in the rows and thin at the same time.

Tuesday, May 4.

All preparations should be made to combat insect pests as soon as they appear. One of the most harmful pests is the cutworm; it will eat the plant close to the ground or higher up, causing the plant to fall over or to be seriously injured.

They are active at night, which is demonstrated when the ground surrounding the plants is raked, the worms being brought into view. Placing a cylinder of heavy cardboard around the base of the plants will prevent the worms from getting near the stems, but control is best effected by scattering poison bait near the plants.

Wednesday, May 5.

Plant pansies, but select the short, compact, stocky plants. Keep the withered flowers removed or seed will form and the plants will cease flowering.

Well grown cannas, with their tropical foliage and large flowers, do well under city conditions, but they require abundant water and a rich soil. Buy started plants, for it takes a long time for the plants to start outdoors from the roots.

Thursday, May 6.

An effective method to kill weeds is to use the back of the rake to knock over the weeds when they are no more than an inch high. Sufficient soil is loosened to cover them.

This may be done rapidly and does away with waiting until the weeds are 6 inches or more high, necessitating hoeing to cut them down.

Friday, May 7.

Sow a little radish seed with slow germinating vegetables, such as beets, carrots, parsnips, and parsley, for the radish seed germinates quickly, maring the rows which can be cultivated immediately they are distinguishable.

To enjoy the finest lettuce, growth should be rapid and continuous, which means that plenty of moisture is applied, with an abundance of nitrogen. Rows may be 12 to 24 inches apart.

Saturday, May 8.

Ants in the lawn may be destroyed by poking a hole in the colony with a stick and dropping a little carbon bisulphide into it. Plug the hole with mud.

Fruit trees should be sprayed before the blossoms fall as a protection against attacks from codling moths and similar pests. Spray calendars should be followed so good fruit will be enjoyed.

R. O. T. C. CADETS FORM CLUB FOR TACTICAL STUDY

Hyde Park High school R. O. T. C. cadets who desire more advanced training than the junior R. O. T. C. offers recently organized a tactics club. Once a week they study the theory of the battle tactics of the squad, platoon, and company.

The club—with an average attendance of 20 cadets—meets every Monday in the high school R. O. T. C. rooms to study under the direction of Tech. Sergt. Will J. Brewer and Sergt. Morris Gordon, military instructors at the high school.

Principal equipment used in the solution of battle problems is a large sand table that the cadets built in the school workshop. The sand is molded into valleys and mountains. Strips of glass—simulating streams—add reality. Areas of green paper represent wooded sections of the battle terrain.

Wooden or lead soldiers are not used but miniature tanks and field guns are utilized to mark positions of fighting units. A bit of paper inscribed with figures may represent the number of men at the various battle stations.

Problems used either are worked out by the military instructors and students or are purchased. The purchased problems include maps which are reproduced on the sand table.

Those attending the class are divided into two groups. After the "men" and "equipment" of each "army" are placed on the sand table and their actions outlined, the problem is discussed to see who "won." Winning is on a basis of correct tactical use of the men and materials available on the terrain assigned to them.

Girl Scout Ceremony.

HE: Right you are, honey! It's tops for good food—they serve more for the money than any place in town! The choicest meats, freshest vegetables—and what pies and cakes!
SHE: These drinks are plenty good, too. And I like eating in this tropical atmosphere, watching this revolving stage and circular bar.
HE: And wait until I show you Martin's two other rooms—the Ruby Room and the Colonial Room. They both serve the same good food at the same popular prices.
SHE: Martin's is so conveniently located it's easy to get here any time on the bus or I. C.
HE: And we can get good luncheons, dinners and midnight snacks here—any hour up to 4 a. m.!

Model Homes Guide to Home Decorators

—By Edith Weigle—

REMEMBER what fun it was to slither around on paper with that bright red, yellow, and blue in your water color paint box when you were a child?

You can have fun and also achieve permanent and pleasing results right now doing the same thing on a larger scale—painting unfinished furniture and using enamels and semi-gloss pigments. It's not hard if you have a recipe to go by. It is mixing the paints that is the difficult step.

• • •

One Chicago store furnishes you with a formula for each color in a series of model rooms that you want to copy at home. And the sketches today were made in those charming little setups. The corner cupboard comes unfinished and is painted white with linings of bright red to match the design in the wall paper, which has a gay pattern of apple trees on a white ground.

One nice feature of this cupboard is that it has a lower cabinet section for storage. And it's not in the least expensive.

The floor in this room is done in old fashioned spatterdash style, with bright dots of red and white on deep green. Nice way of treating an old floor to make it look new and interesting.

In the sketch is a glimpse of a white painted drop-leaf table and chair. These, too, from the unfinished furniture section, cost very little.

A vivid striped wall paper in pink, green, and white furnished the color scheme for the bedroom in this series of rooms. And the center of interest was the pretty little dressing table sketched at the upper right. It was placed against one wall which had been painted to match one of the tones in the paper, and it was given added importance by hanging draperies in a window effect above it.

This little trick is a good one to know and always works out well when you want to give an effect of height to a low object such as a dressing table or a bed. This vanity table costs less than $9 unfinished. Its top is protected by a sheet of glass, and the pretty cotton flounce with its full ruffles is of the same material as that used for the bedspread.

The accompanying small chair is painted.

Note the little hanging shelves which hold toys, and the small armchair, just the right size for a toddler or his bunny rabbit. Each of these pieces of furniture comes in the unfinished state, and you are given the formula for this particular shade of blue so you can copy the nursery perfectly in your own home if you wish. Or you can have simply one or two of the items.

Success Predicted for 'Kiss and Tell' in Chicago

Light Farce Comedy Coming to Harris Theater on May 10

By Cecil Smith.

It may not be doing "Kiss and Tell" a service to refer to it as a New York smash hit. For, after all, when F. Hugh Herbert's farce about Corliss Archer, her family, and her friends reaches the Harris theater on May 10 it will have to start from scratch in establishing itself as a Chicago hit. We have a starchy civic spirit about refusing to take New York's say-so as gospel, and the accepted box office triumphs from Broadway have written a checkered history in Chicago's theaters.

But if it is ever safe to predict success in advance for any play, it ought to be safe in the case of "Kiss and Tell." While it is as artificially contrived a little farce as the current theater has on display, it also has the indispensable ingredient of naturalness of speech and reasonable sincerity of characterization. The delineation of adolescents on the stage is not a matter to be trifled with, for all the adolescents and all the parents in the community will band together to boycott a play which seems to show teen agers in a false light.

F. Hugh Herbert, the Hollywood writer who wrote "Kiss and Tell," is in a particularly advantageous position when it comes to distinguishing between truth and falsehood in adolescent behavior, for he has two young daughters of his own, and they are not likely to have led him far astray. It was these youngsters who suggested not only "Kiss and Tell," but also the Corliss Archer stories and radio programs which have made the central character of "Kiss and Tell" well known to a considerable public before the play even has opened.

Mr. Herbert himself, in a recent confessional in the New York Times, described graphically the event which inspired the first Corliss Archer story, and subsequently "Kiss and Tell," which draws a good share of its material from that story:

"About four months ago my wife and I were driving down Sunset boulevard in Hollywood accompanied by our teen-age daughters, Diana and Pamela, and by our beautiful but feeble minded springer spaniel, Moronica. All five of us crowded onto the front seat, which makes driving cozy but precarious.

"Pausing for a traffic light, Diana, who is going on 15, grabbed me excitedly by the arm and informed me that there were two very cute soldiers on the opposite corner waiting for a lift. 'They're not allowed to thumb rides, Daddy, but they look terribly wistful,' she informed me.

"So we offered the two young soldiers a lift and they were indeed two charming, attractive looking boys in the air corps. They were strangers in Hollywood and were bound for the nearest U. S. O. canteen for coffee and sandwiches. My wife invited them to come home and have pot luck with us, and they accepted with alacrity. Thruout the evening we were highly amused watching the reactions of Diana and Pamela as they tried to impress the two young soldiers with their imagined sophistication and maturity. There was a great deal of frantic telephoning to their various boy friends trying to head off the customary after dinner visits of these enchanted youths. Obviously it would have been a tragedy if our two soldier guests would have encountered the freckle-faced 14 year olds with whom the children normally associate. While Diana was busy on the telephone, Pamela dashed madly from the back to the front door to head off personal visits."

With such unsurpassed opportunities for first hand observation, Mr. Herbert has turned out a light farce comedy which promises to be greatly to the liking of theater goers on the lookout for bright levity, and the arrival of summer weather is likely to increase rather than decrease its appeal, since it requires no undue expenditure of heat-producing mental energy.

AT SELWYN

Henry Richards is one of the young men whose lives are twisted into a snarl by the behavior of the young women in "The Doughgirls," Joseph Fields' topical comedy hit about wartime Washington.

Fortunately the script of "Kiss and Tell" fell into the hands of George Abbott. Of all the New York producers, Mr. Abbott has the most unerring way with teen-age performers, as all those who remember the freshness and spirit of "Best Foot Forward" will testify. Unless he slips up for the first time in his life, Mr. Abbott will infuse the Chicago company of "Kiss and Tell" with all the animation which characterizes the New York cast. Certainly we had no cause for complaint in his duplicate companies of such pieces as "Brother Rat" and "What a Life."

No believer in the star system, Mr. Abbott finds the youngsters who seem right to him for the parts, and then proceeds both painstakingly and imaginatively to channel their naïve talents into a well articulated and fast moving ensemble. It is less important, therefore, to know who the players are in the Chicago cast of "Kiss and Tell" than to know that Mr. Abbott has given them both his approval and his direction. And unlike Moss Hart and George Kaufman, Mr. Abbott does not believe in farming out the initial stages of the preparation of a second company to an underling who merely tries to reproduce the mannerisms of the New York players.

Of the Chicago cast of "Kiss and Tell," I shall have more in the way of factual material to offer you next Sunday. A distinguished member of it is Katharine Warren, who made her New York debut in 1930 in "A Farewell to Arms," and who has been seen in Chicago as Roxane to Walter Hampden's "Cyrano de Bergerac" and as Lady Capulet in the Vivien Leigh - Laurence Olivier "Romeo and Juliet." She appears as the mother of Corliss Archer, opposite Clay Clement, last seen here with Tallulah Bankhead in "Reflected Glory."

Corliss herself is Patricia Kirkland, daughter of two notables of the theater, Jack Kirkland and Nancy Carroll. Others in the cast are Ruth Conley, Alice John, Billy Saunders, Artie Quinn, Henry Antrim, Richard McCracken, Peggy Van Vliet [who for a time played Eileen in "My Sister Eileen" here], Gerald Cornell, Marian Leeds, Donald McLelland, Cliff Dunstan, and Dort Clark.

NEVER TO MARRY

"So he would, Dr. Buckener . . ."

"You mustn't say things like that to the students. You could go so far if you will only . . ."

"I know, I know I was wrong, Dr. Buckener. I'll never say anything like that again."

She nearly missed the train, persuading Dr. Buckener to take the seniors herself, had hardly time for the sketchiest packing—"but then I can't be gone more than a night or two"—and had leisure to think of her aunt, only after she was in the train.

"It wouldn't have done me any harm," she thought, "to have pretended to be more the kind of niece she wanted—to have gone to some parties, and let her bring me out and make a fuss over me—most girls would have been so happy—I ought to have done anything she wanted—and now it's too late."

The Careys were an old New York family—old as American families go. They had had plenty of money until the Great war. After that, Miss Cornelia Carey—Lorna's aunt—finding herself at 45 a sheltered lady without visible means of support, had evolved a business from her own limited aptitudes and experiences. She had become New York's supreme expert on party giving. No such idea had been in her mind at the beginning. She had thought humbly of herself as a sort of social secretary to all the social world.

At first, she had merely arranged dancing classes for the young, and kept lists of unimpeachable boys and young men. But there had always been one thing she was perfectly certain she knew—and that was how things should be done, and as society became larger and less sure of itself, it turned more and more to Miss Carey for information, until finally she had become a sort of social tsar. Definite, firm, and absolutely incorruptible, she inspired fear and confidence. Hardly any large party was given in New York without its giver having at least solicited Miss Carey's assistance—which was not always granted. Happy the mother who could say that Miss Carey was organizing her daughter's debut.

Mathematics— They're Inhuman

She had been puzzled and disappointed that Lorna had not wanted to live with her and come out like what the older woman described as "a normal girl."

"It's so inhuman, my dear—mathematics," Aunt Cornelia would say, "and you admit that you are a little inhuman to begin with."

But Lorna did not admit this—she never would and had been known, when reproachful young men said it to her, to burst into quiet tears, until they took it back. Least of all was she ready to admit it now, as she sat in the train, with an actual physical pain about her heart, at the thought of her aunt's illness.

She looked up and smiled, but not her widest, best smile. It was Paul Manners of the English department—tall, fresh faced, with bright blue eyes behind his gold-rimmed spectacles, and a perfect New England "a." He sat down. Lorna liked him a good deal—better than any other members of the faculty, but she prided herself on her instinctive recognition of the approach of emotional danger—a knowledge so essential to any girl pursuing a career in which marriage has no place. She believed she recognized this danger in Manners.

A few weeks before she and he had been appointed a committee of two to choose a present for Miss Gibbs, retiring after 40 years as head matron of the dormitories. They had worked hard over expending a small sum effectively—had finally decided on a portable radio, and had gone into town together one day to buy it. They had lunched together—a pleasant day, during which Lorna had been her natural, pleasant self. Since then, however, she had noticed that she kept meeting Manners constantly and in the most unlikely places—almost as if he had been following her about. Then, too, old Dr. Richardson, who was some sort of relation of Manners, kept quoting the younger man's sayings and watching her closely to see how she reacted.

For some five minutes she exchanged quips in French across the Atlantic.

"O, yes, do sit down," she said, without too much enthusiasm. "Only I was just thinking of going to get something to eat."

Manners had been thinking of the same thing. Presently they went into the dining car, and Manners recalled the circumstances of their former luncheon—and the presentation, and how Miss Gibbs had cried, until her mind had been distracted by the unpleasant fact that the radio wouldn't work—not until a colleague from the physical laboratory had done some magic. He talked easily and amusingly. Lorna began to hope that she had been mistaken—that she was getting to be one of those tiresome females who suspect every man of loving her—all the more if he doesn't declare himself.

They went back to their seats, just as the brakeman announced "Bridgeport." Well, there wasn't much time now—barely an hour.

"Are you going to be in New York for long?" she asked politely.

"I'm taking the next train back." Her heart stood still, and he went on, answering her look. "I decided to come only after I saw you leaving your rooms with a bag in your hand."

He didn't look at her; he sat staring in front of him, his face rather set. She thought. "O, dear, I knew I was right. What shall I do? I like him so much—he's nice and clever, and now I'm going to make him unhappy—at least for a little while."

She couldn't think of anything to say, and presently he went on. "You know—at least, I think you know—that I'm very much in love with you. And I don't think you dislike me."

"Indeed, I don't," said Lorna. She couldn't help knowing that a woman in the seat in front of them must have heard him—a blue feather in her hat quivered strangely. "I like you better than any one I've met for a long time, only . . ."

"Ah," said Paul Manners. "Of course. I knew it. There's somebody else."

"Not a soul," said Lorna. "But I shall never marry." The woman in the front seat turned her head slowly as far as she could to the right—this enabled her to see Lorna; presently, Lorna knew, she would turn it to the left and get a glimpse of Manners.

"How can a woman marry, who means to have a career in the academic world? And I do mean to have it. I mean that to be my whole life. Now don't say I'll change my mind when the right man comes along. . . ."

He smiled grimly. "I see I have had my predecessors."

"Well, one doesn't get to be 26. . . ."

"And if they did all say it—they were right. You will change your mind. You simply have never been in love."

"Yes, I have," Lorna said. She considered proving the point—telling him about that older man, a friend of her aunt's—he was in diplomacy—she had come very near marrying him—he was charming and wise and she had respected him—had almost loved him. And that handsome boy who had worked with her in the observatory—what goings-on there—she wasn't so proud of that adventure—she would not care to confide that to the lady with the blue feather. "Look," she said, "suppose you and I were married, and I had a wonderful offer from Columbia or one of the great western universities, and if you were called back at the same time to Harvard—I suppose that's your dream—well, what would happen? Would we part? Would you offer to go with me to my job? No, we should just settle down in Cambridge and let you fulfill your destiny—that's what always happens—the woman gives up her career."

"Isn't it only because she wants to?"

"Does that make it any better? I don't want to."

"It's horrible for a young and lovely woman to feel like this."

"Why is it horrible? You talk as if no woman had ever not married before. How about Saint Teresa and Clara Barton and Queen Elizabeth? No one ever said they were inhuman."

"I haven't said you were inhuman."

"You're busy thinking it."

"I suppose I am."

She looked at him sadly. She couldn't explain to him how human she felt at the moment . . . how she would have liked to lay her head on his shoulder and burst into tears—tears of regret for all the lovely things she was giving up—not only love and a home and children, but the safe sense of being two against the world, instead of just one lonely woman. She wasn't a fool. She knew she had chosen a hard, desolate, stony path—but it did lead to the heights—she was sure of that.

She tried once more to make him see her point of view before they rolled into the Grand Central station, and the woman with the blue feather, standing up a little prematurely, had a full uninterrupted stare at them. "Will you think me vain if I tell you I believe I have great abilities in mathematics?"

"So they all tell me; absolutely top flight."

Feeling Sad and Sacrificial

He stood up, too, and took her bag from the rack. She could feel the smothered New England fire beneath his icy self-control. He put her coldly into a taxi and turned directly back into the station, taking, she supposed, as he had said, the next train to Eversham.

As she drove to her aunt's apartment, she allowed herself to feel sad and sacrificial. It would have been fun to be engaged to Paul Manners, who was admired by the students, and rather run after by the faculty. She wasn't sure it would have been fun to be married to him. She mustn't let herself get sentimental.

She found her aunt lying flat in her bed, looking old and shrunken. She gave Lorna a hot, dry hand, but the girl saw her spirit was utterly unbroken.

"I'm glad you've come," she said. "I've been lying here helpless worrying about these two Hastings parties."

"Parties? Aunt Cornelia!—what difference do parties make when you are ill!"

"Professional honor makes a difference at any time. I've been paid in advance for these—I never did that before in all my life—and never will again—if there is an again for me. Of course it would be the Hastingses—of all people."

"I don't know who the Hastings are."

"Lorna, you do live in a cloister—Don't you ever read the social columns? No, of course you consider that sort of thing beneath your attention. Well, Gemma Hastings is the most conspicuous debutante—millions in her own right, and such beauty—such beauty, my dear! They're having a dinner and dance the day after tomorrow and a large reception next week, to try to console the people they don't ask to the dance—only it never works. You must take it all over for me . . ."

"O, Aunt Cornelia, I can't possibly. Surely Miss Gibbs would do it better than I—she's been with you so long."

The elder Miss Carey snorted. "Gibbey," she said, "is a born subordinate. She lets head waiters bully her, and then comes back and pretends that they convinced her that their way was better than mine. No, my dear, you must just stay away from teaching those girls arithmetic long enough to do this for me. I have never asked very much of you, Lorna . . ."

"No, never, and of course I'll do it, Aunt Cornelia."

Yes, she must do it. It was a moral obligation she could not evade, but she knew very well it might cost her her future. She knew how young assistant professors were regarded who asked for inconvenient leaves of absence. Her anger rose—not against her aunt, but against the Hastingses and people like the Hastingses, who raised trivial amusements to such pompous importance that sensible, serious people like Lorna Carey were caught up and, perhaps, destroyed by their folly.

That evening she called the dean on long distance, and asked for a week's leave. She said her aunt was worse than she expected. Heaven send the college never knew that she was really staying over to superintend two parties. The dean's voice was very cold.

They finally decided that Lorna should remain away until the February semester. "Without pay, of course," the dean added. "The college will have to pay the person who takes your work—if we can find any one at such short notice."

"Any arrangement you make will be satisfactory to me," said Lorna humbly.

"Naturally," said the dean.

Lorna came away from the telephone feeling that, perhaps, her academic career was over. She could always do research work and write. It would break her heart not to teach.

She went back to her aunt's bedroom.

"I suppose there was no trouble, was there?" the old lady said without opening her eyes.

"O, no, none at all," Lorna answered brightly.

"We're never as indispensable as we think," said her aunt.

The next morning Lorna was dispatched to visit the Hastingses, with a long list of questions—or rather of instructions, disguised as questions.

"You must be firm with them, Lorna," her aunt said. "People like that don't really know how things should be done. You have to watch them, guide them. You remember that great party I arranged for the O'Bennetts last year, . . . I found at the last minute that they had had coronets put on the menu cards—for no reason but that they thought it a pretty device."

"I'm afraid I don't know how things should be done, either. Aunt Cornelia."

"Nonsense, my dear, you were born knowing. Besides, I'll tell you."

The Hastingses lived in a large palace on Fifth avenue, bought when such a house was—not a white elephant—but a symbol of success. George Hastings, having made a fortune in the manufacture of toys—colored marbles had been his specialty—had died and left his widow rather bewildered in the possession of an only daughter, rich in her own right, beautiful, and a magnet for publicity.

Bright December sunlight was melting the snow in the park as Lorna rang the bell. The butler, who had a face like an eminent English jurist, told her that she was expected, as if that would take a weight off her mind. He led her upstairs to a small sitting room, where she found Mrs. Hastings.

"O, Miss Carey, I'm so sorry your aunt is ill. I depend on her so . . . She promised to be at my party herself . . . Yes, yes, of course I understand that now she can't, but I don't know what I shall do—a girl in Gemma's position. Criminals, you know, forge invitations and manage to get into parties nowadays—jewel thieves and kidnapers—your aunt gave me such a sense of security."

"I shall be there in her place, Mrs. Hastings." Lorna answered with a firm, bright smile, altho what she could do against kidnapers and thieves was more than she knew.

"And you'll be sure that no one gets in without a genuine card—no one—man or woman—not even if they tell you they are my long lost relations."

"I assure you. I give you my word."

Talking French Across Atlantic

At this point, the door opened and Gemma Hastings came in. It was 12 o'clock and she was evidently only just out of bed. She was wearing white satin trousers and a turquoise-blue jacket, with a scarlet ribbon tied about her hair—but her skin was whiter than her trousers, her eyes bluer than her jacket, and the lipstick on her full, curving lips was as bright as her hair ribbon.

She spoke to her mother: "Paris is calling me—Armand again, I suppose."

Her mother's brow wrinkled. "You don't have to take the call here, Gemma. I'm talking business with Miss Carey's niece."

Gemma did not respond to what was intended as an introduction.

"I'd rather you heard what I said instead of my having to repeat every word to you afterwards," she said, and sinking down in a deep chair, she took the receiver in one hand, and with the other contrived dexterously to light a cigaret.

For some five minutes she exchanged quips in French across the Atlantic, while Lorna and her mother sat silent. Then as she hung up, she seemed to feel the necessity of acknowledging Lorna's presence. She smiled at her—the smile of a charming baby, and said, "Do you suppose all princes are dopes?"

"I don't know, I never met any."

"I wish I never had. Mums wishes so, too, don't you, Mums?" She laid her hand affectionately on her mother's elaborate coiffure. "You ought to tell that idiot who does your hair not to curl it so tight. I'll go with you next time. Well, what about the party—everything O. K.?"

Before Lorna could answer, the judgelike butler appeared, silent as a ghost, in the doorway, and after assuring himself he was not interrupting any one, he said, "Your Hollywood call has come thru miss."

Gemma sat up, all animation. "That's more like it," she said.

Her mother groaned. "O, Gemma, you haven't been calling that man again?"

Gemma didn't answer. She was beaming into the telephone.

"I hope he isn't coming to your party."

Obviously he was, for Gemma was saying, "O, Harold, how marvelous of you, when I know you hate flying . . ."

BEGINNING TODAY—

A NEW NOVEL— NEVER TO MARRY

As the lecture ended, several of the class grouped themselves about Miss Carey's desk—interested in the lecturer's inner self.

INSTALMENT I.

THE December sun poured thru the wide, square windows of one of the small classrooms in the science building. A senior leaned forward with her fountain pen poised.

"Dr. Carey," she said, "may I ask if it is correct that some one has said that mathematics is the subject in which you never know what you are talking about, or whether what you say is true?"

Dr. Carey, Ph. D., was, rather surprisingly, a pretty woman of 26. She leaned back against the blackboard, with her hands on the narrow ledge that holds the chalks, and looked down at her class.

"I believe," she said, "that Bertrand Russell did say that once—in one of his more impish moments."

Another student spoke up. "Dr. Carey, do you absolutely believe in the fourth dimension?" She spoke, not so much from interest in the subject, as in the hope this was the sort of question that did you good at examination time.

Dr. Carey gave a low light laugh. "You couldn't have asked me a more awkward question," she answered. "You see, the mathematical faculty of this university—this college, I mean—is divided on that very point. Some of them don't believe it. They think that mathematics is just like a physical science and must be checked constantly with sense experience, and so to talk about a fourth dimension when our sense can be aware of only three-dimensional space is all nonsense and mysticism. I, on the other hand, believe that reason is a surer guide than our senses.

"I believe with Weierstrass that God gave us the integers and from them, with nothing but our intellects to help us, we have reared a body of knowledge—mathematics—that brings us nearer to the eternal verities than any other form of human knowledge. Only I know Mr. Pegrim not only disagrees with me, but would like to boil me up in oil, for venturing to teach such heresy to undergraduates. . . ." She stopped, aware that she ought not to have said Mr. Pegrim would like to boil her in oil, altho she most potently believed it.

Instantly all the seniors decided to accept Miss Carey's mathematical creed, not because they were idealists, but because Mr. Pegrim was a dull young man who snuffled when he lectured, whereas Lorna Carey looked like something between a madonna and a nymph, and contrived to make her lectures on higher space more entertaining than Dr. George's course on the history of English humor.

The dean of Eversham had been astonished at the number of seniors who had elected Miss Carey's course in non-Euclidian geometries. She had reluctantly included it in the catalog because Dr. Marie Buckener, the head of the mathematics department, had insisted. She said that you could not get a brilliant young scholar like Lorna Carey to come to a small college like Eversham unless you let her give a course in her own special subject.

"All right," said the dean, "only no one will take it."

But the dean had been wrong.

Complete Flight from Reality

Twelve seniors had elected the course—all those, indeed, who were qualified to do so by previous courses. The dean was always astonished that any one at all elected the higher mathematics—not understanding that for its votaries it combines the same charm as Walt Disney's cartoons. It constitutes a complete flight from reality combined with philosophic hints and suggestions of great pitch and moment.

As the lecture ended, several of the class grouped themselves about Miss Carey's desk—interested in the subject of higher spaces, but more interested in the problem of the lecturer's inner self. Even seniors who had had more than three years of experimentation in managing their instructors found themselves baffled by this newcomer, who was so vivid and intimate as a lecturer and so cool and elusive outside the classroom.

Their investigations were cut short, however, by the entrance of a small, serious colored boy in a page's uniform, carrying a telegram for Miss Carey. She held out her hand calmly. An orphan without brothers and sisters, she would not in any case have anticipated disaster, for she was naturally optimistic. As she opened it, her mind was busy with the possibilities of good news—that she had been called to a great coeducational western university—that some college president had read her articles in the current Scripta Mathematica and felt he simply couldn't carry on any longer without its author.

Having decided rather definitely not to marry, and yet having no taste for the cloister, she knew that a coeducational college would be the best place for her. She had seen too often the fate of women scholars who married—always sacrificing their own careers for their husbands'. Her own career was dear to her, but at the same time she relished the society of the opposite sex.

She read her telegram—her aunt had had another heart attack and was ill, perhaps dying, in New York.

She sprang up, made her way out among her pupils, and once outside began to run across the campus. Already in the two months she had been at Eversham she had become attached to the campus. The college buildings stood round three sides of it, but on the fourth it was open; two tall, bare oaks framed a distant picture of rolling country and the little town of Eversham, where the chimneys of the Horace Eversham paper factory still smoked actively.

Lorna ran, ignoring the brick walks, altho a light fall of snow made the ground wet under her feet. Running came easily to her, for she was long in the leg between thigh and knee. A voice called to her, "Look out, Atalanta, don't stop for any golden apples." She waved her hand without turning her head—she knew it was old Dr. Richardson, the head of the classical department. She and he were great friends.

Finds Pessimism Can Be Asset

The dean was a jolly looking, red faced woman who had rejoiced in her youth that her appearance enabled her to conceal her gloomy, bitter nature. Lately, however, she had discovered that pessimism can be an asset, and she now played herself as if it were a character part, with the result that she was much savored and her sayings were valued and repeated.

"Well," she said, without any welcoming change of expression as Lorna Carey entered, "what do you want?"

"Do you think I could possibly get away for a few days, dean?"

"No, I should think not."

"My aunt is desperately ill in New York."

"O, I don't see how women get along at all," said the dean hopelessly. "If I were a man I'd have a wife who ordered my food and had my clothes pressed . . ."

"No, I really wouldn't send my wife, even if I had one," said Lorna, who knew perfectly how to get on with the dean. "My aunt has been wonderful to me—paid my way thru college and gave me an allowance until I got this appointment."

"Well, I hope you inherit a fortune and get out of this grind."

"But I don't think it a grind," said Lorna with a quick smile. "I'd like to teach mathematics if I had millions. But I shall never inherit anything from my poor aunt. She works hard for every penny she has."

"What does she do?" said the dean, always thinking about retiring.

Lorna evaded the question. She was a little ashamed of her aunt's profession, and more than a little ashamed of being ashamed. She said, instead, "Don't you enjoy teaching, dean?"

"I loathe it," said the dean. "You'd better go and see Dr. Buckener about arranging for your courses while you're gone."

Taking this to be a permission to go, Lorna ran back across the campus to the science building, which she had just left. Dr. Marie Buckener was in her office—a gaunt, high-shouldered woman who, behind heavy lenses, had the calm, rapt expression of an elderly nun. Undergraduates and even members of the faculty were likely to assume that Dr. Buckener took in little of what went on in the world about her—but they were mistaken.

She looked up from a pile of papers, as Lorna entered, and said, "The high schools give their pupils such vague ideas of a limit."

Alluring as this subject was, Lorna let it pass and explained her situation. She found Dr. Buckener more sympathetic than the dean.

"Of course you must go, my dear. Altho we are so short-handed this term, I can arrange for your courses. Mr. Pegrim . . ."

"O, no, Dr. Buckener—not for my seniors. He'll be grand in junior calculus, but I don't want him telling my seniors that mathematics is all a matter of sense perception and that everything I teach is mysticism . . ."

"Lorna, did you say in class that he would like to boil you in oil?"

Music Critic Answers Some Letters of Criticism

Only the Best for Orchestra Is Her Desire

By Claudia Cassidy.

One of the quainter delusions suffered by people who do not care for music is the misapprehension that, compared to playgoers, concert-goers are a bit on the phlegmatic side. Nothing could be more remote from the truth. As one who over the years has received several bales of letters from both tribes, I can assure you that playgoers are a peaceable, indeed, almost an inarticulate lot, by comparison with their musical brethren. The latter, properly pricked by the printed word, possess a picturesque vocabulary, the uncontrollable impulse to exercise it, a vast capacity for misunderstanding English or maneuvering it to fit a new text, and a disregard for logic as fascinating as it is baffling. Instead of memoirs, a music critic should be content to publish his mail.

Once, when I referred to "The Rivals" as a Restoration rather than a Georgian comedy, I got a pretty sassy letter from a stickler about such things, indicating that my managing editor had a misplaced regard for my ability. But I can't remember anything more disastrous than that in things theatrical, nor did any one ever threaten to sue me for recommending a play he did not enjoy, tho once a Chicago playwright contemplated sending me an orchid in a mousetrap because my enthusiasm had sent him to see Saroyan's "The Beautiful People," which had, as you may remember, a rare character known to her friends as "Saint Agnes of the Mice." He refrained, to my sorrow, because an orchid is an orchid, no matter how you wrap it.

But never, to my knowledge, has an outraged music addict desisted from sending the equivalent of the mousetrap, without the orchid. The most recent barrage was set up by my report that Désiré Defauw's debut as conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra was a second rate concert by a first rate orchestra.

Arturo Toscanini.

That was my candid, signed opinion of what happened at Orchestra hall when Mr. Defauw appeared before an invited audience of sustaining members of the orchestra. Reaction on both sides of the fence has been interesting, inflammatory, and rather superbly beside the point.

The point, as I see it, is the concert in question. Either it was good or it was not good. But the letters at my elbow mention that concert as an occasion, not as a performance. One says, "Personally, I enjoyed the entire afternoon," which must mean the music as well as the subsequent reception. This letter calls me the "lemon sour lady," decries my verbosity, and tucks what may be a small orchid in the mousetrap by admiring my vocabulary.

Another inquires, "Was it presuming too much on the part of the public to expect gracious comment on the occasion by the Chicago press?" Still another says, "You were an invited guest and you were rude to the guest of honor," adding, "Do you realize how difficult you are making our job of gaining sustaining members to support the orchestra?"

Now there are two curious nuggets of confusion, both repeated with variations in other letters. One is that for any purpose whatsoever a critic worth his salt should write an insincere review, or even wrap his profound convictions in phrases so euphemistic it would take a detective to unravel their meaning. The other is that "loyalty" to the orchestra means blind following of any course its board of directors may consider expedient.

Still a third confusion is dragged in by a man who writes "Any one who reads her [meaning my] column is fully aware of her partiality toward Hans Lange for conductor of our symphony orchestra," adding that he, too, had been pleased with Mr. Lange's handling of the orchestra, but that my review of Mr. Defauw's concert was in very [underlined] bad taste.

Suppose we skip the bad taste. At best it's an intangible, and debatable. But in fairness to Mr. Lange, the other accusation is worth untangling. Chicago has known Mr. Lange's work for seven or eight seasons and has recognized him as a sound and honest musician. Chicago has known Mr. Lange as chief conductor for one full season and has discovered in him additional gifts of sincerity and devotion too valuable to be junked. Some of his concerts have been good, and some have been disappointing. My ever clamorous mail has been vociferous at times with protest from his admirers who believed I was trying to get him displaced.

What this column has done and hopes to continue to do is to call the shots as they are fired. Concerts are reviewed as they are played, and with no desire to embark on the wild sea of orchestra politics. At no time in my years as a reviewer have I suggested to any manager or board of trustees the engagement or dismissal of any conductor, soloist or orchestra member. My conception of a music critic's job is to tell the truth as I see it, with the idea that only the truth, unhampered by any outside influence, can serve the best in music. Criticism is opinion, and it can be wrong, but it cannot afford to be evasive or otherwise dishonest.

What I want for the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and what the majority of its audience wants, is a great conductor. It is a great orchestra and it had a great conductor in Frederick Stock. Don't let any one fool you by saying Stock was attacked by the newspapers when he stepped, almost unknown, into Theodore Thomas' shoes. What the subscribers had to say, I don't know, as it was before my time. But what the critics said, I do know. I have been browsing thru scrapbooks until I feel a bit like the Newberry library's bookworm, known as Little Emil. Those reviews are a credit to the critical profession in quick perception of the attributes of a man whose stature was implicit in his earliest concerts, and had only to be filled out in experience.

Most people say, with justification, that you should not condemn something unless you can offer something better. All right. It would have been wise, I believe, either to have persuaded one of the great men of music to come to the orchestra, to have engaged an exceptionally brilliant young conductor of outstanding promise, or to have made Mr. Lange musical director for next season until there was time to hear a long list of guest conductors at leisure.

What that conductor might have been in nationality or creed is, to me, of no importance. In music, what counts is music. Everything else is negligible, or ought to be. Yet I have had said to me by men who make musical decisions that a certain conductor is out of the question because his wife is difficult.

Perhaps the word great is too comprehensive to be adequately understood, and therefore is too easily set aside as unattainable. But it can be defined, and attained. When I say our orchestra is great I mean that it has qualities of tone, precision, resilience, and temperament to compass the best in music. Such an orchestra is a magnificent asset to any city, and it would be treason to cut it down by incompetence. What it deserves is a conductor of stature, a man of insight and imagination, of integrity and boldness, a man who can make the orchestra the focal point, the very lifeblood of musical Chicago.

Such men are rare, but they exist. Toscanini, Walter, Koussevitsky, sometimes Stokowski, have the elements of greatness. Rodzinski has tremendous flair, Beecham has irrepressible buoyancy and a firm integrity, and Monteux is musical to his fingertips. Wherever these men control orchestras, the musical life of their chosen city will be alive and tingling with achievement.

Mr. Defauw may belong in their company, tho in his two Chicago concerts I have been unable to discern comparable qualities. Starting June 29, he will conduct four concerts at Ravinia, where distorted acoustics make music more brilliant than accurate, so the real test must be delayed until the new season opens next October at Orchestra hall. If it then turns out that I have underestimated Mr. Defauw, it will be a pleasure to present him with orchids, distinctly minus the mousetrap. For tho some doughty souls would rather be right than President, I'd rather be wrong than bored.

SOLOIST TUESDAY NIGHT

Ida Krehm, who will appear as soloist with the Chicago Business Men's orchestra at Orchestra hall Tuesday evening. Miss Krehm is a Canadian-born pianist who received much of her training in Chicago. She will play Franck's Symphonic Variations and Saint-Saens' Concerto in G Minor, under direction of George Dasch.

"Priorities of 1942" Finally Ends Long Run

That long-lived variety show, "Priorities of 1942," finally ended its career in Philadelphia not long ago. Lou Holtz, one of its stars, will spend the summer resting in Hollywood. Around Labor day he will appear in another vaudeville entertainment, sponsored by himself, Max Gordon, and A. L. Berman.

Derwent to Take Lead in "Inspector General"

Clarence Derwent, last seen in Chicago in Katharine Cornell's production of Shaw's "The Doctor's Dilemma," will undertake the leading rôle in Eugene S. Bryden's forthcoming revival of Gogol's "The Inspector General." Since his last Chicago appearance, Mr. Derwent has appeared in two plays in New York, "I Killed the Count" and "The Pirate."

Dorothy Dorben Shows Attain High Level of Merit

Her Present Revue in Marine Dining Room Gay and Colorful

By Will Davidson.

When, some years ago, President William Dewey of the Edgewater Beach hotel took Dorothy Bentler out of the line that had been dancing in the Marine dining room for many years and made her the producer of shows there he accomplished another of his many strokes of managerial genius.

Tommy Dorsey.

Miss Bentler was a dancer of superb talent. More, she had an understanding of dancing that enabled her to visualize new adaptations of dance forms that would appeal to such a varied, but uniformly selective audience as peoples the Marine room. Still more, she had a gay, amusing nature that projected her natural artistic bent in a perfectly delightful way. The combination was ideal.

Dorothy linked the first syllables of her two names into a stage name and became Dorothy Dorben. Today she's one of the most successful dance producers in the country. Her shows at the Edgewater Beach have attained a high level of artistic merit despite the necessity of presenting new routines frequently enough to satisfy the large percentage of permanent guests in the hotel. Now she is producing shows in a Dallas, Tex., hotel as well, and rumor has it that her efforts may soon become international.

The current show in the Marine dining room is a good example of what Dorothy can do. Not too strong on individual talent, it is superbly unified by her own dance routines. A tribute to Victor Herbert, it unites costume, dancing, and music in a colorful and refreshing picture. The first ensemble is a parade of Victor Herbert heroines, splendidly costumed. The second is a March of the Toys, a neat adaptation of the familiar doll dance routine. Another is a Dutch mill number, cute and pleasing.

The dancing of Liliane and Mario is fresh and charming, without being outstanding. These young people are especially good in their doll dance and toy soldier routines, done in collaboration with the Dorben line, and in their lively samba.

Beverly Kirk, prima donna of the show, has a rather disturbing tonal quality that may be partially microphone trouble, but she helps nicely to keynote the production.

Russ Morgan, of course, plays superbly; and altho his own orchestral contributions to the show have nothing to do with Herbert, who'll quibble when he's playing "Small Fry," and that stupendous arrangement of "Johnston Rag"?

• • •

Like Morgan, Tommy Dorsey comes from the Pennsylvania coal regions, and like Morgan he plays the trombone. From there on in take your pick. Tommy comes to the Trianon this Friday and Saturday, then moves to the Aragon for Sunday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of next week.

It seems that an uncorrected caption last Sunday confused the issue a bit about Lawrence Welk's return to the Trianon. I regret my error, altho I imagine most Welkin ringers knew Lawrence returned last weekend instead of this.

• • •

Tuesday is the 10th anniversary of the opening of the Empire room of the Palmer House as a dine, dance, and show room. It was on May 4, 1933, just before the debut of the Century of Progress exposition, that the sedate room was reborn without pipe organ or concert orchestra, but with an entertainment policy that has been followed consistently thru a decade. That policy has kept the Empire room at the top nationally, and not only has given the Palmer House the benefit of practically all the top notch entertainment names, but has created some names of its own. You can't toss around such brilliant ones as Veloz and Yolanda, Edgar Bergen, Dennis Morgan, Billy De Wolfe, Paul Draper, Freddy Martin, Griff Williams, Eddy Duchin, Hal Kemp, the Lombardos, and such without thinking of the Empire room. It's an enviable record, and congratulations are heartily in order.

• • •

Considerable comeback activity last week. Sally Rand returned to town Monday night with her fans, appearing at the Brown Derby. Stan Kenton made it a return engagement at the Panther room of the Hotel Sherman Thursday [he'll be here two weeks, followed by Tommy Dorsey], and Friday night Georgie Price came back as a singing comedian, in the suave atmosphere of the Mayfair room.

• • •

One of the old boys around town, musically speaking, is Emile Petti, the energetic and personable maestro of the Pump room. Emile's no greybeard, and he acts like a kid, but his musical career spans a long period, and when he sits at his piano during intermissions you get a whiff of nostalgia in the songs he caresses out of those keys. You've probably heard his albums of the '20s and '30s, and if so you'll know that Emile can play old songs in the way we used to hear them. Then he can turn around and give you a samba that'll raise your hair. Sometimes I'd like to choke him for those occasional fast society rhythms, but there seem to be enough customers who like them to warrant his playing in that disconcerting way.

Tommy Low, Emile's singer, is an amiable gent and quite an addition to the band. He and his boss have authored one of my favorite tunes, "Anything Your Heart Desires." It's swell.

Boswelling the Bistros:

Coincidence dept. Years ago Carson Donnelly booked orchestra leader Tweet Hogan into many a lush job. Now Pianist Donnelly is celebrating his first year on a job landed for him by Hogan, long since turned booker. It's at Isbell's Piccadilly. . . . Something of a record in a major café: Of the six acts originally advertised in support of Griff Williams' return to the Empire room of the Palmer House, three remain. Clair Omar Musser, vibraharpist, is the latest casualty. Merriel Abbott, just back from a strenuous experience seeing her army husband thru a grave illness, swears that never again will she open a show without being on hand to see the acts in rehearsal.

That show at the Blackhawk is Foster, faster, and funnier than any in a long time. . . . For fun, hear Rita Rizzio and Margaret Melby play and sing "The Whiffenpoof Song" and "Ferryboat Serenade" at Le Petit Gourmet. . . . The new attraction in the Frances Fayestival over at the Latin Quarter is Wally Wanger's line of models, replacing the Cheena De Simone dancers.

Just to beat Anna Sosenko to it, I report the phonetically acidulous nickname suggested for me in view of some dyspeptic reviews—Chopin.

NEW SINGING STAR

A new singing star in Chicago cafe circles is Connie Russell, who is featured with Romo Vincent and others in the excellent show now appearing at the Chez Paree.

Soundman Better Try Using His Own Head

Hollywood, Cal., (AP).—The sound man got it, but it wasn't Betty Hutton's fault. The gent with the dials was trying to duplicate the noise of a dresser drawer closing sharply. He suddenly jerked up, yelled, "That's it! Do it again!" "Nothing doing!" Betty yelled back. "Knock your own noggin against the mike!"

CLASSICAL RECORDINGS

That Artur Rodzinski makes good recordings is a demonstrable fact few collectors will deny. He uses Cleveland's Severance hall, which has acoustical brilliance, and he is a good drillmaster in that his Cleveland orchestra plays with clarity and precision. As he soon will be recording with the New York Philharmonic, temperament and the union permitting, his final Columbia albums with Cleveland group take on special interest.

Artur Rodzinski.

Two new ones feature Beethoven's Symphony No. 1, C major [M-535. Four 12 inch records] and Ravel's Rapsodie Espagnole [X234. Two 12 inch records] and the better you know the Polish conductor's work, the quicker you will guess how they rank. Both are clear, polished and lively in performance, but the Ravel is a Rodzinski natural. It displays his flair for the spectacular, his ability to turn a languorous phrase and bedazzle the ear with vivid accent. Manuel de Falla once said of Ravel, "he is more Spanish than the Spaniards," and this rhapsody is no work to dispute the claim. Written just before the witty opera, "L'Heure Espagnole," it is supple, inventive and instinctively Iberian. The orchestra plays it with verve, and there is brilliant work with English horn. If that is one of the players the conductor wants to take to New York, who can blame him?

With the Beethoven, Mr. Rodzinski invades what is for him a new record field. His performance is lucid, clean cut and often scintillant, particularly in the lightness and grace of the last movement. But it is small in scale, and while nothing can dwarf Beethoven, this conception lacks the excitement of true Beethoven stature which dwarfs almost everything else in music. The recording is excellent, except for one disconcerting break in continuity from side seven to eight.

• • •

One of Frederick Stock's last records for Columbia was the Chicago Symphony orchestra's 12 inch single of William Walton's Comedy Overture, "Scapino," written for the orchestra's golden jubilee during the bombing of London when the composer was driving an ambulance. This is buoyant escapist music stemming back to stock figures in the Commedia dell'arte, full of bustle and life, with a soothing interlude for cello. The performance glitters like a mass duel of orchestral rapiers. . . . Jaromir Weinberger never manages to rival his own "Schwanda," but his Czech Rhapsody is a full throated, warm hearted piece of music with invasions of folk tunes and recollections of "Under the Spreading Chestnut Tree." It is admirably played on a Victor 12 inch, by Hans Kindler and the National Symphony orchestra. . . . Bidu Sayao's birdlike soprano takes over a Columbia 12 inch for "Ah! fors' è lui" and "Sempre libera" from Verdi's "La Traviata," with orchestra under the direction of Erich Leinsdorf. Her singing is true and brilliant, with exceptionally fluid vocalization.—C. C.

THE LITERARY SPOTLIGHT

by Fanny Butcher

THE most talked about—and purchased—book of our day draws any literary spotlight to itself. Wendell Willkie's 86 page record of his 49 days around the world, published on April 8, had in three weeks sold more than 400,000 copies. When it was out of print for some days it was booklegged to readers, who upped their demands for it to the extent that four sets of plates were put into service on a round-the-clock printing schedule. To date 650,000 copies have been sold. Arrangements already have been made for it to appear in Swedish, Spanish, Portugese, and German, under the imprint of L. B. Fischer Verlag, publisher in exile in Switzerland. The British book rights are all settled with Cassell & Co. of London and newspaper serial rights have been sold for the British empire to the London Daily Telegraph.

A set of autographed galley proofs—just galley proofs, mind you—were auctioned off at a New York bond selling rally for $100,000. The original mss. of "One World" has been turned over to the Library of Congress. And all the royalties from its sale are, by its author's instructions, being turned over to the American Red Cross, United China Relief, British War Relief, and Russian War Relief.

A Natural for Mr. Rooney.

A literary success story closer to home is that of a first book, "Yesterday's Children," by LaMar Warrick, a charming, simple, amusing record of the Jim Weavers of a Chicago suburb . . . called "Elmwood," but which it takes no Dr. Watson to label Evanston. Officially published April 27, it was—so a letter from its publisher, Bob Crowell, dated April 20, informed me—"sold yesterday afternoon to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer." And a news release from Hollywood says: "It is understood it will serve as a vehicle for Mickey Rooney." It is, it will be obvious to any reader, a natural for that young man.

LaMar Warrick is assistant to Baker Brownell of the department of contemporary thought at Northwestern university. She is also the Doris Weaver of "Yesterday's Children," Randy's delightful and human mother, a sort of local Mrs. Miniver, who watches war come with steady, understanding eyes.

A Runner-up for Mr. Cobb.

The young of the Irvin Cobb household was here recently. . . . Elizabeth Cobb, who insists that she looks just like her father. In no stage of his ups and downs on the scales has he ever had the sylph-like figure that "Buffy" has. And even if he never looked as if he, like that other outsize gentleman, William Jennings Bryan, had his suits made by the Amalgamated Tent and Awning company, at his sartorial slickest he never rivaled Buffy. He has certainly a runner-up in the story telling business in his daughter. Like him, she can keep a room howling with glee . . . as she did at a lecture at the Woman's Athletic club . . . one howler after another.

She's a dramatic young woman, Buffy Cobb . . . with memories of meeting the great of life and letters from the time when, as almost a baby, she made a tremendous impression upon Arnold Bennett. . . . He was dining with her parents and before dinner she was taken in, all cozy in her nightie, to be shown off to the great man. The conversation took a turn, as it often does before the young, into the realms of spelling words out and, while Mr. Bennett held her in his arms, she scowled at him, and at her family, and said with firmness, "The trouble with this family is that it is too damned well educated."

A Visit with Mr. Wells.

She told the slightly astonished ladies that story as only a preliminary to her contact with the great . . . among them, H. G. Wells who, she said, once took her around the beautiful new house which he had built in London. She noticed that there were two very handsome bedrooms on the second floor overlooking the garden, and when they reached the third floor Mr. Wells opened the door to a small room and said: "And here is my bedroom." "But why haven't you those lovely rooms downstairs?" she asked him. "O, they belong to my housemaid and my cook, who have been with me for 20 years," he said. "That's pretty unusual, isn't it?" she asked him; "in most London houses the servants have a hole in the wall." "Yes," he answered, "that's why mine haven't. My mother was a cook in a London house."

Arthur Meeker Jr. dropped in for a dash of tea that afternoon to see "Buffy" Cobb and to reminisce about Florence, Italy, in its days of emigre social glory. . . . And they laughed grimly over a famous old American who is now lost in the mysteries of Florence because she always insisted on calling herself 20 years younger than she was, and when she tried to get out of Italy the authorities wouldn't believe that she and her passport were mates.

The State of Publishing Business.

That same noon Mr. Meeker had just relinquished the presidency of the Midland Authors to Mary Hastings Bradley for next year . . . at a luncheon meeting of the society at which John Storm, western representative of the Houghton Mifflin company, Boston publisher, was guest of honor.

John Storm answered with frankness some very pointed questions about the state of the publishing business. He said that juveniles were being shelved until the fall of 1944 . . . that more books are being sold now than ever before . . . actually being sold; not only read . . . that there is a new interest in horror stories . . . escape reading . . . escape into fake horrors from real horrors . . . that the old-fashioned love story seems to be dead.

To which Margaret Ayer Barnes said that the relationship of a man, a woman, and a child remains the fundamental human relationship, but that stories about that relationship are not so popular now because what happens to an individual seems no longer to count in relation to the world tragedy. . . . Reminded me of that unforgettable French novel of the first World war by Rene Boylesve . . . "Tu n'es Plus Rien," which was translated as "You No Longer Count."

John Storm said that a great book could be written, he felt, in the story of the home front . . . a comprehensive and understanding novel about the American family as it is affected by the war. . . . Well, there's our local "Yesterday's Children."

Reader Lifted Above Cares by 'The Hill'

"THE HILL," by David Greenhood. [Duell, Sloan & Pearce, $2.75.]

If your life is routine and you're fed up with it—if you get up by alarm clock at the same hour each morning, eat the same breakfast, take the same bus to work, do the same things with the same people all day, and return home by the same route each evening — "The Hill" is a book for you.

This first volume by David Greenhood cannot rightly be called a novel. It is, rather, a series of character sketches. Haphazard may be the word for it. But locale, characters, the whole irresponsible community of Wabash Hill in the mountains near San Francisco, develop in the first few pages a charm which proves irresistible.

We are assured in the author's foreword that the ghost town and its characters are all wholly imaginary. Were they an actual record of the narrator's supposed ride to elude insomnia, out of San Francisco in a fog in a stripped-down flivver which climbs and climbs until, for lack of a fanbelt, he is forced to stop on a remote promontory where daybreak reveals the old mining village —this writing would still be remarkable. That the whole fantastic setup is the product of a fertile imagination makes it a genuine achievement.

Nobody on "The Hill" does anything on schedule, unless we except the man who brings in the mail each day. There is no telephone in the community, and no electricity. Walt, the innkeeper, is such only because the room he wanted happened to be in an abandoned hotel. There was a dining room, kitchen, bar, and grand ballroom—this last still decorated with faded crêpepaper festoons remaining from the glory years—so, having taken over, he automatically found himself operating a hostelry.

In the fair widow, Jonquil, who doubles as storekeeper and postmistress—in Ma Wong, the Chinese centegenarian, and Bob Kelvie, "unconfirmed bachelor"—in Blackie and Jerry Winddem and Jan Konopa, Greenhood has given us people as real as the neighbors next door.

The Great South: Its Valor and Turbulences Explained

"THE FIGHTING SOUTH," by John Temple Graves. [Putnam, $2.75.]

Reviewed by Kenneth C. Kaufman.

Any book which helps explain one region of the United States to the rest is a good book. This one is the work of a southerner, a collateral descendant of John C. Calhoun, grandson of a Confederate general, son of a southern gentleman to whom chivalry and gentleness were a light to live by. But this southerner was educated in the north, worked on New York papers, served in World War I. and on the American peace commission, and later edited three southern newspapers. He is now a syndicated columnist on the Birmingham Age-Herald.

The Gallup poll of October, 1941, showed the country as a whole voting 70 to 30 for attacking Hitler; the south, 89 to 11. Voluntary enlistments of southern boys before selective service were strikingly higher than in other parts of the country. This fighting attitude is due, Mr. Graves believes, not so much to the oft discussed poverty of the south as to the tendency on the part of southerners to aspire to more wealth. It is also due to the fighting tradition, to the close bonds which have always linked the south with England, to an ideology of chivalry and valor, to the fact that the south has long been inured to danger and has carried a chip on its shoulder.

But this is no mere inquiry into why the spurs on the southern rooster are so sharp; it is a study of the south as the mirror, the focus of our entire national life. For the problem region of America is also the region of promise, the greatest reservoir of potential consumers we have. And more customers will be the crying need of American economics after the war. The social-economic health of the whole will depend upon the health of all its parts.

The south is a land of violent contrasts. Terrific energy prevails within shouting distance of Tobacco Road degeneracy. Southerners are touchy on the subject of race segregation [Mr. Graves calls it not an argument but a major premise], but they love Negroes; they are opposed to labor unions, but relations of employer and employé are most cordial; the south is definitely anti-fascist, yet fascistic organizations have flourished often. It makes a religion of lawfulness, yet lynchings frequently flout the essence of law.

Mr. Graves is calm and judicial on the race question. He quotes liberally from letters he has received assailing or upholding his stand, letters written by Negroes as well as whites. He quotes statistics to show that the lot of the black man has improved enormously within the last two decades.

The book is not an integrated whole; as a columnist, Mr. Graves finds grist in everything. He reminisces, tells anecdotes, talks politics, defends the beauty of the natural landscape as against the dirt daubers, maintains the superiority of southern feminine pulchritude, makes gentle fun of southern foibles, urbanely demolishes national prejudices. On occasion he rises to lyrical heights and impassioned oratory. His prose is beautiful, clear, and resonant. He is a fair, seasoned, reasoned, well informed, courteous, and moving commentator. It will pay to listen to him.

This Mystery Catapulted by Poison Death

"FALSE ALARM," by Manning Long. [Duell, Sloan & Pearce, $2.]

Reviewed by Drexel Drake.

When Cassandra Colling crossed from her side of the dead end street in New York's upper East Side to join, and, more than that, to dominate the hitherto smoothly operating air raid wardens post C-21, she brought trouble. Liz Parrott, who narrates this story with savory detail and succulent episodes, saw it coming from the beginning. Cassandra's husband was not only a bank president but also zone commander, but the roster of post C-21 included younger men upon whom Cassandra's curves and oriental perfume worked so unmistakably that soon two or three inter-post romances were split wide open. In fact, Cassandra had become thoroly despised by the women and maudlinly worshiped by the men by the time she dropped dead mysteriously at the Easter tea which was her own planning.

Naturally there are many suspects, not to omit the lady's husband. There had been those fake air raid alarms, and the gossip was that somebody must have been trying to find somebody in somebody's apartment. At any rate, Cassandra's death from poison presented a puzzle that wasn't easily solved. The author does a splendid job developing the tense situation that sets the stage for the murder.

"TO CATCH A THIEF," by Daphne Sanders. [Dial Press, $2.]

John Moon is a young man who can affect facial disguises that his closest associates fail to penetrate. He can impersonate a maid successfully. He engages in a deftly planned exploit of vengeance by pilfering fabulously valuable jewels from each of seven men who, in days past, operated a crooked stock market syndicate and became wealthy.

Moon even gets help from the pretty daughter of one of his victims, all of whom retain Detective Donovan to catch the thief. Moon's work moves smoothly until some other mysterious derelict begins a series of murders that have the appearance of being tied up with the thefts. But Moon is no murderer, so he takes on the job of solving that angle for Donovan. If this outline leaves you dizzy the story will leave you dizzier. A vast cast complicates the puzzle, but it's fast moving diversion.

"DEATH LOVES A SHINING MARK," by Anne Hocking. [Doubleday, Doran, $2.]

Maj. William Austen, abandoning Scotland Yard for the army, thought he definitely had left police work behind as he assumed GHQ duties in Cairo. But almost immediately he was giving every bit of spare time to prove that the death of Flavia Barry, beautiful but shockingly misbehaved member of the European set, was not suicide by drowning.

That wasn't an easy task. Flavia's numerous lovers, some discarded, made it complicated. Singling out the murderer was even more difficult. Egypt's war time background adds color to the story.

Story Teller of Ghetto and His Honesty

"THE WORLD OF SHOLOM ALEICHEM," by Maurice Samuel. [Knopf, $3.]

Reviewed by Dr. Felix A. Levy.

Sholom Aleichem was the story teller of the life of the ghetto of eastern Europe, where the Jews, secluded from the influence of the larger world outside them, led an old, peculiar and specially "spicy" existence, different from that of any other people on earth. Their descendants have scattered all over the world, many of them living in the Jewish quarters of our American cities, still practicing some of the old folkways and still speaking after a fashion, the Yiddish dialect of the European pale of settlement. Some of them—a later generation—have completely forgotten the old life with its idiosyncracies of thought and behavior.

• • •

In other words, Sholom Aleichem performed not only the romancer's task but actually gave us a picture of a culture which has now been destroyed. The acids of modernity, the two global wars that swept over Poland and Russia, the new political order between these world conflicts, all but erased what was the typical life of six million Jews. Their life was unsophisticate, circumscribed by religious traditions and authority, poverty stricken, yet had its facets of beauty in the purity of its ethics, its highly moral family life, its sense of community, its respect for learning, and its uncompromisingness with innovation.

Sholom Aleichem, with the mastery of Mark Twain with whom he is always compared, describes this Jewish corner of the world, with all its comedy and tragedy, its heroism and cowardice, its virtues and its vices [very few great ones] in his many works, without, however, the bitterness of his American prototype, and with a greater love and tenderness for his unforgettable characters — rabbis, shopkeepers, farmers, beggars, beadles, sharpers—all simple people as vivid and unforgettable as Tom Sawyer.

• • •

Maurice Samuel has done something unusual in his way of presenting to us the original he translates into English. He gives us a distilled essence of the Yiddish scribe by actual transcription or by condensed sketches, himself writing the links between the episodes. He thus presents a complete whole that is worthy of the documents penned in the "uncouth" and unplastic "jargon" by which name the folktongue of the Jews is known even to themselves. Thanks to Maurice Samuel's fine literary skill, Sholom Aleichem in English still carries its racy tang and holds its charm. This chronicle of a world passed by awakens nostalgia for its return in the heart of the sympathetic reader, and regret that such beauty and flavor must vanish. Just as the embalmed mummy in a museum tells the tale of the civilization of ancient Egypt, so this book preserves the remains of an old and lovely culture.

This Endearingly Frank Tale Has Evanston as Its Locale

"YESTERDAY'S CHILDREN," by LaMar Warrick. [Crowell, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Kenneth Horan.

There's never been a time in the history of the world when our youth bore so heavy a task. "Go forth and conquer and God bless you," is their valedictory as they round out their years of schooling and of play.

"Yesterday's Children" is a sincere and a detailed story—a series of sketches really—of a typical well-to-do family and their life in a Chicago suburb. Their hopes and fears are centered in their only child, and the fact that he has no brothers and sisters intensifies the problem; tho, even if there were a dozen of them, the Weavers would do their level best to make good citizens of their progeny. Well, Randy Weaver's a regular fellow, the kind that fills our public schools and makes them so important a part of the American scene. His father's a regular fellow, too, and wants his son to meet life squarely. So does his mother. Randy's own ambition is to be one of those guys that nobody considers in any way extraordinary, just one of the fellows.

So here's a blow by blow account of how Randy, a thoroly likable kid, grew up. It's a wonder that he did, with all the worrying that went on about him. He wasn't especially good in ancient history or Bible, but he made his favorite fraternity, he went to California with some classmates in a jalopy, he had a best girl, he was president of his class in high school—and here the Evanston Township High school should take a bow as the backdrop for this drama of adolescence. It shines forth, the cradle of North Shore democracy, the parthenon of collegiate purpose!

Randy finally went to college, and the prayers of two God-fearing people, his parents, went with him—all the way. They are such real parents, wanting so terribly to help him attain the goals that seem right to them. And Randy leaves home to discover his own destiny.

And this is the quality that makes this family epic distinctive. It pulls no punches. The youngster shines thru, a clear-eyed kid, who knows what it's all about a good deal better than does the older generation. He doesn't mind having his mental temperature taken every hour. He crashes thru, and no amount of mothering spoils him. He's a regular American boy.

In this pleasantly conceived and executed narrative there are glimpses of suburbia that will send the shivers down many an Evanston spine. One, for instance, of the elderly literary lady, puffing along on her bicycle, is not too heartwarming, especially as she is given the unmistakable and Irish characteristics of your humble servant. But these things are only incidents in a tale of endearing frankness.

• • •

Many stories have been written of the young in process of development. Dorothy Aldis contributed a charming one, last year, about a particularly dazzling junior miss, who was her daughter. But none has been as passionately maternal as is Randy's mother's. Stevenson, even, gave us an exquisite story of youth in "Virginibus Puerisque." But in few has there been a martial air at the end of the chapter. The hero of "Yesterday's Children," young Randy, drops his life midstream, like hundreds of thousands of our boys, only to find it again in his country's service. In the hands of such lies the hope of the world. And any one whose boy is as modest, as brave, as forthright as Randy Weaver has no need to fear for the future of democracy.

Able Novel of Hospital Life in War Time

"NIGHT DUTY," by John Stuart Arey. [Doubleday, Doran, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Edith Weigle.

The publishers of this novel say that it is the first story of hospital life to come out of war time London, and that it is written from first hand experience. It certainly has an authentic ring. The huge, antiquated building, with it towers and turrets, its labyrinthine wards, "common rooms," operating theaters, students' quarters, out patients' department and residents' chambers, is a busy, smoothly running world in itself, and its personnel of managing Sisters, doctors, internes, nurses, stretcher bearers and clerks make up its inhabitants.

The patients who come and go, the air raid casualties, and all the various sick are the centers about which the hospital world revolves. The author shows you all sides of this picture and makes of each character a real person, so that you see not only the calm, swiftly and deftly functioning doctor, but the man, as well: the inner person with his strong emotions, his ambitions and desires.

• • •

There is young Dwight Carron, for example, who thinks of himself as "alien," because he doesn't really belong in England, yet was no happier in his own environment in New Mexico. His emotional turmoil is felt by the nurse, Kay Gordon, who is herself restless and unhappy, not knowing whether she actually wants to devote herself to her profession, wondering if she is in love with the American.

Two other internes, Jon Adair and Peter Fortescue, are also masking inner uncertainty with an outward confidence. And more than one nurse reaches a state of middle aged acerbity because she let love go by, years before, in concentrating on hospital routine.

On the other hand there is Dr. Fitzpatrick, who looks at life thru philosophic eyes and amuses himself with gramophone records; there is Dr. Clayborne, whose son is with the British flyers, and whose wife is working as selflessly as he for victory, and there is Simson, who in the midst of World War II. can bury himself in antique medical books and find relaxation in their quaint and recondite phraseology.

There is little plot to the story—little mechanical plot. The action is all in the lives and emotions, the frustrations and longings, the inner tragedies and comedies of the men and women in the hospital world. Tension mounts slowly when a patient—old Mrs. Gwyneth Evans, who is given to "second sight"—predicts imminent disaster from an air raid, even telling the number who will die.

This foreshadowing, an old device in fiction and drama, is still effective. The ensuing description of the bombing attack and the holocaust to the hospital is unforgettable. Mr. Arey writes with skill and maturity.

Sound Effects.

HOLLYWOOD (AP). — Since real chinaware is getting to be too expensive to use for sound effects in off-scene dish dropping episodes, Hollywood studios find that a white hot iron, when thrust into a pail of ice water, produces a sound that does just dandy.

"SHE HAS WHAT IT TAKES"

Jinx Falkenburg has what it takes to make a pretty picture—and she's featured in a movie called "She Has What It Takes." (Oriental.)

Studio Builds Trees in Ground to Save Money

HOLLYWOOD, Cal. (AP).—Neatest money saving trick of the week! Instead of building a two story house just to show Ingrid Bergman sitting in her upstairs boudoir gazing wistfully out thru the tops of two magnolia trees, her studio constructed the room on the ground floor of a stage and placed the trees in a deep excavation outside so just the tops were visible thru the window.

Eugenie Leontovich at Work on New Musical

Having scored a great success as a playwright with "Dark Eyes," Eugenie Leontovich is now working on the book of a "nonpolitical" musical comedy. To be produced next season, the script deals with subject matter familiar to the Russian-American actress, for she says of it that "the new Russia and the new United States, the caprices and whims of their nationals will be amusingly juxtaposed."

Bing Crosby Corp. Needs Warehouse for All Those Pipes

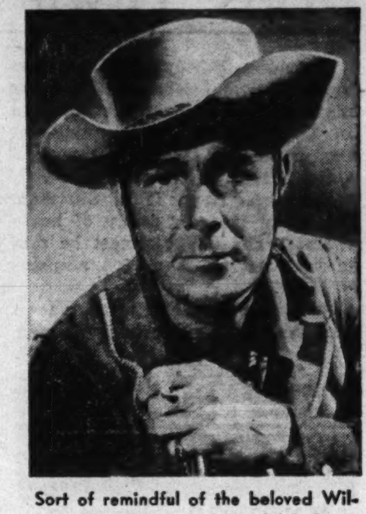
HOLLYWOOD (AP).—The Spokane Athletic Round Table, which began the "Bundles for Congressmen" drive, has found a new gag. It started when Bing Crosby's Toluca Lake home burned.

Since Bing hails from Spokane, it was a natural. So was the fact that all of Crosby's pipes were cremated in the fire.

The offices of the Crosby corporation on Sunset boulevard are now crammed to the doors with pipes, and the pile is growing daily. People from all over Washington are sending the things, and the movement is spreading to other states.

If the gag keeps up, the corporation is going to have to rent a warehouse.

DESPERADO



Sort of remindful of the beloved William S. Hart, isn't he? Randolph Scott, of course, and you can see him in "The Desperadoes."

Actor Finds Key to Puzzle by Scrapping All His Locks

HOLLYWOOD (AP).—Kent Taylor has had all the locks removed from the inside of his home—for a good reason.

The other day he arrived from work to find the police and fire departments on his front lawn. His wife was nearly hysterical.

The excitement was caused by his 2½ year old son, Buster, who had locked himself in the bathroom and calmly refused to come out for two hours.

But no more. No locks.

CHICAGO Movies SUBURBAN

This Town Called Hollywood . . . .

By Philip Scheuer

Hopalong Cassidy's "golden anniversary" was celebrated the other night with hi-jinks at the big barn in Shermanville. Shermanville is the permanent western town located in the heart of Hollywood. It is named for Harry [Pop] Sherman, the white haired "daddy of horse operas," who might almost be said to be observing a golden anniversary too.

Nothing makes Pop madder than the term "horse opera." He has been in show business [including sports] most of his life, and he'll tell you that westerns are the greatest entertainment of them all, and it's beneath no man's dignity to make 'em. Pop's been making 'em for exactly 25 years and hasn't lost his dignity yet. [The perennial cigar and the soft hat worn at rakish angles don't count.] Pop brought Zane Grey to the screen in 1918 with "The Light of Western Stars," starring Dustin Farnum—and has been at it, whenever he could raise the dough, ever since.

"I bought all Grey's stories for $500 apiece," he recalled, "made three or four, and sold the rest for big money." He had gone thru at least two fortunes and was down on his luck when Paramount finally agreed to stake him to a "Hopalong Cassidy" movie, the rights to which Pop had farsightedly negotiated with author Clarence E. Mulford seven years earlier.

That was nine years ago. Last week the fifteenth "Hoppy" rolled off the assembly line—and the end is nowhere in view.

• • •

"Hopalong Cassidy" is the longest continuous series on record. The title rôle is played by William Boyd, who also was on his uppers, or nearly, when Pop hired him for the first picture. Now Boyd does six "Hoppys" a year, each one in two weeks or less, and for his 12 weeks stint is paid approximately $200,000. Most of the exteriors are filmed at Lone Pine and Kernville, Cal., and it is not uncommon, especially since rationing, to have two "Hoppys" in work at once. The average cost of each is $95,000.

Pop makes other films, "special," like "Silver Queen" and "American Empire," periodically as well. These cost four or five times as much. The biggest one yet will be "Buffalo Bill," which he is to produce with 20th Century-Fox coin—maybe $2,000,000 of it—almost at once.

Marathon bike rider, boxer, fight manager and athletic club owner, the Boston born Sherman slipped naturally into show business—which, like sports, appealed to his gambling instinct. From theater usher he rose to part ownership of the Sullivan-Considine vaudeville circuit, but the infant movies soon claimed his greater interest. ["I saw 'em coming."] Operating several independent theaters and exchanges in the middle west, he crossed the Rockies in search of more film. That was in 1913.

Hollywood, the last frontier, fascinated Sherman. He came again. Two men, D. W. Griffith and W. H. Clune, needed $10,000 to finish a picture and Sherman, after a look at what they had, decided to advance it. In return he received distribution rights for Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Nebraska and the two Dakotas—and an option on all the states except Texas and California west of the Mississippi. "They suddenly delivered 10 prints C. O. D.—$90,000," Pop chuckled. "I had a hard time raising it, too."

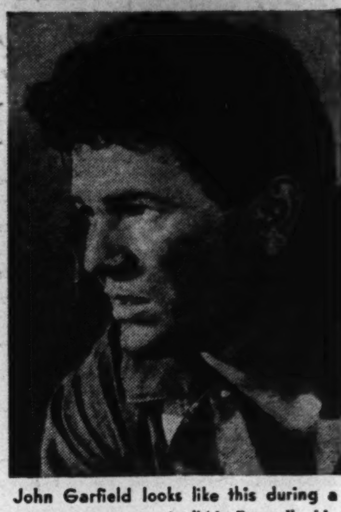
But the investment paid off. The picture, filmed at a total cost of $134,000, was "The Birth of a Nation," and Pop had his first million.

• • •

He was in on other historic deals. "Eight of us met at the old Hotel Knickerbocker in New York and put up $200 apiece to organize a new company. I got the midwest franchise; the others, among them L. B. Mayer and Sol Lesser, took different sections," Pop said. "We called ourselves Metro."

Later he sold his interest, and has continued more or less independently ever since. He prefers it that way; the opportunities are as great today, he says, as they ever were. Pop's still a gambler at heart—but a shrewd one.

AIR GUNNER



John Garfield looks like this during a momentous scene in "Air Force." He plays Sergeant Winocki, gunner aboard the Mary Ann, a B-17 bomber. (State-Lake).

BOOKS ALIVE

by Vincent Starrett

THE recent death of J. P. Morgan, the financier, recalls his princely gift to the American public, in 1924, when the great library begun by his father, J. Pierpont Morgan—Morgan the Magnificent—was made the property of the people of New York. It recalls also the curious scandal, if that is the word, that arose out of the circumstance, when Edward Laroque Tinker published an article making the astounding accusation that certain unique historical material had been destroyed by the library authorities on the ground that it was indelicate.

As Mr. Tinker told the story, he had gone to the library to see some manuscripts of Lafcadio Hearn, only to discover that some of those supposed to be in the Morgan collection had been destroyed a number of years before. He expressed his horror at what he considered an act of ultra-vandalism, and was told by the librarian, Miss Belle Greene, that she herself had destroyed certain letters of George Washington in the very room in which they stood.

"They were smutty, too," Tinker quoted her as saying, "so I did not want them ever to become public and destroy the ideal of Washington that has flourished so long." The only question involved, she asserted, was whether the library could afford to pay the price of the items involved, then destroy its investment. "We could and we did," she concluded.

Many Famous Manuscripts There.

The episode was a cause célèbre for a time and gallons of ink were spilled in discussion of the question involved: the right of private owners to destroy material of historical interest. The whole problem of the ethics of suppression was aired, including, as a side issue, the right of a biographer to suppress awkward facts in the life of his subject.

Whatever may have been destroyed, the Morgan remains one of the great libraries of the world. Among its unique treasures are the original manuscripts of Dickens' "Christmas Carol," chapters of Scott's "Ivanhoe," Lamb's famous "Dissertation Upon Roast Pig," Thackeray's "Vanity Fair," and Stevenson's "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." At the time of the gift, the younger Morgan told reporters that these and other treasures were referred to in the family circle as the "O, my! stuff," because of the inevitable remark made by visitors when shown the famous relics. The piece this department would like to snitch, when that cautious librarian isn't looking, is the warrant issued for the arrest of John Bunyan at Bedford on March 4, 1674.

The Things That Make an Author.

One has no notion to what extent Dan Beard's "American Boy's Handy Book" and the "Boston Cooking School Cook Book," by Fannie Merritt Farmer, have influenced the writing of John Erskine—a subject for a doctoral thesis perhaps—but there is no doubt about their influence on his life. With other standard volumes of exegesis and exposition, among them the "Summa Theologica" of St. Thomas Aquinas, Plato's "Republic," Santayana's "Reason in Society," "How to Become a Good Dancer," by Arthur Murray, "Playing the Piano for Pleasure," by Charles Cooke, Hakluyt's "Voyages," Plutarch's "Lives," Montaigne's "Essays," and Eliot O'Hara's "Making Water Colors Behave"—they are part of the extraordinary bibliography compiled by Prof. Erskine to round out his new volume, "The Complete Life" [Julian Messner, Inc.].

This is an astonishing book by an astonishing man, and the light tone of this note is no index of its interest. Where else, between one set of covers, will you find a reasoned philosophy of religion, a simple course in the art of writing, an appreciation of Handel's choruses [and Jerome Kern's "Show Boat"], a disquisition on carpentering in the home, and intimate directions for the creation of an omelette?

All things have been fascinating to the versatile professor—conversation, manners, politics, love and parenthood also are in the catalog of experience—who is cook, carpenter, pianist, water colorist, novelist and educator. All have gone into the "complete life" he has fashioned for himself and now amiably urges on others. "Merely to sit by the roadside and smile at the enthusiasms or applaud the conduct of others," he epigrammatically observes, "is an occupation for ghosts."

Woes of Mystery Writers.

In no other field of fiction is it more imperative to avoid error than the mystery story field. It is the difficulty of the police romance, as Stevenson once remarked, "that the reader is always a man of such vastly greater ingenuity than the writer." Certain it is that hundreds of ferocious readers habitually lie in wait for the product of mild-mannered mystery mongers, eager to pounce on their most innocent mistakes—and publicize them, too.

Anthony Boucher, writing in the San Francisco Chronicle, notes an instance to the contrary, however. His "Case of the Seven Sneezes," a whodunit, was printed, bound and sent forth into the world with the blessing of agents, editors, proofreaders and publishers, and no letter from any reader ever came to Mr. Boucher to mar the felicity of his rest. It remained for his father-in-law to discover, with a shock of horror, that the author had the Lusitania sailing the wrong way. Presumably they discussed the matter in private and decided that public confession by Mr. Boucher was the only way out.

In extenuation of his venial slip, Mr. Boucher points out that Mabel Seeley made a bigger bloomer in her "Eleven Came Back." One of her situations has to do with a young man who was once a Presidential candidate. This was in 1935, and the young man was in his twenties at the time. Required reading for Miss Seeley and for the Crime club, Mr. Boucher thinks, is the Constitution of the United States, Art. II., Sec. 1, Par. 5.

On Reading Undecipherable Mail.

Your commentator passes along a useful discovery not altogether unconnected with literature: To read an indecipherable letter, keep it on the mantel or bookcase, at eye level, for several days. Coming at it suddenly and unexpectedly, from time to time, and from different angles, you will get one of the words that bother you, at nearly every approach, and ultimately, with luck, you may read the whole letter.

The Life and Achievements of Churchill's American Mother

"YOUNG LADY RANDOLPH: The Life and Times of Jennie Jerome, American Mother of Winston Churchill," by Rene Kraus. [Putnam, $3.50.]

Reviewed by Robert Penn Warren.

Leonard Jerome began life as a farm boy in Onanda county, New York. He died in England, where he had gone to be reunited with his family, his three daughters, who had made distinguished English marriages, and his wife, who had, many years before, moved to Paris because of his attentions to the singer Adelina Patti. Between Onanda county and the deathbed, Leonard Jerome had been a publisher, a consul to Trieste, a Wall street speculator [during the Civil war he gave great sums to war charities and other patriotic causes, and kept a staff of agents with the armies to provide him with military information for use on the Street], a man of fashion and bon vivant and sportsman. He was also the grandfather of Winston Churchill, for one daughter had married Randolph Churchill, son of the Duke of Marlborough. "Young Lady Randolph" is the story of the life of that daughter.

The story begins in New York, which the Prince of Wales visited in 1860, when Jennie was 10 years old—too young to go to the ball in his honor. She was not to dance with him until many years later. Then there is the period in Paris, where Mrs. Jerome had gone with the official excuse of seeing her doctor and giving her daughters the "French finishing touch," and where Jennie was favored by the Empress Eugénie and remained to see the collapse of the empire and the siege of Paris.

• • •

The English period begins when the Jeromes flee France. At a ball at Cowes, given in honor of the Tsarevitch, Jennie meets Lord Randolph Churchill. It was a case of love at first sight for both, but certain family difficulties remained to be smoothed out before the marriage could be arranged. The rest of the story is concerned with Jennie Jerome's conquest of English society, her achievements as a sportswoman, her contacts with the great of England and of the continent, her devoted and cunning labors for her husband's political career, and her services to the causes of the arts, of the reform of female fashions, of philanthropy, and of better Anglo-American relations.

The trouble is that we have no center for the story. In the first place, the heroine remains little more than a name for the reader. We are given to understand that she is beautiful [this fact is amply documented by a number of photographs], witty [a few anecdotes document this somewhat less satisfactorily], cultivated, intelligent, and charming. But all of this adds up to exactly nothing, for we never get the sense of the person who possesses these qualities.

• • •

In one way we cannot blame the biographer for this; he may be dealing with a subject for whom the essential evidence on this point is lacking. In the second place, the story has no central issue, no dramatic question, no problem, no focus. Again, we cannot blame the biographer for this; some dramas remain secret. But we can blame him for failing to give us a clear sense of the world thru which the subject moved. We have a maze of trivial events and great names, the chronicle of political and social maneuvers, with the issues and stakes not quite defined.

As for the style, it may be said that the pedestrian competence sometimes rises to a sprightly fatuousness and sometimes sinks to the reverential meticulousness of the society page.

IF YOU WEAR GLASSES, if you'd like to see better... you'll certainly want to read

By Aldous Huxley

ALDOUS HUXLEY wrote every word of this book from his own experience. At 16, he was brought close to blindness. As time went on, his sight grew worse instead of better. In 1939, when his sight threatened complete failure, this world-famous author learned a method of visual re-education. Within two months, he was reading without spectacles, without strain or fatigue. Today he feels he has rediscovered "the art of seeing", and now he tells exactly what he did to accomplish it. Clearly, simply, in non-technical language, he describes exercises, allays fears, gives rules for reading, etc. If you're troubled about your eyes, or know someone who is, use the coupon at once. Last Man Off Wake Recounts Heroic Saga of Its Defense

"LAST MAN OFF WAKE ISLAND," by Lt. Col. Walter L. J. Bayler. [Bobbs-Merrill, $2.75.]

Reviewed by Arthur Frederic Otis.

They never doubted that they would be relieved. Their faith in the government they had sworn to defend was not shaken by the unexplained delay in sending reënforcements. Each day the diminishing garrison of Wake Island would wait grimly for the "Tojo Express"—the 27 Japanese bombers making their scheduled raid from a base in the Marshall Islands 500 miles away.

And each day, after the raid, they would climb out of their foxholes, bury their dead, move the anti-aircraft batteries again, and carry on.

In this magnificent first-person account, Bayler and Cecil Carnes, to whom the story is told, have done an imperishable job of recording for all generations to come, the never-to-be-forgotten story of those grinning, fighting, unbeatable marines who waged a hopeless battle against overwhelming odds from Dec. 7 to Dec. 22, 1941. Unbeatable? Yes! The Japs finally swarmed in and took Wake, took prisoner the few survivors—but those marines were never beaten!

• • •

There is a thrill in every page of this blood stirring narrative. Perhaps it reaches its peak in the first naval attack, when Jimmy Devereux, canny artillery man that he was, held the fire of his 5-inchers until the enemy ships were well within range, then proceeded to sink a gunboat and two destroyers in a matter of brief minutes.

You'll find as much holy exaltation in the spirit with which these things were done as in the actual doing. As when, during this attack, Tharin and Elrod ask Maj. Putnam for permission to take their battered Grumman Wildcats up to bomb—with 100 pound bombs—the cruiser that stayed back out of range of Wake's tiny battery.

Permission granted, one pilot reminds the other that it is said to be impossible to sink a capital ship with small bombs. And the other replies, "O, yeah? Well, if it's impossible, it'll take a little longer, so let's get started!" And so, returning each time for more bombs, those two lads made four flights over the cruiser, and came back to tell of her sinking!

They're all in the story—Devereux and Putnam, Elrod and Tharin, Spider Webb and Sergt. Arthur, Davidson and Cunningham and Teeters, who was head of the civilian construction project, and performed miracles in maintaining morale and aiding the defenders with every means at his disposal.

• • •

Because Bayler was a communications officer who came to Wake under orders to complete his radio work there and "proceed by first available transport to Midway," he left Wake Island on the morning of Dec. 21, 36 hours before the Japs captured it. At the time he left, on a navy patrol plane, he and the men he left behind were still confident that help was on the way—he "knew all would go well with Wake Island." The italics are his.

This story occupies only a third of the book. The sections on Midway and Guadalcanal are equally worth reading. But Wake is the story to be remembered, the story people will buy the book to get.

There are many photographs, and maps of each of the three islands—Wake, Midway, Guadalcanal—with a handsome end-sheet map of the whole South Pacific area. The job has been beautifully done, and deservedly so.

Lt. Col. Bayler is an officer of United States marines. His story is told as it must be told, with no suggestion of criticism or bitterness over the failure of the United States to come to the rescue of Wake Island. But to any one who reads thoughtfully, the story is eloquent in what it leaves unsaid. There is no attempt at explanation.

"Where were the reënforcements which I had been told were on their way? I inquired, and learned they had been called back before reaching the island . . ."

AMONG THE AUTHORS

By Frederic Babcock.

IN THESE days of success stories [somebody writes a novel, and the Book of the Month club grabs it, or it's sold to the movies for umpteen thousand dollars] the casual reader of a literary section may get the idea that the life of a writer consists mainly of writing his indorsement on the back of fat checks. . . . But sometimes it works out the other way. . . . For instance:

Hui-lan Koo [Mme. Wellington Koo to you] sat down last winter and dashed off her autobiography. . . . She sold it to a New York publisher, 6,000 copies were printed, and the book was announced for last Thursday. . . . This department of THE TRIBUNE sent an advance copy to a midwestern university professor who specializes in Chinese life and affairs and asked him to review it for today's issue. . . . Then, last Monday, came a frantic wire from the publisher. . . . For reasons unexplained the autobiography had been ordered suppressed, or suspended, or postponed, or something. . . . Hence, no review could be printed, and we telegraphed our reviewer to that effect.

• • •

The mystery was not explained until last Wednesday. . . . Then a brief story in the morning papers related that Wellington Koo, former Chinese ambassador to the United States, now ambassador to Great Britain, and long regarded as one of his country's greatest diplomats, had protested against something he had found in his wife's book. . . . Just what that something was was not made clear. . . . We were still mystified until we received this note from the university professor:

"Thanks for the telegram. It's quite all right about my not reviewing the book by Mrs. Koo. When I read it I wondered whether her husband had okayed it—it was so brash—but I put this down to China's going modern. Also, I imagine her husband may have been bothered by her fondness for the Italian Count and Countess Ciano and a few other folks who aren't so popular these days. I gather that Mrs. Koo is now sufficiently squelched and that a revision of the book is not likely to see print."

This note was written before the announcement had been made that it was Dr. Koo who filed the protest.

• • •

But maybe there were other reasons. . . . John O'Donnell, Washington correspondent of the New York News, says "the tense and dangerous internal situation in China, with its mad inflation and violent feuds among wealthy and rival dynasties," is behind the sudden suppression of the autobiography. . . . "Effective but diplomatically delicate hints from the state department," he writes, led to the order after 400 review copies had been distributed. . . . From this distance, it looks as if the full story of the causes of the cancellation hasn't yet been told.

Two Honest New Stories of Early Man

"DARKNESS AND THE DEEP," by Vardis Fisher. [Vanguard, $2.50.]

"WARRIOR OF THE DAWN," by Howard Browne. Reilly & Lee, $2.]

Reviewed by Walter Simmons.

Only yesterday, as time is measured by the great age of the earth, the hairy ancestor of man swung down out of the trees and tried to walk on his short, bowed legs. After thousands of years this alien creature who had evolved out of water and ooze and pain and death, and whose attitude toward his dark and terrible world was a nice compound of courage and fear, did succeed in walking. The history of civilization may be measured from that day.

Novels of the dawn man have been written before, but never with the complete integrity of Vardis Fisher. "Darkness and the Deep" is the simple and scientifically honest story of Wuh, a vain, selfish and strutting egoist, but smarter than the other men of his time—smarter because he was frustrated and unhappy.

It is the story, in less degree, of Ho-wha, the 300 pound, 6 foot tyrant; Ka-ka, Ho-wha, Ghoo and Kuoh, his women; Gah, the daughter who later became his mate; Hwah, his stupid son; Ghak, a self-pitying old man, filled with hatred and fear; Kughh, the idiot dwarf, and Murah, a chubby girl.

These people, hairy and stupid, had not learned the use of fire or weapons, nor had they developed speech. Things out of sight were out of mind. They had no shelter. Thunder and lightning, volcanic eruptions, flowing water, wind and fire were horrific things, past explanation. Sometimes they killed each other, but they had no means of taking game; hence they ate no meat.

People wandered in small bands thru the jungles. Wuh was an envious, scheming young man who hung around the fringes of Ho-wha's domain, lusting for Ho-wha's women, but realizing he could not defeat the lord in combat.

Nothing much happens. Ka-ka has a baby; Kuoh is eaten by a python, Ghoo by a leopard; the dwarf is abandoned to starve; Wuh kills the witless Hwah with a stone and runs away with the budding Murah to found a band of his own; he kills another man and accumulates more women.

Wuh succeeds by the use of his wits, but in success he finds no happiness; he is too far ahead of his time. This is a story told with complete scrupulousness by a first rate craftsman, and it is absorbing fare from the first page.

• • •

"Warrior of the Dawn," by Howard Browne, the Chicago writer, takes man at a later stage—when he had reached the Cro-Magnon era, perhaps 20,000 years ago. Men of those days had lost their hair; they used simple weapons and killed game, and many of them lived in caves.

This is a tale of the Edgar Rice Burroughs persuasion. Tharn is a mighty-thewed warrior of nobility and principle. Astounding things happen to him when he goes from his cave to the city of Septar to rescue his girl friend.

Tharn's adventures will make heady reading for those who like the pulp magazines, for it is crammed with fast paced action. Nor is it to be sneezed at as an example of suspenseful writing. The reader who picks it up will find it a book hard to lay aside before it's finished.

Thrills Abound in Olympia Circus at Stadium

Lone Ranger One of Many Stellar Acts

By Claudia Cassidy.

A long time ago, before he invaded the operatic field as the inquisitive member of the quartet from "Rigoletto," or even dreamed of giving French lessons, Willie Howard used to tell about the man at the theater who had a complaint to make at the box office. "These seats are terrible," he said, "I can hear every word."

The Lone Ranger.

Well, the other night at the Stadium's Olympia circus, complete with green tanbark, rosy pink sawdust, and ringside lights, I was tempted to address the box office in partial paraphrase. "These seats are terrible," I would have told them, "I can't miss a thing."

• • •

Not, you understand, that I wanted to miss the clowns or the elephants or the trained bears and the supple swayers on the slack wire, or even the daring young men who could do it just as well blindfolded. Not that anything could have induced me to part with treasured glimpses of the Lone Ranger [who looks and sounds like Gary Cooper] riding beautiful white Moussa and letting us look at magnificent Silver, the snow white stallion of Barbary coast fame which had been slightly injured in truck transportation. Not that I willingly would have gone without the sleek sight of Capt. Hyer's Starless Night, a wonderfully gleaming black horse with the gaited balance of a ballet star.

But every circus, and this circus in particular, has acts that make me long to sit behind a lady with a picture hat, or even a regal pompadour. These are the acts subtitled "Death Defied," and they might as well say "Customers Terrified." They are committed by miscreants who invariably work without a net at something like 100 feet in the air, and no doubt would go higher if the Stadium roof permitted. You can't bear to look, and you can't bear not to look, either. Your hands get clammy and a crick takes possession of your neck. Aghast, you realize that they do this kind of fantastic feat twice a day during the season.

Take the Paroff Trio, for instance. Their stunt is to mount to the top of the arena, where some ladders wait on a perilously inadequate platform. They put the ladders in what I hope are grooves and then climb all over them in acrobatic formation, swaying dizzily from side to side in balance which must be calculated to the flick of an eyelash.

Probably you remember the Berosinis. They are the ones with bicycles, chairs, poles, and people, and they aren't satisfied until they get the whole works wheeling across a slippery pole in pyramidal invitation to disaster. Perhaps you remember Seldon the "Stratosphere Man," that gesticulating fellow who enjoys riding on a bendable pole so tall if you put sulphur on the tip you could strike a light from the ceiling. Maybe you even remember the "Great Peters," who actually walks on that ceiling by moving his feet human fly fashion from one rung to another, hanging nonchalantly head down the while. But even if you do remember, he has a new trick. After a summer of brooding over the possibility of being dull, he has managed to put a noose around his neck and drop 75 feet in what looks to me like a serious attempt at suicide.

To an audience numb from the impact of sensation, the climactic Miss Zacchini can hope to give nothing more than a mild jolt, probably not to be compared with the one that projects her with such precision from the cannon's mouth. By the time Miss Zacchini was being shot, I had cravenly crawled to an exit, driven there by the inflexible determination of the Berosinis to get the whole act on one aerial bicycle, a notion as symmetrical as it is appalling.

Compared to such stratospheric maneuvers, the rope and wire acts were cozy as an old rocking chair. "La Tosca" moved like satin on the bounding rope, turning a double backward somersault with timing so neat it looked spontaneous. And the three men on slack wires were so nimble two of them landed like cats when something went wrong with the gear. The real cats in the show are the lions and tigers of Terrell Jacobs' act, but don't expect me to like animals facing whips and blank pistol fire in a cage. I don't even like to see wild animals in a zoo, unless that zoo happens to be an uncaged inspiration like the Brookfield.

MOTHER IN "KISS AND TELL"

Katherine Warren, in the role of the mother of young Corliss Archer, faces many a difficult moment as she watches her daughter negotiate the hazardous reefs of adolescence. The comedy opens at the Harris theater May 10.

Vaudeville

Oriental theater. Two headliners share the spotlight this week—Connee Boswell, the singing star of stage, screen, and radio, and Joe Venuti, described as "the world's greatest jazz violinist." The Venuti orchestra supplies the stage music. Other entertainers in the stage program are Dick Buckley, Barrett Deems, and Kay Starr.

• • •

Chicago theater. The week's stage bill is partly new and partly held over from last week. New on the list are the Latin American dance team of Raul and Eva Reyes; Gene Sheldon, the superb mimic, who was last seen here in "Priorities of 1942," and Miss Mickey King, circus aerialist. The Oxford Boys are held over, along with the two production numbers by the ballet, "Miss Martial America" and "Rhythm Silhouettes."

• • •

Helsing's Vodvil Lounge. In a single week Uncle Sam snatched away two important Helsing's personalities—Marvin Himmel, the last of the mimicking Three Make Believes, and Jack Torrence, saxophonist in the instrumental group known as the Modulators. Jack's place has been taken by a young Texan, Jack Dunsmoore. Another newcomer to the Helsing's show is Gil Robinson, "the wizard of mimicry." Others on the bill are Harry Cool, baritone; Lillian Clark, soprano; Peggy Lester, swing songstress, and Chet Roble, pianist.

Rialto theater. Sandra Sexton, popular dancer, this week attains both stardom and a three year contract. She heads a show employing a cast of over 50 performers.

Shubert to Stage Play About Russian Children

Lee Shubert reportedly has signed a contract to present "New Horizon," a Russian comedy by Afinogenev formerly known as "Mashenka." Peggy Phillips, author of the English adaptation, describes the play as "a kind of soviet union 'Junior Miss'." It deals with five children, ranging in age from 12 to 16. The action takes place in the Moscow home of a professor where the children live.

Notes of the Theater

The last big first night of the waning season will be that of "The Three Sisters" at the Erlanger theater on Monday, May 17. Katharine Cornell's lavish and much discussed revival of the famous Chekhov drama should attract both the followers of fashion, for whom a Cornell opening is always a required event, and the followers of the drama in its more serious aspects. The Broadway theater neglects the classics of the drama increasingly each year, and "The Three Sisters" is the only professional production this season which belongs, so to speak, to the long history of the theater. In a season without Shakespeare, Shaw, or Ibsen we should be ready to extend the hand of welcome to Chekhov. "The Three Sisters" was directed by Guthrie McClintic, and the English adaptation was prepared by Mr. McClintic in collaboration with Alexander Kioransky, former Moscow dramatic critic.

• • •

Ralph Forbes, now playing opposite Ruth Chatterton in "Private Lives," which is in its final fortnight at the Erlanger theater, has devoted himself exclusively to revivals of important plays of the past ever since he withdrew from the movies in favor of a return to the speaking stage. He made his reëntry upon Broadway in Katharine Cornell's memorable revival of Bernard Shaw's "The Doctor's Dilemma." There followed two engagements which might best be forgotten. With Katerina Paxinou, a Greek actress of some renown, he acted in a performance of Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler," which failed largely because the bejeweled and begowned Mme. Paxinou refused to pay attention to a central feature of Ibsen's play, which is that Hedda is unhappy because she has very little money. The next revival, equally unsatisfactory in conception, was Barrie's "A Kiss for Cinderella," in which Luise Rainer proved to be so grievously miscast that there was no believing the play. When Ruth Chatterton and "Private Lives" came along he was able once again to participate in a success. In this play, incidentally, Miss Chatterton will have made her longest stay in Chicago—11 weeks. If the theater were not under contract to Miss Cornell's company, it is likely that "Private Lives" could remain considerably longer.

Devotees of Yiddish drama are eagerly anticipating the two day engagement of "God, Man and the Devil" at the Civic Opera house on May 15 and 16. Jacob Ben-Ami directed the revival of Jacob Gordin's noted classic of 40 years ago, and he acts one of the principal parts. Others in the stellar cast are Celia Adler, Frances Adler, Max Bozhyk, Lucy Gehrman, Misha Gehrman, Bertha Gersten, Isaac Rothblum, and Menachem Rubin. The play is presented under the local management of Harry Zelzer.

"The success of 'We Will Never Die,'" says Ernest Byfield of the big pageant of Jewish history to be staged at the Chicago Stadium May 19, "may be explained by its spontaneity. The producers and actors felt like expressing themselves thru the medium of the pageant. As is well known by now, the theme is based on the moving story, 'Remember Us,' by Ben Hecht. It portrays the contributions of the Jews to mankind's progress from Moses to Einstein, and also their participation in the present conflict, as well as a sequence on the peace after the war."

The name of the pageant, "We Will Never Die," is intended to suggest "the spirit of all minority groups under Nazi domination." Flags of such minority groups as the Czechs, Poles, Greeks, Dutch, and Norwegians will be represented. For the presentation of the huge pageant 4,000 seats will have to be removed from the Chicago Stadium in order to transform the great auditorium into an amphitheater dominated by two 40 foot tablets bearing the Ten Commandments. Tickets for the pageant may be obtained at the "We Will Never Die" headquarters in suite 703, 139 North Clark street, and also at Marshall Field's department store, and the Sherman, Drake, and Blackstone hotels.

• • •

Joseph Marks, the tired little salesman in "The Doughgirls" at the Selwyn, who keeps trying to park himself in the demented hotel room, began his stage career in the memorable Gus Edwards juvenile musical, "School Days." Others in the cast were Eddie Cantor, George Jessel, Lila Lee, and Walter Winchell. Chicago has recently seen him as Prof. Metz, the cockroach scholar, in "The Man Who Came to Dinner," and with George Jessel and Sophie Tucker in "High Kickers." Last fall he had a short run in New York in the unsuccessful musical, "Count Me In." Here in Chicago, if your memory goes back far enough, you may remember seeing him in vaudeville in such theaters as the Majestic, the old Palace [now the Erlanger], the Olympic [now the Apollo], and the Haymarket.

• • •

• • •

The final children's performance at the Goodman theater will take place Saturday afternoon, when a repetition of "The Elves and the Shoemaker" rings down the curtain on a highly successful season of Saturday children's presentations.

• • •

One of the most experienced actresses in "Good Night, Ladies," still shooting after the all-time Chicago run record at the Blackstone, is Dora Clement, who is now rounding out 25 years in the theater. As an outgrowth of her career from ingénue to character actress, she has prepared for publication in the near future a notebook setting down her observations upon the craft of play-acting. In a foreword Miss Clement explains that her notes "would hardly fit every individual, but, like mathematics, might present a variation of many individual problems." In "Good Night, Ladies" Miss Clement plays the mother-in-law who upsets the equilibrium of Skeets Gallagher and Buddy Ebsen.

• • •

"Abie's Irish Rose" may be seen on Saturday evening by those who cannot wait for Frank McCoy's projected professional revival of the Anne Nichols comedy later in the summer. It will be given by the Jack and Jill players at 180 East Delaware place. Except for "Tobacco Road," "Abie's Irish Rose" still—after 20 years—holds the record for the longest run in the history of the New York stage.

• • •

After years of immunity New York is finally going to get Shubert revivals of "The Student Prince" and "Blossom Time" next month. The cast for the two operettas, including Everett Marshall and Ann Pennington, will be the one we saw in "The Student Prince" during the winter.

• • •

Chicago is not the only city in which revivals and return engagements are popular. New York is now witnessing a revival of "Counselor-at-Law," with Paul Muni in his original rôle. "Lady in the Dark" is playing a return engagement, and it will be joined tomorrow by Ethel Barrymore in "The Corn Is Green." "Porgy and Bess" will return to New York later on before setting out on its second year of touring in September.

"Nazis Are Paranoids," Doctor Says

"IS GERMANY INCURABLE?" by Richard M. Brickner, M. D. [Lippincott, $3.]

Reviewed by Dr. Melchior Palyi.

The paranoid, says the author [who is a neuropsychiatrist], is recognized in the first place by his need to dominate. Paranoids "are, therefore, passionately concerned, in their relations with everybody else, with determining who is 'superior' or 'inferior.' The notion of equality is inadmissible and, if it occurs, intolerable." All this is typical also of the Nazis, he continues. Therefore, evidently the Nazis are of the paranoid type.

A second criterion of that mental ailment is suspiciousness—what is called "persecution complex", or "self-reference"—of the paranoid. This is typical of the Nazis, too; therefore, again, they are paranoids.

Another paranoid symptom is an exaggeratedly high opinion of one's own importance—"megalomania." Again, the Nazis share the criterion.

• • •

So it goes with more symptoms. A paranoid likes to indulge in "false rumination over past events," which is called "retrospective falsification". So does the Nazi. Both appear very "logical," provided one accepts the underlying assumptions of their thinking. For both, the "constant use of the device of projection" is symptomatic. Both are notorious liars, ready for cold-blooded cruelty, and dangerous to society.

The diagnosis is complete—or so Dr. Brickner thinks. He then proceeds to declare the entire German civilization of the last 150 years a paranoid one by arguing that, if a paranoid type predominates, it is bound to imbue the whole nation with its way of thinking.

To the layman of psychiatry, this reasoning by pure analogy is not convincing. For one thing: Do the Germans in general and the Nazis in particular have hallucinations as paranoids have according to all textbooks of psychiatry? On that point, this otherwise very verbose description of the disease prefers to be silent.

But, leaving the medical aspect of the matter aside, one wonders about the historical. How does the doctor know that the Germans have been paranoically infected for a century or longer? He quotes a few old writers of a super-patriotic type and mostly of a third-rate rank. He never quotes Kant or Lessing, Goethe or Schiller, or any of the German classics who predominated in German culture previous to the Hitler age. What kind of a history is this which picks five or seven books out of a million and "proves" an indictment of a whole civilization on such flimsy grounds?

It doesn't take much of a historian either to notice that the symptoms of mental disorder ascribed to the Germans has been "predominant" at one time or another in other countries as well. What about the symptoms displayed by the French revolution, led by cold-blooded, cruel, ruthless, and imperialistic criminals like Marat and Robespierre? What about Napoleon the Great, his logic megalomania, cruelty, and everything else? Dr. Brickner's picture of Hitler is none too different from the one drawn of Napoleon by Tolstoy.

• • •

Time and again our civilization is upset by upheavals and revolutions in which otherwise normal human groups act like "paranoiacs." Revolutions are the most difficult and most intriguing problem of society. Dr. Brickner approaches this immense problem—by ignoring it.

So Klondike Mike Was a Real Person!

"KLONDIKE MIKE," by Merrill Denison. [Morrow, $3.50.]

Reviewed by Arthur Frederic Otis.

Were you a Jack London fan? Rex Beach? Robert W. Service? Then you'll enjoy meeting a man who served all three as fiction material in the Yukon country—Michael Ambrose Mahoney, known thruout the Alaska of gold rush days as Klondike Mike.

When Merrill Denison learned that M. A. Mahoney, Ottawa business man, was the Klondike Mike of legendary fame, he knew he had struck pay dirt. Here was book material such as all writers dream of and few ever find, and out of it Denison has made a book to delight every lover of frontier adventure.

They met, says the foreword, in 1930 when Denison was engaged in writing a documentary motion picture for the Canadian government, and Mahoney was technical adviser. But it was not until 10 years later that the writer was able to induce his subject to give out with the facts.

They read like fiction, but the author assures us that he has taken no liberties with the material "except where it seemed advisable to use fictional names for those of persons still living." Action is fast, and there are many photographs.

Steinbeck Won't Play Ball with Radical Organizations

By Harry Hansen.

NEW YORK.

JOHN STEINBECK has been in New York for a few weeks, as unobtrusive as ever. He looks in on his publisher, Pascal Covici of Viking Press; sees old friends, and takes a mild interest in the success of the screen version of "The Moon Is Down." The motion picture, by the way, did not encounter the hostile criticism that met the book, which some critics considered much too gentle toward the Nazis. The author is quite unmoved by such extraneous criticism. Like Hemingway, he has an intensely personal attitude toward his work; it's his child, and he doesn't have to make it conform to other people's opinions.

The complaint that Steinbeck won't play ball with radical organizations is heard frequently. They claim him because "The Grapes of Wrath" was such an eloquent sermon on behalf of the under dogs. Several choice stories are going the rounds of how one group tried to hook John during his present stay in New York, but he couldn't be hooked. His most recent book, "Bombs Away," was his contribution to the war effort. He is now at work on a new book on American life, which is expected to be a long work on the order of "The Grapes of Wrath." Its subject is not yet a matter of discussion.

What Are Japanese Planning?

Had a talk with Otto D. Tolischus, author of "Tokyo Record," one of the best books ever written about modern Japan. He certainly gained a lot of information and dug deep into the enigma of the Japanese character. He believes that the appointment of Shigemitsu as foreign minister by Tojo is definitely related to new tactics in the diplomatic field. He thinks it will take the form of peace maneuvers directed at Russia, with the intent of splitting up the allies. The removal of Japanese divisions from the soviet border gives support to this view.

As a correspondent for an American newspaper—the New York Times—Tolischus found Tokio no primrose path. His Japanese assistant and secretary performed their work well, yet never volunteered a bit of information. No such thing as a tip on a good story comes to an American in Tokio; the Japanese mind does not have the western awareness of news import. When he was arrested his household servants faded out of the scene; when he was released preparatory to sailing they came back with the same competent, impersonal service. He seems to have been most successful keeping up his spirits while in prison. Part of the time he received magazines from a Japanese woman who was married to an American business man who was also imprisoned there. He did not know the woman and thinks she must have had remarkable courage.

Turns to Editorial Writing.

The discussion about Japanese execution of American aviators has concentrated attention anew on this and other books. "Tokyo Record" was also the subject of a most timely radio program in Schenectady in which Tolischus and I took part. He proved himself a most ready and lucid speaker. He is now writing editorials for the New York Times.

I have mentioned from time to time the eagerness with which publishers watch for manuscripts of important books about the war. The details of the Doolittle raid had hardly been announced in Washington when Random House released word that it would publish "Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo" by Capt. Ted Lawson and Robert Considine. The manuscript was ready for the printer months ago. In connection with the discussion of the raid the comment of Tolischus may be worth having. He says he believes bombing to be practically the only way of getting at the island empire and that the war industries are so vulnerable that about 50 per cent can be wiped out without difficulty, once the problems of getting bombers across are overcome. This helps account for the fear the Japanese display today.

Book Club Controversy Dies Down.

The argument over the choice of "The Fifth Seal" by the Book of the Month club seems to be winding up with everybody informed and nobody convinced. The members of the pressure groups which applied the heat still contend that it won't help the war effort. Christopher Morley tells me that the reason why the four judges of the club recommended it has nothing to do with the book's controversial character. They had discussed doing so a long time ago and Morley suggested that they try the scheme out with this book. Of the four opinions [published in the club's organ, the News], that by William Allen White did not reflect wild enthusiasm. White, with straightforward Kansas honesty, doesn't like novels that beat around the bush.

Writes Under Two Names.

Joseph Shearing, author of the murder story, "Airing in a Closed Carriage," which qualifies as a novel rather than a thriller, is really Marjorie Bowen, an English author of such versatility that she writes different kinds of stories under various names. About 40 years ago [it's unkind to be specific, but this is literary history] Marjorie was a girl prodigy who made London cheer for a sensational historical novel called "The Viper of Milan." She still writes historical novels under the name of Bowen. "Airing in a Closed Carriage" is based on the case of Mrs. Florence Maybrick, who came to the United States after her release from a British prison in 1905 and lived for some time in Highland Park, Ill. Mrs. Maybrick died in Connecticut in 1941.

$20,000 for Mrs. Warrick's Book.

The house of Crowell thinks it has a runaway best seller in LaMar Warrick's story of boy life, "Yesterday's Children," which was published April 27. It had an excellent advance sale to booksellers and Hollywood took it on the run. It provides a chance to improve on Henry Aldrich. The publisher told me he was amused by the fantastic sums mentioned as paid by Hollywood for the novel—stories probably circulated by the motion picture people themselves. "As a matter of fact, it was $20,000," said he, "and I see no reason for improving on that." The author, as you know, lives in Evanston and is assistant to Prof. Baker Brownell of Northwestern university.

Prof. Erskine Tells How to Live Graciously and Fully

"THE COMPLETE LIFE: A Guide to the Active Enjoyment of the Arts and of Living," by John Erskine. [Messner, $3.]

Reviewed by James Gray.

John Erskine is a man who may be envied the fullness of his own life. He has been a teacher of English, a novelist, a concert pianist, head of a music school. In most of these rôles he has had conspicuous success. Yet even when his book, "The Private Life of Helen of Troy," made him the personage of a literary season, his noticeability in one field did not persuade him to work it hard to the neglect of others. Prof. Erskine believes in the rotation of the crops of the mind so that its soil may be kept fresh, fertile, and capable of producing abundantly.

His new book might be called the autobiography of a polite appetite. It tells how one man has cultivated in himself a taste for many things: for books and music, of course, but also for the other "sweet civilities of life." Prof. Erskine has painted, composed, tried his hand at sculpture. He interests himself in gardening and cooking. He urges upon those who would lead the complete life an awareness of conversation as an art, a respect for manners as evidence of good will and of a healthy social outlook, a relish of love so deep that it would make of fidelity a manly virtue and give to marriage a deeper meaning.

• • •

These attitudes are supported by the evidence, of which literature is full, that men of imagination and inspiration have always held much the same beliefs. As witnesses to the universal appeal of the ideal of married lovers, Prof. Erskine calls on Milton and Spenser. Out of "Paradise Lost" and the "Epithalamion" he produces passages of such charm as to prove once for all that virtue is the one really reliable source of graciousness. As witness to the importance of manners, he summons not Mrs. Emily Post but Castiglione.

John Erskine, author of "The Complete Life," a guide to the active enjoyment of the arts and of living.

Probably Prof. Erskine would not contend that any of us can make himself a Leonardo or man of universal genius by a scrupulous regard for his principles. Rather he means to suggest that only by active participation in the creative concerns of life can anything resembling genuine happiness be attained.

It is curious that it is necessary to urge upon Americans belief in the principle that to enjoy deeply one must first understand fully. We are a sport loving people and we direct a sort of amiable scorn toward any one who would expect to have pleasure at a football game without having first acquired a knowledge of its rules. The important suggestion of "The Complete Life" is that an understanding of the principles of anything from literature to cookery is also deeply rewarding. More than that, we must experiment actively with words and paints and condiments and sounds if we are to relish the riches of human experience.

The literature of self-improvement, once so luxuriant, has tended to wither under the harsh and unfavorable winds of the present day world.

But what really killed the cult was the fact that so many of its preachers had only stale generalizations and unappetizing clichés to offer. Prof. Erskine cannot be said to have invented any striking new ideas but he lends respectability to his program for the full life by the range of his own sympathies and the richness of his allusions. He has invited many of the most gracious minds of all literature to share in his symposium.

How to Save Your Food by 'Quick Freeze'

"THE FREEZING PRESERVATION OF FOODS," by Donald K. Tressler, Ph. D., and Clifford F. Evers, B. S. [Avi Publishing company, $8.]

Reviewed by Arthur C. Bergholz.

Central to man's advance on the road to civilized living has been his ability to increase and diversify his food supply, and to preserve and store this supply for long enough periods to permit its distribution. As civilization advances and becomes global the problems of food preservation and storage become increasingly important. Methods must be devised so that adequate amounts can be supplied to the great metropolitan centers. And, as the ways of production and distribution of foods alter, so must the ways of its preservation and storage change.

Man has preserved his food by cooking, baking, dehydration, canning, and preserving. Each of these methods has had its advantages, attended by limitations. The biggest single advance was in the development of mechanical refrigeration of meats, fruits, vegetables, and dairy products. Refrigeration, however, was only a partial answer. It was in need of greater refinement. The besetting problem was how to retain in food its natural quality, flavor, and vitamin content for an indefinite period.

In recent years this refinement in refrigeration has been taking place. Problems of handling, preparing, and packaging food for refrigeration were studied. The different kinds of refrigeration—cold storage, sharp freeze, and quick freeze—were exhaustively analyzed. The foods best suited for freezing preservation were studied. Today the whole industry of the freezing preservation of food stands on the threshold of a great advance and expansion.

Dr. Tressler's and Mr. Evers' work is an excellent introduction, for expert and layman alike, to the achievements in refrigeration and the problems which up to now have not been answered. The value of this work cannot be overemphasized. Of special interest is its full discussion of the locker plants, farm units, and freezing cabinets available to the consumer. These quick freeze units are of great importance in solving the problems of indefinite preservation with the retention of all nutritive qualities of food.

• • •

"The Freezing Preservation of Foods" is both a treatise on the subject and a practical handbook to be used every day. The reader can learn what kind of freezing unit is likely best to fit his needs. He will always have at hand the methods of preparing and freezing foods. More than half of the book is devoted to the preparation and freezing of foods such as fruits, fruit juices, vegetables, meats, poultry, fish, shellfish, and dairy products. In addition there is an excellent chapter, contributed by Dr. Faith Fenton of Cornell university, on the cooking and serving of frozen foods.

Everything in the book is treated with detail. This is especially true of the important subject of handling, preparing, and packaging food for freezing. The thoroness is indicated by the three and four page bibliographies which accompany each chapter.

• • •

The volume can be recommended unreservedly. It is a good investment and deserves its place on the shelf alongside the household standby, the cookbook.

It is reassuring to find such an excellent work pioneering this advance.

Post-War Socialistic Phase Foreseen for U. S.

135 Educators Reply in Poll by Methodists

By Rev. John A. Evans.

Methodist educators of the country believe that a socialistic form of government for the United States is going to be a result of the war. This view was made public by Dr. Harry Wright McPherson, executive secretary of the board of education of the Methodist church, 43 East Ohio street, following a survey of the faculties of 135 Methodist colleges and universities.

The majority of the faculty members expressed the feeling that socialistic and governmental control would be a characteristic of the phase following the war's end. Some of the members believe this form of government would exist only during the reconstruction period, while others expressed a view that it would be here to stay. Another more conservative group, not being able to forecast such a drastic change in American governmental form, said socialized medicine, however, certainly would be established.

Five other unanimous views were expressed by the professors. They are:

1. "The United States must maintain a large standing army and navy until an international police system is devised. When it is devised, we definitely must have a part in it.

2. "Filibustering in the United States is an evil that must be abolished in an effort to further the aims of a good democracy.

3. "The need for church related colleges will be increased at the end of the war. These colleges should enlarge their program to give the student a wider knowledge of how to apply democracy to race and class.

4. "Education in Christian institutions should be revised to include military, social and economic courses in preparing the student to deal with post-war problems.

5. "Post-war planning must be based on the application of Christian principles and brotherhood. The structure must be set up to aid the poor as well as the rich, the lowly as well as the high."

Dr. Edward R. Bartlett, dean of DePauw university, Greencastle, Ind., announced completion of studies which show that the intelligence level of the men in the army and navy is of the 10th grade educational level in this war as compared with the 6th grade level in the first World war. Forty-two per cent of the men in service, he said, are high school graduates, while only 9 per cent of the American World war armies had completed that much education.

Dr. Ernest C. Colwell, dean of the divinity school, University of Chicago, writes in a current issue of Journal of Religion that the average Protestant minister is inadequately educated. He declared that when most ministers are called on to speak intelligently and significantly to people with widely varying specialization and an increasing amount of formal education, the minister should have a better general education than any of his congregation. The main weaknesses in the minister's education are in the social and biological sciences and even in philosophy because seminaries do not require a true general education. Dean Colwell declared that a general education, rather than a bachelor's degree, should be a criterion for admission into divinity schools and that there should be control of the senior college program of pre-seminary students.

Current Music News

According to a current magazine piece about "Leetle Leely" Pons, that diminutive soprano has been known to fire her press agent under the misapprehension that that luckless soul had discriminated in publicity against André Kostelanetz, Miss Pons' conductor husband. So perhaps it will save trouble if this ever helpful department states that Mr. and Mrs. Kostelanetz will appear in concert at the Civic Opera house tomorrow evening at 8:15, the one conducting the orchestra, the other as soloist with that orchestra. Frank Versaci is the flutist who accompanies or precedes, as the case may be, Mrs. Kostelanetz in cadenzas. The program:

Gypsy Rose Lee to Make Super Burlesque Picture

Actress Signs a 'Lend-Lease' Film Contract

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK [Special].—A gossip is a prophet without honor in any man's country, but he can make himself absorbingly interesting at times. One such sat on the corner of your correspondent's desk last week and announced that to his certain knowledge no less than 20 motion picture stars of standing, already on their way to Broadway for a return to the legitimate theater, had canceled their transportation and were going to stay on in Hollywood for another year at least.

Why? Because, for one thing, they no longer had to worry about their incomes being limited to $67,-000 gross and $25,000 net a year, since congress had killed that bit of Rooseveltian war time legislation, and, for another thing, the war time boom in pictures had started the picture producers offering them new and fatter contracts than they had ever had before.

For example, said my friend, Mary Martin did not lose interest in "Dancing in the Streets" because it had revealed major weaknesses as an entertainment during its Boston tryout, but because she could not afford to refuse current Hollywood offers. It was not because "One Man's Venus" seemed a little less than reasonably promising to Marlene Dietrich that she was delaying her appearance in that drama, but because suddenly the financial attractions of the cinema were more exciting. And so on thru a long list that included virtually every well known legitimate star, from Cedric Hardwicke and Thomas Mitchell to Mary Boland and Jeannette MacDonald.

I don't happen to believe much of what this gossip said, but I do believe that changing conditions are right now seriously affecting the actor market, particularly on the coast.

• • •

Consider, for one straw in the wind, the new contract that Michael Todd is reported to have made for the filming of his super-burlesque exhibit, "Star and Garter." As I understand it Gypsy Rose Lee [who tried pictures once as Louise Hovick, actress] is going back into the movies on some sort of new lend-lease arrangement. Her manager has farmed out the film rights to "Star and Garter" with the understanding that Miss Lee will continue one of its important displays and also be a partner in the enterprise.

Gypsy Rose Lee. [Tribune Photo.]

Only for three years can the film rights be exercised, and for this period Todd is to get 25 per cent of the profits and Miss Lee 5 per cent. Furthermore, the purchase price is $175,000 to Todd and $25,000 to the strip-tease queen, altho it is reasonable to assume that Gypsy will be required by the Will Hays censors to keep herself pretty well covered.

It is entirely possible that young Todd, whose rise to importance in the producing field of the theater the last year has been pretty startling, has started something with his lend-lease contract. The stipulation that the rights to film a certain entertainment are leased rather than sold outright sounds a little revolutionary, and the added stipulation that the star of the entertainment shall share in the venture, as both an exhibit and a partner, is new, so far as I know.

• • •

My friend was right, too, about the booming business of the picture theater. I was catching up last week with some of the features I had missed of recent weeks, and wherever I went I found a couple of thousand eager enthusiasts before me.

William Saroyan's "The Human Comedy" is one of the most popular of the newer screenings. Having now seen that one, I can hardly wait to hear, or read, the unpredictable Bill's report of what the director, Clarence Brown, has done to, and with, his original script.

Mostly, however, it is good Saroyan. The director may have oversentimentalized certain incidents, but Saroyan is pretty good at that, too. His consuming love of all the beautiful people he finds in the world is his most persuasive tie-in with humanity in general. It is probably just as well that Metro-Goldwyn would not let him direct the picture. He would certainly have become Saroyan conscious whenever his own sentimentalities embarrassed him, and then he probably would have darted off fantastically into weird sequences. These easily could have lessened the human values that Brown has developed by holding the comedy down to earth.

• • •

I ran into a typical screen theater contrast in the showing of "Desert Victory." This epoch making assembly of actual battle pictures from the North African front was preceded by one of the silliest animated cartoons the trade could possibly have produced the last year. Having so fine and so important a feature as "Desert Victory" to reveal, you would noturally expect the program makers to surround it with fitting supporting features, wouldn't you? Or perhaps you wouldn't, knowing your movie theater so much better than I do.

It seems to me "Desert Victory" should be compulsory moviegoing right now.

The Chicago Dance council will present five of Chicago's better known dancers—Ruth Page, Frances Allis, Berenice Holmes, Marjorie Parkin, and Sybil Shearer—at the Goodman theater next Sunday afternoon in a concert to aid the Victory Book campaign. Since January Chicago has collected 850,000 books for men in service, and the concert hopes to boost the total toward the coveted 1,000,000. This does not mean that a dogeared copy of a discarded book will serve as open sesame, but that the price of a ticket will be converted into reading matter the experts have figured out as soldier favorites.

Miss Page will give the first public performance in Chicago of several of her new compositions in which she dances to her own recitation of poetry, sometimes without music, but occasionally to accompaniment written by Lehman Engel. Miss Parkin and her group will offer "Ballads of the American Revolution," and Miss Holmes and her group, with Erik Kristen, will dance to Beethoven's Sonata, opus 14, No. 2. Miss Shearer will appear with Katharine Litz and Midi Garth in a "Spring Ritual," to music of Stravinsky, and Miss Allis will dance "The Search."

• • •

Another dance recital, featuring Berenice Holmes, Martha James, and the Holmes Palette ballet, will be staged at the Civic theater Sunday afternoon, May 16, at 3:30.

The golden jubilee May festival of the University of Michigan will take place at Ann Arbor Wednesday thru Saturday of this week. The concerts will feature the Philadelphia orchestra under the direction of Eugene Ormandy, the University Choral union, and the Youth Festival chorus, with soloists including Fritz Kreisler, violinist; Vladimir Horowitz, pianist, and such singers as Lily Pons, Alexander Kipnis, Astrid Varnay, Stella Roman, Kerstin Thorborg, Frederick Jagel, and Salvatore Baccaloni. Thursday evening's program is dedicated to the memory of Frederick Stock, who with the Chicago Symphony orchestra appeared at 31 festivals, and Albert A. Stanley, a festival founder. It will present, among other things, Stock's "Psalmodic Rhapsody."

According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson

[Copyright: 1943: By Ely Culbertson.]

When a player fails to double a contract that goes down three or four tricks and almost in the next breath does double another contract that is fulfilled with extra tricks, experts say, inelegantly but forcefully, that he has been "whipsawed."

Recently I witnessed one of the finest exhibitions of "whipsawing" of my experience. The same player sat South in both of the following deals:

North, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♥ K J 4
♦ 9 8 3
♣ A K 9 6 5

WEST
♠ None
♥ 10 9 8 6 3 2
♦ A J 10
♣ Q J 10 7

EAST
♠ K 10 9 8 4
♥ A Q 7
♦ K 5 4 2
♣ 8

SOUTH
♠ Q J 7 6 3 2
♥ 5
♦ Q 7 6
♣ 4 3 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 club	1 spade	Double(!)	2 hearts
Double	Redouble	Pass	Pass
Pass

South, it will be observed, was the sort of player who insists on doubling whenever he has great length in the opponents' suit. The fact that he could not be at all sure of defeating one spade if the opponents stayed in that contract, and certainly could not "stand" the double of any other suit if the opponents "ran," cut absolutely no ice with South. North can scarcely be blamed for promptly doubling West's two heart "rescue." How could he tell that South's hand consisted of a couple of queens? A glance at the deal, however, will disclose that West had no trouble in making three extra tricks, and thereby earning, quite aside from the rubber bonus, 1,440 points!

South could have saved a great many points by taking out the double to two spades and going down 800 points, but players of South's ilk rarely make these sound decisions.

The "whipsawing" took place a few deals later. Same South and same unfortunate North.

West, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ A K Q J 8
♥ K J 6
♦ A K Q J 2
♣ None

WEST
♠ 10 7 6 3
♥ 5
♦ 9 6 4
♣ Q J 9 8 3

EAST
♠ 5 4 2
♥ A Q 10 8 2
♦ 8
♣ 10 7 6 5

SOUTH
♠ 9
♥ 9 7 4 3
♦ 10 7 5 3
♣ A K 4 2

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	2 spades	Pass	3 clubs
Double	3 diamonds	3 hearts	5 diam.
Pass	6 diamonds	Pass	Pass
Pass

Let's not get involved in criticism of West's three club double or East's suicidal three heart bid—we have enough to do, talking about South. The point is that the three heart bid was actually made and that South, who should have jumped on that bid with visions of a pot of gold, let East get away with his crime. The six diamond contract was defeated by East's opening the heart ace and giving West a second round ruff. Now compare this North-South loss of 100 points with the enormous profit that would have been theirs had South properly appreciated his opportunity for a penalty double. East would have gone down at least 1,400 points, perhaps 1,700.

Thus, the box score on these two deals reads as follows: In the first deal, even assuming that East-West would have reached a four heart contract, doubled by North and fulfilled with an extra trick [they scarcely could have redoubled], North-South lost an extra 1,000 points by reason of South's ridiculous one spade double. In the second deal North-South lost at least 1,500 points thru South's failure to double three hearts. A total loss of 2,500 points on two deals—due, not to bad cards, but to bad bidding—is difficult to recoup in any ordinary session.

Hitler's Plots to Conquer Us from Within

"PASSPORT TO TREASON," by Alan Hynd. [McBride, $3.]

Reviewed by James E. Sloan.

Subtitled "The Inside Story of Spies in America," this is a real tour de force thru the machinations of Hitler's diabolical plots to conquer us from within. Mr. Hynd's book unfolds one of the most sensational detective stories of our day — the battle of the federal bureau of investigation to crush the Nazis' espionage and sabotage plots. And, we're happy to report, Mr. Hynd shows J. Edgar Hoover's men are nothing less than 99 and 44/100 successful in the most amazing way.

We suggest that one of the best ways to nip Nazi sabotage in the bud would be to send copies of this officially documented book to Hitler's sabotage school in Hamburg. One look at how our G-men trail Hitler's agents with bloodhound tenacity would be enough to encourage a lot of hooky playing from the Hamburg hearth.

• • •

"Passport to Treason" is largely the story of how William Sebold, American naturalized German, was impressed into the Hamburg school and the service of the Gestapo, but how he managed to turn the tables on Hitler's major spy rings in America and help lead to the capture of such cardinal plotters as Frederick Duquesne, Dr. Otto Willumeit of Chicago, Frederick Ludwig, the Rev. Kurt Molzahn, and Gerhard Wilhelm Kunze. Then comes the thrilling roundup of the eight saboteurs landed on the Long Island and Florida coasts last June. This chase, exciting as a novel, will do a lot for your morale; it's a fine, factual recommendation of our FBI.

Most sensational of Mr. Hynd's amazing revelations is that "proper Washington officials" failed to act after the FBI turned over to them detailed plans on the defenses of Pearl Harbor. This material, he says, was found in a Nazi spy's room and was placed in official hands more than eight months before the Jap attack.

• • •

An FBI agent testified in a federal court in February, 1942, that G-men seized accurate plans on the strength, personnel, and location of army and navy defenses in the Hawaiian area. The seizure was made in the Hotel Taft room of Ulrich von der Osten, alias Julio Lopez, a German spy killed in a New York traffic accident March 18, 1941. However, the loot was only a copy, the original draft having been forwarded to Germany with a spy's comment: "It is fortunate that Von der Osten relayed the bulk of his information about Pearl Harbor before his untimely death. No doubt his information will be of great value to our yellow brothers."

This information, Hynd says, was "turned over to the proper officials, and, had those officials acted in a competent manner thereafter, the Parl Harbor disaster might have been entirely avoided," for the Japs "used the unchangeable features of the Lopez data" in the attack.

• • •

In "Passport to Treason" you'll learn many startling things about how close some of Hitler's satanic plots have come to success and some chilling possibilities for sabotage that still exists. It's a grim picture that makes entertaining reading and one which portends a beating for the Nazis every time they step onto our home grounds.

BOOKMAN'S HOLIDAY

By Charles Collins.

THIS ought to be the time for a book on the city of Tunis with plenty of pre-war local color. No doubt the publishers are waiting for a war correspondent's account with a catchy title, such as "How I Ran Rommel Out," but the homes of America are eager to know what their sons will see there after the smoke of battle has blown away. . . . "Tunis La Blanche," by Myriam-Harry [Paris, 1911] might make a readable reprint.

• • •

Report on a typical patriotic speech by a member of the British parliament culled from "Black-out in Gretley," J. B. Priestley's spy-chasing thriller:

"This was an excitable and self-important little man, who looked like an angry wedding guest. His trick was to shout platitudes at us in an angry voice, as if we'd all been arguing for hours and his patience was exhausted. Apparently he held some very minor government appointment, but he tried to give us the impression that he and Churchill split the war work between them. He blamed us because, he said, we didn't realize this was our war, but at the same time he gave us to understand that the war really belonged to him and a few friends of his in Westminster. He was angry because there was far too much criticism, too many of us were 'sitting about and criticising,' but he was also annoyed because we were all far too complacent, and he said that complacency was really the great danger." . . . Does it remind you of anything?

• • •

The complete text of Clausewitz's "On War," a classic of German war philosophy, will appear next month as a Modern Library Giant. The only full translation that has been available thus far was issued in 1900 and is full of inaccuracies. The new translation is the work of O. J. M. Jolles, a former officer in the German army who gives a course in military German in the institute of military studies at the University of Chicago.

• • •

Mr. Jolles has written an introduction to "On War" in which he says, among other things, that the Russians have interpreted Clausewitz more accurately than Hitler's generals. This point should arouse controversies among the armchair strategists.

• • •

The war has reached into the high schools of America for 18 year olds, and literature promptly follows. "Yesterday's Children," by LaMar Warrick, published last week, tells a story of high school lads and their parents in this time of crisis; its locale might be any large suburban township high school in the country but is easily identifiable as Evanston's. Mrs. Warrick, who has been on the faculty of Northwestern university for 14 years, says:

"The book is my small tribute to the teen-age boys and girls of America. I am proud of them, but I grieve too, for they are missing some of the 'fine careless rapture' of normal youth." The book's date of publication marked the entrance into the army air forces of Mrs. Warrick's son.

• • •

If any one believes that the ancient yearning to write in rhyme has been killed by free verse and buried by the war, he ought to get a brief sentence reading mail for the Line o' Type column. That would teach him there is need for a new rhyming dictionary such as Clement Wood's, recently issued by the World Publishing company.

• • •

Mr. Wood's dictionary is a fat and comprehensive volume, based on phonetics and covering the subject from "June—moon" to "contemporaneous—instantaneous." The field of verse forms is also dealt with instructively. The compiler is resident poet and lecturer in versification at the College of William and Mary. He put in three years of work on this dictionary, which will save Pegasus from many a limp.

For the benefit of restaurant wags who are always wanting to know the whys and wherefores of parsley, the inevitable concomitant of boiled potatoes and lamb chops, we will quote from "Spice and Garden" [Coward-McCann], a bright brochure on the lore of garden herbs:

"The Greeks and Romans used to make wreaths of parsley and give them to banquet guests to discourage intoxication. It was strewn over bodies and graves in ancient Greece."

The so-called Rockefeller committee on "good neighbor" efforts is represented on the book lists as sponsor of the first volume of "New World Guides to Latin American Republics" [Duell, Sloan & Pearce]. This covers Mexico, Central America, and the West Indies. It touches on everything that an up-to-date traveler should know, yet is of a handy size for packing in an airplane suitcase.

Miss Butcher Hails New Novel as Vivid, Powerful, and Tough

"CAPRICORNIA," by Xavier Herbert. [Appleton-Century, $3.]

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher.

Bursting upon the American reading public with the most extravagant praise from both sides of the Atlantic, "Capricornia," by Xavier Herbert, may well start its career as one of the season's most talked about books. H. G. Wells calls it "the best written and finest spirited novel that has ever come out of Australia." Carl Van Doren says it is a "powerful story . . . so full of exciting incidents it never drags . . . at once tender and tough."

Before we examine this reader's reactions to those statements, as well as her reactions to the books which caused the reactions to those statements, let us set down, in as uncritical words as possible, the substance of "Capricornia."

It is an extremely long novel about the "Empty North" part of Australia, a wild land of aborigines only a few years before the first World war. Its focal town is "Port Zodiac," which looks as if it must be Darwin. "Capricornia" is a land which many American soldiers have now seen, altho in the course of the novel the only two Americans who have any vital part in its development are two briefly mentioned Chicagoans who had been stockyards men and in the boom stock raising days started a slaughter house which used up every scrap of waste material, including the dying bellows of the cattle, as power.

During the 20 or so years that the book covers, Capricornia goes thru boom and depression, but never really changes its way of life—the roughest, toughest, crudest, cruelest which can be contrived by violent nature and violent men. The seasons themselves are no more excessive than the men and women who have to adapt themselves to furious Wet and searing Dry. The floods of water which tear thru the valleys and keep man immobile are no more copious than the floods of liquor which lay him flat. Life is hard, and men and women must be harder.

Added to the terrors of nature and of man's natural inhumanity to man are the horrors of the half-caste maladjustments, the white man's utterly ineffective attempts at adjusting the yellow offspring of their succumbing to the charms of "black velvet." Life is fierce, men and women fiercer.

Well, those are the literary and human data with which the author deals. He makes a highly convincing and effective use of those facts. He has a real social conscience and makes the plight of the half-caste memorable. But, unless I am greatly mistaken, "Capricornia" will not be remembered so much as a criticism of a social injustice as it will as a panoramic picture of a wild, primitive country and wild, primitive way of life.

• • •

And now to the consideration of the superlatives of the eminent writers, Messrs. Van Doren and Wells. Mr. Wells undoubtedly believes that "'Capricornia' is the best written and finest spirited novel that has ever come out of Australia," but apparently he has never read Henry Handel Richardson's great trilogy, "The Fortunes of Richard Mahony."

That beautifully written classic reached American readers in a hodge-podge fashion with the importation from England of the first volume, "Australia Felix," in 1916. In 1929 "Ultima Thule" [vol. III.] was published, and in 1930 the connecting volume [II.] came out here as "The Way Home." When the knots were all untangled the three volumes in their proper sequence were published as "The Fortunes of Richard Mahony," which had been the American title used for "Australia Felix."

Critics of today as well as of that day would agree that Henry Handel Richardson's vast novel is a superb piece of work, and that she [that's right, she] is one of the great, tho not enough appreciated, novelists of her generation.

"Capricornia" is written with vividness. It is, as Mr. Van Doren says, certainly a powerful story. And it certainly never drags. But, to this reader, to call it "tender" is a misnomer. Except the tacit tenderness of the author for the half-castes, such feeling is so small in its pages as to be virtually unnoticeable. Certainly the characters have little tenderness one for the other. The book is tender in the sense that a mauled, punched, and bleeding nose is tender.

• • •

"Tough" I grant Mr. Van Doren. It is filled with the kind of toughness that is real and spontaneous and exciting. Most men, I should say, will find it a sort of long, vicarious, virile thrill. Women readers may possibly not feel exactly that way about it.

One remarkable feature of the novel is the idiom which many of the characters talk . . . a colorful near-Pidgin English, further complicated, for the person who likes to keep up his reading pace, by local names for local events and products.

The book is unquestionably a very remarkable picture of a wild part of a world which is becoming hourly to Americans a smaller world. It is extremely interesting as a picture of the emergence from the aborigine state of a part of that world which has so emerged within the memory of one of the American men who may at this moment be walking down the streets of Darwin. And, because there are American men today in "Capricornia," the novel becomes even more interesting.

"Capricornia" won the Commonwealth Literary prize competition on the occasion of Australia's 150th anniversary celebration.

'Visionary Voyage' to Raise Funds for Sailors

By Cousin Eve.

Charitably minded people of Manhattan are turning handsprings these days to invent new ways of raising money. Following upon the success of Phantom balls in Chicago and Washington, the Seamen's Church institute has imagined a "Visionary Voyage" in place of the annual spring time theater benefit. Printed announcements are going out to prospective globe trotters with a bright picture of the liner America and a question "Your cruise to . . . ?"

On the reverse side is offered a wide choice of accommodations, varying from a suite on A deck for $50, to a single cabin with one port on C deck for $3. Stowaways are considered at $100 a head. I almost burst into tears of complete frustration on receiving notice of this Flying Dutchman sort of voyage. Six patrons, have signed up as stowaways and one canny traveler has sent additional cash for a deck chair and blanket on the sun deck. Ah me!

• • •

Many well known women of the great world act as hostesses in the Seamen's lounge at tea time, and the Voluntary Service committee entertains the young seamen trainees with community sings and concerts.

The imaginary cruise, like the Phantom ball, has succeeded marvelously and "reservations" are rolling in. Miss Augusta de Peyster heads the patrons and patronesses, among whom are Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, Mrs. Franklin Remington, Mrs. Gordon Bell, Mrs. John H. Hammond, Mrs. Arthur F. Schermerhorn, Mrs. Otto Kahn, Mrs. Orme Wilson, Herbert Statterlee, and Bishop William T. Manning.

• • •

George Peter Alexander Healy was the full name of our early day Carolus Duran, who painted acres of portraits after his arrival in Chicago from Paris in 1855. The Easter tea and opening of the Healy portrait show at the Historical society Sunday afternoon was highly interesting. Mrs. Joseph Cudahy's hand was to be discerned in the arrangements—the tea table with its Easter lilies and pale stocks, the charming ladies seated and doing the honors, with serried rows of Chicago forebears on all sides.

Even the catalog for the Healy exhibit was delightful—a little gold and white souvenir book with reproductions of the most vital among the portraits and also, au centre, a quaint old bird's-eye view of our town and its big buildings in 1854. The painting of the Rev. Dr. William Barry, who founded the Historical society, is one of the best The large presentment of Mrs. Ira Holmes, mother of Burton Holmes, in pale blue brocade is another. She was a blooming beauty. Mrs. Potter Palmer, who later became a dashing queen and social leader, seated in sweeping sable velvets, and her sister, Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant, nearby, are others.

• • •

The real top beauty of them all and painted with modern verve is that of Mrs. Mahlon Ogden, Fanny McPherson's grandmother. There is a legend about G. P. A. Healy, that for $500 he painted a portrait, and for $1,000 a much better portrait. In looking the collection over, you were inclined to believe there was something in it. Mrs. Laird Bell had never before seen the painting of her father, N. K. Fairbank, hanging in the Chicago club these 40 years. One of the best bits of work was the painting of the famous Mrs. William Doggett, who founded the Fortnightly club 70 years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Blair's portraits are almost in the top brackets for interest, but the artist lost the delicate wistfulness of Mrs. Blair's charming face—a pensive something inherited by her daughter, Mrs. Howard Linn.

Early Chicago certainly had itself painted, whiskers and all. There are beards, square, pointed, red, black, brown, and gray, and even the kind that makes a fringe round the face.

There are McCormicks, Stickneys, Ryersons, Trees, Blatchfords, Kings, Bowens, many Blairs, and a few Ogdens. There were some little rosy cherubs who died young, a small Gillette, brother of Mrs. William Jenks, and a blond baby Farlin who, had

The Council of Garden Clubs to Meet in Chicago

By Irene Steyskal.

Every daffodil popping a yellow sunbonnet up in Mrs. O. W. Dynes' garden in Hinsdale is a marked posy. With the National Council of State Garden clubs coming to Chicago this week for its annual meeting, upon a sudden change in plan—the conference was to have been held in Tulsa, Okla.—it's Mrs. Dynes to the rescue on the problem of spring flowers for table decorations, and the Garden Club of Illinois hostesses have avid scissors extended over all promising buds.

When it was learned that Tulsa could not provide hotel accommodations, a call upon Chicago sent Mrs. Raymond Knotts, Garden Club of Illinois president, and a hastily mustered scouting party out to canvass the hotels here, with the result that some 200 representatives from garden clubs in every part of the country will be gathered Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday in the Hotel Sherman to discuss the important wartime horticultural programs being carried forward by the various state organizations and to plan for extended service.

Business before the council will include election of officers. Mrs. E. Wesley Frost of Fayetteville, Ark., is slated for the national presidency, and for the central region vice presidency the nominating committee is presenting Mrs. Warren W. Sheomaker of Woodstock.

The three day meeting will be conducted by Mrs. Joseph H. Brewer of Grand Rapids, Mich., national president. One of the principal sessions will be the president's dinner Tuesday night in compliment to Mrs. Brewer. Speakers that night will be Mrs. Dynes, who is a past president of the council, and Prof. Lee A. Somers, vegetable specialist in the University of Illinois college of agriculture. Mrs. Dynes has been chairman of the Chicago's internationally known Flower show for many years. Her talk will be "Holding Our Established Place in the World of Horticulture."

Prefaced by an executive committee meeting and a board of directors conference, the meeting proper will open at 3 o'clock Tuesday with welcoming talks by Mrs. Knotts, Mrs. Walter P. Morton, regional vice president, and a response from Mrs. Brewer.

Mrs. Lewis M. Hull of Boonton, N. J., national program chairman, is scheduled for a report at a "Programs and Wartime Activities" forum at 9 o'clock the following morning, and Mrs. Clarence W. Avery of Detroit, Mich., will report at a "Conservation" forum later.

The morning session will close with reports from each of the regional vice presidents: Mrs. Morton of the central region; Mrs. William H. Champlin of Rochester, N. Y., New England; Mrs. H. R. Totten, Chapel Hill, N. C., south Atlantic; Mrs. Walter Stavel, Topeka, Kas., south central; Mrs. Ernest C. Dalton, St. Helens, Ore., Pacific coast.

Mrs. Lucien B. Taylor, chairman of horticulture, will be unable to attend, but her report will be given at a horticulture forum Wednesday afternoon by Miss Elizabeth Howland of Barrington. Miss Howland is 1st vice president of the Garden Club of Illinois. The election will be held that afternoon and the new staff of officers and retiring chairmen will be presented at the annual dinner in the evening.

The National council is the central organization for 40 state federations of garden clubs and four foreign clubs in Bermuda, Montreal and British Columbia, Canada, and Monterey, Mex.

Each of these in the course of the meeting will review its war programs or will have reports submitted to the council if it is not possible to have a representative present.

In addition to the national officers previously mentioned, others attending the conference are Mrs. Waldo E. Cummer of Jacksonville, Fla., 1st vice president; Mrs. Varner Beall Stevens, Grand Rapids, Mich., corresponding secretary; Mrs. Randall D. Warden of Newark, N. J., treasurer; Mrs. Frederick A. Wallis of Paris, Ky., past national president and now a member of the advisory council, and Mrs. Guy C. Bowman of Columbus, O., and Mrs. Guy Chase Meyers of Ashland, O., both on the board.

Assisting Mrs. Knotts with local arrangements are Mrs. L. T. Warren, Elmhurst; Miss Ann Lyons, Crystal Lake, Mrs. George McStay Jackson, Lake Bluff; Mrs. J. Wilson McAllister, Kenilworth; Mrs. M. Johnson Fuller, Riverside, Mrs. Henry W. Shedd, River Forest, and Mrs. Howard W. Hulett, Berwyn.

Crisp Cotton Curtains Dress Windows at Small Cost

By Claire Winslow

It's a good idea to give your heavy window draperies a rest during the summer months, have them dry cleaned or laundered and put away. This will, of course, prolong their life and thus save you money in the long run.

And by hanging new curtains for the warm weather you can so easily and inexpensively bring freshness and charm to your home. If you're tired of patterns at the living room window, try getting yards and yards of a neutral toned cotton crash, and have draw curtains made. There is still a little Osnaburg cloth available and it is ideal for this purpose, being both artistic and very durable. You can get it for 48 cents a yard.

• • •

Another pretty washable that is color fast and that makes astonishingly pretty summer curtains is striped denim, which you will find in the dress goods section of the stores. Some we saw recently is only 38 cents a yard [36 inches wide] and comes in broad vertical variegated stripes. One pattern had stripes of soft blue, beige, gold, and light brown and would work up nicely for a dining room, living room, or boy's room. It could be used, too, for a slip cover for a chair or studio couch.

• • •

Another denim at this same price combined two shades of blue, rose-pink, and yellow in broad stripes and will do a lot for a bedroom that you want to make more interesting for summer. If you like those tiny, narrow stripes, such as are found in bed ticking, there are denims that have them, too.

When purchasing any of these cottons be sure to allow for shrinkage and have the material laundered before you start making it into curtains. Then you'll be saved any disappointment later.

Dotted Swiss is a perennial favorite for bedroom curtains. Because of its body it's prettier than voile or marquisette. It takes to wide, full ruffles like a duck to water; it tubs like a handkerchief, and it's especially attractive when hung under a swag valance of pastel colored chintz, or flowered sateen.

There are delightful printed cottons, also in the dress goods sections of the stores, that make charming summer curtains for either bedroom, bathroom, or kitchen. Tiny flowers on pink percale, or on light green make crisp, fresh draperies, and this fabric is only 29 cents a yard, 36 inches wide. Bright red percale with white polka dots is gay and smart in a red and white kitchen.

• • •

Probably intended for aprons or pinafores, but equally nice for kitchen curtains is an ever-glaze chintz at 68 cents a yard, light pink with a striking design of fruits in vivid colors. At the same price is another pattern in blue with red and gray flowers. Still a third chintz has pencil stripes in pink and brown on white.

This last material is ideal for a flounced skirt for upon dressing table, as well as for bedroom curtains or draperies. It's one of the best looking inexpensive cottons we've come across, being priced at 68 cents a yard.

As fresh and pretty as a jonquil is this yellow and white bedroom in a series of newly decorated interiors now on view in Chicago. The yellow tufted headboard of the bed is outlined in white plaster flowers, and the bedspread is of quilted white chintz.

Hints for the Housewife

If growing children become undernourished and overfatigued they often develop hollow chests, round shoulders, and other poor habits of holding the body.

• • •

Moths like grease soiled spots, so before storing clothes for the summer be sure they are thoroly cleaned.

• • •

For easy sewing in making braided rugs from cotton scraps, select cottons that are soft and pliable, with a slightly open weave.

• • •

When babies start to walk they are helped if they can grip the floor with their toes, so their first shoes should be soft and flexible.

• • •

Wooden cigar boxes, cheese, chalk, or dried fruit boxes and other small wooden boxes make excellent building blocks for children.

• • •

To remove soot marks from clothing brush the stain, then cover it with an absorbent such as fuller's earth, cornmeal, or salt, and brush the absorbent away as it becomes soiled.

• • •

Mixed stains must be treated as two or three stains. For instance, to remove an ice cream stain the egg and sugar may be removed with cold water, the cream with a fat-dissolving agent; any remaining stain would be treated as a fruit stain.

• • •

Coat hooks low enough for a child to reach easily invite him to hang up his coat, provided it has a loop or tape at the collar.

• • •

Kitchen shelves just wide enough for one row of dishes, equipment, or supplies, and as close together as materials on them will permit, make it easy to find articles without unstacking unlike pieces or reaching over others.

• • •

Mrs. Emma B., Sandusky, O.: I use pieces from an old tennis net [which has long outlived its usefulness] to train my sweet pea vines. I did this even before the days when wire was growing scarce. I found that the sun made the wire so hot it often damaged the vines.

Miss Grace F., Chicago: Dusting the house and cleaning the floors is my part of the family housework. I have an old yardstick, carefully secreted for my own use, for cleaning under the piano and other hard to get at pieces of furniture. I wrap this yardstick in an oiled cloth and it gets rid of the dust for me.

The party that went on was very nice. Mostly the guests were looking gingerly about for an ancestor, hoping they wouldn't look too funny; forgetting, perhaps, that many of these bearded gentlemen and small waisted gentlewomen helped to make Chicago famous. Among the crowd were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cudahy, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hinde, Mrs. C. Garfield King, Dr. and Mrs. Edwin Ryerson, Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. W. McC. Blair, Mrs. Freeman Hinckley, Eleanor McClurg, Mrs. Thomas Hoyne, Mrs. Hamilton Lewis, Mrs. C. Wesley Dempster, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Borland, Mrs. David Cooke Jr., Mrs. James R. Walker, and Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Brown, just in from Santa Barbara.

Outgoing to California last week were Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Russell, having triumphed at last over the malaise that kept him in hospital the whole winter. When finally Mr. Russell could get about in a wheel chair, his first excursion was to room 100 of the Chicago club to see his cronies, David Crawford and Sewell Avery, who both chanced to be there and gave him a great welcome.

It's hard to keep up with your friends nowadays; they are struggling to be useful and rushing off to learn how to do this and that. There was Olive Moore, for example. When she failed to conclude her mathematics course at Illinois Intute, and her aspirations toward stitute of Technology, and her aspirations towards building bridges died a natural death, and she turned to nursing. Last Friday Mesdames Ballard Moore and Paget Cady were graduated from the County hospital as nurses' aids and are now on duty in that institution in blue cotton uniforms and neat white caps. Doris Winterbotham, who has nursed at the County all winter, has finally taken time off and gone down to rest her wearied self in Florida.

Mrs. Clive Runnells has the nursing job that many would prefer to all others—that of a nurse at the Edward Hines Veterans' hospital. If you saw these women Easter Sunday, beautifully coiffed, hatted, and smartly turned out, you would never have known them for the hard workers who are fighting the war on the home front.

Rosemary Kemper, elder daughter of James S. Kemper, kept on with her course at the institute until she received a diploma, and soon after that, notice of a job in San Francisco. I believe she is at work in an airplane factory. Her sister, Mildred Kemper, went further than nursing, having taken a full medical course in Chicago. Just lately she has been received as an interne at the General hospital, Madison, Wis. The James Kempers spent Easter in New York and are there primarily for the annual meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce. Mr. and Mrs. Silas Strawn have gone on for this interesting convention, also the John E. Clarksons and a large midwest group, deeply concerned in this nation-wide movement. Usually the United States Chamber of Commerce meets at Washington, wives go with their husbands, wear their prettiest clothes, and the whole event is full of life and just a wee bit political.

Count Serge Fleury of Paris and the Limousin was absolutely set on getting into our army. And now he's in. Fleury fought in the great war, was badly gassed, wounded, and knocked about generally, but he still yearned to battle the boche and is now in a training camp in Georgia. Count Fleury is a grandson of the foreign minister at the time of Napoleon III., is related to many French aristos, and was at the time of the war's outbreak official in the Ministere des Affaires Etrangeres. His wife was an American widow, Mme. de Herrera, and their residence is 72 Avenue Foch, Paris. The Fleurys migrated to New York when Paris was invaded by the Germans, and soon thereafter Count Fleury became a target for the "smear" group who pointed him out as a collaborator with the enemy of France. Altho the French diplomat is well over 50, he was determined to prove his patriotism in the only way possible to him, and that was to fight in this war. He is in a French battalion, the oldest man in it. The youngest is 18. Fleury is one of the most brilliant and witty essayists of his day. His last book, "Talleyrand," is delightful, and his writings on Empress Eugenie, his godmother, are the most vivid and lifelike of anything handed on to us from that remarkable woman.

Coming this way almost any day now is another of our American aces, Capt. Gregory Loesch, with his lovely young bride. Capt. "Greg" is a member of Capt. Joe Foss' flight in a now world famous flying squadron. The young captain is also one of four grandsons of Frank J. Loesch, all in the service of our country.

On the 10th of May, the Casino will be alive and buzz with members of the English-Speaking union, foregathered to meet the British ambassador, Viscount Halifax. "Edward," his close friends call him, and they say he is the salt of the earth, one of the best and kindest of men. His wife is not expected on this occasion, as the ambassador is on a little speaking tour. The Council on Foreign Relations will hear an address from him on the next day, which should be more than ordinarily interesting, now that the matter of Poland and Russia has come to a head.

Meet Service Center's Own George Malloy

By Kenneth Horan.

Two men of experience in social service direct the destinies of the four Chicago Service Men's centers, and it is because of their good judgment and good nature that everything runs smoothly. They are Ralph U. Nelson and Allen McLean, both well trained in recreational work. To their efficiency may be ascribed the fact that the whole vast project runs on greased wheels, without a hitch. They are the eyes and ears of the biggest service men's organization in the world. They appoint the heads of the departments, check supplies, receive complaints and congratulations, employ and discharge, and give advice.

Under them are various appointees, for instance, Marie Baker on the lounge floor of the Washington street center, and George Malloy on the ballroom floor. Newly decorated in dazzling white, against which hang the flags of the allied nations, this is one of the most attractive rooms in Chicago. Back of the band stand are grouped the Stars and Stripes, and this most beautiful flag in the world makes a striking background for the sailor suits of the navy bandsmen who dispense the stirring music.

Mr. Malloy is a genial person who likes young people and is patient with their goings-on, so when a soldier from Louisiana is inspired to do a little "rug-cutting" [this, in case you don't know, is an important step in jitterbug dancing] Mr. Malloy laughs and says he hopes the floor will hold up. There have been times when the ardent jitterbugs have had to divide up and go to the ballroom on the top floor, lest their enthusiasm endanger the rafters. And when the rhumba is in progress, which induces the boys and girls to indulge in steps that must have come out of the jungle, he observes, philosophically, that he was young once, too. Or when a marine just back from Guadalcanal does a buck-and-wing with his favorite girl dancer, Mr. Malloy is likely to tell him: "You're wonderful, soldier, but don't risk the lives of the other parties on the floor." When a waltz tune get the couples to swaying and dipping, like figures in an old fashioned Valentine, he says wistfully: "I wish we could have ballroom dancing only." And every one likes Mr. Malloy.

The story of his life reads like a page from Variety magazine 30 years ago. He was in show business, orchestra leader, pianist, director for hundreds of one night stands. "Westerns" were his specialty. A regular, old time trouper, Mr. Malloy played in "Hogan's Alley," with Johnny Ray in "A Hot Time," and in the Justis Remayne musical comedies, which did all the small towns from Oscaloosa to Kalamazoo. In fact, he's chock full of the history of the stage.

Mr. Malloy, trouper, might be called man-of-all-trades at the center. Six nights a week he's there, about 12 hours, altho he's supposed to stay only eight. He sees that things are under way in the ballroom, he has charge of the statistics of activities and attendance for the four centers, he covers every department, and has served in all, except on the switchboard. Wherever anything's the matter, they just say, "Get Mr. Malloy."

It's easy to explain the overtime that the workers put in for, aside from the fact that there's no end to the work to be done, there's also no end to the interest they feel. And that's the secret of their success. Those boys in uniform, who pour in an endless stream thru the portals, are their boys, and they want to make them comfortable, and happy and, most of all, they want to keep them from being homesick. This is a big job, because many of them have never been away from home before, and they'd like to tell somebody all about their experiences.

• • •

In the Washington street center there are 14 floors; in the Congress, 4 floors. Between six and eight thousand boys arrive daily, and on Sundays the average is 14,000. That makes 130,000 boys a week. There are sleeping quarters for 500 in the Washington street center, for 40 at the Congress. [And, by the way, razors are supplied at the former, and there's a lack of them at the latter, so you can guess which is the favorite place to stay.]

Not only American boys stream in here, but also youths from the armies of our allies, Canada, Britain, Australia, Free France, Russia. And after a boy has had supper or, maybe, two suppers, or three, if he feels like it, he often gravitates to the ballroom and either dances or watches the dancing.

The band from Navy pier is Orin Tucker's, and a sailor named Jimmy Lundgren leads it. How those boys in blue can play! As a matter of fact, they broadcast on the program called "Ahoy America," Tuesday nights at 8:30 over W-G-N, so tune in. They play for bond parades, for the navy E awards, for ensign graduations, and for aviation machinist mates, Diesel school, and for the cooks' and bakers' graduations. The band numbers 40 members, and Lt. [j. g.] Orin Tucker has made those boys in blue play as one man.

"What we're looking for now is a WAVE who'll give us a soprano solo," the sailor with the good tenor voice, who takes the "mike" and sings the songs at frequent intervals explained to me. "We have just one WAVE at the pier, and she's in the pay roll department. Her beau's a flyer in Africa."

It's worth seeing, that beautiful white ballroom, full of soldiers and sailors and marines, and of young women who know all the dance steps. And over it, like a benign Buddha, presides smiling Mr. Malloy, who, like every one else in the service men's center, works there because he likes it.

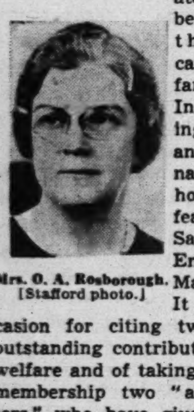
Indian Group Plans to Hold Spring Feast

The First Daughters of America, a group of Indian women and associate white members organized for the purpose of carrying on welfare work for Indians, preserving Indian lore and encouraging native crafts, are holding a "spring feast" at noon Saturday in the English room at Marshall Field's.



Mrs. O. A. Rosborough. [Stafford photo.]

It will be an occasion for citing two friends for outstanding contributions to Indian welfare and of taking into honorary membership two "adopted daughters" who have given outstanding service to the club.

Mrs. Charles F. Fitzgerald, president of the First Daughters and a Chippewa, will conduct the ceremonies, incorporated in which will be the conferring of silver rings set with turquoise as an emblem of enduring friendship.

Mrs. O. A. Rosborough, retiring chairman of the Indian welfare department of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, and Mrs. Charles E. Seiloff, retiring as 10th district chairman of the department, are the two designated for citations.

• • •

With her ring Mrs. Rosborough will receive the Indian name, Ah-no-kee, signifying a friendly woman working for mutual understanding between races, and Mrs. Seiloff's cheerful manner wins her the name of Be-da-ray, meaning Sunshine.

Mrs. Irene Kessinger, who as an associate member has a long record of service, will receive the name of Wah-yah-we-nind, meaning Distinguished in Good Works, upon her "adoption," and Mrs. H. C. Kenagh, member of the Ravenswood Woman's club who has represented First Daughters in the state federation, will be inscribed on the club's honor roll of adopted daughters as Bay-mo-sayed, She Who Walks in the Right Path.

The bureau of Indian affairs, now located in Chicago, is taking note of the meeting by sending a speaker.

Evelyn Yellowrobe, graduate student in the Northwestern university school, will appear in a handsome white doeskin costume, elaborately beaded and belted in silver, to sing a group of Cadman's Indian songs. Miss Yellowrobe is the daughter of Chauncey Yellowrobe, a chieftain on the Rosebud Sioux reservation.

Yellowrobe is remembered by many for his part in the motion picture, "The Silent Enemy." Miss Yellowrobe was graduated from Mount Holyoke college, South Hadly, Mass., with magna cum laude honors.

• • •

Irene Hunter, who is a Pawnee from Oklahoma, and Bernice Bonga, Chippewa from Minnesota, also will take part in the program.

The First Daughters number among their members Chippewas, Sioux, Iroquois, and Ottawas.

Another meeting following the Indian theme which appears on the week's calendar is that of the Annobiums, a literary group organized by Mrs. Evelyn Groves and Mrs. Rose Rubens. The name, translated from the Greek, means Bookworms. Members are gathering at 8 o'clock tomorrow night at the home of Mrs. N. W. Conrardy, 1912 Lunt avenue, for a program of Indian lore in story and music. They will have as a special guest Sahwah, a young Pueblo Indian artist from Santa Fe, N. M., who will talk on the customs of her people and give a demonstration in pottery making. Esther Kaplan will sing Indian songs, and Ella Rose Wright will play piano selections based on Indian themes.

Parental School PTA Will Meet on Friday

The meeting will be the last one for the present board. Mrs. C. J. Semler, 1714 Grace street, is the newly elected president. Other officers are: Mrs. A. J. Metzler, first vice president; Mrs. J. J. Swiskow, second vice president; Mrs. D. L. Hoxworth, third vice president; Mrs. J. P. Sterling, recording secretary; Mrs. P. H. Apell, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. George Pingle, treasurer.

AT HOME IN NEW ORLEANS

Mrs. Albert G. Swanson, before her marriage on April 14 to Lt. Swanson of New Orleans, La., was Miss Dorothy Helen Roberts, daughter of Stanley D. Roberts of Evanston. She was graduated from Northwestern university and also attended Ward Belmont. Lt. Swanson, a graduate of Duke university, met his bride two years ago at Cat Cay in the Bahamas. They are now at home in New Orleans.

English Social Worker to Pay Visit to City

Many years ago when Hull House was but a nebulous idea taking form in the mind of an idealistic young Jane Addams, Miss Addams went to England to visit Toynbee hall, the first social settlement, located in the slums of East London. From that historic institution she borrowed much in program and aim to incorporate in her famous west side neighborhood house.

• • •

From Toynbee hall to Chicago this week comes Dr. J. J. Mallon on a return visit, linking a long chain of friendly communication between Jane Addams' city and his. Dr. Mallon will address an open luncheon meeting at noon Thursday at the Eleanor association in the Stevens building, 17 North State street. The gathering is sponsored by Chicago settlements and neighborhood houses.

Warden of Toynbee, Dr. Mallon figures as a pivotal figure in the public life of England. Directing the center, which is the heart of a wide network of community enterprises, Dr. Mallon has a position of strategic significance in local government, education, and social welfare.

• • •

A pioneer in establishing the minimum wage, Dr. Mallon helped to establish the British system of trade boards. He is a member of the assistance board, thru which nearly 2 million old age pensioners receive supplementary pensions, cases of long term unemployment are handled, and refugees receive maintenance allowances. He is a vigorous leader in a movement of adult education.

Toynbee hall stands in the center of the extensive industrial section of East London which was laid in ruins during the bombing of 1940-'4 . Its buildings were damaged but not destroyed. In his talk here Dr. Mallon will recount his experiences in the bombed community and tell how resources were developed to meet war emergencies.

RECENT BRIDE

Mrs. Robert Lee Beal is the former Miss Peggy Ann O'Neil, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Frederick O'Neil of South Dorchester avenue. She will be graduated from the University of Chicago this June. Mr. Beal, the son of Dr. and Mrs. Wilbur L. Beal of Anaconda, Mont., is a graduate of the University of Montana and now is a senior in the University of Chicago medical school.

Betsy Ann Drescher Wed to Sergt. Lewis Jennings

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Drescher of Hannibal, Mo., announce the marriage on April 4 of their daughter, Betsy Ann, to Staff Sergt. Lewis F. Jennings, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Jennings of Oak Park. The ceremony took place in Hannibal, with the Rev. W. G. Schwehn officiating. The former Miss Drescher was graduated from William Woods college. Sergt. Jennings attended the Chicago Art institute and was graduated from Armour university. He now is with the army air force stationed at Scott Field, Ill. Immediately after the wedding, Sergt. and Mrs. Jennings departed for Belleville, Ill., where they temporarily are at home.

Club Benefits to Aid Local Institutions

Calling the attention of members and friends to the responsibility of maintaining philanthropic institutions of the community as bulwarks of the home front, several women's organizations are carrying forward plans for customary spring benefits.

One of the largest is the luncheon for the Norwegian Old People's home, which the women's board is giving at 1 o'clock Wednesday in the home at 6016 Nina avenue. The annual party has come to be synonymous with good food, and the women are determined, Mrs. Thor Nystrom, the chairman, asserts, to accept rationing as a challenge to their ingenuity in planning a menu to meet the traditional standard.

A program of unusual interest is promised, with Elsa Soderstam, operatic soprano, to sing, and the Rev. F. W. Otterbein, the widely known founder-minister of North Austin Lutheran church, to speak.

• • •

Representing the various branches of the board on Mrs. Nystrom's arrangements committee are Mrs. Henry Gusland, Mrs. Herbert Larson, Mrs. Carl Bauer, Mrs. Ralph Gunderson, Mrs. William Barker, Mrs. Joseph Hazel, Miss May Carlson, and Mrs. Eden Peterson.

The sisters of St. Mary of Providence, under whose care is the St. Rose Day nursery at 308 West 25th street, have confided to friends the need for having the playground resurfaced for their small charges, and this afternoon the St. Rose auxiliary is undertaking to raise funds for that purpose by means of a card party at the nursery. Miss Mary M. Mutterer is chairman of the benefit and Mrs. Percy G. Jacobs and Mrs. Lillian Rowley are serving as cochairmen. The auxiliary is headed by Mrs. Margaret Coyle, who is taking an active part in planning the party, as is also Miss Marcella Schmitz, the secretary.

Another large benefit for which plans are being drawn is that of the Ladies of Isabella, which will be given Saturday night, May 15, in the grand ballroom of the Hotel La Salle. Miss Anne M. Pontius, head of the supreme grand council of the society, personally is managing the party, with Miss Mutterer, Miss Belle V. Casey, and Miss Anne Severa supporting her as co-chairmen.

Having added an extensive program of war work to their activities, the Ladies of Isabella attach special importance to their fund raising event this season. Money derived from the party will help to finance the Sunday morning breakasts for soldiers, sailors, and marines which the women supply weekly at the Servicemen's center at 1122 South Wabash avenue, and also their Saturday evening parties there.

Another war project to which the organization has been giving notable support is the furnishing of supplies thru the Chaplains' Aid to chaplains in camps here and on battle fronts.

Rosemary Owens to Be Bride of W. J. Krippes

Miss Cecelia C. Owens of St. Charles announces the engagement of her niece, Miss Rosemary Rita Owens, to William J. Krippes of San Mateo, Cal., son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Krippes of Wilmette. Miss Owens attended Marywood school and Mount St. Mary academy.

When Chicago Was Young Presents "From An Old Trunk"

By Herma Clark

Instead of the usual letter from Martha Freeman Esmond, we present today some receipted bills found in an old trunk belonging to the late Mrs. Robert S. McCormick [Katherine Medill].

Among the contents of the trunk from which have come the invitations and calling cards shown recently in this column are many receipted bills. One wonders how it happened that these were preserved. Few families have room for such accumulations, which is a pity, since so much of the flavor of the period is found in the items listed.

Let us look first at a receipted bill for pew rent. On April 1, 1879, Joseph Medill paid the quarterly rent of pew No. 92 in the Second Presbyterian church. The receipt is signed by H. L. Blakeslee, who was sexton of this church for more than 50 years. It still stands where it did in 1879, at Michigan avenue and 20th street. The interior was rebuilt after a disastrous fire which occurred about 1901, but the outer walls are the same. In the '70s this was one of the richest and most fashionable churches in the city. Its minister was the Rev. Dr. Robert W. Patterson, whose son, Robert W. Patterson Jr., later editor of THE TRIBUNE, married Eleanor Medill. Mrs. William A. Phillips, 1710 Asbury avenue, Evanston, is a daughter of Dr. Patterson, first minister of the Second Presbyterian church.

Members or attendants of the church in its time of prosperity were the William Blairs, the Albert Keeps, the Dunhams, the Blackstones, the Pullmans, the Re Quas, the Shaws, and the Giles family. Today the neighborhood is changed. Prairie, Calumet, and Michigan avenues are deserted, but a large bequest left by John Crerar [who also gave money for the Lincoln statue on the lake front and for the technical library which bears his name] enables the old church to continue its work.

Among the art treasures of this church are two small stained glass windows in the narthex, designed by Burne-Jones and executed by William Morris, depicting St. Cecelia and St. Margaret. Another beautiful window was given by Mrs. T. B. Blackstone, in memory of John Crerar; while still another of interest is that placed in the church by Mrs. George M. Pullman in memory of her mother. The church is well worth a visit. The present minister is the Rev. Dr. W. Clyde Howard.

• • •

Another interesting receipt in the papers before us is that issued by the Grand Pacific hotel for a week's board, plus sundry items known as "extras." John B. Drake evidently had just become proprietor of the Grand Pacific, for his name is printed in red ink on the old letterhead, which has the names of his predecessors, Gage Brothers and Rice, inked out.

One of the vain regrets of this editor's life is that she never saw the Grand Pacific hotel in all its glory. It stood at the northwest corner of Jackson and Clark streets where it welcomed travelers from the four corners of the earth. Famous names abounded on its register. You were at once stamped a person of distinction and also of solvency if you "put up" here. Grant was entertained by John B. Drake in 1879. Sheridan was another honored guest.

The Grand Pacific had just been built when the fire of 1871 destroyed it, but, undeterred by the heavy loss, says the historian Andreas, the company rebuilt and the second structure was finished and ready for business in June, 1873, at a cost of one and a half million dollars. Its first lessees were Gage Brothers and Rice, who operated it until the fall of 1874 when John B. Drake bought the furniture and lease. Mr. Drake, father of Miss Helen V. Drake and of John B. Drake Jr. of Chicago, was the perfect host, maintain those who knew the famous hotel in his time. He had served his apprenticeship in Cincinnati, coming to Chicago in the '50s where he made the old Trement House popular. When this hotel went up in flames in the fire of 1871, Mr. Drake bought a small hotel at the south corner of Michigan avenue and Congress street, which he renamed the Tremont. In 1874 he took over the Grand Pacific.

Why the Joseph Medills were guests at the Grand Pacific when they had a home in Chicago may not be known at this late date. The cook may have departed suddenly, giving an excuse for a week's respite from housekeeping cares. Board seems pretty high, $100 a week, but it must be remembered that this included room as well. All first class hotels of the '70s were run on the "American plan," the charge per day including room and board. The food served by the chefs at John B. Drake's house was known everywhere, especially the game dinners, a tradition of the place.

Mr. Medill was not given to patronizing the bar, for there is only a charge of 75 cents from that quarter. He had a bottle of wine, however, served, no doubt, with the extra dinner which is charged for. It cost nim $2.50 that is, the meal. The wine is set down at $2.

It is a matter of regret that the bill does not lend itself well to reproduction for we should have liked to show you the picture of the six story hotel which appears in the upper left hand corner. But perhaps it is as well that you should not see it. You would never be satisfied to live in the prosaic present, but would yearn to be a grandee of the '70s or '80s driving up in a Victoria or brougham [both of which equipages are shown in the foreground] and lodging in plush and velvet splendor at the old Grand Pacific hotel.

Painter Given Fresh Start by Fellow Artists

By Eleanor Jewett.

The world today is so much a place of youth and action that, when one stumbles upon a bit of quiet kindness done without thought of thanks, it is something to write about. Violette Rice, Chicago painter, has done and is doing such an act. Near her pleasant studio on East 57th street Mrs. Rice has secured another studio for J. Wellington Reynolds, well known Chicago artist, who two years ago dropped out of art activities because of illness. Mr. Reynolds has recovered, but is far from strong [after all, age defeats the best of us], and Mr. and Mrs. Rice are looking after him.

Some fifteen years ago Mr. Reynolds paid a very successful visit to Paris and was treated with the greatest distinction. A large and beautiful painting of the Madonna won him the silver medal at the Paris salon. This painting now hangs in a church in Evanston. Mr. Reynolds returned to Chicago to his studio in the Tree Studio building and taught at the Chicago Art institute. He was one of the most brilliant and popular instructors the school of the Art institute ever had. His classes were large and successful. He taught at the institute for some nineteen or twenty years and then was retired on a pension. This pension, unfortunately, later was withdrawn from him.

• • •

Mr. Reynolds, with a number of other of our older Chicago artists, fell upon hard times. The depression hit Chicago's art colony as severely as it did the rest of the business world. Mr. Reynolds taught at the school conducted by Ruth Van Sickle Ford for some time and held classes in his own studio. He sold a picture or so, but the loss of his pension, plus the difficulties of the depression years, proved too much for him and he fell sick.

He recovered from his illness in a few months, but was confined in the hospital until just recently. Mrs. Rice heard of his misfortunes and, with other friends, came to his rescue. She rented the studio at 1553 East 57th street, got together the few pieces which remained of the furnishings of his Tree studio quarters, and turned the new studio into a near-replica of his former place.

Violette Rice and a group of Mr. Reynolds' former students and friends have been helping, and Mr. Reynolds hopes to paint again.

• • •

This attractive art colony on 57th street has several other members who are well known in gallery circles. Charles Biesel has a nearby studio and so has Mrs. Clay Kelly; just beyond Violette Rice's studio is that of Nan Rice. Not far away are Winnifred Pleimling [who also has been and is extremely active in helping Mr. Reynolds], Ethel Crouch Brown, and Edithe Jane Cassady. The studios on East 57th street were built at the time of the 1893 World's Fair and are just across from the Rosenwald museum and the lovely haunts of Jackson park. In summer it is a painter's paradise; in winter the studios are cold, but stout hearts and coal stoves defy the weather.

• • •

The Findlay galleries and the Clubwoman's bureau, Mandel Brothers, plan to hold exhibits of paintings by J. Wellington Reynolds early in the fall.

• • •

Twentieth century French paintings from the Chester Dale collection have been installed in galleries 38, 39, and 40 of the Art institute. The galleries have been redecorated in varying shades of yellow, of which the most pleasing and most advantageous is that in gallery 40. The exhibit includes some fifty-two pictures on indefinite loan. Almost classical in feeling are the several large examples of Picasso's youthful technique, which make a pleasing wall in gallery 40. Among them are the celebrated "Family of Saltimbanques" and the quaint little child, "The Gourmet."

The same gallery holds two stunning canvases by Charles Dufresne, a beautiful still life and a tapestry-like "Judgment of Paris." Two unusual paintings by Matisse, "Still Life: Apples on Pink Tablecloth" and the deeply green "Les Gorges du Loup," are in contrast to his more familiar representations of women, in which anatomy is inconsequential but decorative color flashes a challenge.

The adjoining gallery holds several Modiglianis, paintings of women and penetrating portraits that still win a smile for their suave humor. The "Leon Bakst" is a portrait in point; another is the irresistible "Madame Amedee." The "Harlequin," by Derain, is another outstanding canvas in this room.

The first gallery, 38, holds the least beautiful paintings, the more mordantly modern pictures if you like. A lyric among the clashing of cymbals is the gentle "In the Park," by Marie Laurencin. "The Church of Saint-Severin" and "Marizy-Sainte-Genevieve," by Utrillo, are happy oases of delightful color and serene atmosphere when Tondu, Soutine, and Leger threaten to be too oppressive.

TRIPS—VACATIONS THE TRIBUNE TRAVELERS' GUIDE TOURS—CRUISES

ODT Bulletin Helps Define Travel Status

By Dorothy Johnson.

Clarification of the issue, to travel or not to travel, is given in a recent bulletin by the office of defense transportation, released by the office of war information. In it the travel minded citizen will find suggestions to help him obtain rest and relaxation, which the government sanctions as necessary to health and morale, without overburdening the nation's transportation facilities, which belong in war time primarily to troops and other essential travelers.

• • •

In a recent statement, Joseph B. Eastman, director of the ODT, said: "We're not going to discourage people from taking vacations." He recommended, however, that employers spread vacations over several months, and maintained that if the public will continue to coöperate, rationing of war burdened transportation facilities will not have to be resorted to.

Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the war production board, also made a formal statement last month, indorsing vacations for industrial workers, declaring that the volume of production will be increased if workers can restore their energies thru periods of physical and mental rest, change, and relaxation.

• • •

The ODT, thru OWI, bulletin follows:

"Dreams of seeing America first belong to post-war vacation plans. This summer, would-be coast to coast trotters must be content with seeing how green the grass is in their own backyard.

"Troop movements, more furlough travel, a rise in war business trips, according to the office of defense transportation, have increased passenger travel on railroads alone some 83 per cent, and probably will boost it an additional 20 per cent during the coming months.

"With such demands on transportation facilities, and with long automobile tours prohibited by gasoline rationing, wanderlust must be packed in mothballs along with last winter's coat.

"Vacations, especially for people working under war time strains, have been declared bonafide by the government as contributing to national health and morale. This stamp of approval, however, does not mean that travel bars are down for vacation pleasure tours. An estimate shows that about 25 per cent of the passenger travel on trains and buses is completely non-essential. A day in the country for city dwellers, a week-end trip to Aunt Bella's, a jaunt to the "big city" for a round of theaters and night clubs, a swing around the coastal resorts all are labeled 'unnecessary' by the ODT, and should be crossed out of every family itinerary for the duration.

• • •

"If individuals and families must travel to 'get away from it all,' here is a travel guide book to make vacations not only enjoyable, but patriotic:

"1. If possible, make it an off season vacation. Crowds on trains and buses are less and reservations are more readily obtained.

"2. Vacation near home. Once you reach your destination, plan to stay there without making side excursions.

"3. Don't make quick, overnight trips. Whatever health and morale effects they may have are offset by war time travel problems.

"4. Plan to leave and return in the middle of the week when travel is less heavy. Army leaves are being scheduled in this way, whenever possible, and civilians have been asked to follow the lead.

"5. Forget about week-end trips entirely. Short, three day army passes are reserved for week-ends to avoid interference with training. Leave room for the soldier getting a quick glimpse of his home town over a week-end.

"6. If travel to the vacation spot is long enough to cover meal periods, take box lunches with you. Overcrowded and understaffed diners must feed hundreds of travelers more important than vacationers.

"7. If the family is spending the summer months at a nearby resort, warn working members and visitors that commutation may be difficult. Latest indications are that there will be very little additional rail service to resort areas for the duration."

Indian Head Country Awaiting Vacationists

Quebec Fishing Season Officially Inaugurated

The Quebec province fishing season opened officially on May 1, with some of the lakes and rivers sufficiently free of winter to be accessible to anglers. Some streams, especially in hilly regions, still are icebound but should be open to fly-casting for trout in a week or two.

Strange Town Names Numerous in Louisiana

Not the least of the thrills of traveling in the United States is the vocabulary of strange town names one acquires. Louisiana is exceptionally rich in unusual titles for villages and other communities. What's in a name? One can draw his own conclusions.

For example, in Jackson's parish, La., are towns named Duty, Liberty, Uncle Sam, and Aimwell, with the less noble town of Dally not far away! Gaytime, Bohemia and Bliss in Rapides parish, indicate that the towns' founding fathers derived a lot of pleasure from living. There are two towns named Hard Times, each in a different parish, and a community named Solitude in another. A really fetching village title, hinting at indecision, is Watizit. Men who prefer them will be intrigued by a town called Blondes. It's in St. Tammany parish, boys.

Mythology has contributed its heritage to other community names in Louisiana. Ulysses, Odin, Ajax, Nestor, Phoenix, Eros, Leander, Adonis, Minerva, and Echo all are commemorated in the state. Biblical titles, too, are prominently scattered thruout Louisiana. Girls' names are used for a great many towns, some with middle initials. One wonders about the surnames of Alice B. and Alice C.

The weather is a common inspiration of town names, in Louisiana as elsewhere. Flood, Tide, and Frost are three, and Sunbeam, Sunrise, Starlight, Luna, and Half Moon pay homage to the planets.

The open fishing season for trout thruout New Hampshire began May 1.

Spring Arrives with Azaleas in the Mid-South

Spring has come to the gardens of the mid-south. Visitors in North Carolina and South Carolina this season are seeing flaming azaleas in a medley of hues, framed by Spanish moss garlands and the perfect coloring of camellias. Near historic Charleston are famous estates: Magnolia gardens, Middleton gardens, Cypress gardens and the recently opened Mateeba gardens. At Summerville, South Carolina's "flower town," are the celebrated Azalea gardens, with 28,000 variety blooms.

In a lovely series between Georgetown and Myrtle Beach are the Brookgreen gardens in a background of sculptured art. Across the bay from Frazier's Point, in a beautiful and historic setting, are the flowery meadows of Belle Isle gardens, one of the most attractive sites in the south. The floral beauty of North Carolina also is notable at Mount Mitchell state park and at Pisgah national forest.

Many Guests to Spend May in Palm Beach

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

PALM BEACH, FLA. May finds Palm Beach with more persons to the landscaped square inch than ever were here before at this time of year. Several hotels are remaining open indefinitely. These include the Villas, the Sea Glade, the Mayflower, the Palm Beach Plaza, and the Biltmore apartments. Some will remain open the year 'round.

A swank grocer also will remain open to receive the ration coupons of coupon clippers, and a scattering of Worth avenue shops will stay in business as long as business justifies it.

The war, which precludes travel, is directly responsible for lengthening the Palm Beach season this year, but no one is complaining about remaining in Florida. The weather so far has been superb. Ocean bathing was never better, and those who have golf balls play golf if they can find caddies.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Spalding III. have returned from a lengthy stay in Havana, Cuba, and have joined Mr. and Mrs. John Wheeler Peck, Mr. and Mrs. Gray Foster and Mr. and Mrs. Varick Foster at Sandy Loam Farms, which the four couples have purchased jointly.

• • •

Mrs. Edward H. White of Chicago had a dinner party at her Chilian avenue villa the other evening. Guests included Mrs. Frank O. Butler, Mrs. Robert H. Ritchie, Forrest Pratt Lindley, Harry Skillman, and Maj. Harold I. Dyer.

Albert M. Price of Elgin is receiving congratulations for winning the award in the winter contest of the West Palm Beach fishing club for his sailfish which measured 8 feet 3¼ inches and weighed 67 pounds.

Mrs. Carleton Dodge of Chicago gave a small dinner in farewell to some New York friends. Mrs. Dodge will remain down thru June. Her son, Robert Dodge, attends the Graham Eckes private school, which is housed in Villa Oheka, the former estate of the late Otto Kahn.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Newton of Chicago entertained a small group for cocktails. Mrs. Norman Stuart Merrett is leaving this week-end to join her mother, Mrs. Hambleton Kirk, in Lake Forest. Wolcott Blair, a former Chicagoan, was a recent visitor at the resort.

Channing Hare, the artist whose wardrobe is as colorful as his personality, was judge of the children's art show which officially ends the season at the Four Arts.

• • •

Mrs. A. Parker Bryant of Chicago and Mrs. Messmore Kendall gave a buffet supper at the home of Mrs. Kendall on Indian road. Mrs. Robert Bacon of Miami Beach has been a guest of Mrs. Bryant.

The Thrift shop, Palm Beach's glorified rummage store, continues its amazing career. And, in case you need a Derby hat, one of the old time "Old Ironsides" variety, Thrift shop has one for you as well as a slightly used polo mallet. The purchaser must furnish his own polo pony. The polo ponies that used to be at Delray were among the missing this season.

Mrs. Mary Aleshire, a former Chicagoan, has resigned as director of the Norton Art gallery, and Mrs. Alice Swain has been appointed as executive secretary. Mrs. Swain received her training at the Cincinnati Art Museum.

The Norton gallery, which has become increasingly important to South Florida as a cultural center, will be the setting next week for the annual pioneer picnic. On this occasion old timers and their descendants will meet to talk over the early days before Palm Beach was ever dreamed of. A handful of men and women who came here as children in the '70s and '80s are still living. Their reminiscences are of the sort that would provide material for several Hollywood epics.

They still chuckle over the time when a shipwreck brought in 50 suits of elegant clothes, all packed in water tight cases, and another time when another shipwreck brought in 900 pounds of butter. And the pioneers had no ice!

Rancher's Note to The Tribune Gets Results!

PHOENIX, ARIZ. Last February a story from this correspondent quoted a letter received by the Phoenix Chamber of Commerce from a rancher in the Kirkland area offering room, board, and equipment to an easterner who wanted to work for a vacation. The result was like a gold strike. Telegrams and letters poured into Phoenix. Letters and telephone calls of inquiry were received also by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

The letter written by the rancher was authentic. There is a dearth of cow hands in this area, and some easterners are working on ranches hereabouts. Of the hundreds of letters received by the chamber of commerce, some were from men about to go into service; others came from youngsters who wouldn't know a maverick from a dogie, some came from cocktail party escapists, and many came from women.

All that sounded serious were turned over to the Arizona Cattle Growers association at 140 South Central avenue in Phoenix. To the writers who indicated that they had some idea of the west and ranch life replies were sent advising that jobs were available but not to come out without money enough for the round trip fare and to stake themselves until they found a job or if the job didn't work out satisfactorily.

Would-be cow hands, however, would do well to check on the necessary requirements for holding such a job before making the trip to Phoenix.

To work on a ranch, you must be able to care for your own horse, even to its shoeing. You must have that sixth sense of direction and be able to cover the hundreds of thousands of acres that comprise these Arizona ranches, without getting lost.

You must be able to spot water holes and that stray steer who is always under a mesquite bush on the furtherest hill.

• • •

You must know how to round up cattle, which doesn't mean riding at a full gallop. Cowboys rarely get out of a walk or jog, especially when working cattle, as running them takes off pounds—off the cattle, not the cowboy. You must know how to use a rope if necessary. At roundup time you must be willing to get up at 4 a. m. and work until sundown seven days a week and take your turn "standing guard." You must know how to mend fences and, above all, live on beans and more beans, and your bed is your bed roll in any soft [if you're lucky] arroyo. You don't go to town often, because the ranch is generally too far from town and you are too tired anyway.

In other words, "It's a great life, if you don't weaken."

Canning Fruit Without Sugar Is Discussed

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1943: By The Chicago Tribune.]

There'll be extra sugar for canning this year, but for some families it won't be an amount sufficient for sweetening all the fruits they wish to put up. Many women will resort to sugarless canning, which usually is quite satisfactory.

When fruits are canned without sugar, they are sweetened as used and the sugar necessary spreads itself out in small amounts which aren't missed from the sugar supply.

Jellies and preserves will be made in minute quantity, if at all, by most homemakers. They require a great deal of sugar. Jams and butters may be made with less sugar than jellies, but they require a generous amount, too.

The question of sugar substitutes always comes up in canning discussions. Nothing else quite takes the place of granulated sugar. Honey may cause darkening of fruit, and does change the flavor somewhat, and so does corn sirup, which isn't as sweet as sugar or honey and therefore is needed in larger amounts. Brown sugar may carry spoilage bacteria into the fruit, causing darkening and change of flavor as well. Saccharin, used for years by diabetics, will sweeten the fruit, but has no sirup-making property and may produce a bitter flavor.

So the best solution seems to be to use what sugar is available, stretching it as far as possible, then to go into sugarless canning, when necessary.

Very thin sugar sirups are better than none, for even a little sugar seems to help the flavor of a canned fruit. A cup of sugar to 4 cups of water makes a thin sirup that is quite satisfactory for most fruits. Further dilution is all right, too. A heavy sirup may be prepared, to be diluted as it is used. A heavy sirup needs 5 cups of sugar for 4 cups of water. Boil sugar and water together 5 minutes to make the sirup.

If some of your fruits will be canned with sugar and some without, it is preferable to use the sugar sirup for peaches, pears, apples, and similar fruits which aren't juicy enough to provide their own liquid, and which depend a good deal upon sugar for helping to preserve their shape, color, and flavor.

Cherries, berries, and plums may be canned in their own juices with or without sugar, and require no water at all, or only a small amount to start them cooking.

Most fruits pack better, look better, and taste better when they are pre-cooked slightly before packing. Berries are heated only until juicy and seldom do they need to be started with any water at all. Other fruits are pre-cooked from 3 to 8 minutes, depending upon size, texture, and juiciness.

Fruits which are packed raw are covered with boiling hot sirup or fruit juice or water, then processed. The hot water bath is most satisfactory for fruits. The open kettle method often is used but causes more vitamin loss.

How to Can Fruits and Fruit Juices Without Sugar.

[Most sugarless fruits and juices require hot water bath.]

APPLES—Wash, pare, core, and slice. Drop into slightly salted water to prevent discoloration. Drain. Cook in water to cover for 3 minutes. Pack, bring cooking water to a boil, fill jars, seal, and process in hot water bath for 25 minutes.

BERRIES AND CHERRIES—Pack into jars and cover with boiling water, or heat until juicy and pack without water. Process 20 minutes in hot water bath if cold packed, 10 minutes if pre-cooked until juicy.

BERRY AND CHERRY JUICES—Wash, crush, and simmer until soft. Strain thru several layers of cheesecloth, reheat, and pour hot into sterilized jars. Process half an hour in simmering water bath.

CRANBERRY JUICE—Stretch the flavor by cooking equal measures of berries and water. Strain, bring to a boil, cook 3 minutes, and seal. No processing is needed.

GRAPE JUICE—Wash, stem, crush, add 1 cup water to a gallon of crushed grapes. Simmer 10 minutes, strain thru cheesecloth, let stand overnight in the refrigerator, strain again. Heat, fill jars, seal, and process 30 minutes in simmering water bath.

PEACHES—Scald, cold dip, drop into slightly salted water. Pare and halve peaches. Simmer in water 5 to 8 minutes, pack, pit side down; fill jars with boiling cooking water, seal, and process 10 minutes in hot water bath.

PEARS—Prepare like peaches, but process 20-25 minutes in hot water bath.

PLUMS—Wash, prick skins, pre-cook in water 2 minutes, pack, and fill jars with boiling water. Process 10 minutes in hot water bath. Or, prick, pack cold in jars, and cover with boiling water, then process 20 minutes.

Substitute Honey to Sweeten Coffee, Tea, Fruit Drinks

Honey may be used entirely to sweeten tea or coffee or fruit juice beverages. In substituting honey for the entire amount of sugar in most simple puddings and desserts, the quantity should be reduced slightly to avoid excessive sweetness in the product, as honey is sweeter than sugar.

Most cakes made with honey are better when not more than half the amount of sugar is replaced with honey, as the resulting product would be too moist and coarse textured. The liquid in the cake recipe must be reduced ¼ cup for each cup of honey used. In fluffy breads and muffins follow directions for substituting honey in cakes.

Black Basic Dress Smart Investment

By Rea Seeger.

A basic or background dress, preferably a simply cut, flawlessly fitted dull black or navy blue, provides the backbone to every well planned wardrobe. Assembled round this background dress are the belts, gloves, hats, bags, extra jackets, gilets, cuffs and collar sets, accessories that provide endless variety. But the dress should be the foil for color combine and contrast. This spring it is sometimes a mere sheath or slip dress, or one of the models with a simple bodice and a slightly flared skirt. The sleeves are shortened, some just caps to cover the shoulders, some ending halfway between elbow and shoulder and the longest sleeves just above the elbow.

Any fullness necessary in the skirt is achieved thru flat shirrings, and these shirrings or gathers distributed at each side on the hip line, leaving the front flat and smooth. Cleverly cut diaphragm belts or shaped panels in the front to which the skirt is gathered simply are other detailed tricks of the designer to achieve width within the legal limits of yardage and inches.

Still leading the parade are the basic dresses of dull black. Whether they are made of precious silks, of the many new rayon weaves, or the thin summer woolens, such dresses are miracles of figure flattery. This necessary simplicity is achieved only with expert skill; the seams are straight and true; the intricate or not so intricate details are flawless, else the background effect is lost. Such a dress can be worn for season after season, datelessly smooth, ready for all manner of accessories and color contrasts.

A few of the virtually unlimited accessory items are: Colored jackets of silk, rayon, thin wool, taffeta, ribbon, linen, eyelet embroidery, gingham, lace, organdy, and brocade; hats and matching bag duets, boleros and glove sets, belts and companion gloves, and the revived fashion in aprons of flowered silk or rayon. Stripes, checks, plaids, dotted materials, large, medium, and small floral patterned prints, dashing, strong clashes of colors, such as cerise, tangerine, citron, copper, bittersweet red, vivid greens, are other telling color combines for these black dresses.

Because these black beauties must function smoothly for seasons, it's only good shopping to buy the best you can find, to pay as much as possible for quality and fine workmanship. Then you are assured of never failing, smooth performance week in and week out. Spend your money seriously for these dull blacks, for small sums expended on the proper costume accessories will accomplish magic.

Select them for classic simplicity, for distinctive dressmaker details, and for fabrics that have a dull, handsome sheen. Four ideal, dull black finds are sketched. They are smooth examples of perfect basic dresses featured in one collection of smart new models to be found in a Chicago shop. Others, equally high fashion and undated, are available in the same collection. For further information, call Superior 0200.

Fashions

Whether she is dude ranching, riding on park bridle paths or cantering thru the woods, the smart equestrienne has the right outfit for the occasion.

Worn with the first outfit is a combination blouse-panty-slip which eliminates all shirt-tail trouble. The blue denim bolero jacket, slacks, and short leather boots are the ideal casual dress, suitable for any ranch. The bolero is trimmed with fringed denim, brass nailheads, and red stitching. The slacks may be worn tucked into the boot or left loose. All of these items are sold separately and at reasonable cost.

For a jaunt along woodsy trails, a comfortable, long sleeved cotton blouse of vivid plaids is worn with a sleeveless suede jacket in shades of gold, brown, or green to match the outstanding color of the blouse. A jockey cap of gabardine, matching the jacket, is an attractive and inexpensive essential.

• • •

A complete habit for city riding allows a choice. A brown, orange, and white houndstooth checked coat and brown gabardine pants or jodhpurs demand accessories in harmonizing tones. A brown felt bowler sits firmly across the brow to keep the locks in place. A yellow crêpe stock has embroidered horses' heads scattered across the front. If the weather is chilly a sleeveless flannel weskit of gold, green, red, or brown may be worn under the coat. Instead of a white shirt, a soft brown silk, long sleeved blouse, patterned with hunters and horseshoes, may be substituted.

If you are addicted to riding boots, don't forget how handy bootjacks can be. Tugging and pulling may be eliminated easily with the aid of these handy gadgets.

Lady of the House

"Delicate Footed May."

When the goddess Maia, oldest and loveliest of the seven daughters of Atlas, looks down from the skies upon the earth that should be so bright with hope, and love, and life, I think she must want to hide her face like her sister Merope—the seventh and "lost" Pleiad—who dared to love a mortal so prone to tragic error.

But, tho rough winds shake them, our beloved May brings us always new buds and flowers, new hope and courage, when the shy little wildlings come into bloom, and shrubs and trees wrap themselves in delicate pink and snowy white and fling their perfume to the clean air. Gentle things do survive.

Legend of Anemone.

The story goes that Chloris, goddess of flowers, became enamored of gentle Zephyrus, the spirit of the west wind, who came into her garden to woo her. Chloris had many pretty nymphs in her garden and among them was a little maiden called Anemone.

One day West Wind turned away from Chloris and began to make love to Anemone. This made Chloris very angry and she drove Anemone from the garden and left her to perish in the wild woods. Happily Zephyrus passed thru the woods and he found Anemone just as she was dying and turned her into the little white, tender, and graceful flower which now grows beneath the trees in early spring.

Raindrop Overture.

Like silver carillons the rain drops play
Their overture as harbinger of May;
The rhythmic, martial notes against the glass,
Bespeak the soldier tulips soon to pass
In gay review, fixed bayonets of green,
With helmets flashing crimson bold between;
Roulade of dulcet tinkling on the rills,
Foretells the pirouetting daffodils;
Melodious and soft, the obbligato now,
Is perfumed bloom upon some orchard bough;
Cadenza lightly played across the pane,
But heralds budding vi'lets in the lane;
Now in finale—silver serenade—
Reluctantly its whispered echoes fade,
Like ling'ring lovers in prolonged good-by—
That is the breath of lilacs blooming nigh!

—Dorene Tanner Oehler.

Consolation.

Clothe it from the start

Tho pain be yours, one step ahead too far,
No other light to guide you since that one
Went out into the young spring night and then was gone,
Walk on, look up, and He who gave you life,
Will give you heart, and hope, and strength in strife.

Cattails to the Front.

The kind that grows in marshes and waste lands—not on the cat. Once more a lowly thing pops up with unknown virtues—to slap the Jap. Cattails are being processed into fluff—"typha"—and employed in hundreds of ways to replace kapok: Life preservers, sleeping bags, pads, pillows, linings, insulations, soft balls, and many, many more. Experiments continue and more ways of using typha will be found. Already some claim it is superior to kapok.

Take something away from a Yankee and he promptly finds, or makes, something better. Gathering cattails, from late summer on, at $2 per 1,000, helps the war effort, civilian industry, and the purse. And they grow almost everywhere.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, but not value. The column in this page contains offers to buy and sell. Include a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

The Pan American Union has just released an announcement by Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director general of the union, and Eugene Klein, president of the American Philatelic Congress, which calls for a joint celebration of the centenary of the postage stamp in America by these organizations.

Brazil was the first nation in the western hemisphere to make use of the postage stamp as an indication of the prepayment of postage. This was in 1843, three years after the idea had been adopted by the British postoffice and four years before its value became evident to the authorities in the United States.

The 9th annual American Philatelic Congress will pay tribute to Brazil in particular and in general to the postal systems of all the Pan American republics. The Pan American Centenary of the Postage Stamp will be held at the Pan American Union in Washington, Nov. 26, 27, and will consist of a reception and three or four open sessions during which papers will be read by leading philatelic authorities on the postage stamps of the Americas. The authors will include collectors of prominence in Latin American countries as well as in the United States.

During this congress a carefully selected collection of postage stamps of the 21 American republics will be displayed in the exhibition hall of the Pan American Union.

Committee appointments, to be announced shortly, will be made to work out the details of numerous appropriate features of the congress which will include participation by government officials, domestic and short wave radio broadcasts, and a broad campaign of educational features for press use and also for use in schools and colleges.

"Who's Who on the Postage Stamps of Cuba" is the seventh number of the Philatelic Who's Who series published by the Latin American Stamp section of the Pan American Union. This number which was compiled by Albert F. Kunze contains a foreword by Señor Aurelio F. Conchesa, ambassador to the United States from Cuba.

In addition to 27 pages of biographical data, the booklet contains two pages of halftones illustrating the persons described in the text and two pages containing a résumé of Cuban history.

This booklet, like the preceding numbers of the series, is priced at 10 cents. Seven numbers are now available and may be obtained by ordering from Latin American Stamp section, Pan American Union, Washington, D. C.

Information on the first national Eucharistic Congress commemorative issue of El Salvador has been provided by J. Antonio Rodezno of San Salvador.

The series was placed on sale on Nov. 15 and consists of a four stamp souvenir sheet of which 5,000 copies were printed, and 100,000 copies of an 8-centavos blue stamp for regular postage and 50,000 copies of a 30-centavos red stamp for airmail use.

The sheet contains two copies each of the 8c and 30c values, imperforate and arranged se-tenant in each direction, and bears the arms of El Salvador with the inscription "Primer Congreso Nacional Eucaristico de El Salvador-San Salvador, 23-24-25 y 26 de Novembre de 1942." The stamps and arms are engraved on the sheet while the inscription and a border line around the block are typographed.

It is every mother's duty to tell her daughter physical facts. How much better that she learn them from you, rather than from girls her own age. In feminine hygiene, facts may be distorted, or wholly untrue. As a result, many brides use over-strong solutions of acids for the douche which can actually burn, scar and even desensitize delicate tissue.

Today such risks are needless. Science has given womankind a safe—yet amazingly powerful—liquid for the douche, Zonite. So powerful is Zonite, it kills instantly all germs and bacteria with which it comes in contact. Deodorizes—by actually destroying odors, leaving no telltale odor of its own. Protects personal daintiness. Yet! Zonite is non-caustic, non-poisonous, safe for delicate tissues. Over 20,000,000 bottles already bought. For modern hygienic protection you may never have known before, get Zonite at your druggist today.

On The House

No part of our house needs more intelligent upkeep at the present time than our floors, and as a help in this upkeep comes a free booklet on the care of linoleum floors. . . . Here you will find hints galore on what to do for nicks and scratches, as well as how to maintain existing colors in their fresh, original state of health.

We have been drinking homogenized milk for some time. . . . Now there's a new flat wall paint, oil type, which works on much the same principle. . . . Water is employed to transform it from a paste to an easy and smooth flowing paint. . . . The pigment particles of this paint are surrounded by oil and with the help of a homogenizing agent are suspended in a water vehicle. . . . You have a wide choice since eight pastel shades, including white, can be intermixed to furnish a wide assortment of tones and colors. . . . Apply this paint on the wall of a room, and the water with which it has been thinned will evaporate, and the surface, as the oil oxidizes, will look like an oil type paint. . . . It has been manufactured for use over painted or unpainted plaster, wallpaper, brick, and other interior wall surfaces, except glazed tile.

Child Speech Often Reveals a True Beauty

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

Children say many things which show imaginative and spiritual beauty, beauty of thought and of emotion. Sayings of that sort are scattered along the way all thru their lives. If you have that kind of a relationship with your children, or if you are often with them, you may hear these things said, to themselves, to the earth, to the flowers, to their dolls or animals or to you. In a way, I suppose we could consider this form of expression as one more aspect of the creative impulse.

In going over some miscellaneous but rather treasured papers the other day I came across some childish sayings I had scribbled in hurried moments on anything at hand. The find reminded me of a suggestion I had once passed on to the readers of this column, one which I am going to repeat today.

If I had certain years of my life to live over again I'd keep some sort of running record, a casual diary or notebook, of the interesting, revealing, imaginative, spiritual and touching sayings or conversations even, of the child.

No, I don't mean one of those formal, decorated, glossy baby books for pictures and weight and first step, first tooth, first words, and so forth. Nor do I mean an earnest day by day record. That would be too stupendous an undertaking, altho such a volume written by an intelligent mother with a background of some study, would be a marvelous document.

• • •

But it was no such stupendous task that I meant. Because, if you have charge of your baby's food and his outings and his clothes and his illnesses, if, perhaps, you aren't very strong, or have money troubles, or other personal things on your mind, if you try to keep up some social life and read a little, well, all those things don't seem to leave you a minute for such an indulgence as making even the most sketchy notes on your babies or children. Still, if I had those years to live over again, I'd do it, by hook or crook. It would be so worth while.

Now, of course, there are many things worth remembering that you could note. You might choose to make a record of your baby's speech, his interest in music, his artistic talents or his adventures. There are many other things you might record.

But I would choose to keep notes of the poetic things, and the things that reveal a spiritual perception which my child said. Sometimes this latter comes out as actual poetry, sometimes just as deep speculations. Also, I would keep a record of the unusually thoughtful or discerning remarks; as, for example, the question asked by a child who had been hearing about the religions of the world, and who asked, "Is the Christian religion just one more faith, or is it the true religion?" It is those three sorts of things I would try to write down.

Sometimes I think every child is a poet, a mystic, or possesses spiritual perceptions of great fineness. That they lose some of this is partly our fault.

The trouble is that when children say in our hearing the things which justify such a belief in their deeper powers they don't register with us, altho, if we saw some of those very words on the printed page they would arrest our attention. Their interest or beauty would reach us from outside. But when our own children say them in everyday conversation, we don't hear them with our inner ear.

• • •

But alas! often those poetic or spiritual things don't ever get themselves said. In some children's lives there aren't the pauses, the quiet, the certainty of a sympathetic listener that make them voice a delicate, poetic, or profound feeling, one that is outside the realm of the commonplace. So many of us parents, concerned with the material aspects of everyday living, don't raise our eyes above them. It would be well if we did.

This idea of raising the eyes above a constant concern with physical or material things might be taken almost literally. How often, for instance, do you lift your eyes and actually look up at the sky with your children, the sky at night—or the sky at early morning? A veritable poem sprang into existence the other day when a child I know, awakened by something at dawn, went to his window to look out and up.

The night sky in summer, when the moon comes up like a great yellow lantern, or a moonless night, when the stars are out and seem to rest on the trees like Christmas candles, are full of meaning to a child. A conversation carried on by another child I know, leaning out of the window one evening just before bedtime watching the moon and stars in their dark sky, ended with, "The moon is my bed, and the star is my pillow."

Fashions as I See Them

By Judith Cass

The women who work untiringly for the Infant Welfare society, whose nation-wide Baby week starts today, met at the Casino club last week and filled the Fountain room with well dressed figures. Mrs. Frederick Herendeen, for instance, who is a member of the Kenwood Social Service club, came to the meeting in a sprightly new spring suit of vivid blue, on the tailored side, yet soft looking. The day turned out to be a bit cool for the suit, but admiring glances must have repaid the wearer many times over for a bit of shivering now and then. With the suit she wore a white heavy crêpe blouse, collar outside, and a trim little hat. Her gold and ruby jewels matched each other, earrings of geometric figures in gold, from which little ruby drops were suspended, and a stunning wide bracelet of gold, on which were mounted flexible, daisy-like flowers whose petals were rubies. Tiny diamonds outlined the design, and were used also on a gold ring that was set with a star ruby. Mrs. Herendeen, who always is well dressed, appeared a day or two later in a costume that created quite a little stir and no end of amusement. It was a black silk dress printed all over in white with fat be-winged cherubs in all sorts of poses, some floating on clouds, and the like. Mrs. Herendeen's hat on this occasion with a tiny sailor of heavy rough white straw. The straw was so worked on the brim as to resemble ruching. A short silver fox jacket completed the ensemble.

Mrs. Albert B. Dick Jr., used gold jewelry as an accessory with the plain gray crêpe dress she wore to the Infant Welfare meeting. Her hat was of green, trimmed with green oak leaves that jutted forward. At the neck of her dress she pinned a horseshoe of gold, and on one wrist was a fairly wide bracelet of two or three tones of gold, designed to resemble a strap. Mrs. Towner K. Webster appeared at the meeting in the smartest of suits, a gray blue tailored one, with which she wore a white blouse tucked all over with the finest of hand tucking, and which fastened with a short row of tiny buttons down the front. Just the right color note was introduced by Mrs. Webster's wine colored hat which was trimmed with two shaggy wine colored chrysanthemums. Mrs. Harold Davis was wearing a French blue blouse with a darker color blue suit, and on her head was a peppy little sailor of navy and white checks, trimmed with navy ribbon and veiling that covered the back of the hat, rather than the front. That refreshing spring duo of gray and white has two ardent sponsors in Mrs. William H. Mitchell and Mrs. W. Press Hodgkins. At a recent luncheon of the Chicago committee of the Seeing Eye, both of these stunning women appeared in ensembles of gray touched up with white. Mrs. Mitchell's trim gray suit had an intriguing little collar and cuffs of loops of rough white braid, stitched together to give a lacy effect. Her wisp of a hat was a large starched white pique bow held to her head by a wide white strap, and gray veiling covered her pretty face. The tiny collar and jabot on Mrs. Hodgkins' gray wool coat-dress were of frilled white pique. Stitched all over the crown of her small beret of gray crushed felt were white mother-of-pearl buttons, appliqued in pairs.

• • •

Another gray costume was worn by Mrs. T. Hamil Reidy, whose flannel dress had wide straps coming over each shoulder to be slipped thru giant buckles, one on each side of her rolled-back white collar. Her attractive dress was belted in crushed raspberry kid, and pinned behind her dark pompadour was a spray of dusty pink velvet flowers and green leaves. Tiny spring flowers shading from raspberry and cinnamon pink to white were heaped up upon the circular disc that was Mrs. Paine Fentress' salute to spring. Her black crêpe dress had clever side fastenings, and one shoulder and the panel of crêpe that swung loose on the same side of the skirt were banded in kelly green. Mrs. Mitchell's mother, Mrs. Robert E. Wood, came to the meeting in navy blue, with long-stemmed flowers of pale blue appliqued to one side of the bodice. Her little hat was crowned in pale blue hyacinths. Mrs. William J. Kelly owns a gay little hat that is a frivolous version of a man's homburg. It's of starched white Irish lace, and is especially becoming when she tilts it over one eye and lets her shoulder length blonde hair hang in loose ringlets, caught at the nape of the neck by a wide barrette. As girlish as this "hair-do" is from the back, it gives a sleek and sophisticated appearance from the front, as the sides and pompadour have an upswept look. Recently Mrs. Kelly wore this giddy little bonnet with a navy suit chalk-striped in white.

Mrs. T. Hamil Reidy.

Consideration of Strangers Tests Etiquet

By Helen Bartlett.

Because it is fairly easy to be pleasant and kind to those we know and like, we think the real test of good manners and graciousness is to be found in the consideration and treatment accorded strangers, those unknown souls with whom we come in contact during the course of a day. And the perfect proving ground is in a restaurant or grill at the peak of the noon day rush.

Most eating establishments in business centers depend upon a quick turnover of customers within a short space of time to realize a profit, and the diner who decides to dawdle over his meal for more than a reasonable length of time becomes a burden to the management. Not only that, he is a distinct source of annoyance and inconvenience to other hungry persons who must wait for his table. No one is expected to gulp his food in such a hurry that little benefit will be derived from it, but unless he patronizes a high priced restaurant where leisurely dining is the rule, he is expected to make way for others.

It is perfectly permissible to take time for a cigaret after a meal when seated at a table. However, that privilege is denied to those who patronize lunch counters and grills. These places are set up to give quick service and customers should coöperate by relinquishing their places immediately after the meal is completed. It is unfair to keep others waiting and writhing with impatience while a cigaret is smoked in leisurely fashion. The same rule applies to those who would like to sit and chat for a while; it is permissible when at a table but taboo at a lunch counter.

There is a word of caution, too, for those who wait at a counter; don't breathe down the unhappy diner's neck and don't try to evict him with pointed remarks and gentle jostling. If he has learned his lunchroom etiquet, he will let you have his place as soon as he can; if he hasn't, it is futile to try to make him understand.

Are you suffering from timidity? It will help you to read the booklet, "Charm and Self-Consciousness," by Helen Bartlett, Tribune etiquet editor. On sale at Tribune Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn street, and Tribune Tower, 435 N. Michigan avenue. Price, 3 cents. Postpaid, 5 cents.

Will Women Turn Domestic After the War?

By Doris Blake.

[Copyright: 1943: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

While world figures sit in at tables gravely pondering peace terms, adjustments and readjustments of territorial claims, our man of the street is pondering a post-war problem that confronts him. His is the problem of whether his wife will be willing to return to the domestic fold; whether she is elastic enough to bounce back to her pre-war feminine status, as Richard Malkin puts it in his tome, "Marriage and Morals." [Arden Book company.]

Because of the grim realities of war, Malkin says, the woman, like the man, has turned into a hardened person. The $20 a week office girl in shirtwaist and suit has changed her attire to overalls while she tends pounding presses for $40 a week. Rubbing elbows with the man who previously denied her capabilities she hears the invariable swearing that is roof and rafter of every shop and plant in which males abound. She is now attuned to strident noises. She has learned to use certain muscles that she never before realized were buried in her shapely arms and legs. She can speak a technical language, and argues with the best of the males. Grease no longer holds terror for her. A cut or burn elicits no screech.

• • •

Mr. Malkin and a million other males view this womanhood change with some alarm, fearing that the woman's patriotic sacrifices have become her great chance to sweep into the male-female material partnership on the 50-50 basis so long envisioned by feminists.

Headlines which Malkin calls "tasty morsels to the equal-righters," such as "women's nimble fingers excel in fashioning precision parts for defense weapons"; "Hand that rocks the cradle now guides machine tools"; "Arsenal of democracy is manned by women," may be forerunners of things to which the male may have to accustom himself.

In a May 10, 1942, resolution approved by representatives of 11 nations in the World Woman's Party for Equal Rights, there may be a clew to what's up the feminine sleeve. After a plea to the united nations council that "freedom for women is one freedom that could and should be established now in the territory of the united nations without waiting for the conclusion of the war," the resolution reads:

"Women have always made and are making today a magnificent contribution to society, in spite of inequalities and restrictions. No one knows what women could make and will make when these inequalities and restrictions are removed."

Since more than 25 per cent of all of our war workers are women and that figure is ready to be topped by another 50 per cent, the equal-righters have a strong bludgeon thinks Malkin.

• • •

But John Doe, average husband of a war worker, isn't thinking in terms of equal rights. His problem is whether the little woman will be willing to take over the running of his home on the pre-war basis. Whether she will forget there was a war once the axis is cracked.

Becoming man's match and ceasing to be his mate carries ominous overtones, our authority senses. It holds a tremendous social significance, for the duration wives who work will be classified as patriots. They are encouraged to take a portion of their goodly wages and bank it in war bonds, guaranteeing a nest egg which will supply its own benefits. If, in other words, her work permits her to return to her rightful place in the sun as sweetheart, wife, and mother, with her husband encouraged to re-create his place in the sun as provider, husband, and father, then family happiness may be assured.

Our judgment is that if women, once tasting this financial independence and spending money with no thought of future security, are urged back into homes, there will be a considerable period of unhappiness during the necessary readjustment.

Second Youth Meeting to Be Held Tuesday

"Youth in the Service of America" will be the theme of the second annual Youth week vocational convention for high school delegates being held all day Tuesday at the Morrison hotel. Approximately 400 students chosen to represent 40 Chicago high schools will register at 9 o'clock for the meeting which is designed, under the joint sponsorship of the Union League club and a large group of professional women's clubs, to provide vocational guidance for these boys and girls. Mrs. Edith Jarvis Alden of the Chicago Altrusa club is chairman for the women's groups, which provide guidance for the girls, and A. C. Cronkhite is president of the men's organization aiding the boys.

• • •

The convention is an outgrowth of the efforts of the two adult groups to give first hand, practical vocational information to students. These efforts were begun a number of years ago in coöperation with the board of education's bureau of occupation with the thought that, while the schools provided theory and education, these should be supplemented by practical information that could be given only by those actually engaged in business. Altrusa was instrumental in organizing the women's group which represents 23 clubs and approximately 2,000 individual members.

• • •

Col. Chester L. Fordney, chief of United States marine recruiting in the midwest area, will be guest speaker at the midday luncheon, at which Mrs. Alden will preside.

Among other speakers during the day will be Thomas J. Wright, area director of the war man power commission; Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of Chicago schools; George F. Cassell, assistant superintendent; Mrs. Aneita Tidball of Chicago Travelers' Aid society; Lt. Donald H. V. Hallock of the 6th service command; Lt. Barbara Rode of the WAAC; Ensign Lucille Schoenfeld of the WAVES; William H. Conley of the Wright Junior college; William H. Nims, counselor for men at Northwestern university; Miss Mary Kennedy, Miss Jean MacDougall, Miss Margaret Doane, and Willis Scott.

Altrusa is having a 7 o'clock meeting tomorrow night to make final plans for the club's participation in the convention.

Women in War Work . . . . By Kate Massee

This department reports on women's war activities and answers questions regarding such activities.]

Seven hundred and sixty-two women are on the educational swing shift at the Illinois Institute of Technology, attending school at night and continuing their day activities of working or homemaking.

Women are in 47 of the school's 80 part time war training classes. They are among the 4,826 students enrolled in evening war courses, and in some of the courses they outnumber the men. There are 86 students taking the fundamentals of radio and 72 of them are women. In a drafting class of 44 only 7 are men.

Industrial management for foremen is the most popular evening course among the women. It has 212 enrolled, and 82 of them are employés of the Chicago Ordnance district.

Five of the classes—die design, manufacturing processes, metallurgy of aluminum, organic chemistry for engineers and X-ray testing—have only one woman enrolled in each.

Miss Marian Dembosky is one of 762 women training in evening classes at the Illinois Institute of Technology. An alumna of its class in drafting for women, she is now in a die design class with 72 men.

• • •

Typical of the women who study in Illinois Tech's evening war courses is Miss Marian Dembosky, 1842 North Whipple street, the only woman studying die design in a class with 72 men. Miss Dembosky, 19, is a former singer and artist. She took Illinois Tech's full time drafting course for women and obtained a job doing layout and detailing work in the drafting room of a war plant. Now, she is using one of Illinois Tech's war courses to proceed to more advanced work.

The secretary to a factory superintendent in war industry, Miss Rose Gambina, 4202 West Jackson boulevard, is taking manufacturing processes with 51 men. She has found that she needs a technical background for her work and so studies at night.

Another alumna of Illinois Tech's day war courses is taking advanced training. She is Miss Betty Allbright, 4237 Western avenue, a graduate of the metallurgical techniques course, now employed as a junior metallurgist in a war plant. She's studying the metallurgy of aluminum with 48 men.

Miss Sylvia Traub, 555 West Cullerton street, a chemist who tests waterproofed materials in a war industry, is enrolled with 23 men in organic chemistry. A former medical secretary, she holds a degree in chemistry. The lone woman in the X-ray testing class is Miss Violet Prange, 3251 West 66th street. Already employed in an X-ray laboratory she is preparing for a better job.

• • •

Food dehydration, one of Illinois Tech's most advanced war training courses, has 19 women in a class of 132 students. Among them is Miss Faye Brustin, 551 Melrose street, Russian born technician whose job is with a company that manufactures dehydrated soups. Miss Isabel DuBois, 5441 North Kenmore avenue, is an inspector of dehydrated, canned, and frozen foods that go to the army, navy, and our allies. The job of Miss Ruth Harmon, 400 North Cuyler avenue, Oak Park, is analyzing dried eggs. Another of the students is Miss Virginia Helmke, 6225 South Woodlawn avenue, a home economics teacher.

The wife of the instructor of Illinois Tech's wood technology course is so enthusiastic about her husband's work that she's understudying him. She is Mrs. Morris Lieff, 1128 East Hyde Park boulevard. She intends to help her husband assemble notes and do his office work. She's learning with 38 men.

These women are studying two to four nights weekly for 16 weeks to prepare for war work. The courses are tuition free, government sponsored. Illinois Tech's summer evening program will begin in July. Information regarding it may be had by writing to the Illinois Tech war training office, 43 West 33d street.

Federation of Music Clubs Plans Convention

The annual three day convention of the Illinois Federation of Music clubs will open on Sunday, May 23, in the La Salle hotel, Mrs. Royden J. Keith, president, has announced. Mrs. Charles A. Pardee, state program chairman, is in charge of the program which is scheduled to stress the importance of preserving music in war time. Highlight of the convention will be the annual Illinois White breakfast, which will be held at 12:30 o'clock Monday afternoon, May 24. Mrs. James Allen Young, executive chairman of the 1st district, is in charge of general arrangements for the meeting.

Campion Mothers to Hold Annual Spring Luncheon

The Campion Mothers' club is having its annual spring luncheon at 12:30 o'clock Tuesday in the Crystal room of the Palmer House. Mrs. J. Frank Kelly, chairman, has arranged for the Rev. Thomas J. Stemper, president of Campion, the Jesuit school at Fond du Lac, Wis., to be guest speaker.

Mrs. J. Frank Kelly. [Neff Photo.]

"History of the American Popular Song" will be the subject of an address by the Rev. John F. Quinn, dean of the college of arts and science of the University of Detroit. Mrs. Edward F. Mulhern, president, will welcome the speakers, and friends and members of the club in attendance. Mrs. James J. Walsh is assisting Mrs. Kelly with the reservations.
